THEATER AGAIN PLACED ON ITS HONOR PROVES ITSELF EQUAL

No Advantage Taken of Actors Because of Tuesday Closing

Full Pay Granted Performers in Every Department

Stagefolks Mobilize for Big War Stamp Drive

New York, Jan. 26.—A great wave of relief accompanied the announcement this week that the great army of actors would suffer no financial loss thru the day of idleness forced upon them by the "Blue Tuesday" order of the Fuel Administration. Once again this order put the theater on its honor as the theater has been put on its honor in an unprecedented way at various times since America entered into the world war. It was inevitable that the theater would maintain its honor, as it had done in every instance, and the public can but maintain a sincerer regard for every branch of the show world, for producers, managers and performers, than it ever has done before.

The Shuberts, with their characteristic custom of dealing with vital problems, promptly solved this problem without even waiting for the concerted action which was to follow on the question. No sooner had the real conditions which would exist been placed before them than the Shuberts announced that all their employees would be paid in full, in spite of the lost time on Tuesday. A special meeting of the Vaudeville Managers' Protective Association was called later to discuss the same subject. General Manager Sam Scribner, of the Columbia Burlesque Association, presided, and represented in the assembly were vaudeville, burlesque and picture magnates. It was unanimously agreed after a brief discussion that salaries in full be paid to all artists and house employees, notwithstanding that the theaters were to be closed one full day. The resolution included all artists, house employees, stage hands and musicians. Thus the performers of America were saved salaries which, in the aggregate, would have amounted to a vast sum of money. Telegrams were immediately sent to all the theaters controlled by the association and its allies in the States affected by the fuel closing ordinance informing the managers of the order and instructing them to pay salaries in full. This week the show world began preparations to

COMMITTEES ARE APPOINTED FOR N.Y. BRANCH OF S. L. OF A.

Victor D. Levitt Presides at Membership Meeting

Club Rooms Will Be Located at 817 Sixth Avenue

A. A. Powers Tendered Vote of Thanks for Efforts

New York, Jan. 26.—A regular membership meeting of the newly organized New York branch of the Showmen's League of America was held last night at the cafe of Edward Hayes, 824 Sixth avenue. As Governor Harry Raver was absent because of illness, and as the first lieutenant-governor, Harry F. McGarvie, was in Washington on official business, the second lieutenant-governor, Victor D. Levitt, occupied the chair and called the meeting to order promptly at 8 o'clock. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary and also a report of the committee on organization, which recommended that the Executive Committee be empowered to execute a lease for club rooms on the premises at 817 Sixth avenue. Under this lease the organization will

TWO PRODUCERS ADDED TO THOSE NOW PROMOTING DIRECT SALES

Plan Gets Brenon, Shubert and Ince Productions

Seven Independent Producers Now Interested in Work

Exhibitors Everywhere Taking Kindly to Idea

New York, Jan. 26.—The Direct Sales Plan for furnishing service direct from producers to exhibitors received great impetus last night, when, at a meeting held at the Direct Sales Company's office in the Longacre Building, the Herbert Brenon Productions and the Shubert, Hammerstein and Ince Productions joined hands with the independent producers already co-operating with the motion picture exhibitors' units thruout the country in the promulgation of the idea.

The five original companies affiliated with the idea are the Frohman Amusement Company, Lillian Walker Pictures Corporation, Ivan Film Corporation, Triumph Film Corporation and the Harry Rapf Productions. The Herbert Brenon Productions and the Shubert, Hammerstein and Ince companies were invited into the affiliation, and at the meeting held Friday night the invitation was accepted.

The acquisition of the new enterprises will make the Direct Sales' plan more then ever a vital force. An idea of what is being accomplished may be indicated by the fact that Thomas J. Hamlin, secretary and general manager of the Associated Theaters, Inc., of Minneapolis, Minn., signed a contract this morning for one release each week for 645 members of that organization. He has gone West to extend the organization in Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Montana to book in conjunction with Minnesota, Wisconsin and North and South Dakota. Next week it is expected to close a contract for New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Kentucky, Illinois and most of the South.

The service is spreading like wildfire, and exhibitors' organizations in every State are organizing to handle the service, and after the meeting Friday night everyone present was very sanguine and confident of the results to be attained. At that meeting communications were read from all parts of the United States.

The Direct Sales Plan was prepared by Charles C. Pettijohn, of Indianapolis, and Lewis L. Levine, of Brooklyn.

CHICAGO NEW BATTLEGROUND IN K. & E. AND SHUBERT FIGHT

Withdrawal of Maude Fulton's The Brat, a Big Success,

Causes Much Speculation in Theatrical Circles

Chicago, Jan. 26.—That Chicago is serving as a new battle ground for the war between the Klaw & Erlanger interests and The Shuberts is indicated in the surprising announcement that Cheating Cheaters, a K. & E. booked attraction, will supersede Maude Fulton, in The Brat (a Morosco offering), at the Colonial Monday night.

The announcement is surprising because Maude Fulton's Chicago triumph in The Brat has been complete. Few shows, in these hard times have aroused such enthusiastic patronage. This may be due partly to the fact that the $1 top seat scale has proven especially attractive to Chicago theatergoers, but the point remains that Maude Fulton's prematurely closed run gave promise of proving one of the season's distinct, long-run hits. Full houses have been the rule at the Co-

SUNDAY BECOMES IMPORTANT DAY IN CHICAGO THEATRICALS

Half Dozen Loop Houses, Exclusive of Vaudeville and Burlesque, Give Performances—Three New Attractions Scheduled for Current Week

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Now that war-administration orders have inaugurated the "showless" Tuesday theatrical managements are giving more attention to Sunday shows. Even such staid Sunday seclusionists as David Warfield (at Powers') and Mrs. Fiske (at the Blackstone) joined the general trend and yesterday presented performances, both afternoon and evening, bringing the grand total of Sunday Loop shows—exclusive of vaudeville and burlesque—to an even half a dozen. Since Powers' and Blackstone will not open on the afternoon of coal-holiday Monday Sunday will become the principal theatrical day for the ten-week period. Most of the legitimate houses have arranged for enough extra matinees to make up the customary nine performances per week, thus doing away with the necessity of cutting performers' salaries.

The present week is favored with three new attractions of widely varied calibers. Cheating Cheaters, a melodramatic farce, took The Brat's place at the Colonial this afternoon, with Eileen Huban, Edward Ellis, Frank Monroe, Anne Sutherland and James Marlowe interpreting the more important roles.

The other two shows on the week's calendar have not yet arrived. Leave It to Jane, the musical comedy version of Ade's The College Widow, will come to the La Salle Wednesday night, where Oh, Boy, held forth for so long. The Wanderer, a much talked of Biblical parable, employing a company of 200, comes to the Auditorium Thursday night.

With the new calendar holding sway it is likely ere many weeks pass by that Monday afternoon will occupy the premier position previously awarded

Fail To Secure House in Providence

Providence, R. I., Jan. 26.—Klaw & Erlanger's attempt to enter the theatrical field in this city has apparently met with another reverse. Not succeeding in getting the Modern Theater representatives of the firm opened negotiations with Charles H. Williams, manager of the Strand, for that house. Reports have been circulated about the city that the Strand has all but been leased to the Klaw & Erlanger forces, but no definite understanding can be reached. Mr. Williams has stated himself that a representative of the producers have been here to see him, but he has not leased the house, and the outlook at present is that he will not to Klaw & Erlanger until they meet his demands. The Strand is devoted to moving pictures exclusively. It seats about 6,000 people, and is next to the Majestic in grandeur.

Houseman Heeds Ridings

In Evolving Seat System for Chicago's Newest First-Class Theater

Chicago, Jan. 27.—The Cohan's Grand Opera House is in no wise a new theater, having given service as a first-class house since and before Mansfield strode the boards, this grand old theater still serves in some respects as a criterion for new activities.

An astonishing evidence of this is found in the fact that Lou Houseman, general Western representative for Al Woods, has decided to adopt the seating system in vogue at the Grand Opera House for the Alwoods Theater, now rapidly nearing completion at the northwest corner of Randolph and Dearborn streets. When the builders asked Houseman what seat order he intended to use the energetic p. a. took the proposition under advisement and proceeded to interview several loop managers regarding the methods of seating patrons in use in their houses. He finally had a long talk with his old friend, Harry J. Ridings, manager of Cohan's Grand, and was convinced within less than ten minutes that no manner of seating could surpass that evolved by the Cohan management.

A Trench Fantasy

Added to The Gypsy Trail at Plymouth Theater, New York

New York, Jan 26.—Arthur Hopkins added an afterpiece to The Gypsy Trail at the Plymouth Theater last night. The new piece is a timely little sketch by Percival Knight, entitled A French Fantasy. The piece was performed at a recent Sunday night gambol at the Lambs' clubhouse. To the three men in the dugout in trench life (Poilu, Tommy and American), appear, on Christmas Eve, the figures of Santa Claus and Death, and in the manner of the visitor's reception the author conveys simply and effectively something of the spirit of the armies in the trenches. The faithfulness of the setting is attested by Major Wallace McCutcheon, who recently returned from the front, and the play is acted by the author as the Englishman, Ernest Glendenning as the American, Roland Young as the Frenchman, and W. H. Gilmore and Robert Cummings.

The Selwyns

To Present Musical Version of Baby Mine

New York, Jan. 28.—A musical version of Margaret Mayo's farce, Baby Mine, will be put into rehearsal by the Selwyns in a few weeks. This will probably be the opening attraction of the new Selwyn Theater, in Forty-second street, some time in March. The music of the new piece is by Jerome Kern and the adaptation of Miss Mayo's play has been made by Edgar Allan Woolf.

Distinguished Callers

Members of 308th Infantry Visit The Billboard

New York, Jan. 26.—The New York office of The Billboard received a visit from a number of theatrical men who are now attached to the 308th Infantry at Camp Upton, New York. They came to New York for the purpose of making arrangements to hold a regular circus February 12 and 13 at Camp Upton in the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium. They booked a number of novelties. The Billboard is accustomed to entertain men whose connection with outdoor life makes them rugged masculine types, but a finer body of men than these visitors never crossed the threshold of The Billboard office. In the company were Lieutenant Silverbrand, who some time ago appeared with Julia Arthur in the Castle Square Opera Company; Leo Cahn, formerly with Fox and the American Burlesque, Louis Stutz, of the Marcus Loew office and a nephew of Charles Pottsdam, manager of Loew's American; Ernest Breuer, one of the Leo Feist staff of composers; J. H. Mooney, brother of Bill S. Mooney of the Hippodrome; J. M. Grunert, in charge of the Y. M. C. A. at Camp Upton, and William Housen.

Cuts Prices

Providence, R. I., Jan. 28.—Shubert's Majestic dropped its prices last week. The best seat is $1, and there are 400 of them. There are 500 seats at 75 cents, 650 at 65 cents, 250 at 50 cents and 400 at 25 cents. What's Your Husband Doing was the principal attraction last week. Very Good, Eddie, this week.

Making Theater Contracts

New York, Jan. 26.—A. Schoenstadt, of H. Schoenstadt & Sons' Theatrical Enterprises, Chicago, is in New York and making the Biltmore Hotel his headquarters. He is here to make contracts for the new Atlantic Theater in Chicago, which will have a seating capacity of 2,000.

January 21, 1918.

My Dear Mr. Klaw:

Thank you for your telegram. It was a very small thing I did and you may be sure I did it with a great deal of pleasure. I was happy to find that it was possible.

Another Hatton Comedy

Will Be Presented in New York at Hudson Theater

New York, Jan. 28—The Indestructible Wife, another comedy by Frederic and Fanny Hatton, is announced for production at the Hudson Theater next Wednesday night. The piece was recently acted out of town by Grace George, but the title role will be played here by Minna Gombel. Also in the cast will be Lionel Atwill, Mrs. Jacques Martin, Howard Kyle, Frederick Esmelton, Jane Houston, Clay Clement, Norah Lamison, John Cromwell, Esther Howard, Ronald Bryan and Edward LeDuc.

Theater Destroyed by Fire

Peterboro, Ont., Jan. 27.—Fire yesterday destroyed one-half of the business section, including the Royal Theater and other buildings. The damage will probably amount to half a million dollars.

Edward F. Rush

Manager of the New Norworth Theater

New York, Jan. 26.—Edward F. Rush will be the manager of the New Norworth Theater in West Forty-eighth street when it opens next Monday night with Odds and Ends. It was due in a large measure to Rush's enterprise that the house was built. He also helped promote the building of the Vanderbilt across the street. His interest in that house has been transferred to Joseph Muran, but Rush still retains his holdings in the Norworth Theater. The building is owned by the Norworth Holding Company, of which Rush is secretary and treasurer. The Marionettes will appear at the Norworth on Sunday nights and specified afternoons during the engagement of Odds and Ends.

Justice Gavegan

Rules Enemy Aliens May Invoke Court Aid in Case of Mme. Ober

New York, Jan. 26.—The substance of the decision handed down Thursday by Supreme Court Justice Gavegan was that resident subjects of an enemy nation, enemy aliens, are entitled to invoke the process of our courts as long as they are guilty of no act inconsistent with the temporary allegiance which they hold for this Government. The decision was made in denying the claim to exemption for the period of the war made by the Metropolitan Opera Company in the suit brought by Margarete Arndt-Ober, known professionally as Mme. Ober, for $50,000 damages for her dismissal from the opera company staff of artists. The plaintiff sues for the alleged breach of contract, and her case, it is generally understood, is a test case brought to try out the legal rights of herself and other grand opera stars laid off because of the war.

Liberty Theaters Opening

Ayer, Mass., Jan. 27.—The Liberty Theater, which has been built by the Government near the barracks of the 303d Infantry, will be opened tomorrow evening. The playhouse will provide a photoplay and vaudeville performance semi-weekly at ten cents each.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 26.—Within a few weeks the theater at Camp Lewis, where nearly 40,000 men are stationed, will hold its opening performance, according to plans announced by Klaw & Erlanger. The camp is situated near Tacoma, Wash., and is the site of one of the National Armies. Sergeant Jack Stratton, who was a former theatrical press agent for Los Angeles theaters, will be press agent for the new house, which is to have a variety of attractions.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 26.—Camp Gordon's Liberty Theater will be thrown open tomorrow night, with The Million-Dollar Doll Company, of which Thomas Rowe is manager, as the attraction.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 27.—The Liberty Theater at Camp Zachary Taylor will open with its regular theatrical bookings Thursday night, January 31. The Princess Pat, booked by Klaw & Erlanger, will be the opening attraction. Charles Scott, manager of the theater, is leaving no stones unturned to make the house first class. The admission fee will be 50 cents for most of the big productions.

Lederer Loses Suit

New York, Jan. 26.—The suit of George W. Lederer, the theatrical producing manager, for $100,000 damages against Julius W. Kessler, of Greenwood Lake, N. J., head of Julius W. Kessler & Company, a wholesale liquor concern in Chicago, and which has been pending in the Federal District Court for eight years, was tried on January 28 before Judge Julius M. Mayer and a jury. The case was decided in favor of Kessler. The suit was based on an alleged agreement of Kessler to finance the starring of Miss Lina Abarbanell in Madame Sherry.

Lederer claimed that Kessler had become impressed with Miss Abarbanell's talents when she was appearing in The Merry Widow and offered to back any other production she might be starred in. When he had installed her in the principal role in Madame Sherry, he said, Kessler failed to furnish any of the funds that he had expected.

Kessler said Lederer had once suggested to him that he finance Miss Abarbanell in a stellar role, but that he had no idea of doing such a thing.

BROADWAY AND BYWAYS

By William Judkins Hewitt

New York, Jan. 26.—Theatergoers responded nobly to the cause that compelled the theaters to close Tuesday by packing all the houses open for business Monday afternoon. Some could have sold capacity thrice over. The dispute among many of the theatrical managers as to the proper course to pursue in this crisis has caused wild and weird rumors to float the breeze to the effect that the dismembering of the V. M. P. A. is near at hand.

• • • • • •

Will Klaw & Erlanger again invade the vaudeville field is a question that many are not timid in propounding to the interested ones and disinterested as well. It will soon be the talk of the theatrical world, some venture to assert.

• • • • • •

It was a master stroke on the part of the Vaudeville Managers' Protective Association when they decided to pay in full the salaries of all artists employed in their theaters, despite the Tuesday layoff. The man who forced this "big business" climax will live long and fondly in the memories of the vaudeville artists of America.

• • • • • •

Three performances at the B. F. Keith Palace Theater Monday is looked upon as an innovation at that house, and may materially alter the performances and regulations of the other high-class vaudeville houses in this and other cities. Its results will be watched with interest and speculation by the entire vaudeville world. If business and patronage warrant it may prove the forerunner to the return to the "continuous."

W. Va. Theater Managers

Form Organization Known as West Virginia Circuit of Theaters

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 26.—At a meeting of the theater managers of the State of West Virginia, held in Wheeling on January 26, an organization was perfected of the managers, called the West Virginia Circuit of Theaters. The officers elected were R. Robinson, Clarksburg, president; S. J. Hyman, vice-president; Fred E. Johnson, Wheeling, secretary.

The Directors are George Weedan, of Charleston, W. Va.; M. E. Morgan, of Fairmont, W. Va., and J. W. Mercer, of Washington, Pa.

The object of the organization is to promote better conditions and surroundings in the theaters of West Virginia and instill new life and energy into some of the theaters for the mutual benefit of all concerned, also to be in a position to handle any adverse legislation that might arise in the State.

Fred E. Johnson, of the Court Theater, Wheeling, will have charge of the bookings. As the State of West Virginia has been one of the brightest spots on the theatrical map this season this new organization should mean much to traveling organizations.

Ruling on Criticisms

New York, Jan. 26.—Supreme Court Justice Goff handed down a ruling of great interest to the theatrical and writing world on Wednesday setting forth the rights and limitations of criticism, both literary and dramatic, for the first time. In the decision the Justice declared there is nothing on the statute books to prevent a critic from employing even sarcasm and mordant ridicule in reviewing a public work as long as they are utilized within the bounds of propriety. The one precept the critic must follow, according to the Court, is that of fairness, and his writings must be utterly devoid of any hint of malevolence.

The ruling was made supplementary to the setting aside of the demurrer entered by the publishers of The Chicago Evening Post to a suit for $50,000 brought against them by Alleyne Ireland. The latter claims he was libeled in The Post's criticism of his book, Joseph Pulitzer, Reminiscences of a Secretary.

Gest Back at His Desk

New York, Jan. 26.—Morris Gest, associate producer of Chu Chin Chow, has returned to his office at the Century Theater after being confined to his bed for over a week, due to an automobile accident which necessitated thirty-six stitches in Mr. Gest's head. Altho Mr. Gest has not fully recovered he is up and about attending to business as ever before.

Leone Thompson Ill

Miss Leone Thompson, prima donna of the No. 2 company playing Oh, Boy, is seriously ill at the Hotel Sinton, Cincinnati. This is not the company which will play at the Lyric next week, but the No. 2 company which stopped over in this city for a few days during the early part of last week, thrown out of an engagement by the fire at the Victoria Theater, Dayton, O. Miss Thompson suddenly took sick and the company had to go on without her.

VAUDEVILLE CABARETS

CHICAGO BOOKING AGENCIES AIDING THEATER OWNERS

Co-Operating With Managers and Showing Every Consideration to Those Whose Business Has Been Affected by Prevailing Conditions

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Vaudeville is now passing thru a stage of development that tests the good will governing the relations between big booking syndicates and the many theaters they serve. Times are abnormal, but the fact that they are not normal affords an opportunity for cementing relations under stress that are bound to remain firmly cemented long after the occasion for consideration shall have been a thing of the past.

It requires no summary of the tax situation and the tendency to misconstrue conservation as meaning placing a curb on amusements to conclude that many small-town managers are "having a hard time of it." For each case of a house's prosperity because patrons with a proper comprehension of patriotic foresight realize that war time is the one period above all when amusements—which tend to alleviate the suffering attendant upon the havoc wrought by war—should be supported, there are other theaters less fortunately situated. The managers of these unfortunate houses find that the public does not respond, and many are operating under a constantly increasing loss. The Western Vaudeville Managers' Association, with about 353

IRENE RICARDO AND MAX COOPER

Ricardo and Cooper are working over the Orpheum Circuit from the Pacific Coast East and North, appearing in a clever offering of singing and patter, entitled Aw, Gimme the Ring. During the week of January 13 they were seen on the bill at the Orpheum in Kansas City, and Miss Ricardo made one of the biggest hits ever scored there. She had everybody who saw the act talking of her charming ways in putting over the clever stuff.

Rats' Hearing Goes Over

Attorney Sapinsky Called Away on Important Case

New York, Jan. 28.—The White Rats' hearing was again continued today, the adjournment being taken until next Friday afternoon. At the last moment Attorney Alvin T. Sapinsky, counsel for the instigators of these proceedings, received word that an important case of his on appeal was to be heard today at Albany. At his request the proceedings were carried over for one week.

John P. Hill, late assistant secretary-treasurer of the Rats, and John Faulhaber, late bookkeeper and manager of the Rats and now assistant manager of the N. V. A., were present today to testify in the hearing, the former with checks, receipts, etc., ready to produce to show that all disbursements made by him had been regular and the money actually paid out.

DeWald Drops Prices

Enters Into Competition With Movies at Saginaw, Mich.

Saginaw, Mich., Jan. 26.—Manager J. J. DeWald of the Jeffers-Strand (vaudeville) Theater, has entered into real competition with the motion picture houses for patronage. While maintaining his high-class vaudeville of five good acts to each bill he has lowered his prices so they meet the admission fees at the movies. The latter are gradually increasing their rates, being forced to this action because of their higher expenses and the conditions brought about by the war. Some of the motion picture theaters are now asking 10 and 20, or 15 and 25 cents. To meet these prices the Jeffers-Strand rates have been placed at 10 and 20 cents for matinees, with 25-cent seats in addition for the evening. On top of this the theater is giving a five-cent Saturday matinee for children.

Hamlin and Mack Sailing

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 26.—The vaudeville team of Hamlin and Mack left the Fisher Circuit here, and jumped to Frisco, where they will take the next steamer sailing for Australia.

From Stock to Vaudeville

Brandeis Theater at Omaha Now in Variety Class

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 27.—The Brandeis Theater, one of the finest houses in the West, has gone over to vaudeville. Beginning today this theater will play Hippodrome Circuit attractions under the management of Le Marquand & Ledoux, who also control the Empress in this city. Five vaudeville acts and pictures will be on the bill at each performance.

In switching to vaudeville the managers are trying something in the nature of an experiment, as the stock company, which was installed at the beginning of the season, did not prove a financial success. This was no doubt partly due to the fact that the company had been obliged to contend with the serious obstacle of "broken time," giving up the theater whenever a road attraction came to the house.

C. J. Sutphen will continue as business manager and look after the press work for both the Brandeis and Empress.

George Blakesley

Successor of Arthur Lotto at Hippodrome, Tacoma

Seattle, Jan. 27.—Funeral services for Arthur Lotto, manager of the Hippodrome Theater, Tacoma, Wash., who died there last Sunday following a two days' illness, were held Tuesday. Lotto's last wish that his remains be cremated and the ashes scattered on the waters of Puget Sound were carried out. He is survived by a brother in Flushing, N. Y., and a sister at Ocean Park, Cal.

Lotto was manager for Florence Roberts for some time. He came from Los Angeles to Tacoma before entering theatrical work as a newspaper man.

Three Shows Mondays

New York, Jan. 28.—Beginning today and continuing throut the general closing period ordered by the Federal Fuel Administration the B. F. Keith big-time vaudeville theaters thruout the country will give three performances on Mondays to accommodate the holiday crowds. There will be two matinees and a night performance. The time of the matinees varies. In Greater New York the first one will start at 1:30 and the second at 4:30. The night shows will begin at the customary time.

Off for Lake Charles, Tex.

New York, Jan. 27.—By special arrangement with Messrs. Barse & Hopkins, the publishers of Rhymes of a Red Cross Man, by Robert D. Service, Mrs. Earle Remington Hines is offering for vaudeville Margaret Willard, The Girl Wonderful, in a dramatic interpretation of a selected program.

Fred C. Eberts

Manager of Majestic, Chicago, Passes Away

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Fred C. Eberts, for two years manager of the Majestic Theater, and for many years a familiar figure in Chicago box offices, passed away suddenly at his home, 4674 West End avenue, last Thursday evening. Pneumonia caused his death.

Eberts was frequently referred to as "Chicago's youngest vaudeville veteran." Only 44 years of age when death overtook him and checked what promised to become a most brilliant career, he had already accomplished many things that fall to the lot of a chosen few in his sphere of endeavor.

Before joining the Kohl & Castle vaudeville interests as manager of the Majestic he had guided the Great Northern Theater thru successive

Chicago Palace

(Reviewed Monday Afternoon, January 28)

Chicago, Jan. 28.—With patronage at high tide because of the enforced Monday holiday and the bill at ebbtide because the latest week end snowstorm deprived it of its headliner and forced another big act to rest content with prevailing fifty per cent of the personnel sans wardrobe, a rather mixed impression was made at the Palace today. Most of the acts offered had been seen in Chicago sufficiently often to be listed as old favorites, some had been seen here so recently that the bill had a "repeater" aspect. As was the case last Monday the audience came earlier and responded more liberally with applause.

No. 1—The Three Bobs, jugglers, with their greatest asset, a little dog possessed of exceptional acumen, and not mentioned in the program, gave the bill a rousing start. The human performers mixed their work with a fine quality of comedy accentuated by the remarkable antics of the canine. Nine minutes, in two.

No. 2—The Three Natall Sisters offered a high-class musical act involving the use of one voice. The pianist, tho she played well, and a peculiar mannerism of bending far over the keys. The work was of ultra-artistic touch, and earned three bows. Nine minutes.

No. 3—Johnny Johnston and Company have a light comedy playlet with a good general situation and a weak finish. Johnny Johnston and Bob Harty get good comedy out of the manner in which the latter serves as cook in a summer home and Grace Elms helps the story along when she induces them to serve at a benefit, but from the moment when a telegram arrives announcing that one of the two is the father of twins the act flops. Fourteen minutes, in exterior three.

No. 4—Frankie Heath asserted herself as the applause hit of the bill. Tho she was one of the repeaters, having been seen at this house only a few weeks ago, it was evident that most of the holiday audience was unfamiliar with her work, which was met with most appreciative applause. Blair Treynor rendered valuable assistance at the piano, which was particularly demonstrated when she entered her Where Is Your Gratitude song recitation. Twenty minutes, in one; five bows.

No. 5—Aveling and Lloyd have served on Loop vaudeville bills so frequently lately that one wonders if these boys ever leave Chicago. Their rather risque patter, involving intimate allusions to the female of the species, always goes well. Sixteen minutes, in one.

No. 6—Adelaide and Hughes, dancers, accorded special program honors, failed to arrive, but the disappointment of the audience was made up for as much as possible by summoning Cecil Lean and Cleo Mayfield, headliners of last week's Majestic bill. Cecil's smile still has much charm for Chicagoans, and Miss Mayfield makes a very sweet appearance. Everything they offered was well received, the telephone song finale proving especially welcome, because they were afforded an opportunity to inject a bit of acting. Sixteen minutes, interior three.

No. 7—Santley and Norton, two boys with brains, voices and a piano, proved entertaining every minute of their merry way. Santley's entry to the world of contemporaneous composers was accentuated by the use of one of his numbers for the orchestra entrance. They sang several numbers of varied range, winning two bows. Eleven minutes.

No. 8—Pat Rooney and Marion Bent proved to be a Pat Rooney single, as their baggage failed to arrive, and Marion didn't want to appear in a traveling dress. Pat sang a little, clowned a little and did a very good eccentric dance, completing his whole offering in seven minutes. Two bows.

No. 9—George and Dick Rath, acrobats, possessed of great endurance, kept the audience seated and thrilled, winning an encore, which is an unusual feat for an acrobatic closing act. Five minutes, in three, three bows.—CASPER.

B. F. KEITH'S PALACE THEATER

When you have played the Palace, you have "made Broadway"

(Reviewed First Performance Monday, January 28)

New York, Jan. 28.—The first performance here of the three-a-day policy inaugurated for fuel-less Mondays gave the Palace a house packed with an applause-less audience. It was strong on laughs, but its hands seemed to be handcuffed, with the possible exception of the ovations accorded Annette Kellermann and Kosloff. Bostock's Riding School, programmed to close the show, was eliminated at the last minute, evidently owing to the length of the show and the fact that the lobby and street were crowded with folks waiting for the second performance. The ushers had difficulty in getting some first-show patrons, who had arrived late, to leave their seats, they evidently being under the impression that the show was continuous.

No. 1—Palace Orchestra, under the direction of Frederick F. Daab.

No. 2—Hearst-Pathe News Weekly showed a picture of Dr Garfield, and if this gentleman had heard the reception accorded him by the crowd he would have shivered. Roosevelt came in for a big reception.

No. 3—Galetti's Baboons offered an excellent opening number. The musical monkeys were very good, and their barber shop antics created much laughter. Special set, in full stage, for ten minutes; one curtain.

No. 4—Frisco, with his silver xylophone, took the place of Deiro without any announcement, and some folks were wondering what a piano accordion looked like, but even with this handicap Frisco demonstrated his ability as a musical entertainer. His technique is flawless, and, in addition, he is a showman. The selection from the Tales of Hoffman was his most artistic number. In one, for thirteen minutes, with one bow.

No. 5—Edwin Arden and Company, in a play entitled Trapped, held the audience breathless waiting for something to happen, and at last it did, when Arden, as Major John Dent, turned as the psuedo cripple, John Shrag, played by Thomas Mitchell. It is a dramatic story of secret service men, a secret cipher, spies, etc. Sarah Shields, as Ann Forrest, was excellent, and Mr. Arden once more demonstrated his worth as a sterling actor. In full stage, for twenty-two minutes, with four curtains.

No. 6—Mullen and Coogan, in a new act by Herbert Moore, went right after the crowd, just as tho it was the regular Palace Monday matinee audience, which it was. "It worked the folks up to their style of entertainment." Coogan's dancing went big, and Mullen's nut comedy compelled the audience to realize that they were a couple of real performers. Mullen's rendition of Good-by, John Barleycorn, with gestures, was a scream. These boys are due for a big production. In one, for sixteen minutes, with three bows.

No. 7—Annette Kellermann, the erstwhile diving queen and motion picture celebrity, in a 20th century personal revue, proved herself the protean feminine chameleon of the stage. Assisted by Estelle House, Edmund Makalif, Oliver Reese, Bert Grant and ten lovely maidens, this "perfect" woman has become a "perfect" phenomenon as an entertainer. Her toe dancing equals Genee, Bessie Clayton and others. Her little monolog shows histrionic ability. Her wire walking, while not sensational, is embellished with Kellermannisms, and her singing was offered as tho she had said to the audience: "What shall I do next?" Then came her famous diving scene, and she still retains her title as the diving Venus. Her company is first class, the scenery is exquisite, and the whole revue reflects the greatest credit on this charming woman. Several special settings; forty minutes; many curtains and a speech.

No. 8—Swor and Avery, the old minstrel boys, received a welcome on their return to the Palace, and showed what real minstrelsy training can do. Their card game opening was a laughing riot before they uttered a word, and when they did start to talk their every utterance was the signal for an outburst of merriment. Both are real, genuine comedians, playing straight to each other, and the result is one long, continuous scream. Sixteen minutes, in one; three bows.

No. 9—Theodore Kosloff, the Russian dancing star, presented the same act as last week, with one exception, the Russian peasant dance by Vera Fredowa and Solomonoff, which proved to be a very characteristic interlude of Russian artistry. Maria Maslova's classical variation and her finale with Kosloff are indescribable and inimitable dancing classics. In a beautiful setting, in full stage, for thirty-three minutes; many curtains.

No. 10—Courtney Sisters opened with Liberty Bells. They were gowned beautifully, and went thru a song routine which pleased. But either they need new material or else they cut their act, for with all their charm and ability they did not seem to evoke any special enthusiasm.

No. 11—Bostock's Riding School did not appear.—HILLIAR.

Majestic, Chicago

(Reviewed Monday Afternoon, January 28)

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 28.—For the third successive Monday the Majestic program was ushered in preceding a storm, but the severe winter weather did not in any way interfere with the train schedules, which handicapped many acts during the past month, and was partly the cause of the worries which, together with pneumonia, caused the sudden death of Manager Fred Eberts, who passed away last week. Capacity attendance witnessed the opening program.

No. 1—Orpheum Circuit Travel Weekly.

No. 2—The Four Bards, billed for closing position, opened the show, and owing to a late start the house was all comfortably seated when they appeared. They form a quartet of gymnasts who could occupy any position and win honors. Time and again they received big applause for their difficult feats, which they introduce in a pleasing manner and in rapid succession. Eight minutes, in three; two bows.

No. 3—Fox and Ward, two oldtime minstrels, who hold the record for co-partnership as a comedy team, having been together for fifty years, appear in blackface before a special drop, on which are emblazoned the names of every minstrel who won fame on the American stage. They sing, dance, tell minstrel jokes and relate interesting narratives pertaining to their fifty years before the public, all of which pleased, and won them a big hand. Twenty-two minutes, in one; two bows.

No. 4—Alfred DeManby, the noted baritone, sang several sentimental ballads in a rich, clear, melodious voice, and is also assisted by Lillian Durkin, mezzo soprano who sings sweetly. Hector McCarthy, the accompanist, adds a selection or two which makes this a refined musical specialty which went over to big applause. Twenty-two minutes, in two; four curtains.

No. 5—Billy Tower and Maybell Darrell, a and comedy team, exert themselves to the extreme in their endeavor to be funny, and it was evident that many enjoyed their ridiculous antics. They sing and jest and partake of a bit of the rough knockabout, working in one. Twelve minutes, three bows.

No. 6—Peacock Alley, a tabloid comedy drama, with a cast of nine characters, with Vivian Blackburn and Elwood Bostwick in the leading roles. The plot is a trifle weak in spots, but seemed to hold interest even tho it was a bit difficult at the start to tell what it was all about. Twenty five minutes, in three; six curtains, four individual bows.

No. 7—Milo scored his usual hit and altho seen here many times his efforts are always appreciated because they embody real talent. His entrance was also the surprise of the afternoon, everyone expecting to see a female opera singer, after hearing his falsetto voice off stage. Milo played the Chicago Palace last week. Seventeen minutes, in one; three bows.

No. 8—Blanche Ring, whom Chicago claims as one of its favorite singing comediennes, was welcomed by a host of oldtime friends. Miss Ring proved to be the popular hit of the bill with a choice variety of old and new songs, and one which was a medley of oldtime hits which she helped to make popular. Twenty minutes, in one, three bows.

No. 9—Paul Gordon and Ame Rica, who appear as a singing team, completely surprise their audience when they swing from songs to trick cycle work. They are equally good at both and more than please. Twelve minutes, in one and full.—ZIN.

Keith's, Cincinnati

(Reviewed Sunday Night, January 27)

It's one of those "don't miss it" bills that Manager Ned Hastings placed on his menu card this week. And the hits registered were remarkable in the face of the transportation difficulties these various acts were up against in getting in on show time. The headliner, Eddie Leonard, walked away with every thing. He is beyond a doubt the biggest hit of the current season.

No. 1—Pictures.

No. 2—The Gardinetti Brothers opened the show with some fast aerial stunts working with a small trampoline, and took a hand here and there. The hat throwing stunt is good, and more of it would have been relished. The antics of the dog helped the act greatly, and he deserves billing. Six minutes, in one; good reception.

No. 3—Mable Russell and Marty Ward and Company started off with a rush and kept right to it until the last of their sixteen minutes, cleaning up the first hit of the bill. Ward is fast and furious. Miss Russell is excellent, and the "Co." of three melodious boys make their act, billed Call It What You Like, real class. It was strong enough to pull four bows and an encore if Miss Russell hadn't begged off. Work in one, two and one.

No. 4—Shadowgraphs and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wilde are synonymous, and when you have said Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wilde you have said all there is to say in the line of shadowgraphs. Gordon Wilde has learned every trick of his unique trade. His shadowgraphs of Washington and Wilson were true to life and an evidence of the attainment of the highest point of his art, and were received with deafening applause. Worked in full for twelve minutes.

No. 5—The song-writing entertainers, Burns and Kissen, put over some new comedy and fresh-from-the-griddle songs, which merited for them the second recorded hit of the evening. Two mighty clever boys who got over with a vengeance. Thirteen minutes, in one; three bows and an encore.

No. 6—Jim Clayton, assisted by Herbert L. Griffin, brings out a lot of human feeling in his homely little sketch, Keep Smilin', wherein he is a beam of sunshine rolled up in a bundle of rags, and he succeeds amiably in making the audience Keep Smilin'. There is an appeal in Keep Smilin' that gets you on the edge of your seat and holds you there. Griffin as the smilee is convincing. Special interior set, in full stage. Twenty-four minutes; curtains without number.

No. 7—Olive Briscoe set out for the laughs and corralled quite a few of them, both with her exclusive song numbers and humor. Al Rauh pulls some amusing hoob comedy and proves eventually that he can sing. The pair work nicely together and carry their nineteen minutes over without a drop. In one, two bows.

No. 8—Eddie Leonard and his company were a sensation. It was more than that—it was a riot, the cleanest hit that has ever been registered here. He and his minstrel boys are truly one of the greatest acts in vaudeville. His voice and the feeling he puts into his numbers once heard will never be forgotten. That this view was general is proven by the three encores he received at his performance, and even then the audience clamored for more. His announcement that he had been accepted by Uncle Sam to follow the colors Over There, touched a responsive chord. Not until he had sung his compositions Ida and Rolly Bolly Eyes would the audience leave him go. Off in the wings just before the opening of Leon and Company Eddie and his four boys sang as a farewell Rolly Bolly Eyes that gradually died away, and the pathetic touch it lent—added to the announcement that Eddie may not come back from Over There—shook the house. Nineteen minutes in full; five bows and three encores.

No. 9—Leon and Company, the Wonder Workers, have a great illusion act. It is not small in any manner of means, and carries enough paraphernalia to fill a box car. It is not possible to enumerate all of his clever tricks, but his Fire and Water is superb and his Teddy the Tiger a fooler that makes you doubt your name. Sixteen minutes, in full and strong enough to hold everybody to the last. Special drop and effects.—JED.

Orpheum, San Francisco

(Reviewed Sunday Matinee, January 27)

San Francisco, Jan. 27.—Hearst-Pathe News opened and closed a long ten-act show. Toots Paka and her Hawaiian Singers was a holdover. Her descriptive dance won hearty applause.

Doc O'Neil's monolog proved a good anti-gloom remedy, and took well. Twelve minutes, in one; three bows.

George Austin Moore and Cordelia Haager, in song, dance and patter, have an act that is full of punch. This clever team is well liked. Their clear, distinct voices are a treat. Fourteen minutes, in one; seven bows.

Bessie Rempel and Players presented a satire entitled, You. The setting was picturesque, and Bessie Rempel is clever, but the act, as a whole, was faintly applauded. Fifteen minutes, full stage.

The Four Marx Brothers contributed forty minutes of splendid entertainment with their act, Home Again. This act is easily one of the favorites of the bill. Julius H. Marx, as Mr. Jones, interested from the beginning. Arthur Marx, as a harpist, was a howling success. Leonard Marx, as pianist, was right there, and Milton Marx and Gene Madden enchanted with a bewitching dance. Twelve minutes, in two; twenty-eight minutes, in full stage; six curtain calls.

Comfort and King, in Coontown Divorcons, a comedy sketch, were good laugh getters. King's negro characterizations are original and rich. Comfort's pleasing voice balanced the act.

The Five of Clubs, in Pierrot's Dream, put over hair-raising stunts, making a strong finish for this big program.—BOZ.

Pantages, San Francisco

(Reviewed Sunday Evening, January 27)

San Francisco, Jan. 27.—Pantages played to a crowded house.

No. 1—L-Ko first run comedy pictures, opened the show. Ten minutes.

No. 2—Marlett's Marionettes presented Stars From Toyland. This act showed much hard work on the part of the producer, and was well received. Twenty minutes, full stage.

No. 3—Harry Reichman, the boy and the piano, was a riot. His stories were thoroly enjoyed. Ten minutes, in one.

Orpheum, St. Louis.

(Reviewed Monday Matinee, January 28)

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 28.—A big house was on hand to greet the bill this week, which proved to be a good one in spite of the fact that it dragged considerably, as the acts got in late, the show getting off to an hour late start. Imhoff, Conn and Coreene and T. Roy Barnes and Bessie Crawford shared honors.

No. 1—Orpheum Travel Weekly; fifteen minutes.

No. 2—Libonati, ragtime xylophonist, drew a big hand for each selection offered, and pleased with popular numbers. Fifteen minutes, in one; two calls.

No. 3—In the Zone, a sketch, offered by eight male characters, portrays some intense and interesting situations, and held the audience from the beginning to the end. The act pleased, and the sketch is well written. Thirty minutes, in four; two calls.

No. 4—Lillian Shaw, comedienne and character singing, did some splendid work with her original and clever selections. The act is a little too long for the best effect, running twenty-five minutes, in one. Two calls.

No. 5—T. Roy Barnes and Bessie Crawford, in a sketch written for laughs, gained their point. Both Barnes and Miss Crawford are clever artists and pleased with their nonsensical vehicle, managing to keep the audience smiling continually. Twenty minutes, in four and one; two calls.

No. 6—Imhoff, Conn and Coreene, in a sketch, The Pest House, which, by the way, is the best of their career, made an excellent showing. The sketch gives opportunity for good comedy, which is put over right, and established Imhoff, Conn and Coreene as one of the hits of the bill. Thirty-five minutes, in four, three calls.

No. 7—Al Herman, the blackface comedian, is a good monologist and got his work over cleverly. Tho handicapped by the long waits he was well received. Ten minutes, in one; two calls.

No. 8—Roland Travers, illusionist, has some great stuff in his repertoire, but the house was half empty before his turn was offered. In this instance his act ran ten minutes, in full stage, and captured but two calls, which was but a small portion of the honors deserved.—WILL.

OUR INNINGS

Vaudeartists Confessing They Were Mistaken and Acknowledging The Billboard's Rectitude

Up to a few weeks since friends, associates or acquaintances of various members of The Billboard's editorial staff were in the habit of dropping in or stopping them on the streets to inform them that considerable feeling against the paper was still entertained among vaudeartists because of its attitude during the White Rats' fight.

"The Rats believe they were bunked," we were told, "because of The Billboard's stand. It and it alone is responsible."

While modesty and a just appreciation of the generalship of Mr. Albee, the strategics of Messrs. Murdock, Casey, Loew, Fox and all the long list of the other managers and booking agents, to say nothing of the influence of thousands of wise and far-seeing actors, prevented our "admitting" the impeachment and thereby appropriating all of the credit, we should have been very proud and happy to if we had dared.

We fought the W. R. A. U. in the interest of the vaudeartist. We fought it because it was not a union, but a crooked, mismanaged, bankrupt and impotent cabal that could not help the actor had it wished to, and because we honestly and sincerely believed that it was not meant to help, but to tax, drain and milk him.

Just how near right we were is being demonstrated by the hearings in the investigation now being held before Hon. Lewis Schuldenfrei in New York.

In the face of these disclosures of gross irregularities, rank incompetency, shameful mismanagement, downright misrepresentations, and, perhaps, graft, fraud and theft, it is difficult to understand how any actor can stubbornly close his mind to the facts and cling to a wholly wrong and mistaken notion.

But a few still do.

However, they are very few. The wise ones by thousands now see that The Billboard was right, and they are big and generous enough to write us acknowledging the fact.

No. 4—Tom Kyle and Company, in The Doctored Widow, gave the folks many a real laugh. Fifteen minutes, in three; special drop.

No. 5—Finley and Hill contributed twenty minutes of song and dance in which fun abounded. In one.

No. 6—Senator Francis Murphy proved the greatest laugh-getter of all. Ten minutes of hilarious mirth in monolog.

No. 7—George Primrose and his seven all star minstrels, were one of the headliners of this week's bill. Mr. Primrose was given a hearty reception. The act was pleasingly costumed and the voices were good. Twelve minutes, full stage; two bows.

No. 8—Jan Rubini, the Swedish violinist, was the decided hit of the bill. He found an appreciative audience and came back repeatedly to satisfy the wishes of his hearers. Twenty minutes; four encores.—BOX.

CHICAGO LEGIT. THEATERS

Enjoy Unprecedented Matinee Business on Fuel-less Monday

Chicago, Jan. 28.—The second fuel-less Monday found Chicago loop theaters enjoying greater matinee prosperity than ever before recorded, not even exceeded by New Year's Eve attendance. Every accessible theater was sold out at an early hour, and unsold, numbers were turned away. Legitimate theaters are especially fortunate because Tuesday night was usually the weakest in the week, whereas Monday holidays were here. Vaudeville doesn't profit quite as much because there is no way of making up for lost Tuesday performances since matinees are the daily rule. However, the holiday has served to stimulate Monday vaudeville business, and the elimination of Tuesday ensures capacity audiences for remaining days of the week.

Look thru the Letter List in this issue—there may be a letter for you.

PROFESSIONAL WOMEN'S LEAGUE

New York, Jan. 27.—On Monday afternoon, January 28, at 2:30 o'clock, Albert T. Tarnklyn, director chapter development, will be present at a meeting of the Professional Women's League in its clubrooms at 149 West Sixty-eighth street, to formally accept, on behalf of the American Red Cross, the ambulance kitchen trailer, which was sent to France by the league members December 20.

The trailer is intended to follow the hospital ambulances, and is perfectly equipped to supply food and stimulants to wounded soldiers immediately on being taken from the battlefield.

The $800 paid for the trailer was raised by the combined efforts of the members of the Professional Women's League and its president, Mrs. Helen Whitman Ritchie.

The Gypsy Trail Company will be entertained by the league on the above occasion.

LAST WEEK'S BEST VAUDEVILLE ACTS

RUTH ST. DENIS

Begins Six Months' Tour in Ft. Worth —Ted Shawn Not With Her

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 26.—Ruth St. Denis, whose Denishawn has become one of the prominent features of Los Angeles' professional life, has started on a six months' tour of vaudeville, opening in Fort Worth. Ted Shawn will not accompany the Denishawn dancers, as he has been drafted for service and expects shortly to be called to the colors. Margaret Loomis, who has recently distinguished herself in Lasky photoplays, particularly in support of Sessue Hayakawa, will be one of the featured dancers with the St. Denis act. The numbers included in Miss St. Denis' present repertoire are The Sta, The Cobra Dance, The Peacock and several new creations.

BOOKING AGENT FINED

Albert Eliver Made Plea of Guilty

New York, Jan. 26.—For carrying on business without a license Albert Eliver, booking agent, was fined $100, with a thirty days' jail sentence as alternative in the Court of Special Sessions yesterday. When first arraigned more than a year ago Eliver pleaded not guilty. Yesterday this plea was withdrawn and a plea of guilty substituted.

The charge was made on complaint of Thomas Evans and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wilbert, performers, and Joseph S. Gleinman, representing the Bureau of Licenses, conducted the prosecution.

Justice Herbert favored a sentence of three months' imprisonment at the conclusion of the hearing, but Justices Edwards and McAnerny believed the fine would be sufficient punishment and their judgment prevailed.

CINTI. STAGE EMPLOYEES' BALL

The annual dance of the Theatrical Stage Employees' Benevolent Association of Cincinnati was held January 24, and proved a great success. Actors and actresses playing at the various theaters attended the affair after the night performances. A complete concert orchestra furnished the music. The following committee has charge of the arrangements, E. Kelley, F. Althauser, John Murphy, John Alf, W. Parker, B. Murphy, Fred Althauser, William Parker, William Meader, F. Rud, C. Spoerlein, W. Conway, J. Zuber, G. Hoemer, Ed Heckman, G. Smith, L. Eckhardt, A. Hyams, F. Eigenbrodt, C. Redman, William Keenan, E. Nicholson, M. Hackman, R. J. McGuire and G. Uhtman.

NEW MANAGER AT BAY CITY

Bay City, Mich., Jan. 27.—E. W. Patterson of Detroit is the new manager of the Bijou Theater at Bay City, succeeding Roy Tillison, who has gone to Columbus, O.

COLONIAL THEATER, TOLEDO, O.

Being Rebuilt and Will Open the Middle of February

Toledo, O., Jan. 26.—The Colonial Theater, under the management of A. Horwitz, which was destroyed by fire on January 10, is being rebuilt, and will open about the middle of February.

Mr. Horwitz will place an ad in The Billboard for people about ten days before the house opens.

ELLIS GOES TO CAMP

Providence, R. I., Jan. 27.—Harold H. Ellis, known as The Handcuff King, has gone to Camp Devens, he being one of the Providence drafted men. Before he left the city he was tendered a farewell reception.

SPECIAL DISPENSATION ASKED

New York, Jan. 27.—Lincoln's Birthday (February 12) this year falls on Tuesday, the day on which the theaters are closed by the Federal Fuel Administration. In order to accommodate the crowds of holiday theatergoers the United Managers' Protective Association, thru Ligon Johnson, its attorney, will ask the Fuel Administration to permit playhouses thruout the country to open that day and close Wednesday of that week instead.

ASSISTS MATTHEWS

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Sadye Kusell, for some time past in charge of sales for the Bartola Company and prominent in the vaudeville booking game, has been appointed to an important position by Aaron J. Jones. She becomes assistant to J. C. Matthews, Pantages head, who is also booking agent for Jones, Linick & Schaefer. Miss Kusell was formerly secretary for C. E. Bray, of vaudeville prominence, and is a sister to Dan Kusell, the well-known vaudeville writer.

IN NEW YORK

(HILLIAR'S SELECTIONS)

Theodore Kosloff. Daring, dazzling, delectable, dedalian dancer, and his Imperial Russian Ballet of ten artists, and an orchestra of seven. The star is in all probability the greatest of all male dancers, and he combines with his terpsichorean efforts a profound knowledge of showmanship. The outstanding members of his company were Vera Fredowa, Natche Rambove and Marie Maslova. The setting is sumptuous, and the act was easily the big hit of the bill. Many curtains and bows. At the Palace Theater, Monday matinee.

Franklyn Ardell. Clever, cheery, captivating comedy chap, in a playlet, The Life Saver, but in reality it is almost a monolog, altho Marjorie Sheldon gets all she can out of her part. Ardell's rapid-fire humor and excellent acting as a real estate salesman causes a laugh a second. Such sketches as these are needed in vaudeville. A thousand laughs. At the Palace Theater, Monday matinee.

Fanny and Kitty Watson. Safe, sane, supreme, silvery singing sisters, stopped the show. These lucky girls are possessed of about all the talents necessary for vaudeville, and they take advantage of their ability to the utmost. Whether singing or creating laughs—and Fanny is some comedienne—their personal radiance permeates the atmosphere. Misses Watson, you are both there with the "goods." Stopped the show. At the Colonial, Monday evening.

Four Sensational Boises. Fascinating, fearless, flawless, finished flying favorites. Three men and a girl in the fastest opening act seen here this season; in fact, it is doubtful if they have any peer as a casting act. Nifty appearance, clean wardrobe and settings, and their last trick was hair-raising. Would fit in the middle of almost any bill. At the Palace Theater, Monday matinee.

Stella Tracey and Carl McBride. Vital, valuable, versatile vaudevillians, late of the Chinese Honeymoon, The Royal Chef, etc., were a genuine treat. Miss Tracey is a remarkable comedienne. She is capable of getting laughs, whether singing, talking or dancing, and McBride is an excellent foil for her. He is also a great dancer. There is unlimited class to this pair, and the audience wanted more and more of them. Twenty minutes; many bows and encores. At Loew's American Roof, Wednesday evening.

Joe Jackson. Silent, subtle, singularly satisfying star. In all probability has been imitated and copied by hundreds, and, while he has been doing the same act for years, it nevertheless stands out as the best act of its kind. As a comic pantomimist Jackson has an equal, and the continuous laughter that greeted his every move proved how acceptable he is to the audience. At the Palace Theater, Monday matinee.

Greene and Parker. Bright, breezy, bubbling blackface buffoons. In an excellent vehicle, At the Depot, shows Greene to be a very clever comedian, and he is ably assisted by the lady, who, in addition to singing, is a good dancer. Acts like this, with good material, and handled with the animation and pep displayed by this clever couple, do a lot to elevate vaudeville. At Proctor's Fifth Avenue, Wednesday matinee.

Sailor Reilly. Stop show singer of suitable songs was such a hit that we could not keep track of how many songs he sang. If ever a singer was a riot Sailor Reilly was Thursday matinee. His first five songs, including Over There, got the audience all worked up, and the only way he could get away from the stage was to make a neat little speech. At the Riverside, Thursday matinee.

IN CHICAGO

(Casper's Selections)

Libonati, an exceptional xylophonist, who demonstrates absolute sincerity of delivery while making his instrument speak in a manner that causes the audience to want so much more than he finds time to present that he threatens to stop the show, made a good bill better by his presence. Palace, Monday matinee.

In the Zone, a playlet accurately portraying the atmosphere prevailing in ships going thru the submarine-infested seas, has a cast of players whose dramatic ability is far above the vaudeville average. Palace, Monday matinee.

Albertina Rasch, a Russian dancer of unusual beauty and agility, assisted by other competent exponents of terpsichorean art, made a noteworthy impression. Majestic, Monday.

Harry Breen, the "nut" who goes completely off hammer at every performance, acting nuttier than all other aspirants of "nut" honors, showed why he was a big-time favorite for so many years. Rialto, Wednesday afternoon.

NO FURTHER CLOSING

Of Theaters and Other Amusement Places—That's Impression in Washington

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.—The impression in Washington is that the United States Fuel Administration will not take steps to further close the theaters and other places of amusement than already provided for, when such are to be without heat and light one day each week, as a result of pressure brought by ministers and others where churches have been ordered closed, at least in part as to number, for a period of three weeks, to have theaters closed also.

Several different propositions are involved in the proposal to further close theaters and other amusement places, it is being pointed out, in addition to the fact that the one day a week order is now in effect. The church closing order was issued by District Fuel Administrator Weaver of Washington, and his plan is being followed elsewhere. Therefore, it is contended, the Federal Administrator having ruled as to places of amusement, it is not within the province of local administrators to take action as to institutions concerning which the Federal officer already has acted.

The fact that a war tax is imposed on each theater ticket is being suggested as another reason why these houses should not be further interfered with, as each additional day they are closed will mean that much more revenue taken away from the coffers of Uncle Sam.

Still again high officials of the Government are of the opinion that in times like these the people need varied forms of amusement or recreation, especially such as those provided by the legitimate theaters and moving picture houses.

CAMP LEWIS COMPANY

Presenting Vaudeville and Musical Comedy

American Lake, Wash., Jan. 26.—The Camp Lewis Vaudeville Company has been granted the exclusive concession at Camp Lewis for vaudeville and musical comedy, and has already started two commodious houses at the camp. P. J. Donaldson is president of the company, Jacob C. Murray vice-president, and R. J. Strachan is secretary treasurer. The office of the company is at 110 S. Tenth street, Tacoma.

Among the showfolks at Camp Lewis are John Pommatto, formerly chandelier man for Foley & Burk, who is in the Cooks and Bakers' School; Elmer Hanscom, formerly in charge of the Orange Show on the Foley & Burk Shows, now a member of an infantry regiment here; Nate Busby, formerly a dancer with the Million Dollar Doll Company, now in Company 44, 166th Depot Brigade; William H. Maitland, formerly of Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus, now with Headquarters Company, 348th Machine Gun Battalion; Leo Kerns, formerly with the Bonamar Arabs and F. E. Daett, formerly of Canary Cottage, both in Company 44, 166th Depot Brigade.

H. B. WARNER

Again Under George Tyler's Direction —Will Head Among Those Present

New York, Jan. 27.—George C. Tyler has completed arrangements with H. B. Warner whereby the latter will head the cast of Among Those Present, Larry Evans and Walter Percival's play. Mr. Warner a number of years ago appeared under the management of Mr. Tyler in Alias Jimmy Valentine.

Among Those Present has already been given a tryout or a preliminary tour, during which Shelly Hull occupied the principal role. The play will reopen in Chicago February 11. Rehearsals are now in progress.

BURLESQUE

VAUDEVILLE PERFORMERS TEMPTED BY BURLESQUE

Promise To Stampede That Field of Amusement Next Season—Afraid of Vaudeville Situation and Feel That Burlesque Offers Surer Inducements Until War Is Over

New York, Jan. 26.—Scores of vaudeville performers who have always passed up burlesque as a field they did not care to explore are today announcing their intentions of invading that field next season, provided they can find a berth there. The average vaudeville performer is today very skeptical and very "skittish" regarding the conditions which will develop before the war is over. Already many of them are seeing the adverse effects and many of them believe that burlesque can give the best assurance of carrying them thru the dubious times which they fear are ahead.

Even at this early date it is apparent that the people of the vaudeville stage will stampede burlesque just as soon as producers begin to line up their attractions for next season. It is also apparent that there will be an earlier rush to secure jobs than ever before. The confirmed burlesquer, who is reasonably sure of obtaining work, is accustomed to hang back with a "I'm not worrying" air before he signs up for the season, but next season he will require no coaxing. He will be early on the spot, for he sees the fading of vaudeville performers coming and he knows that the early bird will be the one who will capture the worm.

The situation was stated as follows to the writer yesterday by a popular vaudeville artist, who has been in the public gaze for years, who has never been seen in burlesque and who admits that burlesque never appealed to him until recently.

"The past season," he said, "has set me thinking. I have lost much time, and, while I hope I am wrong, I am very much afraid that steady work will not be forthcoming as the war progresses. I have a good act and have been accustomed to have regular time, but the loss of time recently has caused me considerable anxiety. I am in the same boat with many others, who are asking themselves what the future holds in store for them.

"I have scornfully turned down several burlesque offers in the past, but another season I hope to secure a burlesque engagement. I could name a dozen well-known performers among my acquaintances who are planning on the same thing. Burlesque is so organized today that there is a certainty of a long season, good pay, and the chances of any kind of disaster are reduced to a minimum. I am going after burlesque with a determination to connect with a good job, and I predict that there will be many desertions from the vaudeville ranks and that burlesque will be enriched by the entry of many first-class performers never before seen outside of the legitimate and vaudeville."

If this comes to pass—and there is every reason to believe that it will—burlesque can not help but be the gainer, and the new vaudeville element should be a source of uplift to form of amusement which is badly in need of new faces.

NO BURLESQUE LOSS

New York, Jan. 26.—At the offices of the Columbia Amusement Company and the American Burlesque Association it is announced that burlesque will probably not suffer any financial loss through the Tuesday closing edict. Everywhere the shows played to wonderful business on Monday, and it is expected that this session will make up for the lost day. Burlesque business is said to have picked up considerably since the holidays.

AMERICAN WHEEL CHANGES

Several Alterations Now Being Made on Circuit

New York, Jan. 26.—Several changes have been made to the American Burlesque Wheel stands. Hereafter the shows will play Poughkeepsie at the Collingwood Opera House on Monday. Tuesday, of course, the shows will remain closed, and on Wednesday they will go to Amsterdam for the day. This will make up for Yonkers being eliminated from the wheel. The last three days of the week will be put in at Schenectady.

Johnstown, on the Penn Circuit, will be played on Mondays, owing to the fact that the shows do not play on Tuesdays. Only one day will be played hereafter at Wheeling, and on Wednesday the shows will move to Canton. The last half of the week will be played at Akron.

BACK WITH KELLY

New York, Jan. 26.—Jimmie Frank, Jack Singer's right bower, will go ahead of the Behman Show, now that Lew Kelly is back in the Singer harness. This will further restore the oldtime trinity which was broken when Kelly left the Singer regime at the close of last season. Frank has been pulling off all sorts of stunts for the Broadway Frolics, the other Singer show on the Columbia wheel. He makes his transfer next week.

ARMSTRONG FOLLY CO.

Making Good in Seattle—Some Changes in Cast Made

Seattle, Jan. 26.—The Armstrong Folly Company has evidently chased the hoodoo from the old Tivoli Theater, for under the new name of the Gaiety this organization has been playing to almost capacity business since it opened there early in November. Will Armstrong is the principal comedian, and seems to have put the "gay in Gaiety." Joe Carter, as a Yiddish comedian, has a large following. George Dore always give satisfaction in his roles. Perquetta is a good vocalist and fine dancer. Billie Bingham, soubret, is the most popular actress ever playing that house. Elsie Jewel (Brooche), sister of Mrs. Dick Lonsdale, joined the cast this week. Among the chorus girls are: Peggy Ward, Marion Knowles, Ethel Edwards, Blanch Hall, Babe Davenport, Amy Patrick, Joe Doyle, Peggy Darling, Billie Lee, Violet Robinson, Goldie Abbott and Laurine Fox.

R. E. Holland, character man here some fifteen years ago at the old Edison Theater on Second avenue, will open at the Gaiety tomorrow in straight roles.

Joe Carter will leave the organization tonight. He will form a vaudeville partnership with the LaVarre girls, the act being known as LaVarre, Carter and LaVarre. Bookings are being arranged for a trip eastward over the Tour B Hip. Circuit. Harry Scheer, seen here in vaudeville some time ago, succeeds Carter.

BIFF, BING, BANG OFF

New York, Jan. 26.—Biff, Bing, Bang is being withdrawn from the American wheel, and the reason assigned by the American officials is that the show has not been giving satisfaction. Blutch Cooper and Billy K. Wells have been entrusted with the task of framing up a new show to take the place of Biff, Bing, Bang the remainder of the season.

ROSENBERG SUIT DISMISSED

Action Against American Burlesque Association Ends

New York, Jan. 26.—Walter Rosenberg's $100,000 suit against the American Burlesque Association was yesterday dismissed by Justice [illegible] in the Supreme Court, when Rosenberg or his legal representative failed to make an appearance.

The suit was brought in December, 1916, breach of contract being claimed. Rosenberg based his suit on three claims. That the Association had agreed to supply the Garrick Theater, of which he was manager, with one of its attractions each week during the season of 1915-'16, with the option of retaining this service during 1917, 1918 and 1919; that the Association had also given him the option of transferring these shows from the Garrick to Daly's Theater; that he was given the same option of continuing the shows at Daly's under the same conditions as maintained at the Garrick.

Rosenberg alleged that he desired to avail himself of these various options, and that on May 1, 1916, the Association, without cause or justification, refused to carry out its agreement, cutting off the service in the Daly Theater.

THAYER'S THUNKLETS

New York, Jan. 26.—Eva Mull and Harry Bowen, recently with the Sam Howe Show, have put an act into rehearsal and will make their vaudeville debut at an early date.

Bud Walker has been forced by ill health to leave the Best Show in Town. James Mack is the new juvenile straight.

Evelyn Cunningham, now in vaudeville, has been signed up by Ben Welch as soubret in his organization next season.

Jeanette Pollack, at one time a principal with the Sporting Widows, is now doing creditable work in the Tokio revue.

Jacqueline Tallman, soubret of the Twentieth Century Maids, will be the featured star of the Garden Follies at White City, Chicago, next summer.

Mlle. Babette, who has decided to remain in retirement this season, has joined the cast of Oh, Girl. Vivian Lawrence has succeeded Frances Tait Botsford as prima donna of the same company.

HARRY LAMBERT WRITES

Fears He May Have To Buy Drinking Water

New York, Jan. 26.—Harry Lambert, who recently left the post of agent for one of the Cooper organizations to go ahead of the May Robson Show, writes in from St. Paul to tell of the good business the show is doing. Portions of his letter are of especial interest at this time. He says in part:

"Hear little in this section of railroad difficulties. A 'Rep.' actor tells me that in Western Nebraska and in Dakota drinking water has to be hauled in and costs five cents a drink. Writing material in hotels costs me—three envelopes and six sheets of paper—five cents."

Lambert will be at the Oliver Theater, Lincoln, Neb., from January 31 to February 2; El Paso Theater, El Paso, Tex., February 9, 10 and 11.

THE BILLBOARD PROFESSIONALS AND ASSOCIATES

Who They Are—What They Are—Where They Are

Conducted by ALFRED NELSON

The Billboard will accept authentic information in the form of interesting news the publication to this department.

Out of town readers contemplating visiting New York City should consult The Billboard Hotel Directory, select their hotel and drop a letter to the hotel manager advising him of their individual requirements, i. e., date of arrival, location of rooms, etc. If an advance announcement in The Billboard is desired tell it to The Billboard.

Hotel Managers say: "The Billboard Hotel Directory is something that will supply the demand for a ready reference that will aid the traveling public in selecting desirable hotels."

Hotel Clerks say: "The Billboard Hotel Directory will save us time and labor, for it will furnish all the necessary information that prospective guests may require."

All voluntary communications must be signed by the writer.

Address The Billboard, Subway Central Bldg., Forty-second street and Broadway, New York.

Speaking of hotel conditions in New York City, S. W. Sanborn, of the Longacre Hotel, says: "I feel that it would be an imposition on the traveling public to advertise rooms at the Longacre $1 up, for the reason that we are overrun day and night with prospective guests looking for $1 and $1.50 rooms.

"There are many and various reasons for this condition of affairs. While some may credit it to the unprecedented new wealth, I am inclined to think that in many instances people who heretofore have paid $2 up for rooms are now impelled to make lower rates to balance their living expenses, for it is a conceded fact that the cost of living is mounting higher day by day. Restaurants have increased their prices 50 to 100 per cent.

"Newspapers yesterday were one cent, today they are two cents, and the same is applicable to many other necessities of life.

"It is safe to assume that the greater number of New York City hotels are overcrowded with out of town people attending the Automobile Motorboat and other exhibitions now being held in the city. In addition to that we have a convention of furniture men and a great influx of buyers, representing various industries. Then again, hundreds of men who have recently entered the army and navy services have a leave of absence over Saturday and Sunday. To spend as much time as possible with their families and friends they arrange a meeting with them at hotels in New York City in order to save the time that would be required traveling to and from their homes in the smaller cities, town and villages.

"For years past the Longacre has done a capacity business during the months of January, February and March.

"With the departure of some of our winter guests about the first of April we will then be in a position to care for theatrical professionals, especially the concert, opera, lyceum and chautauqua folks who make New York City their headquarters during the summer."

Mr. Sanborn's views concur with those of Mrs. Van Horn, of the St. Margaret, and Mrs. Bertholdi, of the University.

For the especial benefit of those seeking moderately priced rooms the editor of this department is putting forth an effort to secure a list of small hotels that have never advertised, therefore are unknown to most of our readers. In accepting ads. for the Directory he will investigate the environments of each place and accept only those that he can personally vouch for. In the event that those hotels cater to men only the fact will be set forth by "Men" under the caption, American.

There are several hundreds of these hotels in the theatrical district of Manhattan, and The Billboard will accept only the most desirable for the Directory.

The Times Square Hotel has been taken over by the Times Square Hotel Company, which is now engaged in renovating the house from basement to roof.

Manager Rubenstein says that as soon as conditions warrant he will have an interesting announcement in The Billboard, advising theatrical professionals of what he proposes doing for their comforts.

For the last two weeks "Mac" has been making frequent trips to Long Branch and Asbury Park in the interests of the Bentley studios which are well known for their theatre curtains.

"Mac" says that the Columbia and Imperial hotels at Long Branch are well patronized by theatrical folks.

Myrtle Miller and her mother, Mrs. Charles G. Miller, are taking life easy at the Broderick Hotel awaiting the arrival of Charles G. Miller, who is now with Twin Beds playing Pittsburg week of February 4.

SOME GOSSIP

Garnered on the American Wheel

By JAY SEE

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 22.—Both wheel shows arrived Sunday from Kansas City three hours late, but the matinee curtains in the Standard and Gayety theaters went up practically on time. In the Standard the Some Babies used the house scenery and had a big day's business.

This being the producer-comedian's home city, there is every reason to believe Jack Reid and his far-famed forty Record Breakers will shatter all large attendance marks beginning tomorrow and continuing thruout the week in the Standard Theater.

Managers and agents are made to feel at home in the Century, Kansas City, Joseph Donegan and Thomas Taft extending the glad hand to all.

Louis Gilbert, who some months ago was transferred from ahead of Social Follies to the advance of Max Spiegel's Revue, is due here tomorrow, and local friends are planning to give him a rousing welcome.

Eddie Fox, who has been doing the blackface and tramp with the Some Babies company, closes here tonight and will go into vaudeville.

Anyone who has been laboring under the delusion that Jesse James is dead should meet some of the transfer men from these parts.

Leo Reichenbach, manager of the Standard, is one of those managers who takes the bitter with the sweet without complaining. At the same time he would enjoy nothing better than to be put in control of the railroads operating between Kansas City and this city. Were he in such a position no burlesque company would miss its Sunday matinee in the Standard.

Ella Reid Gilbert, who has been enjoying life at her home the last few weeks, tomorrow returns to her place with the Record Breakers.

Max Quitman, ahead of the Social Follies, says a happy thought came to him up around Minneapolis, when, with the thermometer trying to force the bottom out of the glass, he realized he was not a tack spitter.

In placing one or two cards in every town he visits, it's an open question whether Harry (Kid) Morrison uses an airplane or a fireman's extension ladder.

Three local organizations with which Jack Reid is affiliated are planning membership parties to attend performances next week in the Standard.

Julius Feldman, the Hotel Stratford's "high boss man," is one genial boniface who knows how to extend the glad hand to showfolk.

Treasurer Fred Eddor, of the Century, Kansas City, probably will be among the ensuing summer with the white tops. And let it be known Fred is there strong and fast in handling ducats.

Fred Spears, advertising agent at the Century, Kansas City, is emphatic in declaring home is good enough for him and he wants no more road experience.

ON MAKING ONE'S SELF OVER

With one million of our best and most fit young men entering the army and with immigration completely cut off America needs young, virile men as it never did before. And it is prepared to reward—to pay—him as never before.

HOW OLD ARE YOU? HOW OLD IS YOUR BODY?
HOW OLD DO YOU FEEL? HOW OLD IS YOUR MIND?
HOW OLD DO YOU LOOK?

Youth, vim and pep are vital resources and economic capital.

You control yours—and the big and increasing dividends they will earn for you.

You are equal to the demands that have been made on you so far, but every one will have to do more than usual.

ARE YOU PHYSICALLY SOUND AND FIT?

You can reduce your waist line, renew the diminished power of muscles long disused and strengthen your nervous system with intelligent exercise.

You can liven your liver, strengthen your heart, double the capacity and usefulness of your lungs and relieve the strain on the kidneys and liver by well directed exercise.

You can get young again by recourse to exercise alone.

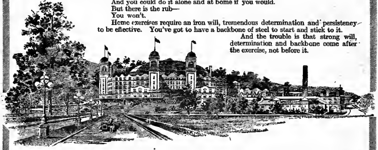
And you could do it alone and at home if you would.

But there is the rub—

You won't.

Home exercises require an iron will, tremendous determination and persistency to be effective. You've got to have a backbone of steel to start and stick to it.

And the trouble is that strong will, determination and backbone come after the exercise, not before it.



But there is a way.

GoToWestBadenSprings

It is easy to start there.

Man is a social beast. He enjoys good company. At West Baden everybody else is exercising. The force of example helps. The waters stimulate and sharpen the appetite. Getting up early in the morning and walking three miles before breakfast becomes a great lark instead of a disagreeable task and a deplorable hardship as it would be at home. Long walks and hill climbing (in parties) throughout the interesting and picturesque country round about in the forenoons prove highly enjoyable.

Horseback riding, golfing, bowling and more walking in the afternoon never pall, and the result is that in ten days or two weeks you are started right. You have the habit. You have felt the great benefits. You can safely return home and you will keep it up there if you are wise. If not, well in about six months or so you had better return to

VAUDE. HOUSE OPENS

New Empress at Tulsa, Ok., One of Finest in Southwest

Tulsa, Ok., Jan. 26.—William M. Smith's handsome new $150,000 vaudeville theater, the New Empress, was formally opened last Sunday night and dedicated by two audiences that taxed the building to capacity, which is 1,450 seats. Many bought standing room at both hours. The Corner Store, a rural comedy rube sketch, with seven persons, was brought off the big-time circuit to headline the program for the premiere week, and made a big hit. Six other acts of small-time Interstate vaudeville and a two-reel feature of The Retreat of the Germans at the Battle of Arras completed the bill. The smaller acts were Lew Wells, monologist; Rakoma, equilibrist; Dolce Sisters, Ogden and Bennett, The Fountain of Love, musical comedy skit, and a trapeze act.

The New Empress is probably the finest vaudeville theater in the Southwest. The proprietor, William M. Smith, struck Tulsa eight years ago grinding a moving picture machine at $15 per. His success has been phenomenal.

The old Empress, next door to the new house, has been closed for repairs and remodeling at a cost of $30,000. It will reopen March 3 as the Rialto, moving picture house, showing Fox standard and Select pictures. Smith continues his proprietorship of the house.

The war tax on admissions has not hurt theatricals in this city, which seems to be unique in this respect from all Eastern cities.

TO SEND MUSIC OVER THERE

Publishers To Supply Soldiers New Songs

New York, Jan. 26.—So many complaints have reached music publishers from the American Expeditionary Army in France that old songs and ancient hits are being sent over that Gus Edwards has called a meeting of the Music Publishers' Protective Association to arrange for a joint arrangement to supply the Sammies with the new songs that are current on Broadway.

A few "song pluggers" may be sent "over there" to teach the soldiers how to put the numbers over. Keith vaudeville will co-operate in sending songs to the soldiers, and yesterday a bale of music sheets and lyrics from Gus Edwards' Revue was shipped away.

JIMMIE CONLIN-MYRTLE GLASS

New York, Jan. 26.—Jimmy Conlin and Myrtle Glass, who are appearing in vaudeville in a skit, A Fool, a Flirt and Her Father, were married Tuesday night of this week.

V. M. P. A. RULING

Decides on What Constitutes a Contract

New York, Jan. 26.—It has been quite the custom of producers of acts in the past to engage an artist for a certain act or production, have him sign a contract, and then hold the contract without its being signed by the producer until he could ascertain whether or not the artist was going to come up to his expectations. In such instances as the artist did not the producer either discharged the artist without notice, or, in some instances, with but a one-week notice.

The V. M. P. A. has ruled that signature of the contract by the artist and delivery thereof to the producer, even tho the latter may merely take it and tie it away, or in any event fail to sign and return a copy to the artist, constitutes a contract between the parties and entitles the artist to the benefit of all its clauses, including that of two weeks' notice.

V. M. P. A. further ruled that this applies not only in the case of producing managers, but as well to all of its members and members of the N. V. A., and announces that complaints from artists who have been or may be subjected to such practices, if made to the V. M. P. A., will be adjusted.

It is evident that the V. M. P. A. is determined, while it does not agree to secure work for the artist, that good faith and fair practice shall govern transactions as between its members and members of the N. V. A., and the desire to straighten out and correct incorrect or unfair treatment is evident.

The Philadelphia branch office of McCarty & Fisher, music publishers, is now located in the Globe Theater Building, under the management of Irving Mills. All professional players are extended a cordial invitation to call for their latest song hits.

"IS THERE A LETTER FOR ME?"

THE SONG WORLD

NEW TYPE OF SONGS EVERY FEW YEARS

Ballad Story With Syncopated Melody Probable Successor of Patriotic Numbers at Conclusion of War

A type of song that will be partly ballad, partly ragtime, yet not closely identified with either, will probably hold sway in the United States when the present tendency to put forth numbers built around patriotic themes passes away. Every few years the necessity for a new type of song makes itself apparent, particularly when the public turns a deaf ear to the prevailing kind. Song writers have already learned that the out-and-out patriotic number, resting for its merit upon boasts of our valor and loud denunciation of the enemy, are not in very great favor with average audiences, and, in consequence of this better understanding, songs with war in the background, rather than in the theme, are meeting with great success.

When the world war was only a European conflict to us nearly all the European melodies that we had been wont to borrow were cut off. When we entered the fray what had previously served as a great adaptation market for America quickly disappeared. True, we had England and France for allies, but the conception of neither had ever held great charm for our stage usage.

This condition forced us to seek elsewhere for our song themes and we found them in South America and Hawaii, successively, taking the dance from the former and the song of idyllic charm from the latter. Our active participation in the world war afforded the opportunity for patriotic numbers, still being promulgated by publishing houses, large and small.

Modern audiences are too easily bored to tolerate the out-and-out ballad. Because of an overdose of "Dixie" songs in the days when the public was favorably inclined toward Southern songs syncopated numbers involving stereotyped stories dealing with mammy's prowess are not likely to be resurrected. Now, songs which do not meet with success on the stage seldom achieve very much over the counters, so that the publishers will be forced to meet new conditions in a new way.

A ballad theme will be tolerated by American audiences if the melody admits of exceptional interpretation by body movement on the part of the performer. Thus the ballad that will be successful on the stage and over the counters must receive syncopated melodic treatment. Melodists have learned to write these kind of melodies because of the prevalence of the "Dixie" type, and word writers will construct their lyrics in such a way that the ballad sentiment will fit the ragtime melody.

A few years ago titles and subject matter meant much in songs, but the importance of titles faded away when it was found that writers rehashed old ones, using identical titles that had been employed in the past for the exposition of new ideas. Subject matter became more or less of a joke when many songs conveying the same story flooded the market. As a rule the one most vigorously pushed, or the one with the most interesting metrical construction, was the triumph, while the others were seldom heard from. Likewise priority no longer counts as much as before, because a song with a well-planned campaign, published long after one with identical theme has been issued, will sweep the country, even tho the former number, because of a poorly-planned campaign, was never heard from.

Song writing is graduating into an art of expression rather than of thought. This is one reason why it is so difficult for outsiders to grasp the fundamental requisites. Some people hastily read popular songs which have achieved more than an ordinary measure of success and say: "Pshaw, I can write a better set of words myself," and proceed to prepare a beautifully-expressed lyric, little realizing that the very beauty of expression may interfere with the song's chances of success.

The conclusion of the world war will afford many fine subjects for song treatment. The interest which the present generation is being taught to manifest in places heretofore deemed far from sight and mind will make songs of these places and of things of interest therein quite in order. The problem of reconstructing Europe suggests manifold ideas applicable for song usage.

But so many songs have been well written, fulfilling the public's desire for modern syncopation, that only songs measuring up to this standard will be welcome after the war. The themes will be so apparent that many will grasp them, so many in fact that untold numbers of aspiring amateurs will be inclined to accuse more successful writers of "stealing" their ideas, but, as was the case before and during the war, the song most pleasingly expressed will "get the bacon."

The war may be over soon, or may last a long, long while. As it goes along patriotic songs will be less and less in favor, unless handled in some novel manner. When the simple patriotic song meets its quietus (either because of the dawn of peace, or because so many shall have been written that all will sound alike) the need of a new method of handling will become apparent, and even songs hinting at war purposes will be expressed in a different way.

What better way could be devised than that of the ballad story and the syncopated melody?

SONG LOGIC

OVERWORKED AND UNDERPAID

Tho I'm just a common booster I am wise to many things; understand each song and singer, know what every singer sings. While the boss gets lots of comfort in his office nice and neat, my work forces me to travel on a most unpleasant beat. I'm the one who does the hard work to boost the songs upon their way, yet you'd never guess my value if you judged it by my pay.

When we haven't numbers moving, with the office filled with gloom, I am called for consultation in the boss' private room. I explain just what is needed, just the kind of song to get, and the boss goes out and buys it if we haven't got it yet. My advice is always taken with results that save the day, yet you'd never guess my value if you judged it by my pay.

When our writers need ideas they quiz me 'bout what is best and I gladly tip them off to stuff that surely beats the rest. But whenever these ideas get to be the common rage, 'stead of handing me a fiver, all the writers get upstage. With the royalties a-climbing they're all acting mighty gay—and they never tell the boss to add a ten-spot to my pay.

At the end of every season, when the backers of the firm wants to know how things are running the boss fairly makes me squirm—tells me that we have to hustle if we hope to stay in biz, tho I gladly rush and hustle all the credit for it's his. And he gets a nice, fat bonus, but to me it's miles away, for you'd never guess my value if you judged it by my pay.—CASPER NATHAN.

BRANCH OFFICES

Branch offices present the most peculiar problem confronting music publishers. To keep them open properly frequently entails excessive expense. To cut down on the personnel weakens them unduly. To close them up cripples the firm's activities. In these days, when starting a song is all important, the branch office frequently affords a better opportunity to gauge the actual value of material, because the home office is likely to be the scene of discord arising from rival writers' endeavors to influence concerns' directing heads. The publishing concern with the smooth-running, competently managed branch office is invariably the one experiencing the greatest degree of general prosperity.

COLD TYPE REVIEW

EXPLANATORY KEY: LV—Lyrical value. MV—Musical value. EA—Especially adapted for. GE—General estimate. C—Comment. PV—Phonograph value.

SHE'LL MISS ME MOST OF ALL, words by Will J. Hart, music by Ed Nelson (published by Stasny). LV—A sentimental little story-song of a soldier's departure, telling, of course, how a "gray-haired mother" (all mothers in songs have gray hair) will do what the title implies. There is a bit of camouflage in the marketing of this lyric, for we are told that the lyricist was called away for military duty before he had a chance to prepare the second verse. Examination of the first verse reveals that it is of such simple construction that Hart must have been called away far more rapidly than are most soldiers if he didn't get a chance to write a second. MV—Simple march, adhering well to the double-rhyme metrical requirements of the chorus. EA—Counters. GE—A fairly good angle of "mother song" composition adapted to wartimes. C—Covered above. PV—Optional.

YOU MAKE ME FEEL SO FOOLISH (WHEN I'M MAKING LOVE TO YOU), words by Joe McCarthy and Harry Lewis, music by Fred Fisher (published by first and last mentioned writers). LV—Another contribution to the Joe McCarthy album of "nut" songs, with semi-risque, sentimental background. MV—Calculated to permit a singer to appear as foolish as the theme implies. EA—Stage. GE—Worthy companion of They Go Wild Over Me, from same song factory. C—Few songs are possessed of first and second verses involving less correlation. PV—Doubtful.

DON'T LET A STREAK OF YELLOW CROP OUT IN YOU, words by Albert Stephens, music by Jean Collins (published by writers). LV—A strong succession of patriotically inspired rhymed sentences, finding their climax in the rather strong-hand title. MV—Of the march type found in most current patriotic songs. EA—Patriotic gatherings. GE—A new angle of patriotic conception. C—Singers seeking a stirring conception may find what they want in this. PV—Optional.

THE DREAM OF A SOLDIER BOY, lyric by Alfred Dubin, music by James V. Monaco (published by Witmark). LV—As the title clearly implies, tells of a patriotic soldier's dream of peace in the midst of war. MV—Very appealing. EA—Counters. GE—Well handled thruout. C—If you like songs along the order of Break the News to Mother you want this. PV—Optional.

JUST A LITTLE COTTAGE (I'LL CALL IT HOME, SWEET HOME), words by Al Harriman, music by Jack Egan (published by Broadway). LV—May be termed a present-day presentation of the theme found in A Picnic for Two of years ago. MV—Good rag-ballad construction. EA—Not specific. GE—Should make a good counter song. C—Covered above. PV—O. K.

LISTEN TO THE KNOCKING AT THE KNITTING CLUB, lyric by Bert Hanlon, music by Harry Von Tilzer (published by composer). LV—A superb comedy lyric dealing with the present knitting craze—and the petty knocking that goes with it. MV—The "click" effect is wonderful. EA—Universal. GE—By long odds the best comedy song on the market. C—A performer can get a great deal out of this. PV—O. K.

WHAT DO YOU CARE, by and published by William E. Davis. LV and MV—A marching song with more snap and vigor than sense—written in an intentional spirit of carelessness. EA—Any "shout" purposes. GE—"One of those things." C—Those who like their patriotism mixed with "shout" will be interested in this. PV—Remains to be seen.

IT'S A LONG WAYS BACK TO SCHOOL DAYS, by Nat Vincent and Ted Shapiro (published by Piantadosi). LV—Along the theme of Gus Edwards' famous School Days, with (MV) glening chime introduction. EA—Not indicated. GE—In these stirring days a song of such simple theme may be welcome, because of contrast with the more impetuous numbers universally offered. C—Covered above. PV—Acceptable.

SOMEBODY STOLE MY HEART (AND YOU ARE THE ONE WHO DID IT), by Chris Smith (published by Kendis-Brockman). LV and MV—Pretty much along the lyrical order of songs with almost the same title that have been published repeatedly—and decidedly along the metrical order of numbers like You Made Me Love You, the present song having nearly the same construction. EA—Stage. GE—Covered above. C—Those who like songs with just a touch of risque should look this over. PV—Optional.

WITMARKS REWARD QUIGLEY

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Because of the surprising manner in which Thomas J. Quigley, Western manager the M. Witmark & Sons, demonstrated the merits of She's a Daughter of Rosie O'Grady to the satisfaction of the first heads the brothers Witmark added a substantial sum to his weekly stipend.

Keep in touch with our Letter Department.

EDWARD FRIEDMAN,

Now Four-Minute Man, Addresses Theatrical Employees' Dance

Ed Friedman, who is known by most of the theatrical profession in Chicago and a former song writer and performer, spoke at the last dance given by the theatrical employees at the Coliseum, Chicago, and also at the Movie Ball in the Coliseum Annex. Friedman heads the honor list in Chicago as having given more talks than any other member of the Four-Minute Men.

TUESDAY'S SIGNIFICANCE

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Now that Tuesday is a "theaterless" interval its importance from the music publisher's standpoint has been greatly increased. The fact that all vaudeville acts are necessarily idle on this day each week for ten weeks makes it a particularly appropriate time for rehearsing new material. Ordinarily acts visit offices either before or after theater time. When they come early they must rush away to make ready for the matinee, and when they arrive late a supper engagement frequently interferes with their rehearsals. Under the new arrangement Tuesday affords plenty of time for rehearsing new numbers. Many acts have already taken advantage of this, and Tuesday promises to be the busiest day of the week for music publishers.

CAMOUFLAGE (Continued)

(Applications particularly true to the World of Song).

(51) A voiceless girl who has done Shubert chorus work on the strength of her figure trying to kid publishers into believing that she contemplates entering grand opera.

(52) Trying to place a song that sounds like many others by telling a publisher Elsie Janis, Harry Weston and Bonita and Hearn are just crazy to use it.

(55) J. Brandon Walsh's Chicago headquarters.

(56) A popular song writer's vacation.

(57) The indifference with which a successful production writer contemplates the popular field.

(58) An act-lander standing in the middle of the professional floor and greeting each caller with: "I'm glad you kept your promise."

(59) Rhyming words that Webster never intended for such treatment.

COMING BACK STRONG

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Ez Keough, professional manager for Forster, music publisher, has just received a letter from F. J. Forster (big boss of the concern) stating that the California climate has done wonders for his health and hinting that the energetic publisher will be back in the middle west this spring. Forster is determined to duplicate the remarkable feat he accomplished last year, when he put over a terrific popular song hit (Oh, Johnny, Oh), and one of the largest selling 30c numbers (Missouri Waltz). His success was secured at the expense of his health, but, when the latter is fully restored, he is eager to prove that health and success are synonymous so far as he is concerned.

COLE IN CHICAGO

CLARK'S CIGAR RECORD

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Rival professional managers, eager to ascertain why it is that Frank Clark manages to start Waterson, Berlin & Snyder numbers in Chicago so rapidly may find a solution of the problem in the fact that the pioneer manager disposes of more than 2,000 cigars a month. Now that act-paying has ceased a handy box of cigars in a lower righthand corner of the desk does wonders. Add to this the magnanimous manner in which Clark proffers the weeds, and the riddle is a cinch.

THORNTON WITH PIANTADOSI

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Jay Thornton, the silvery-voiced kid, who has been associated with several branch offices of Eastern publishers, is now working in the interest of the Al Piantadosi Company.

EDWARD THORNTON

Receives Letter of Praise From Jackie

Edward Thornton, publisher of songs at Hood River, Ore., recently received the following letter from a friend who is on the U. S. Battleship Mississippi, commending his latest war song, He's Your Boy and My Boy, Daddy:

"Dear Curly—I expect you have been wondering why you have not heard from me in regard to the music you sent, so I will explain.

"To start with I have changed my rating to machinist in aviation and I will soon leave the band. Most of the boys from the West Coast are on the big new battleship Mississippi, which has just been launched, and it has the best band on the East Coast. I gave the music to the bandmaster and they think it the best they have in the way of martial music. I think it is quite a boost for the song to have it played by the band on the best battleship that Uncle Sam has—the Mississippi—which, by the way, is some ship, 674 ft. long, 90 ft. wide, and carries from 1,500 to 2,000 blue jackets and a twenty-two-piece band, and costing Uncle Sam $20,000,000. She is the largest battleship in the world, so, Curly, I think that having your song liked and played on this ship is a big boost for you."

Other hits by Thornton are Don't Forget To Write a Letter, Tom, Mary Marie McHugh and The Shasta Limited Train.

HARRIS' SURPRISE SONGS

New York, Jan. 26.—The Chas. K. Harris songs of the new year are a big surprise to the publishers, as well as to the professional world, especially the new, up-to-date novelty Japanese song, When the Cherry Trees Are Blooming (in Japan). Walter Percival, the musical comedy artist, is now placing it in rehearsal, saying it surpasses any song he has sung in all his career. Then there is another letter song, Is There a Letter for Me, the human appeal of which has struck the chord wanting in so many letter songs written this season. This song is a sure-fire hit with any singer.

Then again his beautiful waltz heart-story ballad, Will You Be True. The title tells the story. The music of this song is so enchanting and so alluring that it will be ringing in the ears of all music lovers within a fortnight. Followed by Just a Bit of Driftwood (on the Sea of Life). A leaf torn from life's history. Also another song of genuine inspiration, What a Wonderful Dream It Would Be, which is the prayer of every mother in the world today. A pure, clean, beautiful, soul-stirring ballad that is a pleasure to sing and to play. Also Eddie Leonard's smashing song hit, Sweetness (Honeysuckle of Mine). Van and Schenck's knockout novelty hit, I Miss the Old Folks Now, and Mr. Harris' standard classic successes, I'll See You Later, Yankeeland, Yankee (He's There, All There), You Kissed Me, Kathleen, My Rose, and the prize-winning national song success of the entire singing world—the famous and most talked of song in the country today—Break the News to Mother.

STARTS THE NEW YEAR RIGHT

The marriage of W. A. Quincke, of Los Angeles, Cal., president of the music publishing company carrying his name, came as a great surprise to all of his friends, as such an event was entirely unexpected.

Early in January Mr. Quincke married Ella Moore, the sister of Fryer Moore, Mr. Quicke's partner. Their wedding was a quiet home affair and the happy couple spent a week at one of California's noted pleasure resorts, after which they established themselves in their new home at Venice.

Mr. Quicke's business associates declare that he is gaining so much weight they can hardly recognize him. Mrs. Quicke must be "some cook."

SINGS SOLMAN'S NEW BALLAD

New York, Jan. 26.—J. Lester Haberkorn, who is a big favorite with O'Brien's Minstrels, has added Alfred Solman's new and tuneful ballad Absence Brings You Nearer to My Heart, to the attractive program offered by that organization. Needless to say, Haberkorn's rendering does full justice to this remarkably beautiful number, which combines perfect melody, effective contrasts and appealing simplicity in the most admirable proportions. This new Solman hit is published by M. Witmark & Sons.

SOMEBODY'S GONNA GET YOU

New York, Jan. 26.—One of the noble and untiring figures in this war is Miss Ray C. Sawyer, formerly connected with the Recruiting Committee of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense, and now the executive secretary of the Junior Department of the Red Cross, Atlantic Division.

Miss Sawyer has now undertaken in her private capacity the distribution of music to our soldiers and sailors, which has brought her in personal contact with all the publishers. The extract given below from The Times, an Oklahoma newspaper, shows the splendid work that Miss Sawyer is able to do in the way of publicity:

"The Uncle Sam is traveling post haste in his preparations to play the "blucher" on the fields of France, and while all considerations of pleasure are subservient to long hours and intensive training, the military camps still have the 'lighter hours.'

"A Times reporter, while traveling thru the camp in search of the ever-elusive news, stumbled upon guard mount of the 81st Field Artillery the other day between the hour of sundown and dark. The band was playing a stirring march, supper was nearly ready, and the smell of the savory stew whetted the already keen appetite of the hungry reporter. The Star-Spangled Banner was played. The flag was lowered while the camp stood at attention. The guard was formed. However, the band, instead of returning to the barracks as usual, swung into the 'ragtime' of Some Day Somebody's Going To Get You. The effect was instantaneous. The cooks left their stew, the kitchen police left off chopping wood, the kitchen flunky ceased to peel potatoes, and the whole camp gave themselves over to the rhythmic 'lilt' of the band. Some Day Somebody's Gonna Get You went the strain."

ECHO'S NEW YORK BRANCH

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 26.—The Echo Music Publishing Co., Seattle, has established an office in New York City at 145 West 45th street. Jas. Casey, manager of the company, was formerly connected with several of the big Eastern publishers before coming to Seattle three years ago, when he founded the Echo Music Publishing Company at 303 Pine street.

MUSIC NOTES

The following testimonial was received by the Davis-Bossert Song Mart of Santa Cruz, Cal., from D. A. Ives, the noted band conductor, who is at present Bandmaster of the U. S. S. Kearsarge, viz.: "Have used your songs on board the Kearsarge with great success. They were forwarded to me from my Boston office to this ship. Have found them all excellent, so good that I have taken the time to arrange them for the Kearsarge band." That, certainly, is eloquent proof of the Santa Cruz firm's success in the song field.

K. Fuhrmann has been engaged as office manager for the Daniels & Wilson Music Company, 235 Post street, San Francisco, the appointment being necessitated by the absence of the two partners. Charles Daniels is on the road selling the firm's publications, and will not return to San Francisco before May, while Wilson is in charge of the New York office of the company.

Bennie Cormack, the live wire manager of Waterson, Berlin & Snyder's Philadelphia Branch, has sent broadcast an invitation to the profession to visit the new offices of the concern in the Globe Theater Building. The firm's two latest hits, Mason Dixon Line and Just the Baby's Prayer at Twilight, are cleaning up in Quakertown.

A popular song, and one which promises to be a hit for its publishers, is We'll Follow Pershing Into Old Berlin. It is being put on the market by the R. C. Young Music Co., of Columbus, O., which company reports it to be a dandy seller.

Pat Pfeiffer has orchestrations ready now for Wait for Your Honey Boy and We're Going Over.

THE CONCERT AND OPERA FIELD

FRED · N · WITHEY · NEW · YORK

THE COMMONWEALTH OPERA, INC.

ITS AIMS AND OBJECTS

By W. G. STEWART

One hardly knows where to begin to explain the answer to the above heading, but I am almost sure the public will understand from our title just what our object is—opera for the commonwealth—but for the professional, to which The Billboard has the greatest appeal, I would say that our object is to have a purely professional company, where, as nearly as possible, an ideal engagement can be had by the really studious singer and opera artist, where he or she will be associated with a complete cast of chorus and principals who are all selected for merit, and where nothing but merit will count, and each member will be given a chance to make good because of the peculiar artistic surroundings.

To gain such a result there must be financial solidity to insure length of season and surety of contracts, also an unselfishness of management, which can be gained only by permitting the audience to be a part of the whole system, as well as judges of the merit of the performances, which will awaken their interest to seeing that the best results are attained.

I know from my own experiences that there are many people in minor positions, even in the choruses of different companies, who, had they had the opportunity, would have made names for themselves as operatic artists. The manager can not be blamed for this condition, as he must be sure of a singer's ability and experience to safeguard his investment, and could seldom take a chance on the unknown, but where we have known values in the works to be produced, and a subscription audience of almost certain number to work to, instead of fearing the young singers we can welcome them, as the constant change of bill is sure to disclose many a rare jewel.

We have no fault to find with regular theatrical conditions, but wish to fill a niche which we feel at present is neglected and believe that there is a real desire on the part of the general public to hear the standard operas well sung and well presented, so that they may better appreciate the new works offered by present managers.

Now as this company is not an investment proposition where one or two men have risked their money for financial gain, but is financed at the beginning by certain public-spirited founders with no thoughts of financial gain, and where, if successful, it will be because of the patronage of the general public, therefore, if profit is made, it should belong to those who have made it, or to the community. Our charter has covered this very clearly, as in the following paragraph:

"All funds, contributions, profits or other things belonging to this corporation, outside of the expenses which are necessary and proper in order to maintain it and pay such help or other legitimate indebtedness as may be incurred during its operation, shall be held by the Board of Directors in perpetuity and be invested, or reinvested, as the Board of Directors may seem best fit and proper, and no dividends or profits, or sharing of the same under any form, shall be had among the members of this corporation, it being understood that the essential purpose of the founding of this organization was that it should be a COMMUNITY INSTITUTION and not created in order to become a financial benefit to any of its members."

Now, as a laborer is worthy of his hire and as singers must have financial support, necessarily everyone who works for the company will be entitled to a salary in proportion to the work done, and we are sure that the community will agree in this.

Our object, to sum it up, is to have a complete opera company—good orchestra (not too large), the best chorus, well balanced, and all principals in the making, minor principals of principal caliber and leading artists whom the public will recognize as such—with latest scenic settings and lightings, and the complete organization giving as nearly as possible a perfect performance of operas which have a lasting value, and changed often enough to insure time for proper rehearsals, at prices within the reach of all, so that at the end of each season the community will feel that it has been benefited by the work done and the members of the company will be proud to be known as such and feel that besides having earned a season's salary they have accomplished a real artistic value.

PRINCE AND PRIMA DONNA

About three weeks ago a cable reached the United States authorities from Paris stating that they should watch Prince Cyrill Narischkine, a cousin of the deposed Czar of Russia and an attache of the Russian Legation in Paris, who had just left for America.

Accordingly they watched, and this is what they saw: They saw Prince Narischkine hurry down the gangplank when the vessel docked in New York, dump his bags into a taxi, rush to the railroad station and board the Twentieth Century Limited for Chicago. They saw him jump off the train at Chicago, get into a taxi, speed to the Auditorium Theater, brush by the doorman, knock at the door of M'le Genevieve Vix, who was making her debut in Manon that night, and enter. That's as much as they did see. There was no witness to what followed.

The only thing that worries the happy couple now is what they are going to do for a wedding march now that Lohengrin and Mendelssohn are tabooed.

MET. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Besides announcing the directors' gift of an ambulance to Mr Gatti-Casazza to be presented by him to the Italian Army the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York, last week issued an extraordinary budget of news as to coming events on its stage.

Meyerbeer's Le Prophete, with Caruso in the title part, will be revived the first week in February. In the cast are also Matzenauer, Muzio, Didur, Rothier, Schlegel and Bloch; the scenes and stagings are by Urban and Ordynski and the conductor is Bodanzky. Le Prophete was last given in New York by Oscar Hammerstein at the Manhattan, New York, beginning August 30, 1909, five times in all. It was sung in the Metropolitan's first Italian season March 21, 1884, as well as later in the so-called German seasons, and last in 1903 in French, under Maurice Grau.

This week also the Spanish tenor, Hipolito Lazaro, makes his American debut as the Duke in Rigoletto, with Maria Barrientos returning as Gilda, and a third Spanish artist, Mardones, as well as De Luca, Braslau and Morgantoni. Other operas this week, L'Elisir d'Amore, Monday, with Caruso, Hempel, Scotti; Wednesday, Carmen, Farrar, Peterson, Martinelli, Whitehill; Friday, Lodoletta, Caruso, Farrar, Amato; Saturday matinee, Daughter of the Regiment, Hempel, Carpi, Scotti, and Saturday night, Faust, Aida, Delaunois, Martinelli, Chalmers and Rothier.

$1,000 PRIZE FOR STRING QUARTET MUSIC

The following jury will award the prize of $1,000 recently offered by Mrs. F. S. Coolidge for the best original string quartet to be submitted to competition: Franz Kneisel, of New York; Frederick A. Stock, of Chicago; Georges Longy, of Boston; Kurt Schindler, of New York, and Hugo Kortschak, of New York and Pittsfield.

The latter will vote as spokesman for the Berkshire String Quartet, which will give at the Chamber Music Festival at Pittsfield, Mass., the first performance of the prize-winning composition. The composition adjudged second in merit will also be performed if the composer consents. The time limit for accepting submitted manuscripts has been extended to July 15. Communications should be addressed to Mr. Kortschak, Room 620 Aeolian Hall, New York.

ATTEMPTED EXTORTION ALLEGED

Last week Mme. Frieda Hempel, prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, appeared at the district attorney's office in that city and preferred criminal charges against Joseph de Valdor, New York representative of The Chicago Music News, for alleged attempted extortion.

Miss Hempel says de Valdor threatened to write articles detrimental to her art unless she advertised in his paper. Upon her refusal The Music News printed the following:

"The unscrupulous claque, who accept money from our enemies, were responsible for the encore, consisting of "Home, Sweet Home," which was not less than mockery. We wonder of which (home) she was thinking?

"Another mockery perpetrated by the favorite singer of the Kaiser was the kissing and the waving of the French tricolor. A Frenchman would have considered it sacrilegious, but neither of the mock incidents attracted any applause from the real American audience. There was anything in it except the French spirit."

In prosecuting the case Miss Hempel said: "I wish to make one point clear—I have no objection whatever to just criticism, but I do object to anyone attempting to extort money from me to prevent malicious reviews.

"Every artist has at some time or other received unfavorable reviews, and there doubtless are times when such reviews are justified. No artist objects to just criticism. Critics, like artists, are human, and sometimes err in judgment. Successful artists of all time, however, have recognized their indebtedness to the there musicians on the newspapers and magazines who have given them just and constructive criticism.

"But I think the time has come when artists should be freed from the attempt to extort money. Artists of established reputation are beyond the influence of such malicious reviews, but they should come to the help of thousands of minor artists who are building their careers and are unable to help themselves."

Mr de Valdor is quoted as admitting that Miss Hempel had started suit against him for his article. He also admitted that he had written that no real Americans applauded her performance.

CHICAGO GRAND OPERA IN NEW YORK

For the first time since the days of Oscar Hammerstein at the Manhattan New York now has two big first-class operatic organizations in competition.

In Campanini's roster of artists appear Garden, Dalmores, Dufranne, Hiberdeau and others who have been heard in New York before; also Madam Nellie Melba of stellar fame. Other artists appearing with the Chicago Company are Rosa Raisa, soprano; Giulio Crimi, tenor; Carolina Lazzari, contralto; Richardo Stracciari, baritone, and Marguerita Sylva. Last, but not least, the much heralded Galli-Curci, soprano, Campanini's best box-office attraction, and Muratore, the great French tenor.

As far as the Metropolitan is concerned it is offering no new attractions, but instead six of its most popular productions, with Enrico Caruso singing three times and Miss Geraldine Farrar singing an equal number during the first week. As these artists rarely sing over twice a week ordinarily it can readily be seen that Mr. Gatti-Casazza is giving Campanini something to go against.

As it's a merry war and New York is able to pay for it we say, "Turn loose the dogs."

On account of the closing order of Mr. Garfield the Chicago Opera's opening in New York was postponed until Wednesday, January 23.

JOSEF HOFMANN WARMING UP

Josef Hofmann, reappearing at Carnegie Hall, New York, had limited his concerts this winter to the months of January, February and March. The pianist has been spending a long holiday at his winter home in Aiken, S. C., where he lately reported that "oil stoves are the most popular household pets in a generation." In the next week Mr. Hofmann will be heard in Chicago with the local orchestra, and in Des Moines, Kansas City, Sioux City, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Youngstown and Detroit.

RUSSIAN SYMPHONY PLAYS

The Russian Symphony Society held its second subscription concert last week in Carnegie Hall, New York, with a program of music practically all new to New York.

Sophie Braslau was soloist in two new airs, The Sermon of Beda, by Spendiarow, and The Shepherdess and Faun, from a suite by Stravinsky. Conductor Modest Altschuler also arranged for his orchestra a "Vocalise" of Rachmaninoff.

MARGARET ANGLIN AND DAMROSCH

Speaking of Margaret Anglin's performances of the Greek tragedies in the Greek Theater of the University of California Walter Damrosch, who composed special music for the plays, says: "Not in one generation has a tragedienne of such power and dramatic intensity of expression been seen on one stage as Miss Anglin proves herself to be in these great roles of Electra and Medea. One must look up the old records of critical appreciation of Rachel and Mrs. Siddons in order to do justice to her work at the Greek Theater in California. She literally held her immense audiences spellbound and thrilled them to an intensity of excitement which I have scarcely ever seen." New York will see Miss Anglin at her best in these Greek plays. Mr. Damrosch has recently completed the special score for the "Electra" of Sophocles, which will be given by Miss Anglin and her Company with the New York Symphony Orchestra in Carnegie Hall on Wednesday afternoon, February 6. The Medea of Euripides will be given in the same hall on Wednesday afternoon, February 20. Special Greek settings and costumes have been designed by Livingston Platt.

DONAGHEY IN NEW YORK

Frederick Donaghey, the eminent critic of The Chicago Tribune, is among the Chicago visitors to New York during the stay of the Chicago Opera Association in the Eastern metropolis. Mr. Donaghey's post has been given in the interim to John Alden Carpenter, the well known American composer. Mr. Donaghey reached New York on January 23 to be present at the debut of Galli-Curci, heard for the first time in New York in the title role in Meyerbeer's Dinorah.

ISADORA DUNCAN

The greatest honor of all the great honors Isadora Duncan has achieved during her career fell to her but very recently in San Francisco, when Harold Bauer partnered her in a joint public recital and played Chopin on the piano while she gave terpsichorean interpretations of the music and the player's conceptions. Nevertheless "Isadora" is not so young as she once was.

JOHN POWELL

John Powell, everywhere conceded to be one of the most highly gifted pianists of his generation, already had an enviable reputation as a pianist and composer before he returned to America in 1914 to begin his concert career on this side.

On Sunday night, January 20, Mr. Powell was one of the soloists at the Metropolitan Sunday night opera concert. On Friday evening, February 8, Mr. Powell gives his second recital of the season at the Aeolian Hall, New York, as a benefit for the American Friends of Music in France.

O. H. KAHN ON OPERA WAR

It is reported by a New York daily that Otto H. Kahn, on a visit to Chicago last week, said the following:

"Experience has shown that no city can maintain two companies simultaneously at grand opera prices. The result is bound to be financial loss, or, in other words, economic waste. Moreover, the resulting competition tends to raise the salaries of artists, and to that extent militates against placing opera on an economically sound basis.

"I believe in competition, provided it results in advantage to the public, but it must be borne in mind that even in an art undertaking the tests of its answering to a popular demand and of the efficiency of its conduct is whether it can establish, or come somewhere near establishing, a financial equilibrium.

"For this reason I believe it would have been better if the Chicago Company had gone to New York before the Metropolitan season, say October 15, when it would have had the field to itself for a month. New York will be friendly and hospitable."

MISS SYLVA ADDED

Mr. Campanini has added Marguerite Sylva to the list of stars for the Chicago Opera Association's season at the Lexington Theater in New York. Miss Sylva is to appear in the title role of Massenet's Cleopatre, which is to be introduced to New York by the Chicago Opera Association, with Riccardo Stracciari in the baritone role of Marc Antony. It had its American premiere at the home of this company on January 10, 1916. Miss Sylva appeared in Cleopatre in Europe, but is new to America in this role.

A MINIATURE MIKADO

Following the successful introduction of its tabloid operas the Strand Theater, New York, last week presented The Mikado in miniature, with Irene Audrey, Marie Horgan, Arthur Aldridge and Robert Pitkin as the principal singers. All of these have exceptionally good voices, and admirably interpret the chief songs of the Gilbert & Sullivan masterpiece, aided by an effective Japanese background.

HEIFETZ IN BOSTON

A wire from Boston says: "Jascha Heifetz, the sensation of a generation (as the announcement reads), completely overwhelmed the miscellaneous public, the musicians and the critics in his first Boston appearance Sunday afternoon in Symphony Hall. The remarkable powers of this young genius were exhibited to as large and demonstrative a throng as Symphony Hall has ever held."

Professor Spalding, head of the Music Department of Harvard University, remarked: "There is only one word to cover Mr. Heifetz's playing—divine." Raymond Havens, the pianist, wittily said: "All he lacks is a rival."

The DRAMATIC STAGE

ANNUAL BENEFIT FOR ACTORS' FUND SLATED FOR MARCH 1ST

Elliott, Comstock & Gest Donate Century Theater, New York, for the Occasion—Many Novelties Now in Preparation—Hoge Bequest to Fund Exempt From Taxation

New York, Jan. 27.—Announcement has just been made by Daniel Frohman, president of the Actors' Fund of America, that the annual benefit in behalf of the Fund will take place on Friday afternoon, March 1.

By arrangement with Morris Gest, F. Ray Comstock and William Elliott the benefit performance will be staged at the Century Theater, which is controlled by these managers, and has been donated for the occasion.

Many special dramatic novelties are in preparation for the performance, in which many of the prominent stars of the stage will participate. Announcement of the details of the program will be made in the near future.

Incidentally the half million dollars in property bequeathed to the Actors' Fund by John Hoge, of Zanesville, O., was exempted from taxation here this week by the appraiser. The property left the Metropolitan Museum of Art by Mr. Hoge is also exempt from taxation.

K. & E. TAKE LAND OF JOY

Goes on Tour Under Their Direction This Week

New York, Jan. 26.—Klaw & Erlanger will assume the management of The Land of Joy at the close of its engagement at the Knickerbocker Theater tonight. Under their direction the production, which has been one of the big successes of the New York season, will be sent on a tour of the principal cities, starting at the Montauk Theater, Brooklyn, where it will open a week's engagement with a matinee next Monday.

The company, which includes some of the cleverest Spanish dancers and singers who have ever visited this country, will be kept intact and the performance will be given in other cities exactly as it has been presented at the Knickerbocker.

SEATTLE'S ACTOR COLONY

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 26.—Seattle's actor colony is becoming some numerous. Among the thespians who have given up the grind of a life behind the footlights, but who are still drawing pay from the theater manager in a different capacity in this city, are:

Billy Malcom, stage doorman at the Palace Hip. Theater. He has some 35 years of stage life to his credit. He and his wife have a little farm just outside the city at Renton.

George Lavender, doorman of the Palace Hip., is another veteran who has become tired of trouping around the country, and has settled down in the Puget Sound metropolis.

"Dad" Fletcher, an oldtime Coast defender, and father of Edythe Elliot, the stock star, is the uniformed gentleman who takes your ticket as the door to the Rex Theater.

Frank ("Dad") Howard, a well-known variety performer on the Pacific Coast, is doorman at the Clemmer. He has lived here for some time.

F. R. Marsh (of the vaudeville team of Cole and Snow) handles the pasteboards of the main entrance to the Orpheum Theater. The Marsh family lives across Lake Washington.

THE OFF CHANCE

Miss Barrymore's Next New Play

New York, Jan. 28.—The next play to be produced by Ethel Barrymore of the Empire Theater is by R. C. Carton and is entitled The Off Chance. In this play Miss Barrymore will appear in a sprightly comedy character part, as far removed as possible from the emotional role she is now playing in Dumas' The Lady of the Camellias.

The production of The Off Chance is in accordance with the original plans announced by the Charles Frohman Company for Miss Barrymore's season at the Empire. After each revival of an old play a new piece will be produced. Following The Off Chance Miss Barrymore will appear in Mid-Channel, then will come another new play, and after that Captain Jinks and The School for Scandal will be presented in the order named.

SICK ABED A SUCCESS

New York, Jan. 26.—Sick Abed, the new comedy by Ethel Watts Mumford, has scored a big hit at the Pitt Theater, Pittsburg, where it was produced on Monday. Edgar MacGregor, under whose direction the play was staged, wired Klaw & Erlanger, who own the piece, that the theater was packed at both the matinee and the evening performances Monday, and that the audiences were wildly enthusiastic in their applause. Individual hits were made by Mary Boland, Edwin Nicander, Dallas Welford, Charles E. Evans and George Parsons.

DOING OUR BIT TO TOUR

New York, Jan. 28.—The New York Winter Garden will in the near future have three big extravaganzas on tour. The Passing Show of 1917 is now playing Philadelphia, and The Show of Wonders, St. Louis. Sinbad, in which Al Jolson will star, will be given a brief out-of-town experience in order to be put in smooth running order before being introduced to New York, when the current attraction, Doing Our Bit (now on its last two weeks) will go on tour. No definite date has been fixed, but Pittsburg has been selected as the city in which Doing Our Bit will open its tour.

GREENWICH VILLAGE THEATER

New York, Jan. 28.—Owing to the popularity of Karen at the Greenwich Village Theater Director Frank Conroy has decided to extend the run of the play until further notice, instead of closing at the end of this week, as originally intended.

Dorothea Spinney, of Stratford-on-Avon, will give a series of Greek and miscellaneous interpretations at the Greenwich Village Theater on three consecutive Sunday afternoons, beginning next Sunday, February 3, at 2:30. Miss Spinney will include in her programs readings of Gilbert Murray's translations of Iphigenia in Tauris and Hippolytus of Euripides, Lady Gregory's The Traveling Man, a Pierrot play by Oliver Down and Ibsen's Bergliot, written on an incident taken from the Scandinavian Sagas of Harold to music by Edward Grieg, in which she will be assisted by Max Pigoni at the piano.

Michio Itow, Tulle Lindahl and Toshi Komori will appear at the Greenwich Village Theater on three consecutive Sunday evenings, beginning next Sunday, February 3, at 8:45, in a repertoire of dances and pantomimes. Altho Mr. Itow and Miss Lindahl have appeared before in New York in their original dances, the program they will present this time, with the assistance of Mr. Komori, of the Imperial Theater in Tokio, will be entirely new, and presented for the first time in New York City. Besides using a number of original Japanese melodies, they will dance to music of Tschaikowsky, Debussy, Cyril Scott, Charles T. Griffes and Lassalle Spier.

ALL IN ONE NIGHT

New York, Jan. 27.—Four premieres are scheduled for tomorrow night—Josephine at the Knickerbocker, The Madonna of the Future at the Broadhurst, Success at the Harris and Girl o' Mine at the Bijou. In addition Jack Norworth's new theater, the Norworth, in West 48th street, will be opened the same evening with Odds and Ends, which has been running at the Bijou for many weeks.

The Naughty Wife, which has been appearing at the Harris, ended its engagement there last night, and will move to the Park Square Theater in Boston.

DRAMATIC NOTES

Billy Howard has been signed for the part of Freddie Bonlin with the John Cort great success, The Natural Law, by Charles Sumner.

The second week of the run of Oh, Boy, at the Shubert-Majestic, Providence, R. I., did has meet with the same approval as on the first week.

The 13th Chair is being acted in America by Katherine Grey and two other brilliant actresses, and recently it was opened in London with Mrs. Campbell. It is interesting to record the first that it is now being also acted in Paris, Melbourne, and, if we read the language aright, in Petrograd. Miss Grey, who is carrying the thrills of the Veiller melodrama thru the Pacific Coast, will remain in this part of the United States until late in the spring while Annie Russell does likewise in the East.

Blanche Bates (Mrs. George Creel) last week sold her country seat in Westchester County, New York. The consideration was $80,000.

If The Heritage does nothing else it will place another feather in Cyril Keightley's cap.

Ethel Barrymore gave her forty-third performance of The Lady of the Camellias at the Empire Theater, New York, Wednesday night. This is the longest continuous run Dumas' famous play has ever had, longer even than its original run in Paris.

Margaret Anglin has engaged Florence Wollersen for the part of Clytemnestra in her forthcoming performance of Electra at Carnegie Hall, New York. Miss Wollersen was a member of Miss Anglin's Greek Theater company when she presented her series of plays at the University of California. She also played with Miss Anglin in her revival of Lady Windermere's Fan.

Frederick Paulding, well-known Shakespearean actor, who some recently has been known as a lecturer and reviewer of classic and modern literature and dramatic works, last week concluded his sixth and most successful season of subscription readings at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York. Mr. Paulding gave selections from the works of several modern Spanish and Russian novelists and dramatists. His sixth annual spring series will be given on the third and fourth Wednesdays in February and the first and second Wednesdays in March, the works to be reviewed including Nikolai Gogol's Revizor, Du Maurier's Peter Ibbetson and Alfred Sutro's The Two Virtues.

Miss Springtime closed and disbanded in Omaha January 19, and all scenery and other effects were shipped to New York. The abrupt termination of the tour was due to the undeniable fact that patronage accorded the company was not sufficient to render the venture profitable, and the railroad situation also had something to do with the closing.

William Hodge, in A Cure for Incurables, broke this season's house records at Parsons' Theater, Hartford, Conn., with three capacity performances. Hodge is a big favorite in Hartford.

Anna Held, who was forced to close her tour temporarily on account of illness, and who is now in a hospital in Milwaukee, is on the road to recovery.

Paul Stanton, who recently enacted a part in Broken Threads, is among the first ones engaged for the cast of Lightnin', which Winchell Smith and John L. Golden are preparing for production.

Violet Englefield, the English comedienne, is to interpret a role in Fancy Free. Miss Englefield was in the London cast of Stop, Look, Listen.

Oscar Hammerstein has left the German Hospital, New York, after undergoing an operation, and is now at his home.

George V. Hobart's morality play, Experience, is doing the usual big business at the Manhattan Opera House, New York, where it is booked for two weeks more, the engagement ending Saturday, February 9. The success of this play lists it among the most effective in the record of the American stage.

PLAYWRIGHTS,

Adapters and Translators

London has three Barrie plays running.

John Cumberland is rewriting his farce-comedy, The Reformers, in collaboration with G. W. Bell.

Gilbert Miller, son of Henry Miller, has become an officer in the British army. Young Miller lately went to London to produce, and two of his offerings, The Saving Grace and The Willow Tree, are now playing there.

Benjamin F. Glazier adapted The Master, not Dr. Washburn Freund. The latter made over Josephine.

An English actor named Bertie Thomas recently wrote a four-act play which is now running to big business at The Ambassadors, London, which only has four characters, all of which are double, hence there are only two on the salary list, one of whom is the author.

Mary's Way Out, written by Ashton Stevens, who criticizes Chicago plays for The Examiner of that city, will be produced for the first time on any stage at Los Angeles this week, with Bertha Mann in the leading role. Oliver Morosco "presents."

Samuel Shipman wrote the new act, Over Here, which Harry Frazee and Ralph Cummings put on in Cleveland last week.

Galsworthy has spurned knighthood—for the second time. The third time charms?

Henry Bellsen, Danish playwright, who has been studying American stagecraft at the Winter Garden, New York, will sail for Copenhagen this week.—Bide Dudley, Eve. World.

Rev. J. O'Conor, rector of St. Francis Xavier Church in New York, and author of the play, The Mystery of Life, which has never been produced, has received a cablegram from the Pope endorsing the production. The message reads: "The Holy Father, always disposed to encourage morality on the stage, most cordially blesses Father O'Conor's play, The Mystery of Life." It was signed by Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State.

Eugene Walter's next play in New York will be a dramatization of John Fox, Jr.'s, novel, Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come. The piece will be produced by the Shuberts, and is already in rehearsal.

Our Friendly Enemies, written by Samuel Shipman and Aaron Hoffman for Sam Bernard and Louis Mann, begins rehearsals shortly, and will be seen in New York about the latter part of February. Mr. Hoffman shares equally with Mr. Shipman the honors of authorship, according to word from A. H. Woods, who will make the production.

The Love Mill, Alfred Francis and Earl Carroll's musical comedy, is to be produced again in New Haven, Conn., January 28. The piece was seen last season in Boston and Chicago. It will probably have a showing in New York the second week in February.

MARY'S WAY OUT PREMIERE

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 28.—Elaborate plans have been under way for the production at the Morosco Theater here of Ashton Stevens' play, Mary's Way Out, which is to have its premiere tomorrow. Manager Donald Bowles will present it for the first time, with a strong cast headed by Bertha Mann. Howard Hickman is specially loaned to the Oliver Morosco company by the Paralta Plays, Inc., for a role in this stage production. Other motion picture studios are co-operating with the Morosco Company in furnishing other players for this production, a matter which indicates a sign of growing cordiality between the stage and screen. Mr. Bowles recently lent Miss Mann to create an important role with the Fox Film Company here, and the reciprocity between the two arts is a most encouraging symptom to general dramatic development. The premiere promises to be one of the notable events of the winter theatrical season in this city.

NEW FROLIC A SUCCESS

New York, Jan. 28.—The new Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic, starting promptly at 11.30, is nightly packing the New Amsterdam Roof. This intimate revue is resplendent in pretty girls, gorgeous costumes, Urban scenery, catchy music and talented principals. Among the latter are William Rock and Frances White, Van and Schenck, Savoy and Brennan, Frank Carter, Clabourn and Scarlet, Frisco, Yvonne Shelton, Rubye de Remer, Alyse Melzard, Mlle. Dolores and Marjorie Cassidy.

THE LEGITIMATE

CONDUCTED BY THEODORE A. LIEBLER JR.

Seven days ago we ground out our customary quota of words in a manner that no doubt reflected in a measure a feeling that swept thru our entire profession—to the effect that the willing horse was again to be called upon to carry a straw or two more than his back could bear. But with the proverbial optimism of our kind we wound up with the feeling that after all all might turn out for the best, and some readjustment of the drastic mandate of the fuel commission might result in presenting us with an extra Saturday in every week. And before the ink had dried on the proof sheets of our article our half-hearted hope became reality. A switch in the arrangement made us the gainer by the very order that at first threatened to cap the climax in a series of events that had threatened the very existence of an institution older than civilization. Instead of foundering under an insupportable load we have been led to a feast offered on a silver platter. It may be that we owe this wonderful concession to the fact that the Government may consider itself a financial gainer by the move, as no doubt it is, for it has no source of revenue so profitable in proportion to the cost and difficulty in its collection as is the admission tax. And were the theater to have been handicapped in the manner that was at first proposed this tax would have shrunk considerably. As it is we can hardly expect a much greater aggregate in gross receipts than might have been ours had the crisis not come up, for despite the extra day of leisure there will perhaps be a temporary diminution in the amount of money available for expenditure at places of amusement. But still we have been saved the frightful curtailment in receipts that we would otherwise have suffered, and we are enabled to concentrate our gross into fewer working days, thus reducing expenses somewhat. Of course, the chronic kicker will bewail the loss of Lincoln's Birthday, which this year falls on showless Tuesday.

And again certain continental cities in which the habits of the people permit them to spend a larger percentage of their hours in idleness and recreation prove that it is the way of human nature under such circumstances to spend a larger percentage of their income on amusement. This would surely be the case over here were there sufficient restrictions on the sale of liquor on these workless days, but the price of the stuff in itself should prove a whip to drive men into the playhouse.

Our country, of course, reacts slowly to conditions as a whole, but it is more brisk in accepting new conditions than any other country in the world. The alacrity with which the draft was accepted, after proper newspaper preparation, must have been a revelation to many a theorist. Such a thing a year ago would have been scoffed at as an impossibility. It seems quite ridiculous, of course, to use this major instance as an example to demonstrate the comparatively inconsequential point we are now trying to make but the elements that enter into the problem are the same in every point except degree.

For the first time in history perhaps the Government has officially stretched out its hand to aid the theater. Aside from the fact that the Government has become our silent, the well paid, partner in business, it has apparently given us formal recognition for services rendered in the name of the great cause, for our efforts in behalf of the bonds, of recruiting, of the Red Cross Fund and of other relief organizations. Besides the Government, and possibly influencing the Government to its attitude, has been the press, which not only voiced the wail of the managers and players when threatened with disaster, but sympathetically supported them in their contentions, and what is more urged attendance at the playhouses and proclaimed the concession in the theaters in flaring front-page headlines. It is a long time since the theaters have been so advertised. Usually when the front page headlines are reached it is with news scarcely beneficial to the business.

There is no reason why show business from now on should not enter into a period of prosperity—such as for instance was enjoyed a year ago. There is only one thing greatly to be feared, and that is unfavorable news from the seat of war. And that, please the powers that be, may still be avoided. There has been a feeling, the last few days, that the "break" has come, meaning, as in the parlance of baseball, that Dame Fortune is looking our way. Casualty lists, of course, one scarcely be avoided, unless there should be a sudden peace, but they will scarcely become so serious as to affect things generally until the heat of the year puts a natural quietus on the amusement world. And if the first actions of American troops in numbers bring with them news of advance and victory the stimulation and inspiration of that news should act as a marvelous tonic wherever the feeling of depression exists.

The "type system" recently discussed in this column has come in for extended notice in the Sunday columns of The New York Tribune, managers who profess to utilize it maintaining that it is not merely a polite bit of camouflage, but a method of operation in selecting a cast that "works."

In defending the use of the system they defeat their purpose by giving instances in which they have found players for parts that were well qualified to play those parts in all respects, claiming that they sensed this fitness at sight. No manager, of course, is going out of his way to engage a player for a part if he does not fill the eye, unless in doing so he gains great acting value in a part that matters. But this is not following the type system. Where a part can be equally well played by a hundred actors available at a reasonable price the man who fits the mental picture that the manager has formed will of course get the preference, but in very few offices will a perfect "type" who can't act get the call over a good actor who could possibly squeeze by as far as the physical requirements go—certainly not after the first man had been rehearsed a day or two.

Most showmen love to believe that they work on inspiration, that they do not have to course out their moves—and for the most part they appear to work in that way. But the truth is that they work on instinct, on instinct created by long experience and much reasoning—perhaps unconscious. They have, in spite of the many articles supposedly written by showmen and planted by press agents in leading periodicals, tried to avoid the reduction of their profession to a science, or analysis of their moves. So that when a man says, "He walked in, he looked the part and I engaged him, and he made good," he may kid himself that in this instance the type system worked, but the chances are that there were a good many things that influenced him in his selection beyond the applicant's height and weight, the curl of his hair or the set of his chin. Every manager knows that a Broadway performance requires actors of skill and experience—that a Broadway audience has learned to demand this and will accept no substitute. And actors of skill and experience are not always cut to the measure of a playwright's parts.

SOTHERN AND AMES IN FRANCE

New York, Jan. 27.—A report from Paris states that E. H. Sothern and Winthrop Ames have arrived there safely. Their mission is to ascertain whether it is practicable for the Young Men's Christian Association to provide theatrical productions by sending companies to the soldiers in the American training camps.

NISLO IN LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 26.—Fred Niblo has but ended a dashing trip to this city for the purpose of becoming the husband of Enid Bennett, star with the Thomas H. Ince productions. The wedding will be staged as soon as Miss Bennett finishes work in her present film production, after which the couple will return to New York, Niblo to resume his stage work and Miss Bennett to work for the Paramount under the management of Mr. Ince. Niblo and Miss Bennett and to Australia, and later when Miss Bennett played the leads with Otis Skinner on the stage.

ARTHUR MAITLAND

Presents Three Little Plays at the St. Francis Little Theater, San Francisco

San Francisco, Jan. 24.—Three little plays were selected by Arthur Maitland as the offerings of the St. Francis Little Theater on Tuesday evening and Wednesday afternoon in the Colonial ballroom of the St. Francis Hotel. An element of the serious entered into the first play, The Harvest, but the other two, The Dear Departed and The Marriage Lease, are light and whimsical in character. The Harvest is by T. W. Hanshew, and it deals with the eternal "triangle" love affair, but the theme has been given a novel twist by the playwright. The organization was reinforced for this play by Caroline Clifford and a clever juvenile actor, Clifford Shirpser. Maitland himself and Helene Sullivan and Albert Morrison were also in the cast. The Dear Departed is one of Stanley Houghton's conceits, and was first produced at the Gaiety Theater, London. It abounds in rural character studies. Hobart Lee is the author of The Marriage Lease, which ingeniously satirizes a marriage agreement, presumably made in the year 1999, and which is subject to cancelation after a term of years if the bride and groom decide that single blessedness is preferable to the marital state.

Business at the St. Francis Little Theater continues good. The weekly matinees, open to the public, are becoming very popular.

New York but added its approval to that of the West and accepted Seventeen with joy and delight. Nothing presented this season but received a warmer welcome.

It hit the spot.

On Monday night a typical first-night house demanded, respectively, two, four, seven and three curtains. On Wednesday night naught but two, five, twelve and four would suffice.

Talented, gifted Gregory Kelly scored tremendously. If he is not carried off his feet by the reception accorded him—if the very pronounced success does not go to his head—it will be because he is steadygoing and wise beyond his years. Many an actor might succumb to the flattery of such acclaim.

Lillian Ross also made a great, big hit, and Judith Lowry and Ruth Gordon were rewarded with hearty applause frequently.

Lew Medbury, George Gaul and Eugene Stockdale proved themselves able and knowing actors, and the company as a whole gave a splendid account of itself.—WATCHE.

Excerpts from New York dailies:

The Times: "Seventeen highly pleased a first-night house."

The Herald: "Has struck Broadway's fancy."

The World: "In for a long run."

The Evening World: "Has the charm and humor of youth."

The Globe: "The comic side of calf-love has never been more skilfully or sagaciously treated."

WASHINGTON SQUARE PLAYERS

The New All-Comedy Bill of the Washington Square Players at the Comedy, New York, was enthusiastically received by large and typical houses, in which the established followers of the organization predominated last week.

It is made up of four one-acters, the first of which, Habit, by Frank Dare, is cleverly conceived, deftly done and disgustingly lecherous. The second, Suppressed Desires, by George Cram Cook and Susan Glaspell, is a satire of unusual excellence, sadly marred by dirty dialog. The next, Sandbar Queen, by George Cronyn, is a skilfully contrived melodramalet, with a filthy finale, and the fourth, Pokey, a splendid demi tasse of travesty, by Philip Moeller, unnecessarily rawly erotic.

While the Washington Square Players do not cater to ladies and children, and, therefore, can indulge in strong meat (or decayed) with considerable impunity, there exists a growing impression, now rapidly deepening into conviction, that they are badly overdoing the "daring thing."

Of course, money is an indispensable necessity in carrying on a movement such as that which the Washington Square Players are behind. Also catering to prurient minds and tastes has proved a quick, cheap and easy way of obtaining it, and likely always will in New York. But how long is the pot-boiling to continue? Is it not high time that the players be tested with something higher and better? Whom but that negligible percentage of the public, which is interested in moral leprosy only, will turn a hang about the Washington Square Players or the Little Theater movement once the name of the former comes to stand merely for a bunch that "splashes the gravy" only?

CAST OF HABIT:

Antoinette Baxter	Clare Tree Major
Fred, the husband	Frederick Roland
Frances Moorman	Marjorie Vonnegut
"Burley," her husband	Robert Strange
A Visitor	Jay Strong

Edward Goodman gets credit for the production of the playlet, and deserves it in much measure. It is termed a "critical comedy." Criticism is nowhere in evidence, and it is very unfunny. Robert Strange and Clare Tree Major walk away with the honors, altho the others,

IN REPERTOIRE

TO PLAY 26 WEEKS' GUARANTEED TIME

Pamplin's Lyceum Players Start Engagement February 18—Business Fair Thru Texas and Oklahoma

Harry J. Pamplin's Lyceum Players Stock Company has just finished its regular season time in Oklahoma and Texas. Business has been fair and altogether the show has enjoyed a prosperous season. Beginning February 18 Mr. Pamplin opens the show on a circuit of 26 weeks' guaranteed time, and the show was sold time on its merits alone. Roster: Harry J. Pamplin, owner and manager; John A. Newmon, characters; Harry P. Belmour, heavies; Billy Dunn, light comedy; Joe Lee, characters; Keystone Bob Fagan, comedian; Lola M. Lee, juveniles and second business; Hazel Dunn, piano; Lillian Mae Melvin, ingenues; Lois S. Hayward, leads; Hayward Pamplin, child parts, and Si Belmour, the mascot. All special scenery for each bill is used, and strict attention is paid to the selection of plays.

JESSE BLAIR'S COMEDIANS

The Jesse Blair Comedians opened January 7 at Jefferson, Tex., after a two weeks' layoff for Christmas, which everyone spent at their various homes. All rejoined the show for the opening in Jefferson with the exception of Carl Leach, who has been confined to his bed for about a week with an attack of la grippe, but who expects to be up and with the company again shortly. Following the Jefferson engagement the company went to Winnsboro, Tex., where it encountered a big show, and business was good in spite of it. The company also moved to the Opera House at Winnsboro.

Manager Blair has added several new bills to his repertoire, with special scenery and electrical effects, also getting on some new people, and next expects to have the biggest and best rep. company in the State of Texas. Jesse Blair is the son of Doctor Blair, the well-known medicine man, who is well known thru the Texas territory and who played it for thirty years.

OLDTIME REP. SHOWS

Joe Thayer, of the Empire Theater, Salem, Mass., kicks in with the following: "Have been reading The Billboard for several years, and notice in the last few issues Earl Hawk's and Jon Carroll's remarks as the first company to give dramatic plays under canvas. Altho I do not call myself a real oldtimer I was a member of the J. C. Rockwell Company in the Eastern N. E. States, playing repertoire under canvas, in 1892, just 25 years ago, and I know that Rockwell had been under canvas every summer for at least five years before I joined him. We made all week stands, carried a band—just ten acting people—and played Maine, Vermont and the Cape Cod towns in Massachusetts. I believe Mr. Rockwell was connected with George Hill when he first started the 10, 20 and 30, and afterwards was the first company to use these prices in repertoire. Mr. Rockwell played the halls in winter, and always under canvas in the summer, being one of the best-known Eastern rep. managers, and he is in the game today, only he dropped the rep. show for a colored show, called The Sunny South. I know quite a few well-known actors and actresses that are with the big ones on Broadway today that were under the tent with Rockwell in the old days. I was also with the J. Al Sawtelle Company, under canvas, when we carried a band, and many a night I have seen Sawtelle turn so many people away after the tent was full and the crowd packed right up so close to the little stage that the orchestra had to vacate the seats, and on one or two occasions I have seen the side walls all down and seats placed far outside the tent, and the lot itself roped off and the ticket box out on the sidewalk.

When I was with Rockwell we always closed our show at night with one of the old negro farces. This was not given as a concert and no extra charge was ever made. The comedian (how well I remember old Ed Kane) was always supposed to put on a new one, night after night. The actors, after struggling thru six acts of The Two Orphans, had to wash up and get ready for old Razor Jim or Bibbs and Bibbs. Ah, those were the good old days.

Times have changed, and the rep. shows in the New England States, under canvas, today are very few. I only know of one that still tries it, J. B. Buckford, who has been out every summer for the past eleven years, and he does fairly well. I put in two summers with Jim some years ago, and he is some hustler and has a fine outfit.''

WALTER (FLOP) ELLIOTT

Mr. Elliott and his wife are doing leads with the Gardiner Bros.' Stock Co.

RALPH E. NICOL'S COMEDIANS

RALPH E. NICOL'S
COMEDIANS

Members of Ralph E. Nicol's Comedians. The company is now closed, but will reopen under canvas at Holland, Texas, February 23. Nearly all of the people who closed the fall season with the show will again be found in the roster.

PICKERT A BIG CARD

The Pickert Sisters' Stock Company has proved a big drawing card at the Academy of Music, Lynchburg, Va. The house is packed practically every night, and the Pickert Troupe is one of the best that ever played there. The Academy is managed by Roland E. Hamner, who is also the lessee. J. Maurice Tyree, late ahead of F. S. Wolcott's Minstrels, is assistant manager.

LESTER LINDSEY COMPANY

The following is from "Dad" Kelsoe, dated Bay City, Tex., January 20: "Just a few lines from Southern Texas, so-called. We have had what the natives say the coldest weather in twenty-five years. But, despite the cold and snow, Lester Lindsey is standing them up at every performance. We have one of the most complete tent theaters in the business. Mr. Lindsey had a wonderful heating plant, and of his own invention, and it is a great success. He is carrying twenty-eight people, beautiful special scenery for each and every act or bill. Business was so good last week that Mr. Lindsey has decided to remain another week. Wharton and Eagle Lake broke all records for a tent show. Mr. Lindsey has been asked to play return dates, which I think he will do. The Lindsey famous Vadel Band and Orchestra, under the leadership of Prof. Don Errig, is making them all take notice. The big top seats 2,300. Mr. Lindsey has his own Pullman car."

REPLY TO POP CARROLL

"Dear Billboard—Well, I had forgotten the shows that our old friend, Pop Carroll, mentioned in recent edition of Billyboy, and by the way a company that played rep. in '87-'88 was the Sterling Comedy Company, managed by William Porter, and, of course, if I started to refresh my memory of things that happened years ago, it would take columns of The Billboard, but when I wrote my former article it took me about thirty minutes to think of the well-known former favorites, and, by the way, Pop has old companies on the road, and one of his favorite leading and heavy men was Charlie Perry, who was a pal of mine.

"I voice the same as Carroll—let some of the other old boys tell us of the older shows before 1888, and it will recall some memories, hey, Pop?

"Come on, you oldtimers, get busy with your pens and thinking caps and let's hear from you in the showman's paper—The Billboard."

(Signed) WILL S. BEECHER.

ANOTHER REPLY TO CARROLL

The Billboard has received another reply to the letter recently appearing in the repertoire columns by Jon (Pop) Carroll about the oldtimers. The letter follows:

Dear Billyboy—I will try to recall a few that Pop Carroll forgot among the oldtimers in repertoire. Can any of you remember when Eva Tanguay was a repertoire star?

I had the pleasure of more than one season with Ada Gray in repertoire, Krause-Taylor Co., with Otto Krause and Jack Taylor; Kelly & Angell's Comedians; Wilson Theater Co., E. C. Wilson, manager, featuring Ann Davis; the Crane Players and Elmore Sisters Co., of which I was business manager in '97-'98; Kinsey Komedy Ko., M. G. and Beth Kinsey, with whom I was one time in partnership, Kin and Marie Kinsle, who used to own Michigan Fair Dates in '90, '89, '92 and '93; Frank Tucker, same territory; Frank Dean and Lillian Lyons Co., Harry Lindley, Frost and Lansdowne and Germand and Ford.

We will now go back a little farther and mention Oliver Francis and Hubert Labadie, Walter Robinson, Big Bill Pittiner, Col. G. M. Brown. Yes, Travers Vale used to run rep., Robeson Theater Co., Kempton Komedy Ko., not forgetting Cora Warner; Dick Ferris, playing small towns and cities of Indiana and Illinois; the Gilney, Gordon and Gibler, known on the S G. Co.; John Negrette and Kitty Langley—used to do some money, too; Lew Gleason was well known in Central States, Colonel Stutz in Texas, hiring his actors by the year, Ed Anderson and Katie Watson had some show, too, Will Burton, N. Y. Theater Co., Charles King was featured with Alice Byrn by Charles D. Hammond; Gordon and Wells and Stewart Theater Co.

About 1888 George Lyons was a popular favorite in Central States. Mrs. W. H. Riley and W. H. Riley, Jr., at same time, in same territory. King & Kerr Co. was well known then. Frank now lives in Estherville, Ia. Frank B. Mitchell's All-Star Players opened in '98-'99.

Who can remember Jennie Calef? Also Ida Van Cortland? There was also Chas. Forbes, for whom I played my first dramatic part, it being Hon. Bernard McTurk; who knows the bill? With the Ober Theater Co., played Connersville, Ind., in early '80s. I can recall some others who used to come around winter quarters of the Van Amburg Shows, where my father and Romeo Sebastian were training ring stock, Rose Lisle and Val Love, Golden Troupe, managed by Martin Golden of New Harmony, Ind.

And have in the oldtime rep. show, which I saw in 1881-'82, during fair week at Cambridge City, Ind.: Sam and Agnes Wallace Villa, and I am still a young man, but have the advantage of having been brought up in the show business.

Now, with all due respect to Mr. Beecher, I think he is mistaken about being featured with the Stevens Comedy Company, as I organized that show. Rosabel Leslie was my first leading woman, and Baby Velma, now Velma Whitman, was featured. I have been living in Sayre, Pa., for some time, and some years ago Mr. Beecher said he played Athose with Pickert Sisters' Stock Company. Think I will go back into the business, so there are no people on earth as good and true as show people. Let's hear from some oldtimers. I am well aware I skipped a few that I have met.

Thanking you for your space, I beg to remain, a trouper.

(Signed) HARRY A. (STEVE) STEVENS.

P. S.—I overlooked Graham Earle and Agatha Singleton, Melville Sisters, Sam Young, manager; Baldwin Melville Stock Co., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wayne, Scott Gano's Ideals, Tom Waldmann, Al Evans, Lyceum Comedy Company; Nep Scoville and Charles Nye, who introduced merchants' tickets thru Indiana, G. Harris Bidow and Irving French, also Van Dyke and Eaton and Tolson Stock. Regarding first tent dramatic show, the first I ever saw was John Negrotto, H. Walter Van Dyke was then comparatively young in the business, and was with the show. Before that I saw the Wilbur Opera Company, under canvas.—STEVE.

Mrs. Fortner (Delight Winthrop) has been ill for some time, but if she shows any improvement in time Billy Fortner's Comedians will open about the middle of April with twenty-five people, band and orchestra.

Remember, those boys in France are YOUR boys. Do YOUR bit in saving food and they will get THEIR bit.

DRAMATIC STOCK

SHOREY COMPANY AN UNIQUE ORGANIZATION

All Plays Used Are Written by Leading Woman—Finishing Up Engagement at Greely's, Portland, Me.

The Ethel May Shorey Dramatic Company, which has been on the New England Circuit for five years continuous, summer and winter, has for the past six weeks been the attraction for Manager MacKinnon at Greely's Theater, Portland, Me. They will close their engagement at this theater in two weeks, but Manager MacKinnon will continue his present policy of dramatic productions. The Shorey Company will open its spring and summer season at Jewett City, Conn., as it has done for five years, on April 1.

This company is one of the most unique on the road in a number of ways. All plays introduced by it are written by Ethel May Shorey, the leading lady, and are so constructed that they can be played in one, two, three and four acts, each act being complete in itself, enabling it to give a show from twenty minutes to a full two hours.

Miss Shorey's plays are all original and copyrighted, and her repertoire this season is as follows: His Price and Hers, The Derelict, Somewhere in France, One New Year's Eve, The Girl and the Thief, My Pal, United States Secret Service, The Sin Ye Do, The Crucifix, Thornton & Sons, Brokers; Where the Trail Ends, The Grafters, Underworld of the West, Captain Jerry, He Would Get Married, Way of a Woman.

Miss Shorey is supported by Fred S. Campbell, one of the most versatile dramatic actors on the road, and the following, all but one having been with the company for five years: Frank Dowling, Roy Melanson, Edward Slocum, Frank Stver, Hal Stowe, Charles R. Shorey, Mabel Clark, Effie Stanton and Florence Hale. The company is booked solid in New England cities and at the seaside and mountain resorts from April to October.

HYAMS-BEVERLY PLAYERS

Have Organized Another Company

Wherever the Hyams-Beverly Players have been they have done nearly capacity business, and, without exception, return dates are requested. Hyams & Beverly are putting out a No. 2 show, which opened in Grafton, W. Va., January 21, and is booked to two places, one in Pittsburg, for permanent stock at the Kenyon Theater, and the other is a route on the Sun Time, all guarantees. They will have to cancel one or the other. Cast in the No. 2 show follows: J. A. McCarthy, Lorne Elwyn, Hazel Stevenson, Clyde and Minnie Cole, Gussie Flamme, Warren Beverly, Richard Carhat, Mrs. C. Walcott Russell, Elmer Rice, with Wharton M. Wilkie in advance.

ANOTHER PORTLAND STOCK?

Seattle, Jan. 26.—The Wilkes Brothers, owners and operators of a string of stock houses on the Pacific Coast, have had a representative in Portland this week, and may decide to install a stock organization at the Eleventh Street Playhouse in that city. The Alcazar Players (formerly the Baker Stock Company) are putting on stock productions at the Baker Theater there.

FROM STOCK TO CAMERA

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 27.—Douglas MacLean, formerly with the Morosco Stock Company in Los Angeles, has been engaged as leading man for Dorothy Gish in a production shortly to be undertaken by D. W. Griffith, under the direction of Chester Withey. Mr. Withey has as an assistant William Keefe, formerly press agent for Mr. Griffith and later a scenario writer with the Paralta Company.

BUSINESS GOOD IN TULSA, OK.

Tulsa, Ok., Jan. 26.—Manager Powell, of the Grand, has at last found in Virginia Perry, a handsome and talented young actress from New York State stock, a leading woman fully equipped in strength of portrayal and technique to match his popular leading man, Cliff Heston.

On account of so many road attractions that were to appear here this winter canceling their dates because of the demoralized railway traffic conditions, the Grand Stock Company is finding unusual favor with theatergoers. Her Unborn Child broke all records week before last, and Manager Powell was forced to adjust his policy of two changes a week, so as to keep it on the full seven days. Full houses greeted every performance. This success is being repeated this week with The Cost of Living, which will also go the full week. The Divorce Question last week was just about as big.

Mr. Powell is giving his patrons the very latest stock successes available, and they are showing their appreciation.

RUSSELL REPLACES LAWRENCE

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 26.—Howard Russell, juvenile lead with the Baker Stock Players, Portland, for several seasons, has replaced Ed Lawrence with the Empress Stock Company, at the Empress Theater, Vancouver, B. C. Lawrence has rejoined his family in San Francisco.

SOMERVILLE PLAYERS

Give Excellent Performance of The Barrier

Somerville, Mass., Jan. 26.—Rex Beach's The Barrier, the offering of the Somerville Players this week, was well liked, especially by the male patrons. Arthur Howard, as Captain Burrell, was splendid, Adelyn Bushnell, as Necia, was excellent, and John Gordon, as Poleon, is seen in the best week he has done since his arrival in this city. John Kline makes the part of Gale stand out, and does it flawlessly, as does Brandon Evans, in the role of Stark. Next week, The Girl Who Came Back.

EVELYN VAUGHAN

Scores in Just a Woman

San Francisco, Jan. 24.—Evelyn Vaughan, on January 20, began her third week and second play at the Alcazar in the Eugene Walter drama, Just a Woman. In the leading feminine role of the recent Walter play she had a part which afforded full opportunity for the display of her dramatic powers, and she gave an ideal interpretation. William S. Rainey, an actor well known to San Francisco, was also in the cast. Rainey never appeared on the professional stage before, all his work, prior to the present engagement, having been at the Players' Club in this city and the Hearst Greek Theater at the University of California. Rainey made an excellent impression. Also in the cast were Sue Robinson, Hugh Knox, William Lloyd, Alice Mason, Myles McCarthy, A. Burt Wesner, Master Billy Pearce, Grace Travers, Sherman Bainbridge, Al Cunningham, George W. Stanley, Hewlett Benjamin and Ted Cunningham.

OMAHA STOCK CLOSES

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 27.—The Brandeis Players closed and disbanded yesterday on account of the change in policy at the Brandeis Theater, which opens as a vaudeville house today. This excellent stock company, during its short stay, produced some splendid plays, with better settings than the average road attraction. Harry Minturn, leading man, was not only an actor of ability, but a very capable director, and was surrounded with players who gave their best efforts and ability to achieve success.

JOINS PROVIDENCE STOCK

Providence, R. I., Jan. 26.—George Farren, who has been operating stock companies in Yonkers and Toledo, has joined the Providence Opera House Stock Company. He will have the heavy roles.

IN OLD KENTUCKY

Presented by Empire Players in Salem, Mass.

Salem, Mass., Jan. 26.—The Empire Players, at the Empire Theater here, put on In Old Kentucky, with the original Ben-Hur horses for the race scene, along with the Wang Doodle Colored Band and Liberty Quartet, the past week, and did what was probably the largest week's business of the season. This was the sixtieth week of the company and but three changes have been made during that time. The cast includes Julian Noa, John G. Mack, Joseph Thayer, Elmer Thompson, David Baker, Jane Salisbury, Florence Hill, Priscilla Knowles, Flora Frost, Raymond Capp and Paul Clinton.

ROBERT LAWRENCE

Has Organized Stock Company in California

Robert Lawrence, for several years leading man with Murphy's Comedians and more recently doing leads at the Bishop, Oakland, Cal., and at the Alcazar in San Francisco, has organized his own stock company to play one and two-night stands among the "Peninsula cities" adjacent to San Francisco, with Monterey as his base. The personnel of the company is as follows: Maurice Lynch, comedian, and Mrs. Lynch; Ed Russell, Nathaniel Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Spurier, Evelyn Hambly (Mrs. Lawrence), Buck Thiele and Van Antwerp and an orchestra of five people. Blake and Amber booked the people.

LYCEUM & CHAUTAUQUA

CONDUCTED BY FRED HIGH

LYCEUM COMMITTEES

Oppose Talk by Dr. Edward A. Steiner—Question the Noted Speaker's Loyalty — Negotiations Still Pending

The Billboard believes that in these times, when the lecture bureaus have their agents in the field selling talent on the strength that the lyceum and chautauqua are both a really necessary part of our Government, using President Wilson's letter as a selling talk, that it is only fair to the Government that it be backed up as far as possible in the message that the platform has for the people.

Secretary H. J. Metcalf, of the Iowa State Defense Council, has said: "Our greatest task has been to make the people realize that we are at war, and that task has not yet been accomplished. The spirit is lacking. Not the spirit of giving and doing, but the spirit which makes a man want to give until it hurts him, a spirit which, as Governor Harding put it, 'gets people to fighting in their minds as our boys are fighting in the trenches.'

"We haven't that spirit yet in Iowa. I often wonder whether it is going to take a list of fatalities from over the seas to awaken us.

"The most dangerous type," says Mr. Metcalf, "is an American citizen, perhaps even born in this country, often doing his work by insinuation and by whispered conversation. This is really the most effective type of pro-German propagandist we have. This type of man is shrewd and crafty in his work, he buys a Liberty Bond, contributes a few dollars to the Red Cross and poses as a patriot. His work is secretive and insidious. He plants the seed of disloyalty in the mother's heart, he is the instrument by which the father speaks his discontent over the conscription act, he is worse by far than the pro-German agitator, for we are guarded against this class of traitors, but not as the bad American."

CASE OF DR. STEINER

The following editorial from a Des Moines paper states "The Case of Dr. Steiner:"

"The Capital's criticisms of Dr. Edward A. Steiner of Grinnell have been based entirely upon the doctor's public utterances as stated by himself. The Capital has believed that the doctor puts in as many pleas in behalf of Germany that he is not doing the United States any good by his public utterances, provided he continues them as he has been making them.

"Dr. Steiner was born in Austria. His opportunities for doing good or harm are great because he is a professor at Grinnell College. Either consciously or unconsciously the doctor's views crop out and his estimate of America and her institutions and his estimate of Germany and her institutions are made plain.

"The Capital has not been alone in criticising Dr. Steiner's public addresses.

"Last June he delivered an address to the graduating class at Newton, Ia., which, according to The Newton News, was un-American. One member of the audience took the trouble to call at The Capital office two weeks ago to explain that Dr. Steiner's address last June was sufficiently critical of this country and its institutions as to be a matter of public comment in Newton.

"Associate these public utterances made by Dr. Steiner with the fact given on the authority of Dr. Gunsaulus that it is the definite policy of German propaganda to place German instructors in the chairs of history in our American universities in order that they may declaim that democracy is a failure, and that autocracy as represented by Germany is the one efficient form of government and also the form of government that does most for its people.

"Associate with our criticism of Dr. Steiner the general gullibility of Americans, as illustrated in the American attitude toward Bernstorff, and all things German, and in the character of the reception which our people gave to the officers and men of the Deutschland; also our general innocence and lack of understanding of international politics, and particularly of the world ambitions of Germany.

"We have stated our conviction of Dr. Steiner. We have nothing to retract. If it is charged that we see suspicions our reply is that America would be better off if our people became more suspicious.

"The German educational propaganda in the United States is frightful and the people will comprehend it when their eyes are opened, but their eyes may not be opened until the battle begins to rage next spring and the American death roll starts."

SUPERIOR LYCEUM COMMITTEE BESIEGED

The following is an excerpt from The Superior (Wis.) Telegram, and as it tells its own story we will give it as it appeared.

"That Dr. Edward A. Steiner of Grinnell College should not appear in Superior on the Citizens' Lecture Course program is the firm belief of several citizens, who are greatly opposed to the lecture course promoters making any negotiations for the doctor's appearance. Dr. Steiner has appeared in Superior before, and presented a popular number on the course, and those in charge of the lecture course were anxious to have him appear before Superiorites again. At the present time negotiations are under way to procure the Grinnell professor for an April date.

"Forces opposed to him say that at a time like the present there should be no false notes sounded from the lecture platform, and they further allege that it seems that Dr. Steiner can not see the impropriety of 'damning our allies with faint praise,' and declare that chance for so doing should be taken away from him by cancelation of his speaking dates. They base their declarations upon an editorial in the December 31 issue of The Des Moines Capital in which the speaker is severely criticised. The opposition admits admiration of the college man, but feels that it is wrong to bring him to Superior for the reasons stated."

The most effective thing to do in a case like Dr. Steiner's is to have a court stenographer take down the address and then it can be picked to pieces in the quiet moments when reason may guide our every action. No one believes more in the liberty of the platform or the liberty of the press than the writer, but each utterance should be debatable and when called for speakers or writers should give the reasons for our utterances. We have nothing personal against Dr. Steiner, neither has we any personal reason to interfere with Miss Marie Mayer, but when the local committees began to question the advisability of having an Austrian subject lecture on their local lyceum course we took the side of the local committees and published their reasons. Within three weeks Miss Mayer was withdrawn by the bureau that was handling her time. We believe in safety first during these perilous days. We believe with Washington that we should put none but Americans on guard at this time.

We hope that all lyceum committees will send their lists of bookings to this department and we would especially appreciate it if all patriotic people would scan the lyceum numbers and see if there are any doubtful ones on your course. Send this information to our Chicago office, 35 S. Dearborn street. We would appreciate a letter from you, Mr. Committeeman, setting forth your views. Write today.

EWING'S ZOUAVE BAND, BRASS CHOIR AND LADIES' ORCHESTRA

EWING'S ZOUAVE

Wallace M. Ewing, of Champaign, Ill., has been one of the capable musical directors and band managers who has seen the larger vision in musical promotion. He has been one of the few who have had sufficient forethought to create the kind of program that would meet a universal need. He has the sense to see that while it is the same people who patronize a fair, a chautauqua, a baseball game and a thousand other kindred forms of entertainment and amusement, yet it is absolutely necessary to have the attraction so organized that it will meet the requirements of the particular needs that are being supplied. Mr. Ewing had two bands playing two chautauqua circuits, and when the circuits closed these two bands were united and a larger organization, suitable for the big fairs, went right on without the loss of a single day. Mr. Ewing has a number of musical organizations which he manages and keeps booked. His Zouave Brass Choir is his latest organization. This is an American band and does everything in an American way for an American audience made up of Americans. Alma Huntley is the efficient manager of his ladies' orchestra.

SAMMY AND HIS BOOK

We received a little soldier book of yarns, jokes, poems, stories, toasts, songs and readings, all gathered into a volume of sixty-four pages of spirited reading matter, calculated to assassinate the blues and to make sick men well. It has been issued by The Sammy Publishing Company, 301 West Grand avenue, Des Moines, Ia. It is really a compilation of the best that has come out of the war. It is edited by Thomas Elmore Lucey and L. G. Zelleno, and is published and distributed under their direction. It's a real Smileage Book. It sells for 25 cents and is built to give testimony to Solomon's proverb that a merry heart doeth good like a medicine.

TRI-STATE CANTONMENT SERVICE

Col. Frank L. Smith, of Dwight, and Percy G. Benolck, of Peoria, have been placed in charge of the entertainment council to provide theatrical and chautauqua entertainment for the soldiers and sailors at the cantonments in this State.

Colonel Smith, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor at the last primary, will be assisted by Percy G. Hennick, former internal revenue tax collector, who has been named counsel for Illinois and Indiana and will assist the chairmen of the two States.

Offices of the entertainment council will be at the headquarters of the State Council of Defense, 120 W. Adams street. It was said there last night that it would be Colonel Smith's duty to provide entertainment for the Liberty theaters at Camp Grant and the Great Lakes Naval Training station.

FLORIDA CHAUTAUQUAS

C. Rucker Adams has booked for his Florida chautauquas the following attractions: Dr. Ira Landrith, Col. George W. Bain, Mme. Finley Gray, Charles T. Bayless, Denton C. Crowl, "Silent" Morra, Mee's Military Band and Orchestra, The Higdon Concert Company, Cincinnati Trio, Madam Grace Hall Riheldaffer, Dr. A. W. Lamar. Mrs. Rucker Adams will have charge of the physical culture work as usual. The Florida assemblies will be held in February. Mr. Adams' headquarters are at Lakeland.

JEANNETT JEWELL KELLOGG

We are glad to say that B. W. Kellogg, who, owing to ill health, had to leave the road after doing such good work as advance agent for his talented wife, has regained his health after a couple of years' sojourn in the North Carolina mountains. He will be back on the road soon at his former job hustling for dates. Any bureau that is looking for one of the really talented artists and noble women of the lyceum profession can do no better than to engage Mrs. Kellogg. Their address is Asheville, N. C.

WISCONSIN "U" EXTENSION ACTIVITIES

The University of Wisconsin is putting out every ounce of its energy to further the war work activities going on in the Badger State. Prof. Paul Voelker has just finished the campaign for the Red Cross speakers' campaign, which was conducted under his leadership from the general headquarters at Milwaukee. Assistant Secretary Robert R. Duncan has charge of the speakers' bureau for the State Council of Defense. There are added activities which are being carried on by this great educational institution, and are not conflicting with the lyceum and educational lecture and entertaining bookings which are being carried forward for the welfare of the people of that great commonwealth.

Our good friend Duncan writes, "The outlook for 1918-'19 is better than we thought it would be. The district representatives report their business will be about normal. Some will get a few more courses and some a few less."

The financial conditions of the courses, so far as we can look them over, are about the same this year as in the past. The fuel cutting closing up every Tuesday night is going to work a decided hardship on the attractions and particularly on producers, but will not hurt the courses very much. I am figuring that the ticket holders will be more philosophical about a date being changed on account of a war order than they are over the average missed dates. At any rate I have found the committees more reasonable in arranging other dates than they usually are.

OVER 2,000 HEAR APOLLOS

The Apollo Concert was the second number on the Council Bluffs (Ia.) lyceum course and they drew more than Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, who opened the course and was billed as the star attraction. W. J. Leverett, chairman of the Community course, said:

"It was estimated that more than 2,000 people were present, and the financial success of the course is now assured. The auditorium again proved its value to the city. In no other place in the city could such a large number of people have been assembled, yet all were comfortably seated. Plans are already on foot for a lecture course next year."

IN THE BOOBY HATCH

The following attractions have been reported UNSATISFACTORY by the lyceum committeemen in the towns indicated. These attractions will be kept in The Booby Hatch until five committeemen report them 90 or 100:

PICKED UP FROM COMMITTEEMEN

"Montraville Wood gave one of the most interesting entertainments ever at Lake, Md."

Pasquale Tallarico, the pianist, gave a recital at Defiance College which the department of music said DELIGHTED. "He has a beautiful and delicate touch, but is equal to the heavier style as well. This was one of the numbers booked by C. W. Best."

"Rollo McBride showed the audience how to do the thing they felt they wanted done, but did not know how to do it," is the way Rev. Albert A. Mohrey reported from Austin, Minn.

Harold Smith, Chairman of the great Racine Lyceum Course, wrote: "This was the fourth appearance of the Smith, Spring, Holmes Orchestral Quintet here. They are stronger and better than ever. Each member is an artist. Mark them 100 and then some. They drew two-thirds of our regular season ticket holders in spite of the raging blizzard."

Alberto Salvi drew the at Defiance College Course. "The audience scarcely breathed while he played. His pianissimo was as delicate as a whisper, while the dash and abandon of the opposite was amazing. Richardson was marked 90 hence the 95 in the report. He has a beautiful voice."

"Newton Pearson was just what we wanted to start one course," wrote R. R. Wood, of Faroker, Ok. "He is a splendid humorist."

Harold Loring lectured on Indian Music and he has an assistant, Little Bear, an Indian who gave realistic illustrations of Indian music. Mr. Loring is a delightful talker. The only criticism was that the entertainment was too short, wrote the committee at Defiance, O.

"The best I ever heard. I hope they come back next year. I got my money's worth for the entire season ticket." That is the way The Metropolitan Glee Club was reported by Superintendent Hoyt E. Sisinger of Princetown, O.

Lou J. Beauchamp wrote: "I never saw a better pleased audience than Laurant and Miss Helen Bernard had at Hamilton, O. Mark them extra delighted."

"Cornelius made special hit with audience. Recent vaudeville magician quite superior as performer to Laurant. Did not affect Laurant's popularity," is the way Fred Heter of Farmington, Mo., reported. Messrs. Fred Heter and Dr. C. A. Tetley manage the opera house and conduct the lyceum course. This course is a great success, the attractions being booked by the Redpath Bureau. The town has had a course for thirty years.

"Miss Fenetta Haskell is a dramatic reader with a very strong voice and has perfect ease on the stage. She read If I Were King at Defiance College."

We wish all lyceum committeemen would mail us circulars of the attractions you have booked for your 1918-'19 lyceum course and the price you have agreed to pay for the course. We may give you much information that will be of great value to you. We may be able to tell you whether the company you have bought is a lyceum company or a hand-made outfit gotten up to make a place for some bureau school annex students. You may have bought a bunch of raw amateurs who are sold to yield a commission to some hired hack who is grafting a commission for booking. Agents are still selling concert companies that are not now in existence and you may be buying one. We have an ax to grind and our prosperity is tied up with yours. Write to our Chicago office, 35 S. Dearborn street. If you have not reported on the merits of the attractions to please your audience do so at once. We want all the reports we can get. They are for the best interest of all concerned. Report at once.

LYCEUM AND CHAUTAUQUA NOTES

Herbert W. Gleason, of Boston, has just returned from Alaska and is giving an illustrated lecture on Scenic Alaska, dealing largely with Mt. McKinley and its wonders.

Dr. B. D. Evans, of Athens, O., is one of the returned war visitors who seems to have dug a great lecture out of the ruins at the front.

Arthur Brisbane is delivering a lecture on American Patriotism in the Present War. If Mr. Brisbane can talk as well as he can write he is a hummer.

Francis Neilson, who recently married Mrs. Edward Morris, widow of the late millionaire meat packer, was unable to fill his lecture engagement at Burlington, Ia., owing to an operation which he recently underwent. John J. Fleming is the local committeeman and he was informed by the Mutual Lyceum Bureau that Mr. Neilson would probably be able to fill his date later on. But it is announced, if he is not then another number will be furnished.

Mme. Louise Homer, the great contralto, was heard at the National Theater at Washington, D. C., in recital. Under the management of Mrs. Wilson-Greene.

Theodore Roosevelt will lecture February 6 under the auspices of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and the Pilgrim Publicity Association. The seats are to be $1 and $1.50, all the house being reserved.

Explorer Donald B. McMillan is giving a lecture and moving pictures of his 8,000 miles with a dog train in the Arctic. He is said to have one hundred dates booked at $200 per engagement.

Miss Myrtle McCoy, of Sutton, W. Va., has signed a contract to be one of the junior superintendents for the Lincoln Chautauqua the coming summer. Miss McCoy is a graduate of the Sutton High School and Wesleyan College. At present she is teacher and director of athletics for girls in the Shinnston (W. Va.) public schools. Miss McCoy has also taken special work in playground instruction here in Chicago.

Ernest Harold Bayes is doing some splendid work for the Audubon societies in Ohio lecturing for the better protection of bird life and the conservation of the $1,000,000,000 worth of food which is annually destroyed because we have made war on the birds which live on the winged enemies of man and beast.

Strickland W. Gillilan is lecturing for the Pennsylvania University Extension Society. He opened January 7 at Association Hall at Germantown, and followed the next night at Witherspoon Hall, giving Sunshine and Awkwardness. He had a week with the University Extension management.

William Rainey Bennett was the guest at the regular weekly luncheon of the Advertisers' Club at Los Angeles, Cal. Alton Packard was a guest at the same spread, giving a talk on cartoons.

Elma B. Smith, the noted child impersonator and entertainer, is filling a number of lyceum engagements this winter, assisted by Helve Rogers, a harpist of experience and unusual ability. Miss Smith has for several years devoted her summers to the chautauqua and her winters to vaudeville.

Thirteen thousand, five hundred and fifty-four persons attended the war lecture course conducted by the Columbia University. There were a total attendance of 32,238 at the 250 meetings held during the months of October, November and December.

One of the niftiest circulars we have seen for some time is the one just off the press. It's a shadow of what Mr. Flude really is and what is more it tells much of his own story.

Montaville Flowers delivered a wonderfully patriotic address at his home at Monrovia, Cal., just before starting East for his new duties as directing thought back of The Great National Conference, which is scheduled for Washington, D. C. More than a thousand of his neighbors were present.

Opie Read was elected president of The Chicago Press Club for the ensuing year. An enthusiastic banquet was given in his honor Saturday night, January 19.

Juliet V. Strauss is busy telling New York State folk "How Mother Got Her Halo."

Dr. Albert E. Wiggam is delivering his new lecture, How We Must Win the War, before a number of specially arranged audiences. He is doing some fine work for the Red Cross speakers' bureau.

Billy Sunday bought the first Smileage Book for his son. Ralph Bingham was the first to report a drive on the audience for Smileage Books.

J. N. Erickson, of Calgary, Canada, who spent several days in Chicago buying talent for his Canadian chautauqua and lyceum courses. Mr. Erickson is associated with the Ellison and White system.

Robert Glump who started on a two months' trip to the Pacific Coast as advance agent for Hum Crane. He expects to book Mr. Crane's series of art talks and exhibits as outlined in last week's Billboard.

Chicago opera costs the guarantors $50 000 for the Chicago season alone. The company has gone East and will proceed to pile up the amount which art extracts from wealth until— well, we'll see.

Maj. Beith, known as Ian Hay, author of one of the popular books dealing with the war, has delivered 175 lectures and addresses during the past year. Ninety-one of these were free. He raised $8,667 for Red Cross work from his own earnings as a lecturer.

The Clifton W. Mallory Players are presenting the modern American drama, entitled Thrift, playing the lyceum courses thru the Central West.

The Redpath tent in the infantry section of Fort Sheridan was blown down in a storm. E. G. Ray is the superintendent of entertainment. Keith vaudeville took the place of the regular lyceum bills until the repairs could be made.

More than two hundred passengers were marooned at Willard, O., formerly known as Chicago Junction. The passengers were cared for at the Elks and Masonic clubs. Among those stuck in the snow were Ambassador Sato, of Japan, and Frank Billings, member of the American Commission to Russia. Mr. Billings gave a lecture Sunday afternoon at the Masonic Temple on conditions in Russia.

BLAKE AND AMBER

Blake and Amber, for several years among the foremost artists' booking agents of San Francisco, have organized a lyceum department for supplying outside towns with attractions for lecture courses and chautauquas, the following attractions being controlled by them for this purpose: Mme. Jeanne Gustin-Ferrier, concert and operatic soprano; Dr. Carlos de M. Mendil, violin virtuoso; Kajetan Atti, Bohemian harp virtuoso; Mons. Antoine de Vally, operatic tenor; Minetti String Quartet, Miss Janet Malbon, colatura soprano; Herbert Riley, cellist; Israel Seligman, Russian pianist; Mrs. Robert Hughes, piano accompanist; Arthur Weiss, lecturer on philosophy of musical art, and Lee Cooper, Shakespearean scholar and actor. The most recent booking is that of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra at the Victory Theater, San Jose, recently.

THE ALEXANDER MILBURN CO.

BALTIMORE, U. S. A.

TABLOIDS

Alex. Foster, Scotch comedian (imitator of Harry Lauder), is in camp at Anniston, Ala., with the New Jersey contingent, hailing from Atlantic City. He has put on many professional nights at the cantonment theater of the 113th Regiment, which is the only theater within the camp lines.

The Winter Garden Follies, owned by Thos. V. White and managed by Oscar Wiley, will open an indefinite engagement at the Lincoln Theater, Waco, Tex. The show has been out 38 weeks with only one week's layoff. The show is carrying seventeen people in all, including the dancing chorus of eight, under direction of Jack Harrison. Mr. Harrison is using all script bills, and has a number of them. Roster: Tom White, owner and musical director; Oscar Wiley, manager; Jack Harrison, producer of bills, chorus and principal comedian; Ed Brundage, comedian; Billy Hill, straights; Lillian Williams, prima donna; Anna Edmonds, soubrette, Mary Clark, characters. Chorus: Misses Francis Harris, Helen Doyal, Alice Dennis, Mabel Irwin, Clara Franklin, Isabel Warner, Jessie Yuthe and Babe Laton. Jack LaPearl closed in Oklahoma City and joined the Barbour show, managed by Peewee Myers.

Jack Lord has signed Mae Earle, former prima donna with Charles Taylor's Darlings of Paris Company, who closed with that show last week. She opened January 24 in Mr. Lord's No. 2 show at the Kempner Theater, Little Rock, Ark. Charlynne Young, who has just closed after ten weeks at the Imperial Theater, St. Louis, opened for Mr. Lord on January 21. "Business," says Mr. Lord, "is very good down at Little Rock, as the 40,000 soldiers at Camp Pike keep it at capacity at all times." Lord has contracted with S. A. Harris, manager of the Gem and Kempner theaters, Little Rock, to remain there all next summer, and also expects to put out several more shows later in the season for that territory. Mr. Lord has engaged a new musical director for his No. 2 show, in the person of Robert Aquilera, who came from a long stay at the Okiah Theater, Bartlesville, Oklahoma.

The Gate City Girls, under the management of Lawrence Russell, are now in their sixth week on the Virginia-Carolina Managers' Circuit, playing three brand new bills, two of them written by Lawrence Russell and the third by Robert J. Feagin. Complete special settings have been given for each bill, and in one of them, Camouflage, five drops, several set pieces and two working ships are used. Robert J. Feagin has arranged special musical openings and finales for all the productions, and managers give the company credit for being one of the most finished tabloids that has ever played this circuit. The roster of the company embraces Emma Marie Davis, Robert J. Feagin, Claude Pat Brown, Berney Sunkler, C. Jack Davis, Grace Feagin, Iona Jacobs, Audrey Jackson, Mattie Gill, Bessie Longshore, Kitty Marcelle, Mary Russell, Nettie Hanlon, the Liberty Belles Quartet, the Down Home Male Trio, the Normandy Septet and Lawrence Russell. The company is jumping into Florida, and will be there until April. An unusually enjoyable week was spent recently in Raleigh, N. C., where B. S. Aronson manages the Grand. "Barney," as he is familiarly known by his intimates, is a cousin of the noted impresario of the past generation, Rudolph Aronson, and is something of an "impres" himself, conducting three road shows and two theaters. He is one of the most popular managers in the South.

The Myrtle Deloy Company reports good business thru Oklahoma, where this excellent company has been showing for some time past. The roster follows: Myrtle Deloy, leads; Tolla Deloy, characters; Marshal Walker, producing comedian; Ted Atbey, comedian; Billy McBee, juvenile. The chorus is good looking.

Richard Lonsdale arrived in Seattle Thursday, January 17, after the Lonsdale-Harris musical tabloid company closed in Portland the night previous. Dick has several offers under consideration, but is undecided as to which one he will accept.

The Orpheum Theater, Louisville, Ky., has a very creditable musical comedy company, under the direction of Billy Bard, who is doing the producing and comedies. Bessie Dawison is a newcomer in this excellent little company of twelve people, and is making a decided hit with her dancing act. The roster of the company includes Billy Bard, producing and comedy; Chas. LeFord, comedian; Les Spenzler, straight; Florence Market, soubret; Bessie Dawison, specialties; Mrs. Les Spenzler, prima donna. Chorus: Ruth Dupeyster, Helen Jenkins, Allah Powers, Vera Ecenberger, Marion Sayles and Margie Ransome.

Al Hassan closed his tabloid company at Huntington, W. Va., and went to Louisville, where he is at the Star Theater, producing for the Mildred Austin Musical Stock Company.

Dick Dickinson and his tab. show are still in Louisville, as they play a circuit of theaters in that city and vicinity.

Charles Soladar and the Brinkley Girls are still on the V.-C. Managers' Circuit, and continue to do a nice business. They have just finished a four weeks' engagement for the Signal Amusement Co., in Chattanooga, Tenn. The company was originally booked for one week only, but the show was such a hit that it was held over for three more weeks. Charles Soladar, comedian and owner; Billy LeRoy, comedian; George Myers, straights; Dick Rice, specialties, Mae Ward, leading lady, and Mae Ine Henry, soubret, are the principals, while the chorus comprises Bessie Grannelle, Louise Price, Alma Morgan, Florence Morgan and Charlotte Earl.

The Margaret Lillie Company is enjoying a very successful season, completing its twentieth week last Saturday night. Manager Geo. M. Hall discovered in Harry Evanson a crackerjack Jew comedian, whose comedy is of the sort that never fails to please. Incidentally Evanson has just become an Elk. Margaret Lillie probably has no equal as a blues singer, and carries off the honors at every performance. The Lillie Comedy Quartet also receives no small amount of applause.

Musical tabs., which find Oklahoma particularly fine picking, are doing good business at the Wonderland, Tulsa, Ok. Many of the companies report shortage of chorus girls because of the war. Married ones quit and go home when their husbands are called to the army, notwithstanding salaries have gone up to $25 and $30.

Major W. E. Gass, an oldtime showman, who has been connected with the Mayo Mills (now making government goods) at Mayodan, N. C., for a number of years, is now managing the Pickwick, a new theater at Mayodan. "The Major is a big-hearted fellow," writes Jethro Almond, "and anyone playing his house will find him a most pleasant and agreeable gentleman. Also can count on good business. My vaudeville and tab. recently played a return engagement there, and the second was better than the first."

Last week was the fifty-ninth week for the Byrne & Byrne Company on the Sun Time. The troupe is headed by Charlie and Billie Byrne. The vaudeville features include the Concertino Trio, Billie Byrne in double voice singing, Charlie Byrne in comedy songs and James Walters in a classy singing and dancing act. Others in the company besides those mentioned above are Hazel Guernsey, Josephine Guernsey, Loretta Burke, Marion Burke, Ruth Ramon and Eva Young. The show is booked at the Arcade Theater in Connellsville, Pa., for this week.

Dallas Packard, well-known scenic artist, has joined the Mildred Austin Musical Comedy Company, now playing the Star Theater, Louisville, Ky. Dallas will be remembered by some as the artist with the Temple Stock Company at the Temple Theater, Ft. Wayne, Ind., and the Wadsworth Stock Company, New York. He was injured in an automobile accident about eighteen months ago, but is now fully recovered.

Morris Streeter's Land of Joy Girls closed a very successful engagement of six weeks at the Virginia Theater, Boone, Ia., January 26, and opened at the Princess Theater, Fort Dodge, Ia., January 27, which engagement will be for an indefinite period. The company now numbers 18 people—Morris B. Streeter, Al Weston, Dave Weston, Evan Evans, Harold Donaldson, Blanche Bryan, Nettie Foster, Helen Hunts and a chorus of eight, including Billie O'Shea, Betty O'Shea, Dot Martin, Babe LaRue, Myrtle Russell, Bobbie Beckman, Bessie Everett and

MAGIC & MAGICIANS

BY WILLIAM J. HILLIAR

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 16, 1918.

Dear Mr. Hilliar—Your article on Magic and Magicians which appeared in The Billboard January 5 is intensely interesting, especially that part relating to spiritualism and Daniel D. Home and the Davenport Brothers.

In my younger days I traveled with the Davenport Brothers and Fay, and I know that during the years I was with them that neither of the brothers claimed spirit aid in their cabinet mysteries. But their father always insisted that the boys were genuine mediums and that the manifestations were the result of spirit agency. Of course, you know and I know that their work was clever trickery, and, being new, fooled some of the cleverest conjurers. I believe that Mr. Houdini and I are the only two persons who ever knew the real secret of the Davenport rope tie.

Your article from beginning to end bristles with facts, and is most entertaining, as well as instructive.

Allow me to congratulate you and also to thank you heartily. Yours sincerely,
HARRY KELLAR.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

Edward Andre, 276 Dartmouth street, New Bedford, Mass.: I don't know the name of the manager of the Rush Ling Toy act, but I believe that Rush Ling Toy is now working under the name of the Great Lafollette. Send a letter to him in care of The Billboard and it will surely eventually reach him. In fact, you can find anybody thru The Billboard mail box.

A. T. H. Dempsey, manager The Great Blackstone Company: So glad to hear of your success. Send me any notes or news at any time. Many thanks.

This generation has never seen a stage setting with dazzling apparatus, and the first magician who will imitate the stage settings of John Henry Anderson, the Wizard of the North, or Phillippe, or, in fact, any of the old-time magicians, will undoubtedly be a success.

Now is a fine opportunity for some performer to do the inexhaustible hat trick—a la the late Hartz. He was a great artist, and made a whole act out of his hat production.

Burr McIntosh is a very clever amateur card trickster, and delights to entertain friends at the club.

Pinetti was the greatest magician who ever lived. He died in Russia in 1800, aged 50 years.

Harry Houdini at one time was assistant to Marco, the Magician, who sold Horace Goldin his first illusion, Madame Sans Gene, which Goldin redressed and made a sensation.

Houdini is receiving offers from all over the country, from parks, etc., for his vanishing elephant trick. He has greatly improved the trick at the Hippodrome since the first performance. He is now figuring on using six elephants, disappearing one after the other in rapid succession. A big illusion show for any outdoor amusement enterprise is going to get a lot of money this season.

Do you know that The Billboard is the first trade paper that ever gave magic and magicians any consideration at all? And when you stop to think that it has a larger circulation than any amusement journal in America you will appreciate to some extent the great amount of publicity that magic is getting.

The Great Blackstone makes a suggestion that this column would prove a great field for an exchange of successful ideas. Well, here's an invitation to all of you friends to start this going.

Harry L. Lutz, Frederick John Wieman, Charles Nagel and Bert Kalmar have applied for membership in the Society of American Magicians. Everyone who is qualified should join this wonderful organization at once. It is a society without a parallel in the history of the world. Oscar S. Teale, 240 Broadway, New York, is the secretary.

Charles J. Carter, who is the smiling presiding genius of the magic emporium of Martinka & Co. at 493 Sixth avenue, New York, reports that his business is increasing by leaps and bounds. He says everybody seems interested in magic now.

The Sharrocks, the mindreading wizards, now in Over the Top, are to tour the Orpheum Circuit.

Madam Alba, in mental telepathy and thought transference, under the management of Harry S. Stevens, has created a new field for entertainers. They are playing a circuit of McCreary's 5 and 10-cent stores.

Owing to the serious delay that artists are experiencing in getting their baggage in these days a suggestion has been made for magicians to train their ducks and geese to walk and their birds to fly to the next town.

Charles T. Aldrich, of burlesque magic and quick change fame, is a big hit in Fred Stone's Jack o' Lantern at the Globe Theater, New York.

The Great Blackstone, the clever magician, while playing an engagement lately at the Mishler Theater, Altoona, Pa., had a funny experience. He had just started to work a "load" on a lanky individual down front in the audience and had pulled out of the party's coat some baby clothes and a large rabbit when the excited wife of the farmer rushed down the aisle to the rescue of her embarrassed mate, and, hastily lifting his coattail, extracted the farmer's pocketbook, and, holding it aloft, exclaimed: "Here's something you didn't get."

Now that the theaters are dark on Tuesdays it will be all O. K. for the magicians who do black art. Paul Kleist, take notice.

Editor Magic and Magicians.

Dear Sir—Can you give me a formula for the production of invisible ink?—GENE MILTON, Buffalo, N. Y.

So-called "invisible" ink can be made in different ways—a solution of chloride of cobalt will answer the purpose for you. By using this as ink the color is so slight that it is practically colorless, and leaves no clue or trace when dry. On applying heat to the paper by holding near gas jet or lamp, the letters appear in a bluish green which, however, will vanish in a few moments. You could also use acetate of cobalt.

The Great Leon was at Keith's Theater, Louisville, Ky., last week with his spectacular magical offering.

Charles Dillingham, who has made such a wonderful success of the New York Hippodrome, is a very clever sleight-of-hand performer, his card tricks being exceptionally brilliant.

The Chicago Show Sales Co., having had so many inquiries for illusions, etc., is contemplating manufacturing them for the coming park and fair season, and they have several new ideas in mind. Parks this year will undoubtedly enjoy unparalleled prosperity, and nothing will appeal to the public more than a real illusion show. The spring number of The Billboard will have lots to say about the park mystery show.

SAYOLOGIES FROM CHAS. ANDRESS, THE OLDEST LIVING MAGICIAN IN "HARNESS"

A magician is supposed to do just what he doesn't do at all, and, to be successful, he must do it so nicely that he almost thinks himself that it was really done.

Magic to the eye is what ventriloquism is to the ear—deception. There is absolutely no such thing as throwing the voice. Ventriloquism is merely a fine modification of tone produced in such a way that it appears to go. For instance, a ventriloquist can throw his voice across the street to some one walking there and make it appear that there was some one beside the pedestrian, but the sound to him might appear in some opposite direction, while to those near the ventriloquist, and knowing also that the ventriloquist is apparently throwing his voice across the street to the man walking there, the effect would be as desired, but the man across the street would not so conceive it. Of course there is a vast difference of opinion as to what real ventriloquism really is, and to hear some people tell of their experience is funny in the extreme. I have never considered myself a great ventriloquist, altho my beginning in show business was as a boy ventriloquist and mimicer at the age of 8, and traveled with Capt. Thomas, the magician, and have always included mimicry and ventriloquism in my repertoire. A rather funny incident occurred during my ventriloquial act some years ago. Among the figures I used was a small baby, which I placed in a willow basket with the line-up, which all thru the act would lift up its hand and feet and cry, greatly to the annoyance of the other figures, and finally wound up by throwing it outdoors thru a prop. window, when it could be heard faintly, apparently from the outside, etc. On one occasion there was a mother sitting about half way back in the dress circle with an "honest-to-God baby," and just after I had thrown the baby out of the window and was returning to resume the finish of the act this baby in the audience began to cry, and the figures began to make more remarks, which soon had the audience going, and the lady, thru embarrassment, and, no doubt, respect for those who wished not to be annoyed got up and went out, with the baby crying lustily until her exit. I thought no more of the incident until the next morning, when the press mentioned it as a wonderful stunt in ventriloquism and that the lady in the audience was a confederate with a prop. baby, and it was the talk of the town during the balance of the week, and I never let on but what it was as they thought, but I did not do any more ventriloquism until I put the additional stunt on with a lady whom I taught to give the imitation, and for several years it worked wonderfully. Try it, some of you younger ventriloquists, and it will be a valuable addition to your act and entirely new to the present amusement seekers. All I ask is to give me the credit of imparting it to you thru Magic and Magicians.

Queen Darrell. Harts and Evans, eccentric and soft-shoe dancers, are the principal vaudeville feature. This act just completed a tour over the W. V. M. A. Time. The Harmony Four, male quartet, and the O'Shea Sisters, singers and dancers. The scenic equipment, which is one of the bright spots of this show, has been augmented by the addition of ten new sets. One of the novelty hits of the show is an aeroplane, of full size, which is made to fly over the audience. Miss Liberty, a sparkling musical comedy, is the show's present offering. At the conclusion of the Fort Dodge engagement the company will make a tour of the Barbour Circuit, taking in the Southwest territory. The executive staff consists of Streeter and Weston, proprietors and managers; Blanche Bryan, treasurer; Dave Weston, business manager; Morris B. Streeter, producer and stage director; Harold Donaldson, stage manager; Peggy Rheiner, musical director; Warren Rheiner, drums and traps.

Ralph B. Tompkins has his one-legged dancing act all ready to take to New York when he had the bad luck to fall and hurt his foot. He is now making the rounds of the W. T. Grant Company stores in Louisville, doing song demonstrating. He will give up the vaudeville stage for a year, and go over the entire circuit of the Grant stores, singing his own original songs. Won't You Be a Friend of Mine was sung by Miss Mildred Austin of the Mildred Austin Musical Comedy Company, and it went big. He has Miss Austin's testimony for it.

The Swede From Billings, which is being presented by Cronk, Lennan and Henrick thru Minnesota, is reported to be cleaning up in that territory. The managers are showmen of the old school—no wonder the show is successful.

Paul Zallee's Kentucky Belles Company, after playing a few weeks for States Booking Exchange, returned to the Barbour Time. Business has been excellent for The Kentucky Belles this season, and the show is now playing all return dates. Burke Sisters are a new addition to the show, and are proving a big draw. There is real money in Oklahoma for real shows, writes Mr. Zallee.

The Walzer & Walzer Fun Ten Girls Company, of which Roy Walzer is manager, has just inaugurated a tour of the Gus Sun Time.

"The Million Dollar Dolls left a million laughs in Knoxville" is the verdict of a Knoxville paper on the company's performance in that city. Lep Meyer in particular made a favorable impression on the audience, and his delineation of the role of Jasper Jackson, the blackface, was considered the big hit of the evening. Miss Marshall, as the Million Dollar Doll, was a close second, while the musical honors went to the Million Dollar Quartet.

Lew Goetz's Ship-Ahoy Girls commenced a two weeks' engagement at the Camp Theater, Camp Green, Charlotte, N. C., week of January 28. Hank Miller, comedian, closed with the show January 19, and was replaced by Rube Freeman. Manager Goetz reports that the show is now going as smoothly as ever, and all are enjoying good health.

H. L. Pepper, late of the Don Nichols' Nephews and Nieces of Uncle Sam Company, after inserting an advertisement in The Billboard, was swamped with offers, according to his own statement, and has gone to join the Allen Fort Company, which is now playing a stock engagement at Evansville, Ind. He wishes to acknowledge offers from the following people, and thanks them, viz.: Lyons' American Maids, DeWolf's Funmakers, Maude Hamilton, Ray Rush, Ed Mernereau and C. A. Forth.

An entertainment for the soldiers of Fort Riley and Camp Funston was given at the community house, Junction City, Kan., by professionals playing that city. Those taking part were Cyril Smith, formerly straight man with the Patsy Gibson Company, who gave his recital of Character Songs; Miss Ona LeClaire of the Some Babies Company and Miss Maude Hall, soprano. The bill was a good one, and the soldiers gave evident approval of their enjoyment of the program in the shape of round after round of applause.

VISIONS FROM VIN

Rumors have it that Fox Reilly's Globe Trotters have ceased to trot. Somewhere in Wisconsin the report started, and if true the more is to be regretted.

Fuelless Tuesdays for the theaters, with fuelless Mondays for the business world, prove to be a bonanza for the vaudeville house managers. Monday being practically a holiday the theaters, tab. houses in particular, run extra shows, and do capacity business.

Who will be the first to advertise for people and state "no day out of salary?" Doubtless such parties will be swamped with applicants. Many shows are paying full salaries, tho, which certainly shows a generous spirit on the part of the company manager. Perhaps many house managers are doing likewise. Why not give a little publicity to those who are doing their bit?

T. Wayne Wilson, who recently closed a long season with Streeter's Land of Joy Girls Company, is taking out a tab., and, with his practical experience in all branches of the profession, it should be a successful venture. Here's hoping he duplicates his last engagement.

The Broadway Maids and The American Maids, both owned and controlled by G. A. Lyons, are enjoying a prosperous run on the Liberty Circuit out of Pittsburg. Both shows are receiving very complimentary reports.

Hal Hoyt has his troupe playing return dates already, and he has been out less than 25 weeks this season. This surely ought to speak well enough for the quality of his attraction, which is playing on the Gus Sun Circuit.

Mary Young, a member of Halton Powell's Hello Girls Company, was recently married in the Quaker City. Her off-stage name now is Mrs. Richard J. Kelly, and her hubby, it is stated, is employed in some branch of Uncle Sam's war service. Before joining The Hello Girls this young lady was one of the prime favorites at the Cadillac in Detroit.

There is a certain tab. manager who is reported to be using very unfair methods. This particular manager (?) is said to have been intercepting offers made one of his chorus girls, who had given her two weeks' notice, by other companies. The young lady in question worked out her two weeks' notice, and remained on the show a week and three days to help out, and for her kindness she was compelled to go to the Mayor of the town for her money. After that said manager (?) wrote a very nasty letter to another manager, who had wired the young lady an offer to join, calling his attention to the fact that it was very unprofessional to steal girls from another show. If there isn't, there should be, a law to prevent such dirty work.

Roy Cross, the Quaker City agent, is holding his own with a promising circuit, and it is claimed that several A 1 tabs. are more than getting their there in his territory. Quite a few tabs. break their jump to and from the South by filling in a few weeks on this circuit.

Editorial Comment

Advocates of Government Ownership of Railroads received a crushing blow to their hopes last week when Director-General of Railroads W. G. McAdoo gave out the information that he was not in favor of Government Ownership.

When full reports of his testimony before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee were made public, however, a great feeling of relief swept the country.

Mr. McAdoo was afraid of the influence of the effect that political dogma might have had in deterring Congress from promptly enacting the railroad control bill.

"Government Ownership," as it has long been conceived—and as it is still understood by many men in Congress—is a bogy.

It was against this bogy that Mr. McAdoo went on record, and he very probably did that in the interest of expediency.

He has urgent need of legislation.

Congress moves slowly.

It moves very slowly when it is suspicious or distrustful.

It distrusts all measures that are likely to even pave the way for Government Ownership.

What is more natural than that Mr. McAdoo should be willing to let Government Ownership go by the board if his renunciation will facilitate and clear the way for the railroad control bill?

What Mr McAdoo really said was:

"I don't believe, and I am told the Senate Committee, that the public will ever be satisfied to go back to the competitive system. In any case it will be almost impossible to restore the old competitive system. A larger measure of Federal control will have to be worked out. I am personally in favor of working out this larger measure of Federal control along present lines—the present lines of Federal control.

"I feel very sure then is the situation and what is bound to come out of it.

"The problem must, of course, be recognized by Congress—the facts faced squarely just as they stand. Incalculable harm may be done if Congress shies away from the proposition under the misconception that it is merely dogma and not a hard, cold situation. Who can calculate the harm done in 1914 when Congress filibustered to death the Shipping Bill because they were afraid it meant Government ownership of the merchant marine?

"If some members of Congress at that time had not been afraid of dogma we would now have enough ships. A thing was done that in my opinion absolutely imperils today the American nation, and perhaps the future of civilization.

"A SIMILAR BLUNDER IS POSSIBLE IN DEALING WITH THE RAILROADS.

"Suppose in the next two or three years of the war the Government spends, as in all likelihood it must do, a billion and a half dollars on the railroads. To tie our hands with a date, even an approximate date, for the return of the railroads would jeopardize not only the securities of the railroads, aggregating $18,000,000,000. But the public credit itself. Such a provision in any railroad bill would make it necessary for the Government to liquidate with the railroads before the specified date. The prospect there for placing the public interest in jeopardy would be very seriously considered by Congress.

"So I say Congress must not hesitate to do what is necessary because some other issue may arise later."

Great men change their minds. Fools never do.

Mr. McAdoo is a great man.

He may change his mind.

Anyone reading the above excerpt from his statement to the Senate Committee is very likely to conclude that he probably will, especially when these additional quotations from his examination which followed is considered, viz.:

Senator Cummins: "Do you mean, Mr. Secretary, to advocate the proposal that our railways should be put in the hands of any man, I care not whether he is President or otherwise, with an unlimited, unrestrained authority to fix the rates and the practices which should be observed by the carriers, without any standard prescribed by the law as to such rates or practices?"

Secretary McAdoo: "No, I do not advocate that."

Senator Cummins. "Well, that would be the effect of continuing this control after the war ended, would it not?"

Secretary McAdoo: "I am perfectly willing to see that done until Congress works out the new status, and I think it is better that it should be done."

Senator Smith: "I want to ask you this question, because I know this is going to be the battleground for getting this bill thru. You spoke a moment ago of conditions that might arise that might make it necessary for the President to continue his control.

"Why should it not be just as compatible for Congress when those conditions arise to pass a simple resolution, and then we may have our hands tied, rather than now."

Secretary McAdoo: "But suppose at the time Congress is not in session; suppose that the necessity for acting arose when you could not act, or suppose when you and your [illegible] pass a resolution extending it because there was a filibuster against it? Then, you see, the provision would automatically operate. What is the fear about this provision, is it Government ownership or the possibility of Government ownership?"

Senator Smith: "I think so, frankly I think so."

Secretary McAdoo: "All right, if that be the fear then tell me how you are going to prevent a consideration of Government ownership by putting a one-year limitation in the bill? The question will arise just the same, and you have got to confront it."

Senator Cummins. "That is not my theory; I will say that."

Secretary McAdoo: "May I be permitted to make this observation, with all due respect to you, on this question of Government ownership? Why should we allow any specter of that sort to influence action that may be manifestly wise at this time? We must act in the situation from the standpoint of what is wise and what is the sound thing to do. May I say that while we are talking today we are having an investigation, I believe as to why we have not got ships. The reason we have not got ships is because a number of thoroly well-intentioned gentlemen in the Congress of the United States, for fear of Government ownership, filibustered a shipping bill which was introduced in September, 1914, to enable the Government to begin then to build an American merchant marine."

Senator Kellogg: "What has resulted from the action in the last six months?"

Secretary McAdoo: "The fact is we did not start in time and Congress did not give permission in time to begin to build up the shipyards. We are again confronted here with the specter of Government ownership. We should do something that is demanded in the interests of the nation, and for my part I say that such specters ought not to determine our action."

But whether the attitude of Mr. McAdoo does or does not change all showfolks should labor tirelessly now to create sentiment favorable toward Government Ownership.

Transportation is the most vital necessity of the business.

Rates are already prohibitive to many kinds of shows. Under private ownership in a very few years they will be to all classes.

Government Ownership is the only remedy.

Readers' Column

Linda Julian, Greenview, Ill.—Carlton Fancer did not give this information, but wrote The Billboard asking for it. So it was our mistake in saying that W. W. Cole's New York and New Orleans Circus and Menagerie was the first show to cross the continent. What we meant to say was that this show was the first one to cross the continent entirely by rail. (Linda Julian states that Dan Costello went to California in 1869 and was the first to cross the continent with a show. This statement, she avers, can be corroborated by several members of the Lowande Family, who are still alive and who were with the show, viz.: Martinho Lowande, Sr.; Clarinda Parsons, Abelardo Lowande and Papa Lowande. Can any of the oldtimers name a circus which crossed before the Costello Show?)

Would like to locate Marie Wayne. When last heard of she had closed with the Barkoot Shows at Lima, O. Will anyone knowing her whereabouts please advise me?—C. W. McClure, care New Victoria, Norfolk, Va.

James Munsee—Goldwyn's forthcoming motion picture, Our Little Wife, starring Madge Kennedy, is an adaptation of Avery Hopwood's stage play of the same name. Margaret Illington had the titular role in the first presentation of the play at the Harris Theater, New York, November 18, 1916. Lowell Sherman and Walter Jones also had prominent parts in the piece. Selwyn & Company made the production.

Marie (Mrs. M. Hardwick, violiniste and pianiste)—Please write Ethel at once. Important news.

John Albert, care J. W. Geen Tailoring Co., Owensboro, Ky., would very much appreciate receiving information concerning the whereabouts of Miss Evelyn Moor or Cora Belle Paxton (she is known by both names), who was last heard of with a carnival show.

J. T. Brown is laid up at Cleveland, O., with a paralytic stroke and would like to hear from his wife, Marie Brown; also from C. Sidel, who was leader of Arcadia Theater Orchestra, Indianapolis, Ind., when Brown was manager of that house. He can be addressed in care of Tom Cullen, 2102 E. Twenty-second street, Cleveland.

Nell Carlton—Where are you? Communicate with me by wire at my expense immediately. Have news of the utmost importance for you.—Kenneth L. Eagon, care The News-Scimitar, Memphis, Tenn.

Mrs. Ben Fullington would like to have Ted Strong write her at once, personal business. Can be addressed in care The Billboard.

Ethel Denham, Concord, N. H.—Samuel Dana Drane portrayed Abraham Lincoln in William N. Selig's photoplay, The Crisis. Mr. Drane is no longer living, having passed away at New York City August 25, 1916.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of Josie Collins please communicate with R. N., Room 1305, 220 Broadway, New York City.

Artie Mills—Please communicate with your sister immediately.

Shirley Rodner, Huntington, W. Va.—Only on rare occasions does De Wolf Hopper recite the poem, Casey at the Bat, and he does not include it as part of his repertoire. It is hardly likely that he will be seen in Cincinnati this season.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of Frank Worden, the crippled man, please notify Mrs. Anna Worden, General Delivery, Lawton, Ok.

Information concerning the whereabouts of Kathleen Pope will be appreciated by C. E. Dobel, 437 Maple street, Jeffersonville, Ind. Miss Pope was in the ballet of the Ringling Bros.' Circus in 1916, and, before that, did a [illegible] turn at the New York Hippodrome.

Ed (Dad) Courtright and Frank Crocke—Mike Ziegler would like to hear from you. His address is 219 W. 140th street, New York City.

C. E. Dobel, 437 Maple street, Jeffersonville, Ind., will be greatly obliged to anyone who will give him information as to the whereabouts of Fred Ellis, trombone player, and Charles Loveless, saxophone player, both of whom were with the Barnum & Bailey Circus Band when it was conducted by the late Carl Clair.

Mrs. J. Harrington, 316 Western avenue, Moundsville, W. Va., is very anxious concerning the well being of her daughter, Mary Harrington, known professionally as Betty Lane. Miss Harrington joined De Wolf's Laugh Promoters October 31, and wrote to her mother regularly until December 29. Since that date Mrs. Harrington has heard nothing from her daughter. Anyone possessing information concerning the present whereabouts of Mary Harrington or Betty Lane will be conferring a great favor by getting in touch with Mrs. Harrington at the above address immediately.

Pelham Montrose—Arnold Daly did appear in a characterization of Napoleon once before. That was in George Bernard Shaw's play, Arms and the Man, and then place under the eye of Shaw himself at the Charles Wyndham's theater in London in 1911. Josephine, in which Mr. Daly will again essay the part of Napoleon, will have its premiere tonight (January 28). The play is by Hermann Bahr.

C. A. B., Chinook, Mont.—The Iroquois Theater, Chicago, burned Wednesday afternoon, December 30, 1903. The theater was opened for the first time to the public on November 23 of the same year with Klaw & Erlanger's attraction, Mr. Bluebeard, in which Eddie Foy was starred, and the same piece held the boards at the time of the fire.

MINSTREL NOTES

Dan White is now director of the Lowery Minstrel Orchestra in place of S. B. Foster. Clarence Powell has been made stage manager in lieu of Ed Tolliver. Mr. Powell is heavily featured with this show, and is adding new laurels to his reputation daily. The same can be said of Frank Kirk, the musical wonder of minstrelsy. The Lowery Minstrels is receiving flattering press notices daily, and is more than making good with managers and patrons everywhere. Prompt pay, good treatment, good food and appreciation seems to enable Owner R. M. Harvey to hold his exceptional company together. The company members understand that the rule regarding excessive boozing will not be tolerated, and that the Lowery Greater Minstrels will be a sober aggregation, a credit to every member of the company, and to the minstrel business itself. The result is this company aside from its minstrel ability is making a reputation at every stand as to the excellent conduct and cleanliness and neat appearance of the company.

Al Lang, owner of the Dandy Dixie Minstrels, is a visitor to Chicago. He is preparing for the coming season by purchasing needed articles for his outfit and which he is sending by express to Tampa, Fla., his headquarters for the winter.

TEA WITH THE LADIES

New York, Jan. 26.—Ten months from Broadway! Olive Thomas, here for her first vacation since entering the film world, insists that she will never again remain away from New York for ten months, altho after three weeks in the East she is ready to go back to the Coast to work—and rest. She needs the rest, she says, for every moment of every day since she has been here has been completely occupied from about noon until 2 o'clock or so the following morning.

She was expected back at the California studio January 15, but because of her mother's illness and because her husband, Jack Pickford, was trying to get into the American aviation section, she remained to the end of this week. An interview with the Triangle star was a thing to be achieved, and, when it was accomplished at luncheon at the Claridge one day this week, it was easy to understand why she liked to be in New York. She was welcomed so cordially. Nearly everyone in the dining room seemed to know her, and people who hadn't seen her since she was playing at the New Amsterdam Theater stopped at her table to inquire when she was coming back to stay. But Miss Thomas has no intention of deserting the screen.

"I'm going to stay in the movies," she said, "but I'm coming back to New York afterwhile. Now I'm ready to get back to work and for two months I shall be quite happy out there in California. Then I shall want to see Broadway again. We've had a wonderful time. Parties every night until 3:30 or 4 o'clock, and shows—I've seen the Frolic three times. Really I haven't had time enough to sleep."

There was a big pile of letters, most of them asking for photographs, waiting for her, and Tuesday afternoon, when there was nothing theatrical open, her press agent persuaded her to keep an appointment with a photographer, and she was kept busy posing for new photographs from 2 until 5 o'clock. A film star's life isn't one of ease it would seem, whether on duty or on vacation. But vacation has this advantage. One may escape from rigid diet rules and end breakfast with French pastry if one chooses.

Pauline Frederick has perpetrated her first thriller. Imagine stately, artistic Pauline plunging from a cliff. As La Tosca, in her new picture, which has just been filmed at Fort Marion, near Jacksonville, when she finds life too burdensome to be endured, she ends it by jumping from a precipice. It was two days after ending the life of La Tosca that Miss Frederick regained a normal interest in life in general. But she is not daunted and intends to go right on doing stunts whenever realism demands it. One might remind her that art demands that she should not take such desperate chances, but no doubt her director will attend to that.

Wanted—A playwright! Madame Petrova says: "I'd go back to the stage soon if I could get a play I like. I've read many, but have been unable to find the right kind." Can't somebody conceive a regular play for Petrova?

A gift of 256 pocket knives from Mr. Fuller, of the New York Knife Company, was received this week by the Stage Women's War Relief, and one will be placed in each of the next 256 comfort kits prepared for soldiers in camp or over seas. The knives are especially fine and are worth two dollars apiece. The Stage Women are delighted with the gift, which Mr. Fuller says he will duplicate as soon as this lot is used up.

Among the other contributions to their work the organization has a lot of fur for fur helmets, the gift of the Gunther fur people, woolen cloth for wind-proof jackets from E. H. Van Ingen, a quantity of paper patterns from Jonathan Buckley, and large cases of long gloves, from Waldorf, Stern, Lord & Taylor, Franklin Simonds, McCreery & Altman.

The big subscription drive of the S. W. W. R. is a great success. Subscriptions are for specified amounts up to and including five dollars. The other day a man insisted on subscribing one hundred dollars. It was explained to him that it wasn't done. Five dollars was the amount of the highest subscription. But the man positively refused to take his money back. He approved too heartily of the work the stage women were doing. So now they have an open sheet on which is entered any subscription for more than the regular amounts. Al H. Woods' name is on this sheet opposite a subscription for fifty dollars.

Mrs. Louis De Foe, the critic's wife, has turned over her sewing class for professional children to Mrs. R. B. Lyman, because her war work takes so much of her time. The kiddies meet at the Rehearsal Club once a week to make layettes for the children of Northern France. When they have attained a certain degree of efficiency they are allowed to work occasionally at the S. W. W. R. workrooms at 366 Fifth avenue.

Anticipating the fashions of New York and Paris for screen players provides a new occupation for women. Miss Alphoretta Hoffman, a New York costume designer, was engaged by the Lasky-Hollywood studio to create for the principal players frocks that would be ultra-fashionable at least six months later. The problem of finding pictures three thousand miles from the fashion marts and from four to six months before being shown on the screen made it imperative that their costume designer should be able to outguess the modistes.

Twice a year Miss Hoffman is sent to New York, not only to study the latest modes, but to buy materials, thousands of dollars' worth of materials from the looms. Then the gowns are made by a large staff of dressmakers from Miss Hoffman's designs.

Besides looking into the future for secrets that designers would never voluntarily divulge in advance, this fashion expert must frequently delve into the past to supply costumes for a picture of yesteryear. The costumes used in DeMille's productions, Joan, the Woman, and The Woman God Forgot, were designed by Miss Hoffman and were so historically accurate that a number of museums have asked the Lasky Company for the contribution of certain articles of dress for display in the historical archives.

Movie plants lined up with the industries in closing for the five-day lay-off, and, in consequence, all the movie people had an unexpected holiday

Marguerite Clark, who is working in Prunella at the Fort Lee studio, visited in Philadelphia for the week-end.

Nazimova is back in New York from Florida, where, as a Gypsy girl in her new Metro picture, in the shade of an orange grove and oblivious to the ice-grip on New York, she has been learning to read. Madame Nazimova describes her experiences with an alphabet printed on big blocks of wood in this coldless school as one of her most pleasant recollections of the South. The oranges were ripe at the time and the pungent odor of the leaves and the few late blossoms attracted bright green birds in great number and variety. It was the season, too, of pecan nuts, and the ground was carpeted so thickly with nuts that the players scooped them up by the handfuls. The star and her company were six weeks at St. Augustine filming scenes in the groves of a private estate and at the ancient Spanish fort, Saint Marco.

The dancers of Denishawn are participating in Blackton's production of Wild Youth for Paramount. The theme of the dance, as of the picture, is the inability of May to mate with December, and the triumph of youth and love.

KATHERINE RUSSELL BLEECKER

Miss Bleecker, well known in film circles, is acquitting herself creditably as manager of Carl Laemmle's Broadway Theater, New York. She is the first and only woman picture theater manager in New York, and has introduced some of her own ideas, which have met with considerable success.

PRESS-ADVANCE AGENTS

WHO AM I?

I do much good.
I am an asset to you.
I have made friends and followers for the company.
I am a universal role; in fact, I have become a habit.
I help you to hold your job.
I am everywhere.
Great men have written books about me.
I am contagious.
Without me no business can be truly successful.
I am one of your good friends.
I gain much and lose nothing.
I am a habit well worth acquiring.
I am on equal footing with kindness.
I am COURTESY.—John C. Bloesenberger.

The above is not the kind of courtesy meant when a pair of ducats is extended to a "gimme" guy, but nevertheless is a necessary asset to publicity pushers.

C. W. Chubb, formerly of Advance Car No. 1, Ringling Bros., and now with the Allen Feature Film Company, was registered at the New Harper House, Rock Island, Ill., recently. So was Harry E. Crandell, who says it is some hostelry.

Bill Roddy of Kansas was a farmer until he became a press agent. Bill is big and strong and possesses the Kansas "go to it" spirit. Some months ago he decided to get into the army. Bill went to Washington and tried to see the man in charge of the work of sending equipment to the soldiers in France. He was denied an audience again and again, but Bill persisted. Finally they let him into the man's presence.

"Say, friend," said Bill, "I understand you're shipping mules to France?"

"Yes, sir; that is true," came the reply.

"Well," returned Bill, "I'm from Kansas. I can load more mules in an hour than all those guys working for you can in a day. I know mules."

The man was impressed. He took Bill to the loading place, and Bill handled the mules like a veteran. Today Bill is a Captain in the Army.—N. Y. Evening World.

Leo Parvin is in San Francisco, also Ben Krause, who sent this news via the postcard route last week.

L. M. Crawford, the K & E. of Kansas, now over three score and ten, has become a devotee of ranch life. Aside from having deeds to 50,000 acres of soil and owning about 600 head of whitefaced cattle L. M. six years ago conceived the idea of raising Karakule sheep. His original intention, it is said, was to introduce his sheep furs to America by presenting to all press agents and company managers stepping off at Topeka sufficient lamb skins for a snug-fitting winter cap, thus making the name of Crawford famous as a benefactor as well as a Kansas showman, but Kansas has had a scarcity of shows and the above mode of publicity proved rather ineffective. This season L. M. simply invites the itinerant agent and company manager to his show rooms, where he delivers a lecture on his pelt, and, incidentally, quotes the price.

A fellow the other night in demanding a passout check said: "Gimme a back comein ticket."

Elmer J. Walters says when Schlitz named their latest nonalcoholic beverage Famo—taken from their well-known line, "the beer that made Milwaukee famous"—why did they break the same so as to omit U. S.?

Melville Stoltz, who was sent by the Shuberts to St. Louis about eight years ago to handle their interests in the Mound City, held a joint berth beginning two years ago when K. and E. subleased from the Shuberts the Jefferson Theater and "Mel" proudly represented both firms until the recent mixup. It was understood Stoltz was to flop to K. & E. and manage the American Theater at St. Louis, recently acquired by K. & E., and after removing his personal property from his cherry colored desk in the Jefferson preparatory to taking up new quarters at the American both K. & E. and the Shuberts disclaimed any connection with the Jefferson, and thereby Mel was in a quandary for a time as to what to do with the keys. A colored usher girl asked for whom she was working and Mel answered: "Blamed if I know. I don't even know just who is entitled to the box-office statements this week."

Elmer J. Walters says the war tax on theater tickets has done away with the manager who used to take a special delight after doors opened of showing his authority by holding up two fingers and saying: "All right."

CONSERVATION CALENDAR

Monday, we'll say is our "Heatless Day,"
One cinder, one flicker, one coal.
Tuesday, well, this is our "Meatless Day,"
One oyster, one herring, one sole.
Wednesday, oh, this is our "Wheatless Day,"
One corn cake, one dodger, one pone.
Thursday, we must have a "Sweetless Day,"
One pickle, one lemon, one bone.
Friday will make a good "Eatless Day,"
One cheerful and glorious fast.
Saturday call it a "Treatless Day,"
For all reciprocities past.
But Sunday, may Hoover forgive us, we pray,
If we should all happen to feel
A little more hungry than usual today
And once again eat a square meal.

Johnny, Get Your Gun, left Chicago before the last big storm and spent Christmas in St. Louis, New Year's in Kansas City and Lincoln's Birthday will be spent in Los Angeles. Elmer J. Georgia Railroad Commission Will Hear Case in Reference to Movement of Show Cars—Showmen Urged To Get Busy

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 26.—The question of transportation of special trains and private cars for amusements was taken up by the Georgia Railroad Commission here Thursday.

The amusement interests were represented by Attorney Hugh B. Cobb and Dr. Horace Grant, representing The Billboard, who asked for a postponement till March to give the showmen an opportunity to petition against the drastic measures asked by the railroads. The representatives of the railroads fought against this, stating that their petitions had been on file nineteen days, in accordance with the law. Attorney Cobb replied that the only intimation the showmen had was an article which appeared in The Billboard. Finally Chairman Candler Murphy granted a postponement until February 21.

Attorney Cobb received a number of telegrams and letters from showmen asking him to represent them. Among those heard from are Al G. Field, W. I. Swain, J. C. O'Brien, Smith's Greater Shows and J. Stanley Roberts.

Attorney Ernie Adamson, who was to represent the showmen, was in Washington, D. C., and wired his partner, Attorney Cobb, to appear before the Commission.

Attorney Cobb makes a special request that The Billboard urge all showmen in every section of the United States to write him at once, and he will send them a petition to sign. This is important, as a Georgia decision will have its effect in other States. Address Hugh B. Cobb, 828 Grant Building, Atlanta, Ga. The local representative of The Billboard will assist Mr. Cobb and the showmen in securing equitable transportation.

ENOS & PARKER SHOW

The Enos & Parker Show is the title of a new troupe recently organized by Rue Enos and Mr. Parker, both of whom were with the Cole Bros.' Circus last season. The show inaugurated its tour at Mansfield, La., January 10, and has lost only two days since. It is transported by an automobile truck, and is headed for California, where another truck will be added. The show plays anything from town halls up, and business has been pretty good in spite of adverse weather conditions. On account of encountering some bad roads Leesville, La., was canceled. The troupe eats and sleeps in hotels, but as soon as the weather moderates will carry a cookhouse. The show left Louisiana January 23 and entered Texas.

AL G. BARNES IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Al G. Barnes, of the Al G. Barnes Circus, was one of the visitors at the Chicago office of Billyboy last week. He came East on business connected with the circus, and has returned to his winter quarters at Venice, Cal.

William K. Peck, general agent and railroad contractor, accompanied Mr. Barnes on the trip. Both are very optimistic about next season, and look for a prosperous year for shows.

TROUPERS IN NORFOLK

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 26.—Norfolk this winter houses quite a few troupers. Jas Leonard, who last season was in the advance of the Barnum & Bailey Show, is manager of the Palace Theater for the winter, and has secured a cozy berth for the frigid months. L. L. Roe, who was with the 101 Ranch and the Ringling Brothers' advance forces, has left for camp in Washington. He has joined the camouflage corps of the Engineers' Department, and has been assigned to service in the company headed by Sculptor St. Gaudens.

F. W. Harrell, general advertising agent of the Barnum & Bailey Show, whose home is in Edenton, N. C., eighty miles south of this city, visits here frequently and finds time to talk red wagon stories.

James Gandis, who last season was on the No. 2 car of the Ringling Brothers' Circus, is also a winter resident here, while carnivaldom is well represented here by the employees of the Greater Sheesley Shows, which are wintering here and which are now ensconced in the building at Church and Main streets called the Hippodrome. Business at this latest place of amusement is brisk, and the performance offered is quite above the ordinary.

GOLDSBORO JOTTINGS

Goldsboro, N. C., Jan. 25.—The Barnum & Bailey Circus is going to launch the largest circus performance in the history of show business.

Charles Carroll has been visiting folks in New York, and is now in Baltimore, Md. He spent a few weeks with Joe Boyton, George Zamert and others. How is Forty-third and Broadway, Charles? Harry Clemings, please write.

Tom Hart writes that the "Corn Cob Cut-Ups" are going big on the Poli Time. He says when they played Bridgeport they could hardly do their act on account of so many friends visiting them back stage.

LEW GRAHAM

Mr. Graham, the widely known side show manager of the Ringling Bros.' Circus, is now in Chicago making preparations for the coming tour. He promises the strongest side show the Ringling Circus has ever carried.

Doc Pratt has joined the Aviation Corps, and is "somewhere in Texas."

Virgil Barnett and the McPhee Sisters, of the Yankee Robinson Circus, are passing the winter in Rock Island, Ill.

The murderer of Eddie Rounds, the clown, is still at large. Received a sad letter from Berthe Rounds, the widow, and she says she will get the murderer if it takes her a lifetime. The Rounds were well liked by all with the Barnum Show.

Irene Rursberger, who worked with the Baker Troupe bicycle act, is spending the winter in Washington, D. C. She writes the Baker Troupe will be bigger than ever when it opens with the Barnum Show in the spring. Tony Martin and Buck Baker are also in the nation's capital.

Captain White and wife are wintering in New York City. Give my best to Zip, Captain.

Charlotte Gear would like to hear from all her friends. Address her Newark, N. J. Do you ever hear from Tom Beckman, Charlotte?

Edith Gillett, G. Talbott and Mrs. Rose Wallace are busy in Bridgeport, Conn., getting the wardrobe in trim.

John Carson and wife are at Chester, Pa. John is connected with a steel company there.

The writer would like to hear from all of his friends in care of The Headlight, Goldsboro, N. C.—HERMAN JOSEPH.

PRODUCING CLOWN WEDS

Eddie Dorey, producing clown, was married to Mae Powers, nonprofessional, of Faribault, Minn., at Des Moines, Ia., January 19. Mr. Dorey has traveled with many circuses, including Gollmar Bros., Yankee Robinson and Patterson-Gollmar Bros. He is a member of the National Vaude. Artists and the Showmen's League of America. Their honeymoon will include a trip to Chicago and Kansas City.

The R. T. Richards Shows' winter quarters at Oak Ridge, N. J., are very lively these days, as everything is being put in shape for the coming season. The show will travel overland by motor trucks again. There will be several new trucks and a whole new layout of canvas. Paul Johanning is at the quarters breaking in several animals for the new animal acts. Captain Voigt is putting the elephants thru their stunts daily and adding many new tricks to the act. Walter Guice will soon be in quarters to put the ponies and horses thru their acts.

Bill Hackell will be ahead of the show again this season with a small army of billposters. The advance will have one large truck and three flivvers to do the billing.

Steve Lloyd has all of the baggage stock working for the Government, and is making all take notice with the four and six-horse teams.

RESIDENCE TO RED CROSS

ONCE UPON A TIME

Patiently awaiting
The storm's fury abating
And the zephyrs of spring to appear,
We're hoping and wishing—
While for a job we're fishing—
Something will loom full of luck and good cheer.

Edward Hayes, whose cafe and restaurant at 634 Sixth avenue, New York, is quite a hangout for the outdoor bunch, has joined the New York Branch of the Showmen's League.

Philena Burk, daughter of E. M. Burk, of Foley & Burk, carnival now of San Francisco, has joined Hospital Corps No. 47 and will see duty in France shortly.

Otto Floto, Henry Gentry and Frank P. Spellman were all in New York last week.

Josie DeMott, who is conducting a riding school for women down on Long Island, fetched a whole page in The New York Times Sunday Magazine January 20.

It has been a long, long time since a circus rider has received the mention in the public prints which is being accorded to dainty May Wirth.

The dailies are full of stories about her wonderful work, and the weeklies ring with her praises.

Day after day the wonderful publicity continues, and at this writing there is no sign of it abating.

Mr. McAdoo is the kind of man that does things. There is no doubt but that the railroads will be able to haul circus equipment long before April 1.

Bill W. Morgan, better known in the circus game as Judge Morgan, and Harry C. Chapman, two lifelong friends, had a real gabfest Sunday, January 20, at the judge's beautiful farm, one and a half miles from Ravenna, O. It was the first time they had met for some time. The big show was put up and taken down several times. The judge has one of the finest farms in Eastern Ohio, and says he has given up the white tops for good. After hearing the band play for many years and seeing everything both in this country and Europe he is going to pass his remaining years quietly down on the farm. He says raising cattle beats the show business forty ways. The latchstring is always out to all his trouping friends, and he would also like to have them write him in care of R. F. D. No. 4, Stop 14, Ravenna, O.

Billy Murray put in an appearance at The Billboard office, Cincinnati, last Thursday, en route to Detroit. He has been re-engaged as [illegible] on the side-show with Sells-Floto for the coming tour. Murray is anxious to know if Billy Scheale (now on The Denver Post) has paid any fines lately.

J. A. Deback, the comedy juggler, after closing a season of thirty-nine weeks with the Christy Hippodrome Show, is back in Wisconsin playing vaudeville.

Prof. John A. Jackson is still in San Francisco giving instructions in swimming at the Lurline Ocean Water Baths, Bush and Larkin streets.

The coming tour will make Harry Bernhardt's sixth season with the Yankee Robinson Circus. Harry is wintering in Minneapolis and says he had a pleasant visit with Mr. and Mrs. King, of King and Harvey, when they played the Orpheum Theater there a short time ago.

Harry C. Chapman is anxious to get in touch with Billy Andrews, the mule man, in care of The Billboard, Cincinnati.

Provost & Brown, oldtimers of the sawdust ring, are making good in big-time vaudeville. They have a very neat act.

During the week of January 14 Dr. J. W. Hartigan, Jr., spent two days at the Winter Garden, Pittsburg, where he interested a group of skating fans. Altho not scheduled to appear he won considerable praise, and we feel safe in saying that if Hartigan would devote his time to skating he would be one of the foremost figure and fancy skaters in the country.

Harry Robettas, while playing the Lyric Theater, Newark, O., dislocated his shoulder and the act in which he was appearing was obliged to cancel the rest of its bookings. The act will consist of three people (doing iron jaw and novelty wire) the coming season, and will be known as the Robettas Trio.

MAY OBJECTS

May Wirth, equestrienne at the Hippodrome, has asked the management to request William G. Stewart, who announces her act, to be more careful in framing his thoughts. Mr. Stewart has been opening his talk with:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I wait particular attention to the extraordinary feat of this little artist."—New York Evening World.

J. Maurice ("Jake") Tyree is back in his old home town, Lynchburg, Va., after closing with F. S. Wolcott's Minstrels. He is now assistant manager of the Academy of Music there, and would appreciate a few lines from his friends.

James Heron—What's this we hear about your leading a goat thru the streets of Detroit? Is that a new stunt for advertising The Tempters?

A. C. Williams, C. H. Carpenter and W. M. Allman have signed contracts with the Barnum & Bailey Circus as billers for the coming tour.

F. S. Reed, billposter on Advance Car No. 1 of the Jess Willard-Buffalo Bill Wild West last season, is connected with the Majestic Theater at Rumford, Me., where he would like to have friends write him.

BILLPOSTERS

WANTED FOR

RINGLING BROS.'

WORLD'S GREATEST SHOWS

Would like to hear from first-class billers who wish to travel this season under the very best possible working conditions and congenial surroundings. In addition to the regular Union wage scale we allow ONE DOLLAR and FIFTY CENTS to each man every day for meals. No contract hotels. No meals cooked or served on cars. A few of the men who were on the advance of this show last season are still to be heard from and are now invited to write.

Address

W. H. HORTON, - - 221 Institute Place, CHICAGO, ILLS.

According to The New York American of January 20 Alexander Carr, the famed "Mawruss" Perlmutter of Business Before Pleasure, the comedy scoring at the Eltinge Theater, began his career as a circus clown.

Sam Freed and Eddie Bell are writing the sheet and working still thru New York.

Eddie Arlington is having much success with his lectures at New Orleans and Havana.

The Upside-Down Millettes, of the B. & B. Show, are now touring Cuba with Pubillones' Circus. They expect to be back in time to open with the Barnum Show in the spring.

Jack LeClair, clown of the Ringling Bros.' Circus, is playing the W. V. M. A. Time with a comedy acrobatic act, called Trolley Car Duo. Jack says he doesn't expect to be found under the white tops this year, as he comes in the draft and has been placed in Class A.

Governor Brough of Nebraska, at the next meeting of the State Council of Defense, will suggest as a conservation measure, that a curtailment of circuses coming to the State each year be ordered, according to The Arkansas Gazette of Little Rock.

CIRCUS MEN AND METHODS

The following editorial, appearing in The Anaconda (Mont.) Standard, was sent in by E. S. Skinner, secretary of the Montana State Fair, Helena:

"While the war is no circus, it's not without certain features peculiar to the big tent, such as the grandiloquent talk of the Kaiser enacting the role of ringmaster and the clownish antics of the clown prince posing as a military genius. It is not these 'attractions,' however, that appeal to the professional instinct of the circus men of America who are enlisting for the war. They are tendering their services to Uncle Sam because they know he will find them valuable. If any set of men can solve the big problem of transportation it is these experts in the art of booking and routing. It is their desire to apply the efficient methods of the show business directly to the work of moving the country's supplies. They have no thought of superseding the railroad men—they wish to be a complement to them and round out their activities by giving them the benefit of their ripe experience as practical shippers who have shipped on a large scale under every sort of difficulty, discouragement and complication.

"A circus depends largely on its transportation experts for its success, for in touring across the continent the making of jumps from one town to another is essential. How important is this problem may best be judged by the fact that years ago when the Barnum & Bailey Circus visited Europe and toured the countries of that continent army officers were assigned to the circus in France to profit by their advice on the best means of transportation. Nor will the circus methods to be placed on the military roster be confined to the booking of transportation. The kitchen system of the big tops will also be transferred to the army cantonment, and men who have long traveled with the circuses and established the kitchens of the outdoor organizations will shortly be enlisted into the service of the country for the purpose of standardizing the kitchens at the army cantonments. These men, it is said, will make a tour of the camps and offer suggestions for the bringing of the kitchens up to the highest point of efficiency, as exemplified by the circus culinary departments, which have been declared to be the most efficient of any big body of men and women known.

"In the matter of transportation there is no class of people better qualified to deal with the situation. Their long years of close application to the work have familiarized them with the various roads of the country and the specific obstacles to be met and overcome at every point. In the popular acceptation of the term, a 'circus' is a travesty, but circus methods, make no mistake, are the stuff."

I. A. B. P. & B., NO. 28

Sioux City, Ia., Jan. 25.—Milo McIntyre, business agent of Local No. 28, International Alliance Billposters and Billers of America, reports that the local is in working good shape with a membership of seven A-1 billers and billposters, and two more eligible ones to be taken in at the next meeting. Local No. 28 has been reorganized from the old Local No. 26. William O'Brien is president, W. Burkhart vice-president, Roy Butler secretary-treasurer, Fred Webster corresponding secretary, Lou Frost sergeant-at-arms, Milo McIntyre business agent. Harold Fery is on the extra board. McIntyre can always be found at the Princess Theater, of which he is the agent. Webster is on his fourth season as agent at the Orpheum, and O'Brien and Burkhart are working for the Double Cross A-A Sioux City Billposting Advertising Company, with the assistance of Frost. Butler is stage carpenter at the Grand, which is now playing stock. Fery is working extra for the various theaters. Jack Carmody is still the shop manager and is busy these days wrecking and reconstructing with a crew of six carpenters and electrical workers.

I. A. B. P. & B., NO. 17

Boston, Mass., Jan. 26.—Local No. 17, of the International Alliance of Billposters and Billers of America, held its annual Concert and Ball recently at the Odd Fellows' Hall, and the affair proved a great success. Talent was secured from the various attractions in Boston at the time.

Boston has been selected by the International Alliance for its convention in December, 1918, at which Local No. 17 will outdo itself in the way of entertaining delegates and friends.

The following are the officers of Local No. 17: F. A. Johnson, president; D. F. Mensing, vice-president; A. T. Noonan, treasurer and financial secretary; C. T. Maney, business agent; J. Carey, sergeant-at-arms, and George Arnold, secretary.

SELLS-FLOTO CIRCUS

Parade Wagons Now in Painting Department—Frank Gentry General Superintendent of Work

Denver, Col., Jan. 25.—Great scenes of activity are in progress at the Sells-Floto Circus winter quarters, many workmen being busy in all departments, preparatory to the opening of the season. John Eberle, superintendent of quarters, announces that all of the parade wagons have left the repair shops at the quarters and are now in the painting department, where at least half of them have been newly decorated. This work is in charge of Fred Stewart and Dan Conway, both of whom have been with General Manager H. B. Gentry for many years. The wagons will all be in decorations of red, white and blue, with silver and gold trimmings. It is expected this work will be completed by the last of next month. The painters and repair men will then give their attention to the flats and stock cars, which are on the sidings near Overland Park.

Frank Gentry, brother of the general manager, is now general superintendent of all the work in progress, and he is having things move along rapidly. Henry Boucher has a new bunch of tricks which he is teaching to members of Monkeyland, and William Wells is putting thru several groups of Shetland ponies for their feature acts. Allen Suits, one of the harness makers with the shows last season, is located in Paris, Tex., for the winter. He says he will take to the road just as soon as the bluebirds begin warbling. William Barton has arrived here, and is now assistant to Charles Lucky at winter quarters.

General Manager Henry B. Gentry is in the East, where he has business connected with the Sells-Floto Circus. Charles Jackson, who was assistant to Trainer Churchill during last season, has enlisted in the army, and is stationed at the camp located near here. E. B. Bonney, who went to Osceola after the shows closed last season, is again at winter quarters, and will go out with the S.-F. again. G. W. Embleton is now located in Chicago, at 11924 Wentworth avenue. He is enjoying good health, and sends regards to all.

Rex Benna, who was to have been with the shows last season, but had to cancel at Wichita, Kan., on account of a badly sprained wrist, is rather lonesome in Kansas City, Mo., and would like to hear from friends, especially the joeys with the shows last season. Rex has not signed up as yet for the 1918 season, as he may become one of the Sammies ere long. He is now employed at the Baltimore Hotel in K. C. William Sobule, who was one of the reserved seat ticket sellers with the shows last season, is rapidly climbing in the theatrical managerial field in Denver. He is now assistant manager of the Empress, rising to that position from box-office duties two months ago. Meyers Schlom and E. W. Deck were at winter quarters a few days ago, where they partook of a hearty meal with John Mack, head of the culinary department, and as usual, Chef Edw. Brown had things cooked up in the best of style for his dozens of regular winter boarders.—EDDIE DECK.

MANY TENT SHOWS

To Tour California in Spring

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 26.—There is every indication that there will be a large number of tent shows in California in the spring, as news from the railroad offices indicate that several organizations have already made contracts for movements. Word received here recently indicates that among the circuses the Sells-Floto Show will make California in the spring and Al G. Barnes expects to jump thru en route to Canada, where General Agent W. K. Peck is at present making contracts. The Bernardi Greater Exposition Shows, wintering at Palo Alto, will start out from here; Foley & Burk, from Fruitvale, A. H. Hendler Shows and one Boucher Show from here, one Wortham Show, from Texas, will route its way thru here, and one now at Kent, Wash., will play pretty close to San Francisco from the North, in addition to the various small "tricks" which go out every season.

HONEST BILL SHOWS

The Honest Bill and Lucky Bill Shows have combined for the coming season, and in the words of Honest Bill himself, "Boys, we will have a real show, with a real menagerie and all the real trucks that look the part." The shows will open at Quenemo, Kan., April 6, and will tour the Eastern States. Albert G. Bassord will again handle the advance. W. H. Whitlatch will be 24-hour man.

In telling of the 1917 tour Honest Bill says: "To begin with we had a very wet time of it; then gradually the weather moderated until the first of June, when all was in our favor. We have been asked so many questions concerning our trucks and how they performed in the mud and sand that I would like to say a few words about them to Old Billyboy. In the first place we bought good trucks, took good care of them and were always able to make our stands, losing but one on the whole year. We toured the States of Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, Oklahoma and Texas last year and practically all dirt roads. In Nebraska and Southern Oklahoma we had lots of sand, but experienced very little difficulty in making our dates. All we have to do is give our trucks traction and we sure go. We have a fifty horse power motor at 900 revolutions, giving 36 horse power at the hind wheels after the power is transmitted thru the transmission and differential. Wheel base 172 inches, giving 14 feet loading space back of the seat, and 42-inch wheels, which give plenty of road clearance. Our trucks were made by the Kelly-Springfield Motor Truck Company, of Springfield, O., and they are right there when it comes to giving service, for that is what counts when it comes to running a motor show. We carried fifteen trailers for sleeping and five cages, three elephants, five camels, two zebras, seven lions and many other smaller animals. With all this I want to say now that 1917 saw the Honest Bill aggregation the first and only completely motorized circus in the United States well tried and found to be more than successful."

SHADOWGRAPHS

By CHAS. ANDRESS

Great Bend, Kan., Jan. 25.—I am still whiling away the evening hours (out here at Andressville) perusing the Christmas number of Billyboy. I am frequently found "burning the midnight oil," for there is an endless fund of matter to bring you close in touch with those who are dear to the craft. Wasn't Al G. Field's offering a dandy? I wish also to thank him for his kindly letter and views of Maple Villa. Jay Rial was right there with a good circus story, and Willard Coxey, the circus poet, certainly effused brilliantly, and—well, no use trying to enumerate them all, as it couldn't be done in the small space I am alloted.

I am to give a show in magic at Great Bend at the Regent Theater tomorrow (Saturday). It will be the first show of magic I have given here since my first trip thru Great Bend in 1874, 44 years ago, when I made my first trip to the Coast over the (then) new Santa Fe R. R. I showed in the old Court House (now being rebuilt), it being the only place that would hold any crowd.

I still have a letter, or contract, over the Santa Fe, allowing me to carry my performing birds, dogs and a trained rooster in the passenger coach and a two-thirds rate for four ten pin and 1,500 pounds of baggage. It couldn't be done now, even with Steve Wood, Ed Talbott or any other big timer.

Thanks, Harry Houtiere, for your kind expressions; also William McNally for McNally's Bulletin and G. F. Schulte, of Chicago, for his Talks on Tricks, as well as for Gilbert's Catalog, etc. I have found them not only interesting but really beneficial.

Ella Bradna—Do you remember when I entertained the B. & B. bunch out here at Andressville two years ago? When a little girl (Dorothy), three years old, stood in front of you looking at you with questioning eyes, and you spoke kindly to her and imparted a kiss, and to show her gratitude she ran off to the henhouse and brought you a freshly laid egg? When you again hugged and kissed and thanked her? Well, that same little girl is now by my side, and she just said to me: "Uncle Tarley, do you remember that lady who was out here and I dive her an egg and that night she frowed me a tiss in the circus when she was riding on dat nice hoss?" I remarked I did, and told her your name, and that you would read this letter I was writing. Then she said: "Dive and my love and a tiss."

Was grieved to read of the sudden departure of C. N. Thompson. There never was a more kindhearted or a truer friend or a more devoted husband and father, and I take this method of conveying to the bereaved widow my deepest sympathy.

Glad to hear from all friends at any time. Letters addressed Great Bend, Kan., Andressville, R. 2, will reach me promptly.

CIRCUS PICK-UPS

Managers of carnivals and circuses will be interested in the bill just passed by the State Legislature of South Carolina. It prohibits any show or carnival from exhibiting within five miles of any agricultural fair. The bill was amended, however, to read that carnivals might exhibit at fairs provided they are engaged by the fair management and notification of such engagement is filed with the sheriff of the county. This same law is now in effect in other Southern States, notably Virginia and North Carolina.

John Sparks, Jr., who was a member of the Engineer Corps at Petersburg, Va., and again been promoted, and is on his way or has arrived in France. He is in charge of a squad engaged in transporting troops. He is a member of the Salisbury Lodge of Elks, and has been sent an exemption card issued by all lodges to members who have enlisted.

Jim Hodge, the Salisbury showman, has signed for next season with the Dorman & Krause Shows, and will leave for the winter quarters at Wilson, N. C., early in March. Jim is proudly wearing the antlers, having been made a member of Salisbury Lodge, B. P. O. E., last week.

Sergeant Dabon, of the Eighth Regiment, in camp at Charlotte, N. C., has been made chief bugler of the regiment. He is an old circus trouper, and a former member of the Ringling Show band. His home is in Boston.

J. Dan Johnson, who had the picture privilege with the Sparks Show for several years, is now in the service. He is a member of the Engineers' Corps, and stationed at Camp Meade, Md. His friends hope he will shoot as many Germans as he did "high yallers" down South.

Comrade Orcutt, who is managing John Sparks picture house up at Vandergrift, Pa., says that Guy Cohn is some whirlwind clothing salesman, and that a prospective customer never gets away from him. Clarence Cooper made a ten-strike when he got Guy.

Red Riley, the well-known trouper, writes from the County Home in Caro, Mich., that he has been in bed with rheumatism for the past two weeks. He would like to get a line from his friends, and states that he has already heard from Jora Phillips, Lewis Reed and others of the Sparks Show. He received a Christmas box from Mr. and Mrs. James Hodges, containing a big dinner and a plentiful supply of tobacco.

Bob Morgan, late of the Robinson Show, has been under the weather for a week or so at Salisbury, but he was well enough to put in a big day with William M. Gilman, who dropped into the Southern city ahead of Nicola, the magician. Gilman and the city billed like a circus, and taught the local lithographer how to fill the vacant store windows. Bob trailed him around and passed him the lithos.

Buch Miller is here in Salisbury from a successful season with the Williams Stock Company. Dick Williams, the manager, with his family is spending the winter at Starke, Fla.

Jim Prince, who had a big circle of friends in the show business, meeting them while clerking at the Yadkin Hotel in Salisbury, which hotel was also the headquarters of the Sparks Show bunch, has moved to Danville, Va., where he is in sole charge of the Leland Hotel. He intends to make the Leland the troupers' home in the tobacco city.

Oldtimers will remember the days that Ed Wortley used to make them laugh with the Welsh Bros.' Shows, and, going farther back, when he was a member of the John Sparks Vaudeville Show. Ed seems to be the whole thing up at Victoria, Va., where he is running a restaurant, feeding the railroad men by contract and running the only picture house in the town. He says he just had to write and let the boys know that a welcome awaits any trouper who drops off a freight or rides the cushions into Victoria.

B. L. Doty, who played the electric calliope with the Sparks Show last season, is back with his old friend, Murdoch, of Murdoch Bros., and is playing piano until spring arrives. Ervin tried advancing a repertoire show out in the sticks for a while, and was glad when it failed to arrive one Monday morning. He made a bee line for Hornell, and then to the Murdoch Show.

"Doc" Williams has finished work on Otto Hoffman's private car up at Havre de Grace, and "Dutch" is anxiously awaiting the coming of spring and the opening of the La Tena Show. "Dutch" will have both the connection and the privilege car this season.

Charles F. Curran, who had the lights with the La Tena Show last season, has been heard from. He is in Philadelphia, located at 908 N. Eighteenth street, and is busy fitting out the Johnson & Ackerman Shows, a new carnival, which will take the road in the spring.

Human Harris played Salisbury last week and had a little band that made every one take notice. Two oldtime circus troupers were in it—Robinson and Rinaldo.—FLETCHER SMITH.

JOHNNIE COLLINS

The hustling "circus kid," who has joined "Uncle Sam's Big Show." He is a private in [illegible] Co., 3d Platoon, stationed at Ft. Thomas, Ky.

I. A. S. P. & B. OF A., NO. 10

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 25.—Rusty Davidson has left the "capital of the world" to take charge of the bill shop in Winnipeg, Can. Having worked in Winnipeg for two years Davidson can post bills with the weather 40 below zero and not mind it at all.

Carl Simons, president of the local, recently got out of a sick bed and is back on the center wagon putting them on the panel boards as usual.

Lloyd Cronkhite and Arch Beach have closed with the Intolerance Show. As Cronk is a Western railroad man the talk in the Shubert billroom is "Seattle and go railroading," so any minute one might expect to see a yellow taxi in front of the theater waiting for two billposters to take them to the train for Seattle.

Red Howe, of the Frisco local, is in business here, having left the show business for the period of the war. However, all expect to see Red with a bad of cards tacking them on some one's fence, as they say they all come back some day.

Ed L. Jones, the traveling-away-from-home member of Local 10, hasn't been heard from for nearly seven months, and his many friends would like to get a letter or word of some kind that the Foley medicine man is still on the job.

JOHNNIE BAKER LOSES MOTHER

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 26.—Mrs. Lewis H. Baker, mother of Johnnie Baker, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry Trimble, in this city Monday morning. She was in her eighty-first year, and was a pioneer of Western Nebraska.

Wild West Wisdom and Frontier Frivolity

THE CORRAL

By ROWDY WADDY

Florenz Ziegfeld's intention to make a star act of Will Rogers is to be realized sooner than was expected, according to recent reports. It is now understood that Rogers will acquire stellar privileges some time next season, and that his vehicle will be a piece written around incidents in his own life.

Fred Stone will be in the movies this coming summer.

Old Man Time turned a back flip January 12 at Washington Park in Los Angeles, Cal., in order that some twenty thousand people, pouring $15,000 into the coffers of the Red Cross, might again witness the days of the Wild West show, with real bronk riding, steer roping, fancy stunts, oldtime cowboy showmen performing as well as they ever did with Miller or Buffalo Bill, all arranged under the auspices of Doug. Fairbanks. The Fairbanks Red Cross Rodeo was not only a tremendous success from a point of view of money earned for the cause, but extremely interesting from the fact that a real frontier show, with an unusual array of talent, was revived in all its glory.

In charge of the show with Fairbanks were Fred and Ed Burns, who were with Buffalo Bill for five years, and also with the Ringlings and Miller Brothers.

After the show opened with a stage hold-up, to which an old Wells-Fargo Concord was manned by the boys from Wyoming, Johnny Judd and Buffalo Jones came in with an exhibition of roping and riding. "Doug" and Mr. Hopkins, billed by Fairbanks as the champion of the world, then shot ninety-one out with glass balls. Hoot Gibson and Benny Corbett put on a Roman standing act, followed by Tommy Grimes, trick rider. Prairie Rose, together with Art Acord, Curly Rariate, Shorty Kelso, Walter Deegan and George Edwards rode the buckers. When Johnny Judd, Tommy Grimes and others went after the steers several of the herd put to utter rout a military and a naval band which were playing from reserved seats on the field before the one planted inside ropes. Two more steers broke for the gate under the bleachers while the army and navy were in retreat, but this was only by-play. When the hands really went after the steers there was nothing to it. The ropes hadn't lost any of their wicked twists. Prairie Rose, Helen Gibson and Marietta Gregory, lady trick riders, were easily the hit of the day. Dusty Farnum livened things up a bit with a band of bonds at his heels, as did William Duncan, with the Vitagraph cowboys, and Jack Holt, with the boys from the Ince ranch. Everybody was sorry for the poor puncher who rolled up for a comfortable nap, tethered his horse to his spur, only to have the mount stolen by "My Sam" Cochrane. When Doug. and his hands rode up to the rescue only the fact that the act was staged in a ball park prevented the customary hanging.

New York cabarets have gone wild over roper-gab acts. Since Will Rogers set the pace hardly a lobster palace on Broadway thinks its entertainment is complete without a cowpuncher act.

"Have seen a note in a recent issue of The Billboard, under Wimmen's Writes, by Mrs. Harry Daly, of Oswego, N. Y., asking for my address. Please say that all mail sent to me in care of the New York office of The Billboard will reach me promptly. Thanking you for this, I remain, Lottie Smith."

Here's one from a boy some of you have been inquiring about: 'In answer to your inquiry will say that I am here at the remount station at Camp Shelby. Besides breaking horses for the army I am assistant to the commanding officers in charge of the remount station. I have been here since closing with the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows. No, I am not in the army. Owing to past injuries I failed on enlistment. I have found several good opportunities for cowboys by enlisting, also have met several old hands at different camps. I am the only civilian left here, and am always glad to hear from my friends. We have several readers of The Billboard here, and we all get it each week. Best regards to all."—Bill Donovan, care Remount Station, No. 410, Camp Shelby, Hattiesburg, Miss.

B. H. Coster, of Boston, writes: "Please tell William Judkins Hewitt, who writes the Broadway and Byways in The Billboard, that altho I appreciate his weekly contribution I would suggest he tell Tex McLeod and Cuba Crutchfield both not to forget while they are roping to the New York 'beaneries' that neither of them has any right to claim to be the best trick roper in the world, no matter whether some Broadway actor says so or not. Nor Tex McLeod's display of all his tokens and medallions can't alter the fact that Chester Byers is the acknowledged champion trick roper of the world. He has defeated all of them and can do it again. I think Mr. Hewitt's suggestion of a Western cabaret a good one if it is done as he says—right. Thank Mr. Hewitt for boosting the Western game on Broadway."

Next letter on tap is from Ray DeCota, at Bay City, Mich.: "Just a few lines from the pines of Michigan to the columns of The Billboard. I read The Billboard each week and pay particular attention to The Corral and Wild West Department. I think it is the best thing that ever happened for the folks who follow the Wild West business. All folks in the game should send in news as often as possible. I am here in the jungles of Michigan most of the time working for the M. C. R. R. as detective or special agent. Have been here since June 20 last. This job is the next thing to herding cattle, always riding the rail and hitting the ball. Hello, Hank Walker! Glad to learn you are still kicking around. Haven't seen you since 1912. Bee Ho Gray—Send your address and I'll send those pictures of the prize stallion ridden by Ada Somerville at the West Michigan State Fair last September. Leonard McCoy—Where are you? Johnny Mullins, Tommy Kernan, Hash Darnell, Joe Lewis, George Greenett, Loretta, Jack Ray, 'Bridle Bill' Selman, Indian Joe Davis, Jim Kennedy, Booger Red, Tex Young, Jack Morrissey, Marie Devere, Dolly Clark and Leslie Walters—Would like to hear from you all. Kick in, boys and girls, with the news; let's all know what the others are doing. Mr. Daniels made Ada Somerville a present of the horse known as 'Candy,' which was Miss Somerville's favorite on the Diamond Dick Wild West Show. Guy Weadick—Write me at once. You can reach me care General Delivery, Bay City, Mich."

Here's another letter from one of the boys: "Well, old scout, I'll drop you a line just to say I'm going in the butcher business in a few days here in Boston, La. I have not sat up to the middle of a pitching horse in two months. I made a three weeks' round riding the high ones in Texas a couple of months ago. Ran across the M. L. Clark Show down there. I. A. B. P. & B., NO. 59

Denver, Col., Jan. 26.—The International Alliance Billposters and Billers of the United States and Canada, Local No. 59, had installation day a few days ago. The following officers were installed for the ensuing term: Frank Newhouse, president; Theo. Lee Fleurry, vice-president, Joe Tagart, secretary and treasurer; L. H. Burnham, business agent; J. H. Gardiner, sergeant; Ed Willey, B. A. Wyant, Matt Wilson and Frank Newhouse, trustees.

The newly elected president was once there with a large box of union-made cigars for the brothers and a smile that meant business. The outgoing president, C. P. Saunders, was tendered a vote of thanks for the able and efficient way in which he had handled the affairs of this local, and it was only owing to having too much outside business that he was forced to give up this office. And the writer must say that he has never seen this office handled in a more businesslike way than Charley handled it. He was for the local first, last and all the time.

The secretary (the writer) was tendered a vote of thanks for the efficient way in which he had handled the affairs of his office. The members had decided on giving him a surprise in the way of a present, when Ted Fleurry spilled the beans by telling the members that it was not to him that this credit was due, but to the silent secretary, and when this fact was proven that this local did have a silent secretary and that the writer was camouflage he and the present and the silent secretary received it. As this local 'sh' 'mystery with a barbed-wire fence around it', this silent secretary shall be like a continued picture—a mystery to the end.

L. H. Burnham, who has been to Leadville ahead of The Whip, was present minus his Charley Chaplin. He would not say how it happened, but was present to take his obligation as business agent, and no doubt will make a good one. With J. H. Gardiner as sergeant we has nothing to fear from the outside world. This will all be news for Patsy Gallager and Matt Wilson, but they should get up in the morning.

Ted Fleurry, L. H. Burnham and C. P. Saunders were elected delegates to the Amusement Council and Frank Newhouse and J. A. Burkhardt delegates to the Trades and Labor Assembly, so with this line-up there is no reason that Local No. 59 should not "go over the top" this year.—JOE TAGART.

MABEL GROVES WEDS

Chicago, Jan. 25.—Mabel Groves, who was with California Frank's Wild West last season, married Albert Tigh, a Milsted (Mont.) ranch owner, Wednesday in this city. The bride's name, as given in the marriage license, is Mabel Flewelling, but she is known to the show world as Mabel Groves.

NOTES FROM QUINCY, ILL.

Toby Thomas, of the Barnum & Bailey Shows, is in town for his annual winter visit with the homefolks and his numerous friends.

LeRoy Baire, an old trouper, formerly with Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows, is now located at Quincy, where he is a jazz drummer at Pete Pinkmeth's Gem Theater. He would like to hear from his friends.

Colonel Breinig and Will Smith, former managers of the New American Theater, which closed for the season a few weeks ago, are suing the Goldwyn Film Corporation for a return of the's alleged deposit money of $100.

Lawrence Harron, formerly with the Allen Shows, is making his home in the Gem City. He is married and settled down now. Larry is pianist at the Savoy Theater, and the way he tickles the ivories is wonderful.

Max Novell is convalescing at St. Mary's Hospital after an operation for appendicitis. He hopes to be out in about a week or ten days and rejoin his brother, who is on the W. V. M. A. Circuit.

Frank Jenkins, for many years manager of the Newcomb Hotel at Quincy, and well known to the theatrical profession making the city, has taken charge of the American Restaurant here, and is making the professional folks feel at home when they call.—EBLER.

NOTES FROM TOLEDO

Toledo, O., Jan. 26.—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crandell have arrived home after having had a most successful season with the Sun Bros.' Show. They are both finished artists in their line, and deserve credit. They are re-engaged for the coming season.

Billie Cameron is still at the Auditorium Theater, and the shows of late are all good.

Harry Clark has arrived at headquarters, and is looking good. All the boys were glad to see him.

Edward Marshall, stage manager at Keith's, is a very capable man, and knows his business. He is a great help to the house with his crew of assistants.

The Colonial Theater suffered a loss of $6,000 by fire recently. The girls, who were forced to the street only lightly clad, lost everything. Joe Kearnley, the scenic artist, was the only one to save anything.

J. B. Hendershot, general manager of the Tuscons Detroit Special Shows, is here, and says he would go out this season bigger, better, etc., than ever before. He has something up his sleeve.

Harry (Pud) Johnson, one of the world's greatest billers and banner men, has been reinstated with the Ringling Bros.' Shows, and will be there this coming season.

LOOP-THE-LOOP RIDER DIES

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 26.—Hehtma Goldschmidt, bicycle rider, said to be the first one to do the loop-the-loop act, died here Wednesday of accidental gas poisoning. He was 39 years old and was born in Germany, where he joined the Barnum & Bailey Circus. Mr. Goldschmidt came to this country with the show and did his loop-the-loop stunt at Madison Square Garden in New York. A fall, in which he sustained severe injuries, forced him to retire from the circus game.

A HIT AT ROCHESTER

That there is no decline in the popularity of Adelaide D'Vorak in Rochester, N. Y., was proven during her fourth engagement in that city, week of January 14, at the Stratford Rink. Inspired by the enthusiastic reception the received there Miss D'Vorak fairly outrivaled herself. Perhaps the fact that Prof. Albert Waltz, celebrated skater and a knowing critic of the art, was there each night to view her performances made Miss D'Vorak excel all her previous efforts to entertain. In appreciation of the reception accorded her artistic work she sprang an impromptu surprise upon the non-suspecting audience on Thursday night during the races in which she was acting as judge, together with Professor Waltz, by being unable to resist the temptation to get into the race and making a sudden spurt out of the judges' ring into the track. The manner in which she went after the racers, caught and passed them, proved that as a racer Adelaide D'Vorak is far from being a has-been.

ORGANIZE ROLLER CLUB

On Friday evening, January 11, twenty-two charter members met and organized the Wayne Roller Club in Detroit, Mich., with the idea of making the total membership 5,000 before the end of the season.

Walter E. Sutphen, manager of the Wayne Gardens Rink, was honored by being elected president, with the following officers: Frank Sterneman, B. Krebs, Steve Warren, Roy Ramsey and Edward Bowhall, vice-presidents, L. R. Porter, secretary; R. R. MacBain, clerk, and Al Fothergill, treasurer. The racing committee consists of B. Krebs, H. Carter and E. Schwartz; polo committee, Edward Bowhall and R. Porter. Speedy Steve Shipley will act as trainer.

The club has already 1,000 members and both racing and polo are to be boosted. The last Friday night in every month is club night, at which no charge is made to members at the rink. It is expected that a roller polo league will be organized having at least four teams.

The Wayne Rink is looking forward to the biggest racing season that has ever been held in Detroit. The new track is eleven laps to the mile. Harrfeld, who won the fifteen-mile street championship last season, has enough cups and medals to represent 1,200 miles of hard skating, and Roy Mallen, city amateur champion and holder of the Wayne half mile record of 2:24 2-5, are two fast lads who are expected to be heard from. Cliff Biman is a newcomer and needs watching. Edward Schwartz, one of Detroit's leading pros., will also race for the Wayne.

AGAIN IN THE GAME

A. J. Eisenegger, oldtime rink man, is again in the game managing the Opera House Rink, Waukon, Ia., while waiting his turn for a Hun hunting license. Manager Eisenegger opened January 8 to a good house and reports that while business has not been turnaway it has been good. The North Pole weather conditions around Waukon have kept away the rural trade somewhat on account of impassable roads, but the spring thaw promises big results.

A recent novelty night which was a success at the Opera House Rink was A Night in America. Waukon is credited with being the second most patriotic town in the United States according to number of inhabitants enlisting in the service of the country.

RANDALL HEARD FROM

The skating editor of The Billboard has received the following letter from Bert Randall who last season was one of the leaders around Detroit's skating circles.

"I suppose by this time, not having heard from me with racing or hockey news, you will be thinking I have given up skating completely but not so—I am now in the British Army Royal Flying Corps on my way to the East, and as soon as we get to our destination will give you my address.

"I have skated one race of a mile since I came to this country, and won easily. There are very few rinks open here now, so it is impossible to do very much, but I am keeping in condition by boxing, running and football and by the end of the war, which I hope will not be long, I think I could take the measure again of some of the boys. I would like to hear from you with news of any skaters who are now in the army, and would like to hear from anyone still in the game. I would also like to have a Billboard from you once in a while. A letter addressed to me as follows: No. 162060, H. F. Randall, R. F. C. R. T. D. Section 5, Richmond Park, Putney, London, S. W. 15, England, will find me for the present.

"Well, I guess this is all for the present, so will close, wishing you the best of luck in 1918.

Yours sincerely,
(Signed) BERT RANDALL.

TO BOOST SPEED SKATING

A new speed skating club has been organized in Toronto, Can., among the members being the majority of the fastest skaters who have been seen in action in the Land of Snows and U. S. race meets. The new club will be called the Maple Leaf Speed Skating Club and two of the Toronto veterans, Fred Robson and Lot Roe, will take charge of the training, the idea being to promote the game among the junior members. With this end in view races will be held every Saturday afternoon at the Maple Leaf Rink, and all the boys will be encouraged to learn the tricks of the game under the coaching of the former stars. The following officers have been elected: Boxer Clark, president; Lot Roe, vice-president, and Jack Roe, manager and trainer.

The club has not received any word from the Saranac Lake officials, who usually hold their races about February, but expects to be represented by several members in the races there.

MOOAR MEETS CORLEY

While waiting for a train at Indianapolis recently E. M. Mooar met Fred Corley, at one time one of the fastest speed skaters in Kansas City, Mo. Fred took record place in the big six-day roller race at the K. C. Hippodrome when only a boy in short trousers. He is now in the service with the 10th Infantry, stationed at Ft. Benjamin Harrison.

LIBERTY BOND PRIZE

Patrons of the Fairyland Skating Rink, Peoria, Ill., were offered a chance to win a $50 Liberty Bond as an award to the "best skater" during the month of January.

WOMEN'S SKATING CLUB

The North Star Skating Club, exclusively for women, was organized at a meeting at 1500 North Fairfield avenue, Chicago, recently, says The Chicago Tribune. As soon as the club's affairs are in good running order the 28 members promise a real novelty for followers of the ice sport—a meet for women.

The purpose of organizing is to promote interest in the sport among women of Chicago by stimulating racing competition and building up clubs to replace the wartime depletions in the men's organizations. Officers of the club were chosen as follows: Anna Tyzak, president; Esther M. Schiller, vice-president; Belle Hausmerstein, secretary treasurer.

PLAN SKATING MATCH

The management of the Washington Park Outdoor Skating Rink, Brooklyn, N. Y., is ready to hang up a big purse for a match race or a series of match races between Bobby McLean and Morris Wood for the world's speed skating title. Nate Lewis, manager of McLean, asks that the match be staged after January, as McLean's engagements over the country will tie him up to that time. The big skating field at Washington Park should give the rivals a fair chance to show their speed.

RINK NOTES

George Karns, well known former portable rink operator thru Ohio and other Central States, is now with the Quartermasters' Department of the U. S. Army for the duration of the war. George's address is care 45th Receiving Company, Camp Joseph E. Johnston, Jacksonville, Fla.

Frank Vernon paid the Cincinnati office of Billyboy a visit last week while en route West to open on the W. V. M. A. Time.

E. L. Matthews is managing the Bush Hall Roller Rink, Pittsfield, Ill., and expects to book several skating attractions.

Prof. Albert Waltz is resting up at his home in Rochester, N. Y., recuperating from a spell of illness.

Van gave his friends the slip in New York and hied direct to the Virginia metropolis, where he is at present gracing the streets of this busy naval town in his sailor costume. Last season he was purveying the publicity for Winifred St. Claire at the Paterson (N. J.) theater in connection with similar duties at Trenton. If anyone knows the game from many conceivable angles Van is the boy.

George Donahue, manager of Step Lively, was compelled to charter a special train over the Norfolk & Western in order to make Bluefield, W. Va., for the matinee performance January 13. Director General McAdoo has ruled that when a train was on time that it should not be held for connections, and as the train which carried the Step Lively Company was two hours late at Radford Junction a special train was the only means of making Bluefield for the matinee.

George Alabama Florida, who is credited with making the stogie famous, spent last week in Cincinnati in the interest of the Spiegel attraction, Furs and Frills. "Alabam," be it known, has discarded the stogies and now smokes small cheroots, which, being only one-half the size of stogies, smell only one half as badly.

GEORGE WILSON, THE MINSTREL

The writer has made several of the Southern cities lately, and in several of them has had the pleasure of meeting that great Southern favorite, George Wilson, the minstrel. In all of the cities you can hear the people say, "What do think? George Wilson is with us again." And the reply is, "Yes, I bought my ticket this morning." Then when you go to the opera house you see it packed to the doors, showing that this popular entertainer, who has always been a great favorite in the South, has lost none of his popularity.

George Wilson, the man, is just as interesting as George Wilson, the minstrel. To talk with him makes one feel better. Twenty years ago it was my pleasure to have an introduction to him, and the impression he made upon me at that time has been lasting, and a few days ago, when it was my good fortune to meet him again, and we talked of the old days, you could see by his expression that he appreciated the reception that is being extended him now by his oldtime admirers in the South, and he says it is like making a visit back home after an absence of many years. And he is right. He is still a favorite, and will always be just so long as he makes this territory, and he will always pack the houses when he makes his yearly visits, which the writer, as well as his hundreds of admirers, hopes he will do each season.

Long may you live, George Wilson, to gladden the hearts of your many admirers in the Southern country as well as in the other sections.
—W. S. C.

MINSTREL NOTES

Dockstader again at the head of a minstrel company! Things are looking back.

John O'Brien's Minstrels are still moving. Knock on wood.

Eph. Williams closed January 5 and proceeded to his home at Winter Park, Fla.

Neil O'Brien's All-Star American Minstrels' Nashville engagement was a big success in spite of the miserable weather that prevailed. All of Monday rain fell and in a little while turned to sleet. But with all this a parade was arranged, and something in the way of an innovation was pulled off. Instead of parading upon the street, it being impossible to do so, as the streets were a mass of slush and snow, the boys paraded upon the sidewalk and the stunt made quite a hit. The show this year, Nashville critics concede, is better than ever, and the audience enjoyed it thoroly. Manager Oscar F. Hodge was welcomed back to Nashville along with the show. Mr. O'Brien was given a rousing greeting on making his entrance.

The Billboard is in receipt of a copy of Al G. Field's eleventh annual letter to Bill Brown and likewise Brown's reply thereto. Both letters are pithy and full of pep. Mr. Field can, no doubt, supply copies if addressed at his Maple Villa Farm, Columbus, O.

J. P. Rogers, interlocutor of Gus Hill's Minstrels, has a parrot which he claims is the most wonderful talking and singing parrot in America. Recently a member of the company penned an ode to the parrot and, while from a poetical standpoint it may not rank with Gray's Elegy, he deems it worthy of print. Here it is:

While traveling around with a minstrel show
Mr. Roger's pet parrot was never too slow.
He would imitate the actors, and call out their names,
And was fond of amusements and all sorts of games.
In the evening he would take him to a first-class hotel—
If Mr. Rogers would call him you could hear Polly yell:
"Hello, Polly, hello, there;
Give me a nickel if you have one to spare."
And, talk about singing, he sure was some bird:
If a lady would pass him he would start in to flirt
And all along the road it was laughter and song:
If Polly was there nothing went wrong.

OHIO FAIR BOYS

Hold Meeting of Interest at Columbus

Columbus, O., Jan. 26.—While the attendance at the Ohio Fair Boys' annual meeting in Columbus last week was not as large as at previous sessions, it was greater than expected on account of the serious tieup of transportation.

A determined spirit to go ahead with the 1918 fairs permeated the meeting. The Fair Boys realized, however, that fairs must be made useful and helpful in the game of winning the war. The convention sessions were held at the Virginia Hotel with Myers Y. Cooper presiding. The program as given below was carried out. The seven-o'clock dinner was a success and in addition to speakers named Hon. Hugh L. Nichols, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, was a distinguished guest and speaker. Ex-Senator J. E. Russell, fair secretary, Sidney, O.; T. L. Holderman, secretary Dayton Fair; Elbert Beeman, representing Chicago meat packers and Union Stock Yards; Professor Andrews, representative of Supt. Condon, of Cincinnati Schools, responded to Toastmaster Cooper's call.

The following officers were re-elected: President, Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati; vice-president, W. H. Uhle, Attica; secretary and treasurer, James W. Fleming, Columbus.

Important and significant was the adoption of resolution recommending amalgamation of the National Trotting Association, the American Trotting Association and Trotting Register Association. This action was in accord with the resolution unanimously adopted by the Stewards of the Grand Circuit meeting in Columbus a few days previous and forecast the elevation of W. H. Gocher, of Hartford, as the chief umpire of the racing game in America.

A. P. Sandles made a plea to fair managers to give more encouragement to and better breeding of live stock. He stated that the great foundation breeding herds of Europe had been mostly wiped out by the war and that American breeders would be called upon to export pure bred live stock sires and dams to Europe after the close of the present struggle. He also stated that the Union Stock Yards, the big packing houses and the National Live Stock Exposition were ready to co-operate with other fairs from the Alleghenies to the Rocky Mountains in a movement to encourage better breeding and feeding of live stock and expect to give encouragement to boys who get into the game, stick to the farm and win free trips to the big Live Stock Show in Chicago next December.

Ohio Fair Boys are red, white and blue. The entire meeting was strongly tinctured with patriotism. Approval and applause were given when the resolution pledging support to the Thrift Stamp, Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., Liberty Bond, bigger crops, better live stock and one less Kaiser in the world.

Many of the old standby concession men were on hand with a genial smile and brave enough to make cash payments on next season's concessions. "Colonel" Huff, author of Huff's Famous Racing Guide, of Camden, O., was there with flashy badges, gratis, to all the fair boys.

The picturesque race starter was there in new clothes and new shoes. He was ready to be persuaded to accept engagements $50 to $75 per. Many judges of live stock, etc., were on hand to make themselves agreeable with the bunch. Colonel Frank Reprogle, long time picturesque "the-cane-you-ring-the-cane-you-get man," wanted a law prohibiting farm boys from winter practice at home on cane ringing, their skill making his business less profitable. Walter Richards, Franklin County's secretary, was the handy man and helped to make the Fair Boys feel at home while in the Capital City.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

"Ohio Fair Boys are Red, White and Blue. We pledge Ohio fairs to support Liberty Loan Bonds, Y. M. C. A. Fund, Red Cross work, Thrift Stamps, Increased Crop Production, and all movements that will help make one less Kaiser in the World.

"We send greetings to Congress and President and pledge support to men in authority at Washington. We condemn any man or set of men who hinders in any way the prosecution of the war. There are no half way stations in patriotism. Americans must wear badge of patriot or brand of traitor.

"We pledge greater efforts than ever before to make fairs more useful to Ohio agriculture. We pledge ourselves to any service or sacrifice that will add to the success, safety, health and welfare of our khaki clad lads—here and over there.

"We will urge greater production of food as well as conservation of food. We favor more encouragement to the farm boy in overalls and to girls who emulate the virtues of their mothers in home making and housekeeping. We recommend that Thrift Stamps be used in payment of the smaller premiums.

"We commend Congress to exemption fairs, organized not for profit, from Federal tax, on account of their encouragement of better farming, better breeding and feeding of live stock, better seeding, better cultivation and better rural life.

"We regret recent death of W. H. Knight, secretary of the American Trotting Association, whose long service and promotion of fair and turf interests made him a familiar figure among fair and race men.

"Since sentiment in turf circles is toward amalgamation of the National Trotting Association, the American Trotting Association and the Trotting Register Association, and since Grand Circuit Stewards favor such amalgamation, we believe that in the interest of economy, harmony and service efficiency such amalgamation should be made.

"A. P. SANDLES,
"J. W. MATHENY,
"W. G. RICHARDS,
"C. B. WHILEY."

"To Ohio Secretaries:

"Several Fair Boys at Columbus meeting asked for copy of resolutions for home newspapers. These do not include the unanimous vote in favor of Ohio fairs co-operating with the International Live Stock Show, Union Stock Yards and meat packers of Chicago in promoting stock growing, stock showing and stock judging contests by boys at 1918 fairs.

"Will you co-operate in these contests?

"Respectfully,
"A. P. SANDLES."

OPTIMISTIC VIEWS

Expressed at Annual Meeting Wisconsin County Fairs

Chicago, Jan. 26.—The optimistic assertion, unanimously expressed, that the fair season of 1918 will go down into history as one of the most successful recorded in modern times, formed the keynote of the meeting of the Association of Wisconsin County Fairs at New Miller Hotel, Milwaukee, Wis., Wednesday, January 23, and Thursday, January 24.

A distinct feature of the deliberation lay in the fact that all present conditions for the food for chatter of "calamity howlers" were diverted into channels of optimism by the enthusiastic delegates, who gathered in wholesome numbers despite the stormbound conditions of travel. The fact that the Government has taken charge of railroads is hailed as a virtual guarantee that transportation conditions for the fair season will be better than ever before. Far from deeming wartime a discouraging factor, it was clearly proved by carefully arranged statistics that this condition will merely serve to accentuate interest in fairs.

The Mayor of Milwaukee made a welcoming address, calling attention to the importance of the influence exerted by the county fairs, after which interesting and enlightening addresses were delivered by C. P. Norgord, of the Commission on Agriculture; Merlin Hull, Secretary of State (who chose for his topic "Circus Shows"); Wm. H. Reese, of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, and Oliver E. Remey, secretary of Wisconsin State Fair, whose paper was deemed the most important of all read, as statistics were submitted tending to show that the 1918 season will be successful.

During the major deliberations N. M. Parkinson presided and C. W. Harte performed the secretarial duties. A telegram of regret from Emanuel L. Philipp, Governor of Wisconsin, in which he explained that certain national matters made it impossible for him to attend the meeting, but assuring the delegates of his hearty co-operation, was read.

At the termination of the first session a formal banquet took place at Hotel New Miller, after which the guests availed themselves of Tom Sax's invitation to attend one of his theaters.

Most of the second session was devoted to farm discussion, which readily turned to the theme of patriotism, ably espoused by Judge M. L. Lueck, of Beaver Dam, Dodge County Fair president. A patriotic resolution was unanimously passed. Additional papers were then read.

The Chicago delegation was very representative, consisting of F. M. and M. H. Barnes, of

SCOTCH HIGHLANDERS' BAND

Gives Opening Winter Concert at St. Petersburg

St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 26.—Roy D. Smith's Royal Scotch Highlanders' Band gave its opening winter concert in Williams Park, St. Petersburg, Fla., Sunday, January 13, to a large and enthusiastic audience of Northern tourists.

On account of the chilly evenings the band, since its opening concert, has been giving morning and afternoon concerts only. Featured at the concerts are Manuel Yingling, trombone soloist; Turner Nearing, cornet soloist, and Happy Horace Kent, xylophone soloist.

Director Smith is a conductor of the modest, unassuming school, and leads his men with an ease that marks him a master. The band, in its costume of Gordon plaid and full Scotch regalia, makes a pleasing appearance that wins the attention of the public, which the music holds for the full period of the concert hours.

RUN THE 1918 FAIR FULL BLAST

"In the light of information and arguments presented in my remarks I feel secure in reaching the following conclusions:

"Run the 1918 fair full blast, using your usual business judgment and care.

"Make your fair a hummer as a war aid.

"If the war ends before your fair is held make it a peace fair.

"See to it that everyone in your community is fully informed of all the good features of your fair. Don't stunt your publicity.

"Give your patrons more than they expect for their money—not only this year, but every year.

"And when you have done these things, and the weather is favorable during your fair period, I venture to predict that after your 1918 fair your heart will be glad and you will be wearing the smile that refuses to come off."

SAGINAW RACING ASSOCIATION

Preparing Summer Race Meetings

Saginaw, Mich., Jan. 26.—The Saginaw Racing Association, which will succeed the Saginaw Fair and Racing Association in putting on Saginaw's summer race meetings of the Michigan Short Ship Circuit, has been under the process of organization and the incorporation papers, showing a capital stock of $8,000, practically all paid in, are ready to be forwarded to Lansing to be filed with the Secretary of State. When the papers have been filed the stockholders will elect officers.

Thomas F. Morris, secretary of the Michigan Short Ship, who was secretary of the old Saginaw Fair and Racing Association, and who will probably be secretary of the new association, will represent Saginaw at the meeting of stewards of the State Circuit at Mt. Clemens next Tuesday. Saginaw wants the week of July 4 again. Prospects for 1918 in the circuit are most favorable, according to Mr. Morris. The cities that held franchises last year are all expected to be in line again, and, in addition, the Toledo Fair is after the week of August 22, and Grand Rapids may bid for dates.

ANNUAL MEETING

Maine Association of Agricultural Fairs

Waterville, Me., Jan. 26.—The annual meeting of the Maine Association of Agricultural Fairs was held in the City Building, Waterville, Me., Monday.

There were present the following representing Maine Fairs:

J. F. Guild, D. W. Gilman, E. T. McGlauflin, H. J. Smith, A. C. Sylvester, of the Northern Maine Fair, Presque Isle; L. E. Tuttle of the Caribou Fair, Caribou; H. J. Goodrich of the East Somerset Agricultural Association, Hartland; A. H. Burse of the Four-County Fair, Pittsfield; B. E. Blanchard, Levi Mosher, Chas. Farrington, George D. Clark of the Franklin County Fair, Farmington; S. T. White, George W. Wescott, Henry L. Farber, Josiah Stewart of the Eastern Maine Fair, Bangor; H. V. Wilson, L. C. Morse, T. P. Matthews, David W. Campbell of the Maine State Fair, Lewiston; Harvey D. Eaton, D. W. Moulton, W. D. Kendall, Wm. J. Thompson, H. M. Gilmore, representing the Central Maine Fair, Waterville.

There were also present George S. Hobbs, second vice-president of the Maine Central Railroad; W. G. Hunton, Industrial Agent of the Maine Central Railroad; F. S. Adams, dairy instructor of Maine; L. S. Corbett of the Agricultural Extension Department of the University of Maine, Orono; E. E. Clifford of the Gilt-edge Farms, West Kennebunk.

The meeting was also well attended by Waterville people who are interested in the affairs of the Central Maine Fair.

The following officers were elected for the year 1918: President, J. F. Guild, Presque Isle; vice-president, Harvey D. Eaton, Waterville; treasurer, J. C. Fuller, Waterville; secretary, H. M. Gilmore, Waterville; Legislative Committee, J. F. Guild, H. D. Eaton, H. J. Goodrich; Membership Committee, H. M. Gilmore, J. C. Fuller, H. J. Goodrich, D. W. Gilman, J. C. Gordon.

A committee consisting of the secretaries of the fairs represented at this meeting was appointed to select dates for the fairs with regard to duplication and confusion in these selections and also to avoid the duplicate hauling by the Maine Central Railroad.

The principal business of the meeting was to discuss the question of free transportation of live stock to and from the home ports on the part of the Maine Central Railroad, which developed into quite a lengthy discussion, and in an unguarded moment some member injected into the meeting the question of holding one large State fair at some place in the State where exhibits of all kinds on a scale equal to those of Springfield, Mass., might be shown, and this was the occasion for a display of oratory not seen in Maine for some years. It, however, developed that what the person who introduced this subject into the meeting had in mind was that Waterville was not the point he had in mind in particular, but that any place in the State where such an institution might be built up was more in his mind. This statement seemed to ease the managers of other fairs, and from that on the meeting ran smoothly.

A circuit, consisting of Bangor, August 27-31; Presque Isle, September 4-7; Waterville, September 10-13, and Lewiston, September 17-20, was formed with an idea of procuring uniform class and purses if possible in the horse racing department.—H. M. GILMORE.

KNIGHT BOOMED FOR GOVERNOR

State Fair of Texas President May Be Awarded Lone Star State's Highest Office

Chicago, Jan. 26.—News is flashed from Ft. Worth that R. H. L. Knight, president of the State Fair of Texas, is a likely candidate for the Gubernatorial honors of the Lone Star State.

At a recent meeting of influential Texans Captain Marion Sansom (whom many deem the logical man for the office) declined in favor of Knight. The genial candidate is especially well liked because of the fervor of his patriotic utterances, which he has backed up by giving his four sons to Uncle Sam's war service.

CONNECTICUT FAIRS TO MEET

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 26.—The Connecticut State Fairs Association will hold its annual meeting in Hartford, Conn., February 19. Privilege men are cordially invited to attend.

ANNUAL ADDRESS

"At the beginning of 1917 many experienced fair managers proceeded with caution and much hesitancy. It was an open secret, let out by a number of fair folks, that their annual exhibitions might not be held in the fall of last year. When April came and with it the declaration of war by our Government the idea of no fairs for 1917 spread and the number doubting the wisdom of conducting fairs under the then existing conditions grew and many smaller fairs caught the abandonment idea for at least that year.

"But the expected shock to business did not materialize. The Government went about the enormous task of preparing this country for the struggle and of executing the provisions of the selective draft, and still the country prospered. One by one those fair managers who thought they saw a disastrous year ahead abandoned the idea and announced that expositions would be held as usual. A very few did not recover from their fright and their dates remained canceled. The fair season came, and to the great surprise of practically every fair worker in the land proved the banner year for interest, for enthusiasm, for exhibits and for crowds.

"The war, the very thing that it was feared would damage or kill the fairs, was the very thing that made the fairs the great successes they proved to be. Human nature is very much the same, whether the examples be found in a crowded city or in the remote districts of

Walter F. Driver Reports Over Five Hundred Reservations Already Made—Delegation From Recently Organized New York Branch Will Attend

Chicago, Jan. 26.—In the past Chicago has seen some large gatherings of showfolks, but the present indications are that the Showmen's League Banquet and Ball, which will be held at the Congress Hotel February 20, will be the largest of its kind ever held. Walter F. Driver, chairman of the Finance Committee, reports that at the present time he has over 500 reservations made for the event. And each mail is bringing in additional orders. Apropos of reservations it is once more requested, if you are contemplating being present at this annual affair, which will in every way eclipse anything ever attempted by the league, that you send in your check today, for, while arrangements have been made to accommodate hundreds, the way the tickets are selling at the present time it behooves you to make your reservation so that you will be sure of a seat.

A wire was received from the new branch of the league recently organized in New York that it is making up a large party and New York will show its allegiance to the league by sending a large delegation. C. A. Wortham, who was recently in Chicago, reserved 131 seats for his party, and many others from San Antonio have made reservations. Word has also been received from Pittsburg that there will be a large delegation from there; also Kansas City.

Executive Chairman Hodge is a busy man these days, constantly keeping at the different committees, so that all will be in readiness for the entertainment. The Ladies' Auxiliary has arranged a special program for the ladies who will be in the city that week.

The Entertainment Committee has nearly all of the program arranged, and will shortly be prepared to announce the attractions. While the writer is not at liberty to say just what is in store, it is safe to say that it will be a bang-up program from the opening number to the concert.

The new system of numbering the tickets to correspond with the seat that you will occupy at the table is working out like a charm. It means that all are treated alike and the ones who get their reservations in before February 18 will have good seats.

Once more let us impress upon you the importance of making your reservation. Don't wait—do it today.

President Warren, who has been indisposed for some time, is working with the committee and is gratified at the splendid manner in which the members of the league are responding to the call for the Ball and Banquet. With the combined meetings of NOSA, COMA and the State Fair Managers it should be a gala gathering, so make your arrangements to be in Chicago February 20.—ARTHUR DAVIS.

ED R. SALTER

"Loaned" to Florida State Fair

It very often happens in the producing department of the theatrical profession that a manager, after deciding to put on a new play, will discover that the very one actor or actress that in his opinion would be the ideal party to impersonate the leading stellar role is under contract to another manager. It is then we read that such and such an actor or actress has been loaned by Manager So and So to Manager So and So for the period of the Broadway production of such and such a play.

Dr. B. K. Hanafourde, general director of the Florida State Fair and Exposition, discovered that he required the services of a good publicity man, and immediately sought the services of Ed R. Salter, but on communicating with Mr. Salter he was informed that Mr. Salter was under a yearly contract to Johnny J. Jones' Exposition. Dr. Hanafourde immediately asked Mr. Jones for the "loan" of Salter's services for thirty days. It was granted, and, in consequence, Mr. Salter is now telling the inhabitants of the great State of Florida what a wonderful State Fair and Exposition they are going to enjoy at Jacksonville February 26 to March 8.

TAXES

A correspondent—we will not disclose his name, but he looms large in the carnival world—writes as follows, viz.:

"Do you realize that we pay about $180 for every State we enter and then pay war 10 per cent for our tickets and 8 per cent for railroad moves? The question now is, will we hold out against the heavy tax proposition? The patrons are supposed to pay the war tax, tho in El Paso we put the admission at 10 cents, with 1 cent war tax; 25 cents, with 3 cents war tax, etc., and do you know that 10 per cent of the people would not pay the tax and consequently did not go to the show?

"All of these things may be old to you, but they are just beginning to soak in on me, and I had not really thought that matter over carefully."

Our only comment is that we published approximately these very figures the very first week after the law was enacted.

DIVING HORSE DEAD

Silver King, the diving horse, owned by Dr. Carver, died in New Orleans January 18 from old age. The animal was about 30 years old. Dr. Carver is spending the winter at 4225 Canal street, New Orleans.

IT'S A BOY

Captain Curly Wilson, of the Johnny J. Jones Exposition, is one of the happiest men in Orlando, Fla. The happiness is due to the arrival of a baby boy Saturday morning, January 19. The youngster weighed nine pounds at the time of birth, and has been christened John Francis. Both mother and child are doing fine, thank you.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Among the visitors at the Chicago office of The Billboard last week were R. R. Larkin, a concessioner with the Beasley-Talbot Company last season. Larkin has been saving his money and has invested in a farm. He will now forsake the show lot and join the millionaire farmer class. He was here on a visit, and, after a trip to Milwaukee, will return to California.

HEINZ BROS.' SHOWS

The season for the Heinz Bros.' Shows will start at Keokuk, Ia., in April, and from the way things are looming up at present the caravan will rank as one of the real ones. Arrangements have already been made for several big dates and fairs. There will be ten cars, about 200 people, two bands, three free acts, a big fireworks display, rides and the shows. Negotiations are under way for the big annual animal show, which W. P. Hall had with another show. The winter quarters are at Keokuk. WORTHAM BROS.' OFFICIALS

Leave San Antonio for Phoenix, Ariz., Where Show Opens Next Month

San Antonio, Jan. 26.—Harry F. Hofer, general agent of the Wortham Bros.' Shows, and who, with H. M. Waugh, has leased the shows for the season, has gone to Phoenix, Ariz. R. C. Elgin, well-known special agent, went with Hofer as special agent for the shows. H. H. Tipps, special agent, will leave here shortly to join the show. Manager Waugh and Assistant Manager W. K. Havis have been at Phoenix since Christmas, getting matters rounded into shape for the opening, which will be the last week in February. Havis has been doing general agent's work, and has several good contracts to show for his labor. With Hofer on the job Havis will give his assistance to Manager Waugh. Joe Schilibo will be treasurer and handle the publicity back with the show. Park Prentiss will have the band.

Harry Hofer is most optimistic regarding the future of the shows under the new management. Several excellent attractions have been booked, and the line-up, as it now appears, gives the Wortham Bros. an aggregation that will set a pace for other companies of like nature that contemplate touring that territory.—C. M. CASEY.

JOHNNY J. JONES EXPOSITION

Everything is progressing finely at the Orlando, Fla., winter quarters. Dakota Max will have an entirely new outfit for the Johnny J. Jones Wild West, and some of the paraphernalia, such as saddles, bridles, etc., will be among the most elaborate ever seen with a similar organization. The two saddles to be used by Dakota Max and his wife are simply gorgeous.

The carousel will have a new engine, also the Eli Giant Ferris Wheel. The Whip sleepers are to be newly upholstered, and a new motor and automobile drome is being built and will be constructed with many original ideas, one of which will do away with the usual shaky condition of the platform upon which the public stands. Margaret Gast is now in New York City, but will return to Orlando within the next two weeks to oversee the finishing touches of the great drome.

H. W. McGeary will have an entirely new front for the Crystal Tangle, and Michaele Cabilio will have an entire new outfit for the Fat Ladies' Congress. The interior of this show will prove an innovation. The idea is not only original, but will be most pleasing, as it will enable visitors to sit down while attending the Congress.

The Johnny J. Jones American attraction will have a new "home," and one of the new features will appeal to the performers. It is a smaller tent attachment with ten dressing rooms. The stage will be enlarged, new scenery essential for an elaborate stage production will be installed, and Mr. Jones has expended over three thousand dollars for wardrobe for this, his pet creation.

The Orlando Fair Association as an inducement for Johnny J. Jones to make Orlando his permanent winter quarters is now putting in a special half mile open railroad track leading from the Seaboard main line. The convenience of this movement can be best understood when it is known that it enables Mr. Jones to place his entire railroad equipment within the fair ground enclosure.—ED R. SALTER.

HARRY K. MAIN SHOWS

The Harry K. Main Shows closed a successful season at Glenville, Ga., and the paraphernalia has been shipped into winter quarters at Atlanta to be overhauled and repainted for the 1918 tour, which will begin the early part of March. Mr. and Mrs. Harry K. Main are spending the winter at Mayport, Fla., where they have a bungalow. Others wintering there include Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Cunningham, Josie Hebert, Gladys Hendley, H. L. Hafery and Mrs. Main's father, E. C. Glassford, of Niagara Falls, N. Y. Mitchell and Vera Cain were married on the closing day. Mr. Main will leave for Tonawanda, N. Y., February 1, to inspect the new Herschell-Spillman carousel, which he will carry the coming season. In addition to this ride he will have six shows and about twenty concessions.

"GOV." MACY ATTRACTIONS

Among late additions to the "Gov." Macy Attractions are "Doc" Walden, wife and niece, Roxy Joy, who came over from the Clifford Shows and placed two concessions, and Bill and Mary Thomas, late of the Argyle Shows, who are working in the Cabaret. "Doc" Walden was formerly manager of the Puritan Amusement Company. He has placed a couple of concessions, while his wife and niece are doing nicely in the Curtis Cabaret.

Andy Logsdon has taken over the Aristocracy Minstrels, and is rapidly whipping a real show together.

Wright's long-range gallery is usually the first concession to open and the last to close. Some hustler is Wright.

Capt. Irwin's Dog, Pony and Monkey Circus is now housed in a new tent, which, while a little smaller than the one formerly used, is more in keeping with the times of the year.

Tony and Mrs. White and son are wintering in Springfield, S. C., with their motor truck movie show. They have the best equipped outfit of the kind the writer has ever seen.—O'JAM.

ROBERTS' UNITED SHOWS

Making Preparations for Opening at Albany, Ga., March 2

Albany, Ga., Jan. 26.—Roberts' United Shows rolled into winter quarters at Albany New Year's Eve after the most successful season they ever experienced. Spacious winter quarters had been secured at the fair grounds, and work was immediately begun overhauling the show paraphernalia. New panel fronts for all the shows are being built.

That Mr Roberts is not worried over railroad movements is evidenced by the accumulation of new show property. New baggage cars and a new stateroom car will complete his new train, and the purchase of a new light plant assures a brilliant array of fronts and concessions.

About forty of the company are spending the winter (and part of their summer's earnings) at Albany. One of the liveliest spots here is the Brennard Apartments, where many of the showfolk reside and almost every night there is a meeting of the Ladies' Fun Club or the Men's Old Doughnutting Club. Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Braden, Buck Clark and wife, Fred Miller and wife Mr. and Mrs. Kelley, R. S. Ferguson, Hugh Lashley, Lester Barry and others are quartered here. Capt. Kilgore is hibernating at the Y. M. C. A. Mr and Mrs. J Stanley Roberts are living in their private car, Alecia. The car has been remodeled and repainted, and is a thing of beauty.

Mr. and Mrs. John Uell are here, and Jand is a busy man reorganizing the band and taking care of his many animals. The animals are quartered in the old jail. Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Swain are "keeping house," and the latchstring is always out. "Baldy" is superintending construction work at winter quarters. R. S. Ferguson was called home recently by the illness of his wife, who had been visiting with the home folks in Ludlow, Ky.

"Slim" Clark deserves credit for the appearance of Mr Roberts' Herschell-Spillman swing, which was purchased early in the summer, so very little work will be necessary to make it as bright as when it left the factory. Scores of lights are being added. There will be nine shows, two rides and about twenty concessions this year, five shows, merry-go-round and Eli wheel being owned by Mr Roberts. The season will open in Albany March 2.—W. T. SWAIN.

TOM W. ALLEN SHOWS

Mr. and Mrs. Tom W. Allen and daughter, Louise, spent the first half of January in Pekin, Ill., the seat of Mr. Allen's old winter quarters, which he still maintains. They have returned to Leavenworth, Kan., for the time being.

Ida Strojen, the young sister of Mrs. Rodney May, wife of a former trainmaster on the Allen Shows, died in Pekin, Ill., her home, shortly before the holiday season.

Kid Herman, the medium weight boxer, who was interested in the Athletic Show of the Allen caravan of 1916, now owns one of the finest pool and billiard halls in the State of Illinois. It is located at Pekin, and has been named The Apollo. He also conducts a very elaborate gymnasium for private pupils. At Peoria, Ill., January 21 he knocked out Bobby Burns, of Dallas, Tex., in the third round. The bout was scheduled for ten rounds. It is reported that negotiations are under way for a meeting with Champion Pete Herman.

Thad W. Rodecker, general agent, and his wife, Loeda Poe Rodecker, press agent, are spending the winter in Pekin. Mr. Rodecker looks after Mr. Allen's interests at the Pekin quarters, Mr. Allen being in charge at Leavenworth.

Mr and Mrs. Maple Williams, troupers with the Allen Shows during the past season, had the misfortune to lose all of their concession goods in a fire at Beaumont, Tex., recently. The loss totals $500. The goods were not insured.

Alice Melville, in Visions De Art, is making a record, of which she may well be proud, on the Pantages Time. Miss Melville was owner of The Fashion Show, with the Allen Shows last season.

It will be gratifying to the many friends of Jim Lake to know that he is much improved in health. Mr. Lake and his good wife are visiting with relatives and friends in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Brashaw are playing with the Hotel Hunter Orchestra at San Antonio.

Mr. Allen is pushing the work on his show for 1918, which, in all probability, will be a 30-car layout. Everything pertaining to the assembling of the caravan is progressing satisfactorily, and two shows, which are entirely new and will be exhibited for the first time this season, were recently booked.—LOEDA POE RODECKER.

SOUTH SEA ISLAND JOE WARNS

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 16, 1918.

Billboard Publishing Co.,
Cincinnati, O.

Gentlemen—It has been repeatedly called to my attention that some unscrupulous person or persons have appropriated my name, which I have been using continually since May 25, 1873. In that time I have only been with two carnivals, namely, the Johnny J. Jones and World at Home shows. With all due respect to carnival managers carrying attractions operating under the guise of South Sea Island Joe, I wish to inform you that you are only fooling yourselves and not the public.

To anybody using my name I wish to give fair warning that I will take drastic measures to stop the practice if necessary.

I am just starting the sixth week of my engagement at Sheesley's Zoo and Hippodrome in Norfolk, and any other person or persons appearing under the name of South Sea Island Joe are impostors and receiving money under false pretenses.

Trusting you will find space for this in your valuable publication, and thanking you in advance, I am

Very truly yours,
The only and original
SOUTH SEA ISLAND JOE.

L. J. HETH SHOWS

Will Open Early in April at East St. Louis

East St. Louis, Ill., Jan. 28.—Notwithstanding the cold wave, snow and ice, something unusual in this part of the country at this time of the year, work in winter quarters of the L. J. Heth Shows, Twentieth and St. Louis avenue, has started with a rush. Chas. Strickler is again in charge of the work, and, with his gang of men, he is busy from early morn till late at night repairing and repainting all the paraphernalia. Naturally "L. J." himself is around all day and night in winter quarters if he is not traveling around to hunt up more railroad equipment. The train of twenty or more cars will be painted bright "Big Four" yellow. Mr. Heth bought recently in Detroit two big 60-ft. box cars never before in show business.

Heth Shows will open their season on or about April 6 in East St. Louis on the regular circus lot, located only a few blocks from winter quarters. The line-up will consist of about fifteen shows and three rides, the latter Heth's Whip and Elmer Collins' three-abreast jumping horse carry-us-all and [illegible] ferris wheel. The following shows are either framed by Mr. Heth or booked for the season: Heth's Plantation Show, Heth's Silodrome, Benj. H. Schlomberg's Diving Girls Show, Jacob's musical comedy show, The Merry Rounders, with twelve people, Harry Dickinson's Big Circus Side-Show, Harry Dickinson's Ten-in-One, [illegible] Athletic Show, Dick Wayne's cabaret, [illegible] Wayne's Jungleland, Chas. Strickler's War Museum, Chas. Strickler's Platform Show. A Snake Show and two or three Platform Shows will be added, and there will also be a first-class uniformed band of twenty pieces.

The executive staff is complete. Earl Enos, the well-known advance man, has signed up as general agent, James F. Sutherlin will act as second man, and George J. Mendelsohn has cast his lot as secretary, and is now busy in winter quarters answering the correspondence. Robert E. Dunn has signed up as chief electrician, and C. M. Pain, formerly with the Sheesley Shows, is trainmaster.

SMITH GREATER SHOWS

Sumter, S. C., Jan. 25.—On account of the continued cold weather the Winter Bazaar and Society Circus the boys took out closed with very little ceremony, paid all bills incurred along the way, and returned to winter quarters in Sumter.

The repair work is already under way, and a number of changes are being made. The wagon fronts and heavy paraphernalia were all hastily repaired and put in order on arrival in winter quarters, and the entire force is now busily engaged putting together banner fronts and light paraphernalia, and if the worst comes the entire outfit can be gillied or hauled overland if need be.

Pop Smith is a strong believer in "united action" by showfolks, and is firm in the belief that outdoor showmen will still be "outdoor showmen" if concerted action is taken, but they can not sit idle and expect results. "All things come to him who waits" does not apply to railroads, and Pop ought to know, as he has been dealing with them for thirty-eight years.

Many of the folks are coming back from visits among friends and relatives. Every day brings letters and cards announcing their return in a few days. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cooper left the other day for Anniston to spend a short time with Mr Cooper's relatives and friends.

Among those now in Sumter are Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Benjamin, Rube Hughes, Roy Spurr, Mme. Elaina Brown, George W. Johnson, Billy Owens, Mme. Harriet DeBallistrier, Art Cullen, J. E. Fellers, C. Huldah, Oscar Rath, J. W. Kearshner, James Swainson, D. E. Wright, Frank Garlinghouse, J. C. Berry, Joe Goodlow, Jesano and Willie Harris.

Manuel, the well-known Brazilian artist, arrived at the quarters recently, and has a great deal of work under way. Francis Shirley came in from a trip to New England the other day. He says 40 below in Boston was too much for him. Jerry Long, the chef, is also back on the job.—A. L. W.

KAPLAN'S GREATER SHOWS

Brunswick, Ga., Jan. 24.—The winter quarters of the Kaplan Greater Shows at Brunswick are quite a busy place since Mr. and Mrs. Kaplan returned from their extended trip to their home at Boston, Mass., and various other cities in the interest of the show.

J. A. Sullivan, manager of Kaplan's Louisiana Minstrels, has brought the minstrel show in from Troy, Ala., owing to the railroad troubles.

Brunswick has become quite a mecca for showfolks. The Brown Greater Shows are also wintering here, and are busy repairing and painting for the coming season.

Artie E. Wills has been re-engaged as secretary and J. A. Sullivan re-engaged as general agent of the Kaplan outfit. Ed Wrothers is busy overhauling and rebuilding his two shows. All the shows will be dressed up in new panel fronts, which are now under construction. The merry-go-round is undergoing a complete overhauling.

Ike Friedman, general agent Brown's Greater Shows, has the agency here for the much advertised beverage, Bevo, and can be seen around town any hour of the day making good with his present business.

Benj. Kaplan, who had charge of the winter quarters during his brother's absence, will leave in a few days for a trip home to Boston to visit his mother.—J. A. SULLIVAN.

WHY? WHY? WHY?

"Why did not Frank L. Albert get something in the way of relief for carnival and circus men? Why do the park men alone benefit?"

These are two questions hurled at us repeatedly.

They should be addressed to Mr. Albert personally.

But.

We can say this much. When Albert went to Washington he did not go as secretary of NOSA, and not one cent of NOSA money was used by him. He was financed entirely by funds advanced by parkmen—by parkmen only.

RANDOM RAMBLES

By

WILLIAM JUDKINS HEWITT

ADDRESS ALL MAIL AND TELEGRAMS CARE THE BILLBOARD, SUBWAY CENTRAL BUILDING, NEW YORK.

HURRAH FOR season 1918.

EVERYTHING is all right. So let's go to it and do it.

THIS SUGGESTS that "Go-To-It" would be a good name for some of some so-called "submarine" shows. Far better than "What Is It" and "What Next," don't you think?

HOW ABOUT those canal boat circuses and river expositions that have been talked about for some time?

PARK MEN—Why not revive all the once notable street car parks. This is going to be the year for all live park men to show their mettle. Now is the time to get busy. Not a day or two before you expect to open.

COMING EVENTS are beginning to cast their shadows. Johnny J. Jones Exposition is to open February 12 at the Orlando (Fla.) Fair and the C. A. Wortham Exposition at the Laredo (Tex.) George Washington Birthday celebration on February 14. Are you ready, each? Others will follow in rapid succession.

OUTDOOR SHOWMEN—Make history on the Showmen's calendar of season 1918 as the days are marked off. This is the season that will make you show your right to be called showmen.

SHORT JUMPS will help the railroads. Why go all over the continent in two or three jumps? Will it be Sunday or Monday moves for you? Arrange your routes accordingly. Concentrate your jumps to short moves. Avoid any and all "cruiz" that will complicate railroad movements. Concentrate.

A PREDICTION—June 1 will find every show train moving on regular schedule time. Congested traffic requires your co-operation right now particularly.

WE HAVE classified freight rates. Chautauqua and circus rates. Next comes exposition rates to all alike. Takes time. You will see.

EVER HAVE a "guy" say: "Let me take your pencil," and then have him actually do it?

SHOWMEN'S LEAGUE of America, New York branch, has the right men as officers. Where can you find better? Harry E. Raver, Governor; H. F. McGarvie, first lieutenant; Victor D. Levitt, second lieutenant; Louis Berni, treasurer, and Edward C. White, secretary. The first step was one in the right way by the selection of its officers as men of the caliber of the ones just mentioned. W. H. Donaldson, as patron, seals the New York branch with the word success from the start.

J. C. RHODEN, the decorating contractor, when last reported, was in San Bernardino, Cal. You all know "Dusty." He decorates interiors and exteriors, automobile parades and does electrical, flag and bunting decorating of all kinds. Ask him about what pageants and parades do for all kinds of celebrations and industrial events. He can also tell you all about floats and why expositions should have them. Let him build you a "staff" arch as the entrance to your exposition grounds, and see how much it will improve the appearance of things and how many more will come to the grounds to attend your amusements. Rhoden wants to see the "New Idea" amusement exposition an assured and successful giant.

FRANK GRAHAM SCOTT is in Detroit at present and doing some excellent work for the Boedding Signal Tail Light, for which H. U. Barknot is the sole distributor. We can not afford to have Scott stay out of the outdoor show business for long. He is a valuable man, as has been demonstrated by his work as secretary, treasurer, press representative and manager.

FIVE CARN. BOYS—If that letter from South Bend, Ind., is rewritten and bears the proper signatures attention will be paid to it at once. No attention is ever given by the writer to communications unless they have authority by way of the signature route.

ROBERT OLSON, Rockford, Ill., admits on his letterhead and envelope that he is a general announcer, talker, spieler, grinder, ticket seller and taker. He writes in part under recent date: "Have for the past several weeks read with interest Random Rambles. Will be with the 'carnivals' and for them season 1918, as of old. Am looking around for some big one to tie with. You may say that I am a talker that stands for nothing but clean shows, clean concessions and clean attractions, honest, upright methods and the 'square deal.' The time for 'grift' and the underhanded methods has passed. I have never stood for anything that was not on the square. As a talker I say something well worth while and know how to put it over. When it comes to a general all round man, one who can step right up and make a strong talk on any attraction, convince the public and turn them in the direction of the box-office you will please credit me where credit is due. I have the knack of gaining the confidence of the public before I say a word. Am sober and reliable. I can study my audiences and know just what to say to them. I think that the 'new idea' amusement exposition is great, and season 1918 is going to be a humdinger. I would like to hear from Flo Rockwood (Flonzi)." Well, Olson, here is the mention. You have the writer's best wishes for success.

DO NOT FALTER. Go right along and make that organization the best that has ever traveled under your title. The world is waking up. The outdoor showman is awake. Look at the big ones that are right now in the making.

LEON W. WASHBURN'S Fashion Plate Minstrels and Happy Days in Dixie Carnival are billed as the largest and best colored show in America and claims the best singers, dancers, quartets, comedians, jazz band and equipment.

LARRY BOYD writes from Jacksonville, Fla., under date January 10, that he has been doing some booking for the Washburn Minstrels for their winter tour in Florida. He says that Florida looks like Canada. A lot of show people down there, things are very still, railroads all tied up and it looks very bad. Boyd's card reads, "Season 1918, General Agent Dorman & Krause Shows. Headquarters, Wilson, N. C." So now you see where he is for the coming season. Will say this about Larry Boyd. He made good as general agent for the Leon W. Washburn Shows last season and he will do the same this season for the Dorman & Krause Shows.

THE AMERICAN Radiator Company has out a one-sheet hanger of a carnival scene along with the "Radiators," at the top of which reads, "Give your home the warmth of the carnival," or something like that. The American people do not seem to know just the warmth of a carnival. They should step on a lot or two in the winter time.

A NEW McLEOD—Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Tex McLeod (Emily Stickney), in Cincinnati, O., on December 30, a boy. All is well. Now for another champion roper. Tex gave out the news on Broadway, New York, the other day.

AT THE MEETING IN KANSAS CITY

IT IS A PROVEN FACT

That the OPTIMIST is growing more popular with the Ride and Carnival men each month. F. L. Flack, President and Manager of the Northwestern Shows, says: "The OPTIMIST is today the classiest little trade paper that I know of, may it always continue as such." Henry V. Gehm, President of the Venice Transportation Company, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "The OPTIMIST is a very newsy and neat issue and is everything its name implies. I sincerely hope it may continue to bring optimistic thoughts to its readers." The Amusement World knows F. L. Flack and Henry V. Gehm as men of prominence among amusement men. Rest assured that both of these gentlemen have read copies of the OPTIMIST and know whereof they speak. Ask us for a copy of the January and February, 1918, numbers, and see what others say of it. After you have read these copies thoroughly, if you wish it, we will place your name on the regular mailing list. Remember, the OPTIMIST will be mailed you free each month, if you are interested. WANTED—The best gum chewer in the business, to feature with pit show. Also to assist the "cookhouse" gossiper in chewing the rag about the business and the way the show is run and a lot of other things. Join now.

THE STAMPEDE may become one of the biggest and best Wild West exhibitions the coming season. Guy Weadick and Irving J. Polack were seen together in New York recently talking that very thing over, and talking it over most seriously. The Stampede, as an independent show, would be a wonderful winner if properly framed and presented. It can be done. There is a wonderful line of paper that goes with it. Who will? The Stampede or the Days of '49, (or) any part of it. Get that out of your noodles right this minute. We notice that some call them that. Fie shame.

SOME CALAMITY howler is trying to start some noise by spreading the story that "lights out" will prevail along the Atlantic Coast resorts this summer. We are firmly convinced that no such action is contemplated. Such talk should be muzzled right now. Summer parks, amusement beaches and piers are going to enjoy season 1918 the greatest business in the history of this class of amusements. Shut up, calamity howlers.

FLYING AUTOMOBILES have not yet been invented that we know of, but that very "flying automobile" thing could be made as a big ballyhoo attraction for the "Tankerdromes" that we are now suggesting as the new auto-motordromes. Now, who did you ever hear mention the flying automobile? The idea was suggested to the writer by the illusion that Henry Baltaire put on in his Arabian Nights Illusion Show at Dreamland Park, Coney Island, some years ago. Let's have the flying automobile as a ballyhoo for the "Tankerdromes." Some years ago a fellow came into Wonderland Park, Revere Beach, Boston, Mass., and told F. C. Thompson, the manager, that he had invented the "aqua-aerio mobile," a machine that would fly in the air, run on the surface of the water, submerge, come to the surface and then run on land. Thompson told him that it was not impossible. He did not call him a "nut" and run him out of the park, as some of those standing by expected. Moral—How's that for a novelty for the "Tankerdrome" ballyhoo, too? Yes, yes, my boy, go on.

MATTHEW J. RILEY says that he has found in an automobile shop in New York an automobile that has a "governor" on it so that the speed can be regulated in order that "trailers" can be handled without shaking them to pieces. Now this is something to know about, too. Ask Riley.

INDEPENDENT SHOWMEN—What is the matter with you? Will you ever wake up? The field is wide open to you. Where are all those new shows that are needed for season 1918? It will come down and none of you will be ready to go to the front with something new. Man alive, what are you sleeping for when so many opportunities are at hand?

CHARLES CARTER—Come into the outdoor field and give us a real illusion pit show. Tell us about the illusions that you are building for W. H. Davis.

ED M. FOLEY and Ed M. Burk—What is what from your end of the continent? Wake up the rest of the Pacific Coast from your San Francisco headquarters.

JOHN A. STOCK is now a master mechanic with the Beral Organ Co., New York, which is now under the control of the Philadelphia Toboggan Co., of which Henry B. Auchy is the president.

CHARLES PRONTO, last season talker for Alfred T. Holstein on the Williams Standard Shows, is now in New York connected with the head office of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

FRANK J. LEE, once general agent, has been out of the limelight for some time. He is now traveling for the J. Johnson Co., the national view distributors of Chicago. Lee recently made his appearance on Broadway, New York. Talk about looking like prosperity—man alive, he radiates that and optimism to great abundance.

"COMPANY" APPLIED to Exposition is superfluous. It should be Amusement Exposition to get the whole idea correct. Who will be the man that will first get out a letterhead, have all stationery and instruct his agents and press representative to spread the news, "Amusement Exposition"? He will be the man in the outdoor show business that will be hailed as the man of the hour, and his name will go down in outdoor show history as the man that made his advent for the newer and greater. All you big fellows think. Will it be C. W. Parker, C. A. Wortham, James A. Patterson, Johnny J. Jones, or who? Speak now. It is the psychological time, but the ones changing to Amusement Exposition will not get it exactly. There is yet more to be told. Watch these columns. There is something coming that has not yet been revealed.

CLAUDE F. HAMILTON, the pit showman: Robert R. Parker, of Lancaster, N. Y., wants to know if you can have a pit show in Kansas City like the one you had in Atlanta about four years ago. Parker was with John H. Oyler, with Polack Brothers last season. That man Hamilton could give us a couple of good independent shows the coming season without much effort. He is listed as a showman. Where is he?

MYER TAXIER, one of the managers of riding devices with the C. A. Wortham Exposition, will leave New York about February 1 for San Antonio. He is strong for the Little Giant.

SAM SOLOMON, manager of the's Shows, came into New York from Scranton on January 14 for a week's stay on important business in connection with the coming season tour. He and William Glick were seen together quite a bit, and, of course, that started a lot of rumors of consolidation and the like. Who can tell?

SENSATIONAL AUTO races on miniature cars, driven by [illegible] dare devils. Sounds good for monkey speedway billing. Cut out all the circus now with the so-called carnivals. You have no business butting into the circus man's end of the show business. The circus is a distinctive form of amusement and should be permitted to go at that. Circus stadiums, one-ring circuses and all that, leave out. It does not belong with a so-called carnival. Moral—If you had a real, big circus side-show you would not need the "carnival." You could take in more money being the side-show of a big circus. Is that so?

ISAH J. WATKINS is the first that we know of to suggest a portable auto-motor-olo-drome for Coney Island, N. Y. Why not one at that resort, Samuel W. Gumpertz? With the vertical wall, lady riders and all that. The frequenters of Coney Island—that is, the majority—never saw an automobile running around on a vertical wall, driven either by man or woman. Well, we might just as well make it "tanker-drome" and finish the work right. Now who will be the one to get one at Coney Island, N. Y.? Do it this season. Coney Island is going to have the greatest season in its history this year.

HAWAIIAN VILLAGES will be found with a lot of the outdoor amusement organizations the coming season. Be sure it is a real one. You should be able to get the genuine Hawaiians, as they are about played out on hotel and cabaret entertainment. There are very few in vaudeville now.

TALK ABOUT advertisement writers. How was that and that Harry B. Potter wrote for the C. A. Wortham Exposition? He is some slinger of words and phrases. Give us some more, Potter.

INSTEAD of being direct from Coney Island, next year it will be direct from Bronx International Exposition. Ha! Ha! Much laughter. But a fact.

SMITH GREATER raised the standard. Well, way back in the early days, C. Smith, Chris M. Smith and Ed K. Smith vowed that they would run a show without all the other things that put carnivals in bad repute, and they have.

A LOT of people are worrying about where Capt. Louis Sorcho and his submarine show will be the coming season. Soon we shall know.

IRVING J. POLACK will very soon announce a plan of operation the coming season that will fairly startle the outdoor show world. He knows fully what the "new idea" amusement exposition means in all its minutest details.

JOHN W. MOORE, Louis W. Buckley, C. S. Karland, Dick Collins, Harry W. Wright, Syd. Wire, and a few others, would be just the men to put over the "new idea" amusement exposition. We are soon going to tell you just exactly what the "new idea" amusement exposition really is. Look for it. J. George Loos is as much responsible for the idea as anyone else in outdoor show business. John P. Martin knows a lot about it, too, as does W. J. Allmann and Geo. W. Westerman. You all will get it in time. We are still waiting for the big man to develop the field—it is wide open for him. Wonder why no one seems to get it just right. The changing of the name of your organization to "exposition" is not it by any means. It is deeper and broader than that. Wake up while the time is ripe for it.

ASK DICK COLLINS and Tom Daily about the "new idea" amusement exposition and hear what they have to say. Get Collins on the job, some of you live outdoor showmen. Frank C. Bostock—Come in, too.

WHERE IS George J. Mendelsohn?

JAS. M. HATHAWAY, when in New York last, took a ride up Fifth avenue on the bus line, and pointed out where all the prominent concessioners and showmen lived on Fifth avenue to a friend of his, who occupied the next seat. It was one of the most humorous things that Jas. M. ever did. Get him to repeat the names he mentioned to that friend. You will be surprised how many of the prominent ones have residences on Fifth avenue.

WILD BILLY ROSE has signed with the Jos. G. Ferari Shows to present his new craze autodrome for the coming season. New wagons and general equipment are now being built by Ferari for this new craze of "Wild Billies." He says that it will make all the others turn pale with envy when they see it. Joseph G. Ferari is going right along with his plans for the coming season without stop or any thought as to the cost.

THE BEST NAME that we know of is Ferari. When applied to a certain class of outdoor show business.

WHO CLOSED all the store shows in Philadelphia, huh? What did the Philadelphia papers say? You should just read them, that's all. Why do some people want to wear out their welcome in a city, huh? C. H. Armstrong was the first in, and will doubtless stay there.

GEORGE H. HAMILTON'S new show will be called The Irish Hippodrome and Jew Circus. No one getting sore about it.

MILTON MORRIS left New York for Petersburg to look after his business interests there. He made them know that he was in New York.

HARRY WITT AND GEO. F. HARRIS have a great idea for a show in that new high command trench exhibition, the model of which they showed at the last showmen's meeting held in Eddie Hayes' place recently. It will be a winner. Several have already booked it for the season. Make 'em talk, Harry and George F.

MR. AND MRS. C. E. BARFIELD came to New York, but were not seen around much among the outdoor show headquarters. Metropolitan shows are making good, so why should they worry?

THERE IS A NEW RESTAURANT that serves sea food now in New York that wants to cater to the outdoor show business. It is the New Aquarium by name.

HOW WELL DO YOU riding device men know the Stickney Engine, made by E. R. Rogers, Chicago?

MORE TOOK THEM OUT last season than brought them back. We are changing this order of things now. The outdoor show business is rapidly getting on a substantial footing.

IRVING J. POLACK is now busy between New York, Chicago and the West.

THE GREATER SHEESLEY SHOWS

TENTING SEASON OPENS AT NORFOLK, VA., THE LAST WEEK IN MARCH

I will buy outright or play on percentage a Whip (no junk). Can place new Shows; must be select, new and classy and in keeping with the upward trend of this aggregation. I will finance along the line of amusement which will in my opinion be attractive and get money. Will contract for a good Band. I want to buy two or more good 60-foot Flat Cars. Good Talkers, Performers and Bosses, write in early. I can also place a limited number of Concessions. Don't ask us if we can move. Leave that to the management, we always move.

Norfolk, Newport News and Portsmouth, Va., are the opening stands, and there are plenty to follow them already booked where there is money in bunches. Our past has been magnetic; the future must be even greater, as I have the best men only, who handle the destinies of this aggregation.

All communications JOHN M. SHEESLEY, care of Norfolk's best playhouse, the Zoo and Hippodrome. The biggest kind of a surprise and success. Norfolk, Va.

San Francisco Facts.

Edward Henter, well known in the carnival world as "Dick," was severely injured by an automobile on Market street.

M. A. Goody postponed his departure for Honolulu until January 12. He expects to remain there all winter, joining the Great Wortham Shows at Kent, Wash., in the spring. Word received from Kent indicates that the shows will open there some time in May, playing three days, then going to Vancouver, B. C.

The positions of stage manager and carpenter at the Oakland Orpheum have been consolidated, and Frank Casey, for many years a house employee, occupies the combined positions. Harry Cornell, the new manager, is said to be making the house return dividends for the first time in its history.

Ralph D. Wetmore, well known violinist, has returned to the Franklin Motion Picture Theater at Oakland with his own orchestra.

Fred H. Kressmann, secretary-manager of the Bernardi Greater Exposition Company, has left to take up his winter position as booking agent for the F. M. Barnes Theatrical Exchange. He expects to return to his position with Bernardi on the opening of the carnival season.

"Bill" Foster, Mrs. Foster and Edna May, their daughter, arrived from a successful engagement on the McIntosh Circuit in Australia December 15, and immediately went to work on the Ackerman & Harris-W. V. M. A. Circuit.

Maud Amber, of the Blake and Amber Agency, booked a number of circus and carnival acts for the Elks' Sportsmen's and Outing Show at the Oakland Auditorium.

Bobby Martell (Mrs. S. F. Bird) is wintering in San Francisco. She received a letter from her husband, Zoma, the Babe Cop, recently, in which he details some exciting experiences on the French front. Zoma is with the Anzacs, "somewhere in France," and states that just before he wrote he was under shellfire, which narrowly missed him, killing three of his comrades. He was at the Panama-Pacific Exposition during its duration, working on the Zone.

E. L. Davenport, recently general agent with the World at Home Shows, dropped in for an hour or two to "cut up some old money" with the bunch. He is wintering in California, and will leave for Los Angeles soon.

Allan Doone has returned from a hunting trip in the Northwest, where he went to recover his health. He reports himself much improved, and shows the improvement by his looks. His plans are as yet immature.

Felice and Mrs. Bernardi came in from the winter quarters at Palo Alto, and are stopping at the Dell. Felice expects to open his show some time about the middle of March. General Agent W. C. Huggins has been out prospecting territory, and announces that he has secured the opening stand, and several more to follow.

George Embree sold his monkey speedway on the Bernardi Greater Shows last season to Foley & Burk, and announces that he is bound back for the circus game. "No more grease ball shows for mine," says George. "I know where I am at in the circus game, but the carnival business is all Greek to me."

Ed Garner dropped over from Palm Beach, Alameda, long enough to tell us about the big improvements being planned for the beach next season. According to Garner the entire plant has been wrecked of its buildings with the exception of the big bathhouse, and $50,000 worth of improvements are contemplated before the opening of the 1918 season.

A change of policy is in store for the Casino, the new vaudeville house on Ellis street, effective January 27, when the franchise acts now being furnished by the W. V. M. A. Ackerman & Harris offices will be worked into a grand revue bill as far as practicable and a thirty minute afterpiece produced. Lou Jacobs will have charge of the productions. Performers already engaged include Earl Caldwell, Scot Butterworth, Margery Shaw, James Edwards and a chorus of eight. Blake & Amber furnish the cast.

Louis Greenfeld, member of the firm of Kahn & Greenfeld, owners of the New Fillmore, New Mission and other motion picture theaters in San Francisco, was the guest of honor at a banquet and mock trial given by the members of the exchanges on Film Row on January 14, the occasion being his approaching marriage to Miss Edna Greenberg. Greenfeld was brought to the "bar" as the defendant, and the "boys" had considerable fun with him, compelling him to extricate himself from the absurd charges which were brought against him. Newton Levy, Mutual Film, E. O. Child, Pathe, and J. W. Allen, Paramount-Artcraft, were the judges. E. Bruce Johnson, Turner & Dahnken, was prosecuting attorney; H. H. Hicks, Select, was counsel for the defense. Edward H. Baron, American Photoplayer Company, was court stenographer, and Louis Reinhart and F. W. Voight, the "two biggest men in the film business," were the bailiffs. Meyer J. Cohen, local manager for George Kleine attractions, was the toastmaster at the banquet which followed.

Blake & Amber have booked the entire week of the new revue to be staged by Amusement Manager Berger at the Portola Louvre. The same office is assembling a cast for a new song revue to be staged on the Pantages Circuit by Joe Howard, opening in San Francisco on January 27.

Harry Davis, for several years in the advance of the Al G. Barnes Circus, it is reported, is making good as manager for Will King at the Savoy. Davis has charge of the house for King, and it is thru his energy that the house is already on a paying basis, while only in its fourth week. King figured eight weeks of hard work and there promotion to show a weekly profit.

Mary Passmore, well known locally as a vocalist of considerable merit, has joined the Mischa Elman quintet.

Miss Stella McDonald, formerly a dancing instructor and recently engaged with a film, is at her home in Oakland on a vacation. Known professionally as Mme. Estelle, Miss McDonald will organize a troupe of dancing girls for motion picture work before returning to Los Angeles.—BOZ.

LOS ANGELES NOTES

Jack Callicott has been appointed manager of Grauman's new million dollar motion picture theater.

Fuller, the big ape owned by Charley Smith, gave a demonstration recently when he unlocked his cage and escaped from his quarters at the E. & R. Jungle Film Studio and frisked about the neighborhood for several hours, pursued by Keeper Dick Hall. Fuller, contrary to popular belief, was as goodnatured as a kitten, but succeeded in instilling the fear of satan into several pedestrians, the members of a Mexican railroad gang and a lot of children before he was finally captured by a big section foreman, who walked up to him and calmly tied a rope around his waist.

Buck Massey has been appointed manager of Clune's Auditorium Theater. Feature films are the policy.

Bob Cavenagh's "Patsy" created much merriment recently by becoming bold enough to operate his "flivver" in the business district for a couple of hours. Outside of upsetting an express wagon loaded with trunks and tearing the front of his machine all to pieces the tour was highly successful.

H. M. Waugh purchased the underground Chinatown Show of Sid. Grauman and will have the show on the Wortham Bros.' Show, of which he is manager. Red McIntyre went to San Francisco to ship and pack the paraphernalia and will, in all probability, handle the show during the season. It was one of the top money attractions at the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Interest in coming events is centered in the National Orange Show to be held at San Bernardino in February. Carl Beasley has the contract for furnishing the attractions, and the show will be the opening stand of the Beasley Talbert Shows. The Newlyweds have been booked by B. H. McIntyre as one of the Orange Show attractions.

Bill Pickens is running around promoting as usual. The latest idea of Bill's is a big Spring Exposition and Products Show to be held at Ascot Park after the National Orange Show, if plans mature properly.

Clarence Wortham and Bill Rice, his general agent, are expected here soon according to letters received by friends of Rice.

That the Government can use the services of even an armless and legless man is demonstrated by the call recently received by Peerless Billy Pilgrim from the War Department. Pilgrim, who is working in Sky Clark's museum on Main street, received a summons from the War Department's local representative, requesting him to report to him, and was much perplexed as to the cause, knowing that he could be of no use as a soldier. Now the Government is planning to take motion pictures of Pilgrim in his principal stunts and to compile a history of Pilgrim's life with a view of impressing maimed soldiers with the idea that even handicapped by the loss of both arms and legs a man can "get by" and do it with flying colors, as in Pilgrim's case.

John Kemp has purchased the interest of Mercier in the Venice Aquarium on the Venice Pier and will operate the enterprise himself hereafter.—BOZ.

THE McMAHON SHOWS

To Travel in Ten Cars This Year—Will Feature Dog, Pony and Monkey Circus

Contracts have just been received by the McMahon Shows for five big fairs and a Fourth of July date. The fairs include one State fair. The McMahon Shows are so well known thruout the Northwest that the committees have a habit of asking the agent "What week do you want?" instead of saying "We can't use you." This show since the organization some 14 years ago has never tolerated any wheels (except the Big Eli), Girl Shows, '49 Camps, Well Shows or any rough stuff of any nature.

This year the show will go out on a ten-car outfit, the management owning all the equipment, including three rides, electric light plant, wagon trucks, baggage and hotel cars and all show paraphernalia. A dog, pony and monkey circus will be featured. Two pit shows or ten-in-one will be at the head of the midway, one a jungle show, with one of the smallest elephants alive, the other a museum. Willie the Wonder will have the Athletic Show, and is now busy building a new 25-foot panel front. The Monkey Speedway is being rebuilt and enlarged. The Musical Comedy Show, called the Liberty Girls, will have a 40-ft. panel front and a new 30x70 top. Fourteen people will produce this show. Mrs. Ruhl, with her celebrated Flea Circus, will also grace the midway.

A Mechanical City Show is being built and will be called Paris. A twelve-piece band and two free acts will also be carried.

The business staff to date is: Gov. T. W. McMahon, proprietor; Chas. A. McMahon, general manager; Mrs. Chas. McMahon, secretary and treasurer; Doc Hall, general contracting agent; Emmett McMahon, advertising agent; George Haney, second agent and press; Harry Fredricks, lot superintendent; Joe Williams, electrician; Shorty Johnstone, motor trucks; Johnnie McMahon, Billboard agent and mail.—DOC HALL.

FAULKNER'S EXPOSITION SHOWS

Ft. Valley, Ga., Jan. 24.—Despite much snow, lots of rain, seas of mud, wind and more wind and a continual fight with the railroads for movements, the Faulkner Exposition Shows have kept going and have not lost any money. A severe windstorm hit the show at Eagan, Ga., and did considerable damage to the swing and completely ruined the plant. show. Business at East Point, Ga., was very good, and all left that place in good humor. Eagan, the next stand, while not so good, let everyone get by with a little on the right side of the ledger. The show is now making a ten-day stand at Ft. Valley, January 16 to 26, inclusive. It is the intention of the management to spend the rest of January in Georgia and the month of February in Alabama, then head north.

Up to December 25 this organization was known as the Mac Greater Shows. At that time Mr. Mac severed his connection with the show, and as Bascom M. Faulkner was the owner of most of the property he at once took over the outfit and placed W. A. Strode in charge; also changed the title to Faulkner's Exposition Shows. The business staff is composed of Bascom M. Faulkner, owner; W. A. Strode, manager; W. E. Franks, secretary-treasurer; R. P. (Doc) Randle, general agent; Clint Brown, special agent; Arthur Sperry, electrician and lot man. The show now consists of four paid attractions, one ride (carry-us-all) and ten concessions, and is transported in three cars.

FAMOUS NAT REISS SHOWS

Planning To Open in April—Four Rides Now Booked

Chicago, Jan. 29.—The Famous Nat Reiss Shows are going ahead with their plans for the coming season, and expect to have their own railroad equipment of fifteen cars. The riding devices have been booked, and consist of carousel, Whip, Ferris wheel and James Knight's Tango Whirl. Besides the four rides there will be about nine paid attractions, and each and every one will be high-class and novel. It is the intention of the management to have one of the cleanest shows en route. Many letters have already been received offering real choice dates. The opening, according to present plans, will take place about the third week in April.

H. G. Melville, general manager of the show, is back in Chicago after a brief visit with the home folks in the East.

CARNIVAL AT MEXICALI

For a closer union between citizens of the valley and Lower California a number of leading citizens of Mexicali, Mex., and higher government officials have decided to hold a carnival for three days, February 10 to 12. The streets will be used by the shows being booked.

WALTER F. STANLEY

Made General Manager of Rice & Wortham, Inc., Caravan

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 26.—Walter F. Stanley, last year assistant manager of the C. A. Wortham Shows, has been made general manager of the Wortham & Rice, Inc., Caravan, the change being immediately effective. Messrs. Wortham, Rice and Stanley will go to New Orleans, where the shows are in winter quarters, next week. New construction and remodeling of the shows will start immediately. Several new attractions have already been contracted, and several new ones will be built at once. It is the intention of Wortham, Rice and Stanley to make the organization one of the strongest from every angle that will tour.

Charles Cook, for several years superintendent of the Al G. Barnes Circus, is en route from his home at San Diego to fill a like position with the company at New Orleans. Neither money nor effort will be spared to make the organization a signal contender in territory thru which it will tour. L. S. Snapp, last year treasurer with the Wortham Bros.' Shows, will fill a like position with the company. Harry E. Potter, who last year steered the Great Wortham Shows thru a route of prosperity, will be general agent. The balance of the staff will be of a caliber equal to the men whom Wortham and Rice have named as commanders of the organization.

The shows will open the latter part of March. Several excellent stands have been booked to follow the opening, and General Agent Potter, who has practically booked the winter tour of the C. A. Wortham Company, will take charge of the advance. General Manager Stanley will remain in New Orleans supervising and attending to the company's business.

At the winter quarters of the C. A. Wortham Company everybody is busy getting attractions ready for the winter opening at Laredo February 14. Indications are that the train will be well loaded when it leaves San Antonio February 12, with a lot of worthwhile attractions and clean concessions. Wortham will not go with the show, but will remain at San Antonio attending to business for the regular summer tour of the C. A. Wortham World's Greatest Exposition Company. Wortham will have a big party as his guests at the Showmen's League of America banquet at Chicago, February 22. He will be there to talk business as well as indulge in momentary pleasure.

Henry Knight, formerly of the Oriental Hotel, Dallas, will have charge of the privileges, and William (Bill) Wilson, one of the best known and best equipped dining service men in the country, will have charge of the dining car. A new car has been secured for that purpose, and will be fitted for that purpose only.

W. H. (Bill) Rice is more than living up to his reputation as a fast stepping general agent. As representative of the C. A. Wortham interests he has not allowed extremely unfavorable weather conditions nor paralyzed train service to interfere with his stepping. Snow does not melt under his feet in the North, nor will grass grow under him when he heads South. He travels faster than the telegraph, and has landed what he went after to date. The C. A. Wortham World's Greatest Exposition Company already has many excellent contracts for the season. "Bill" Rice does not belong to the Radiator League.—C. M. CASEY.

—Tom Wallace.

We understand that Dr. Howard Curtis is preaching religion.

Oh, for the life on a billowy wave—nixe, Doc Burger? Doc is some jolly rover; he set his snoot for Madrid, Mo., a long time ago, that was before the mercury got friendly with the glass and capthe end. Now Doc is stuck a la North Pole on the Mrs. Sippi, near Pt. Pleasant, Mo., and says he should worry, as the grub is good, and they like his show.

We are wondering if Bill Bailey don't work any more. Some say there's no place like home.

Heard in Dear Old New England States:
"What's becom of Comikle Brown? He was a god 'un. Ef I thought I cud see a show gud as hisen I'd go, by gosh!" . . . "An' Old Dick Morts, he was one ov them ere ventrilykwist fellers. He stopped taw our place over night. Gosh, he cut up some capers!"

Mrs. Ben Cochrane suffered a serious accident in San Francisco recently when her arm was broken while cranking an automobile. She is the popular Missus of the genial old Ben, who is now working George Sheon's vibrator on Market street, next to Lou Schelling's novelty store.

CORPORAL JOE ACKERMAN

"Ready to go. Give us a chance," says Corporal Joe "Vaseline" Ackerman, who has shown his ability and has already earned promotion. Joe is at present learning how to shoot the Kaiser with Co. A, 341st M. G. B., Camp Funston, Kansas.

It isn't what you were in 1812, it's what will you DO in 1918.

Shorty Harber accepted an engagement from Dr. J. A. Smith. Doc will open the season near Carthage, Tex.

Sam Murdock has just returned from a two weeks' sojourn on his ranch down in Illinois. Sam has raised the price of his bottle from ten cents to fifteen cents. The Old Reliable stopped off in Chicago and visited his friend Kid Holmes.

D. C. Ranger and wife are enjoying themselves this winter in Oklahoma City, Ok., laying off thru the cold weather. They will be connected with one of the big ones this summer.

We heard that Jack Crawford was trying to make a pitch at two o'clock in the morning out of his car. What do you say, Jack?

Bert Glanner, the soldier, is back in Detroit and has just bought a swell new bus. He is negotiating (nice word, huh? You've got to have money to do that) for a trailer to carry his shivs, which he claims will help swell the B. R. His old partner, Hope Mofdenhauer, is working with him around the shops. The soldier says that the boys around the shops are clamoring for shiv staple. English Harry, please note.

Dr. E. G. Gassoway intends working the coming season with his brother Hunter. They will carry Banjo Barnes and Walter McIntosh.

How now, Doc Harry Daley? Get any letter? Would like to hear from you, oldtimer.

Speaking of the Spring Special—all those aspiring and perspiring sons of the pen (you're wrong Clarice) may dump their fond hopes onto a gullible public in the Spring Special of The Billboard by plastering up their aforementioned brain children with three-centers and mailing them to yours truly. This, of course, includes the long-haired boys, those who dot their i with a circle, and the cheap batty ones, who may efuse to their heart's content, with poetry, yarns, double-dyed lies, facts, and anything else not too strong, in other words that will pass mustard, meaning muster (some mustard is strong, you know). So you who have inspirations, aspirations or prespiration, speak up right now, or you may get killed in the rush.

After Honolulu, what, Brother Ben Bruns?

Campbell, Tarbox and Lysinger are still shaking hands with the natives around Oklahoma City, Ok.

The new edition of the cinder list will go to press in about two weeks. Those who have corrections in the current list will do yours truly a favor by kicking in now. One dime, ten cents, will be the same price in spite of the high cost of ink.

Weaver, with prison books, is about the only pitchman working Ft. Worth, Tex. Clever Carrol holds the pole and sells puzzles.

Billy Auchter, up in a Maine town, writes: "Yoe better not cum in mud time, as the people don't go out much."

The first one to horn in with a contradiction to our contention that Big Foot Wallace was born in the year of 1855 is C. Jefferson, writing from up in Ohio, who says: "I have a few words to say about Big Foot Wallace. In 1867, Sept-es, he joined the Haight & Chambers Show at St. Joseph, Mo. It was a steamboat show as they traveled on the steamer Cossa, and I heard them talk often about Mr. Wallace. I was 18 years old then and I should judge he was two or three years older than I. I only know one showman who is still alive who traveled with the trick show and that is Al Miaco, the clown off the Ringling Show. He may be able to tell you something." According to Friend Jefferson's statement the date of Wallace's birth would have been 1846 or '47, which now brings on to the issue which is correct, '47 or '55, or are either of them right?

Pretty soft for Freddie Holmes. Last summer he made a pitch out of Doc Moran's car and he admitted he never had such a bunch of folks in front of him when he works off in the sticks.

Johnny Hopper made one of the biggest "Tommy Horse" pitches that has been made in Cleveland in years. A street car bumped into one of the Holden Distributing Company's trucks and Johnny pitched out on his head. The street car company settled for $250, and Johnny says that was a good pitch for him with zero weather on the job. Johnny is with the Holden people and will go out in spring bigger, grander, etc.

Ray Murdock, son of Sam, is now a full-fledged compositor. He has a nice little plant located in Monroe avenue in the Casino Arcade, Detroit. Ray says no more shops for him.

Doc Mays is peddling land along in thru Miami, Ok., and is doing well for the winter.

Doc must have got the idea from Josh Treadway and Sandy Morrel.

Doesn't anybody ever get a lien on those two regular scouts, Dr. J. R. Watson and wife?

Doc Welch is camped outside of Miami, Ok. No work, too much ice and snow balls.

We're all set for that notice from you now, Hal Curtis. Will Verplatt did his duty, so it's up to you. What do you say?

This is a regular wharf—all the docks—ooh! Doc Heber Becker, Doc Moore, Doc Walsh, the Indian Herb Doctor and Worley all snowed under at Miami, Ok.

Seen in the heart of Detroit several years ago working in a little store room: Doc McCarthy corn dope; Dr. Potter, snake oil; Dr. Harry Knobs, hand wash; Dr. Sam Morto, snake oil; Charlie Johnson, buttons; Paddie Smithy, paddles; Doc Moran, herbs. How did they all get money, and has there ever been so many doctors working in one place at one time?

If it's too cold to pitch let's go out and play for a pecker wood dance.

A highly interesting letter is received from John E. Rand, the soldier knight of the torch who is at the front in France. Johnny says: "Give all my friends my best wishes and greetings of the season (the letter was mailed December 23) and for the love of Mike send me a copy of The Billboard. We are close up on the Western front 'somewhere in France' and I am working like hell. We have some of the first Americans wounded here. Tell the boys to shoot me a few letters. It will be welcome to hear some real dope again. My name in private life is Private John E. Ryan, Base Hospital No. 18, American Expeditionary Force, France." He especially mentions Andy Watson.

Speaking of Andy Watson reminds us of that old poetic boy whom we learned some time ago was the unfortunate loser of one of his eyes, and since this deplorable accident we haven't heard from him. Why all this silence, Andy? How is Texas?

Whatever became of Doc Fred Blankner? Does anyone know?

Mrs. Elizabeth Michelson, wife of Mathias Michelson, well-known knight of the torch, died at San Francisco December 31 at the age of 58 years. Mrs. Michelson was well known at the Panama Pacific Exposition, where she had a demonstration during the entire run of the fair.

Still making the button sale, Mrs. I. L. Pitcher?

Those were the good old days when Doc Moran and Doc Simms played pool for ten dollars a game. Who won?

Al Isaacs, the king of wipes and white stones, has taken up his hounk at Russell's Point, O., again and will rest before mixing in the fray. Al has just closed a most successful season in one of those Utopian spots that he discovered over in West Virginia.

THRIFT-SPENDING AND SPEND-THRIFTING

Ellis Parker Butler

Peter Patriot had a penny. Sammy Slacker had a cent.

Peter put his penny in his pocket until he had twenty-five, and then he bought a Thrift Stamp.

Thus Peter had saved twenty-five cents for himself; he had loaned twenty-five cents to the Government; he had permitted the Government to buy twenty-five cents' worth of goods or services to win the war; he had helped business, himself, his country. He was Peter Patriot.

Sammy Slacker spent his cent for some silly, insignificant stuff—sweets or something—and saved nothing, did not help the Government and was simply selfish Sammy Slacker.

Peter's purchase paves paths to permanent prosperity; Sammy's silly spending signifies sorrow some day.

Moral: BUY WAR SAVINGS STAMPS.

the country, and the reason the fairs of 1917 or a majority of them prospered and broke records was because people welcomed the opportunity to cease war talk at the breakfast table, in the schools, in business circles and even in the pulpits. They were loyal, they were patriotic and yet they welcomed the opportunity to leave home, to shut their eyes to scareheads in newspapers and stop the discussion of war conditions and issues for a few days while they wended their several ways to their favorite fairs.

"Everybody knows the results. The turnstiles, in many instances, grew weary in recording the attendance, the exhibit space was crowded, and best of all the fair spirit was there, for without the crowds and without what for want of a better term I will call enthusiasm the biggest fair in the land would prove a dismal failure. Thus the fair managers who held no expositions in 1917 missed the greatest year of them all and what the boy with the longest jump back in school days would term a pattern.

"The new year is here and many of us are engulfed in the same maze of uncertainties that existed in the early part of last year and even more perplexing problems and discouraging situations confront us. No man would be so bold or so foolish as to predict, with any degree of certainty, just what as the preachers say 'the future holds in store for us,' but fair officials may proceed with as much assurance of success as men in any other line of business. Should the war continue fair managers will necessarily be handicapped, yet, in my opinion, they are the most resourceful and most optimistic class of business men now enjoying their freedom, for a fair official who does not possess these qualities soon ceases to be a fair official and returns to the business of raising Belgian hares or joins the Mormon ministry, both doing bringing much additional business with little extra effort.

"It is a sure thing that if we enter into the business of fair making this year in a cautious, grouchy, afraid-of-our-shadow fashion then we are sure to see the reflection of our work to our coming exhibitions. But if we turn our faces toward the rising sun, ready and willing to battle with the obstacles that may beset us, then we may reasonably be assured of big exhibitions, and to this let me add that if peace is a reality before the summer and fall then move back your fences, enlarge your grand stands and send word to the Government to ship more 50-cent pieces to your section after the fair is over, for your association will garner at your front gate every half dollar that ever roamed the country, and the music of all the Carusos, the mocking birds and the jackasses in the land will not approach the harmony and the melody produced by the jingle the coin of the realm, the hoin seed, if you please, makes as it falls behind the counter and into your cash registers.

"If the rulers of this great country are wise they will promulgate an edict that will shackle the State and county fairs of the land or any of their several departments, for without the least effort to discount the work of agricultural colleges, divisions of extension, free seeds and secretaries of agriculture, in my opinion, fairs have wrought more for the country's advancement in agriculture and stock raising in their several allied farms than all the other agencies combined and but for the interest the fairs of the country have aroused the food situation, bad as it is today, would be fearful to contemplate. For these reasons I am confident that fairs may this year above all other years expect co-operation from the Government rather than a series of foolish red tape regulations calculated to damage or destroy them.

"Nine months have elapsed since the declaration of war by our country and there are yet nine months until the fair season. Many new things not scheduled have appeared in that space of time, and who knows but what some enterprising booking agent may be offering all of us contracts to have the German Kaiser appear immediately in front of the grand stand, afternoons and evenings, in a high dive from the top of a 140-foot ladder?

"The prophet of old surely had Dixie in mind when he said: 'The Lord thy God bringeth thee into a good land, a land of brooks of water, of fountains and depths that spring out of valleys and hills, a land of wheat and barley, and vines and fig trees and pomegranates, a land of olive oil and honey, a land wherein thou shalt eat bread without scarceness, thou shalt not lack anything in it; a land whose stones are iron, and out of whose hills thou mayest dig brass.'

"Let us here and now dedicate our fairs to Uncle Sam in an alliance, offensive and defensive, pledging the best that is in us in an effort to create an interest that means we will do more than our share in feeding not only our own nation, but those of our allies as well.

"The South is a great land. Our climate and our soils are such that a fence might be built around our country, so high that even the devil could not 'go over the top,' and we could live until Gabriel brings out his cornet that we all may appear for the final trial before, but on that day the chances are more than even that heaven would be moved down here.

"To my mind there is no greater agency or body of men contributing to the success of Dixie, and to their proportionate part to the success of the nation as well, than are the men who give of their time, their energies and their talents to make the fairs of the Southern Association what they are today."

BLOCKHEADS OR NEW BLOCK SYSTEM

The order against hauling private cars issued by Director-General McAdoo has been enforced so blindly, unintelligently and stupidly as to lead one to suspect that the men in railroad service are largely blockheads and dolts or so ARTFUL, CUNNING AND CRAFTY AS TO CLEARLY INDICATE ULTERIOR AND SINISTER MOTIVES.

Mr. McAdoo's order was aimed at those private cars which carried a millionaire and his wife with a retinue of servants, or a railroad president, his stenographer and a cook and porter, in fine, the luxurious palace on wheels maintained at enormous expense, but accommodating only three or four people.

If you have a sleeper accommodating over fifteen people, or a baggage car (and your baggage is over half a carload), both are a help and not a hindrance to the roads.

Mr. McAdoo did not intend his order to apply to cars of this description, and when railroad men in high places telegraph their subordinates to obey the order literally they are—they must be—scheming to bring down criticism and discredit on Mr. McAdoo and perhaps create a prejudice and hostility to Government ownership in the public mind.

Do not stand for it.

If any railroad refuses to haul your car or cars telegraph Mr. McAdoo, state how many people the car sleeps, how much baggage you carry and that your own men load and unload the latter.

Imperative orders to move you will be wired unless extraordinary conditions prevent.

BIG STOCK SHOW

Being Held in Denver, Col.

Denver, Col., Jan. 25.—The twelfth annual exhibition of the National Western Stock Show Association opened more auspiciously than ever before at the stadium of the association at the Denver Union Stock Yards last Saturday. Literally hundreds of entries have been sent to Denver to compete with the best stock in the West for honors. The show is said to surpass anything of its kind ever held in the West. The animals are better groomed and at a better showing advantage than ever before.

There are visitors here from all over the West, more particularly from Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho and New Mexico, and every hotel is crowded to overflowing.

It is estimated that more than a million dollars will exchange hands in the sales of live stock as the result of the show. Secretary Fred P. Johnson, of the association, with a staff of workers, has been busy for a month arranging the details of the show which will come to a close tomorrow.

Denver has been given over to the stockmen. The theaters have billed Western frontier shows and the merchants are catering to the cattle and horsemen.

G. W. DICKINSON

Re-Elected Secretary Michigan State Fair

The Billboard is in receipt of the following letter from G. W. Dickinson, who was re-elected secretary-manager of the Michigan State Fair:

"The 1917 Michigan State Fair was the greatest in its history. The attendance exceeded the 300,000 mark, an average of over 30,000 per day for ten days. We had two days of rainy weather, which cut down our attendance and receipts considerably. The attendance on Labor Day alone exceeded 117,000, probably the largest crowd that ever attended a fair in one day. We never had a more satisfied lot of exhibitors and concessioners, and a bigger, better and more comprehensive exhibit was made in every department. From present indications our 1918 exposition will exceed our 1917 fair in every respect.

"The Government never needed the support of the fairs as much as the present time, both in encouraging the production of food stuff and in informing the people in general regarding new conditions which are confronting us as a nation. Fairs are the only large annual gatherings in the State made up of all classes of people, and I think it should be the aim of every fair secretary to, as far as possible, show a demonstration of the preparing, preserving and conservation of foods and raising of live stock, which is so much needed at this time.

"An effort will also be made to teach the farmer how to increase production by the use of registered grains and show the necessary ingredients required in soil to grow the same. Our 1918 Exposition will be conducted along military lines and exhibits from the Federal Government have been promised me. A more careful selection of our attractions will be made and everything will tend toward increasing patriotism.

"I believe there is as much necessity for the development of the human race as there is for the producing of better live stock. Consequently we will put on a six-months physical culture body building contest in conjunction with our Better Babies' Contest. In the latter contestants are eligible from one to three years of age and entries are received up to the opening day of the fair.

"The Body Building Contest will be divided into three classes, viz.: Boys and girls, 3 to 12 years of age, boys and girls, 12 to 21 years of age, and men and women over 21 years of age.

"It is up to ourselves as individuals to develop ourselves so we will not lack in the full amount of energy during these trying times. About 40 per cent of our population will probably be in training at the front, and the fighting that the 60 per cent who stay at home will have to do will require as much physical strength and endurance as that required by the boys on the battle fields. We will endeavor to make this department one of the important features of our 1918 fair and will start our campaign immediately, securing entries during the month of February, as the contest will be for six months, commencing March 7. On September 7 the judging will be done in public on our grounds.

"We are also making a radical change in our machinery department this year. In order that the farmer may have an opportunity to become conversant with the latest labor-saving devices used on a farm we have decided to make no charge whatever for exhibits in our machinery field, realizing that there is a necessity for the farmer to have machinery on his farm to put in and harvest the crops to take the place of men at the front.

"It is my opinion that the fairs never had such an opportunity to show what great benefactors they are in the development of a community as at the present time and it is up to each one of us to put forth our best efforts for the 1918 fairs as a whole.

"John S. Haggerty was re-elected president and myself re-elected secretary-manager for the ensuing year."

PICTURE INDUSTRY ASKED TO AID WAR SAVINGS PLAN

Secretary McAdoo Requests Exhibitors To Help Make Campaign a Success—Adolph Zukor Takes Up Matter Upon His Return From Interview With Washington Officials

New York, Jan. 26.—Adolph Zukor, president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, and chairman of the Committee of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, formed to co-operate with the Government in its war program, returned from Washington last week after a conference with the Federal officials, and announced new plans calling for the continued co-operation of exhibitors and the entire industry in the new drive for war funds.

W. G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury, in a letter to exhibitors thruout the country, expressed high appreciation of the assistance the motion picture industry has given his department heretofore. The united front that it has presented when calls for voluntary service went forth has been a source of great inspiration to all who are directly charged with the conduct of the war, according to the Secretary. In his appeal to the industry Mr. McAdoo asks the aid of the exhibitor in making the War Savings campaign a success.

"Secretary McAdoo has already started a campaign among exhibitors," said Mr. Zukor, upon his return from Washington. "In connection with the new War Savings Stamps drive. Three slides, prepared by the Committee of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry to co-operate with the Treasury Department, have been accepted and are being distributed among exhibitors in all parts of the country.

"Not only is it a patriotic duty of every exhibitor to use these slides as frequently as possible, but the fact that he shows them will tend to further enhance his standing among his patrons who will appreciate his efforts toward the realization of the goal for which we are fighting."

The activities of the Committee from the National Association, now working hand in hand with the Government, has received many laudatory comments in Washington. In the last Liberty Loan drive 70,000 slides were prepared and sent out under the supervision of this committee, as well as 500,000 feet of film of patriotic appeal. The effectiveness of this co-operation in the motion picture theater was seen apparent, as expressed by Secretary McAdoo and other Government officials. The National Association Committee to the Government consists of Adolph Zukor, chairman; W. W. Irwin, J. E. Brulatour, Marcus Loew and Geo. K. Spoor.

The letter which Secretary McAdoo has sent to exhibitors reads as follows:

"Dear Sir—Convinced by the splendid spirit of patriotic co-operation which you showed in the first and second Liberty Loan campaigns that you are always eager to assist the Government in carrying out the war program, I desire to ask your aid in making the War Savings campaign a success.

"Under separate cover three lantern slides, prepared by your Committee of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry to co-operate with the Treasury Department, are being sent you. If you will display these slides as frequently as possible on the screens of your theaters you will perform a distinct service in behalf of your country.

"I can not refrain at this time from expressing my high appreciation of the assistance that the Motion Picture Industry has given the Treasury Department heretofore. The united front that it has presented when calls for voluntary service went forth has been a source of great inspiration to all who are directly charged with the conduct of the war.

"Cordially yours,
"(Signed) W. G. McADOO."

M. P. EXPO. POSTPONED

Will Be Held at Grand Central Palace September 7-15

New York, Jan. 26.—At a meeting held Monday at the offices of the N. A. M. P. I. it was decided by those mostly interested in the success of the Motion Picture Exposition, at the Grand Central Palace, to postpone the celebration from February 2 until September 7-15. The directors of the Exposition Company and the large purchasers of space at the show are of the opinion that the new date will be better, as it comes at a time when the people are returning to the city after Labor Day and the film trade is beginning its fall activity.

Scene in My Four Years in Germany, by James W. Gerard, and directed by William Nigh.

ESSANAY STAR IN SCENIC

Virginia Valli in A Romance of Rails and Power

New York, Jan. 26.—A Romance of Rails and Power, the current release in the Essanay scenic series, furnishes a striking screen novelty, according to General Film Company. The popular Essanay star, Virginia Valli, takes part in the scenic, appearing in a story woven around the progress accomplished in electrifying the Western railroads. This provides a striking human interest touch for one of the greatest of industrial romances. The use of electric locomotive power by the railroads and many beautiful and novel scenes along the railroads are shown in connection with the attractive story.

There is a slight change in these General Film scenic releases, Water Powers of Eastern Canada being the release formerly listed as The Bay of Fundy. After A Romance of Rails and Power will come The Two Greatest Things in the World—the Grand Canyon of Arizona and Canyon de Chelly.

GENERAL IN NEW HOME

Removal of New York Headquarters to Berkeley Building Effected

New York, Jan. 26.—The home office of General Film Company celebrated the week just closed by settling in its comfortable new quarters on the seventeenth floor of the Berkeley Building at 25 West Forty-fourth street, one of the most modern and efficient office buildings in New York. The big job of moving the various executive departments, which occupied the entire sixteenth floor of the building at 440 Fourth avenue, was completed without serious interruption to the work of any of the departments as the result of careful arrangements made by Auditor Gulick.

The transfer was effected in three separate moves. The space now occupied provides more room and is more conveniently located for the executives of the big organization.

GOLDMAN COMMENDED

Judge Collins Praises the Public Defender

New York, Jan. 26.—The following letter was received by Mayer C. Goldman, author of the legal problem film, The Public Defender, from Judge Cornelius F. Collins, Justice of the Court of Special Sessions of this city, recently. The letter reads:

My Dear Mr. Goldman—I am taking the opportunity to express my appreciation and to congratulate you on the premiere production of the motion tableau, The Public Defender.

Making due allowance for the necessary fiction to present an interesting and attractive tableau, I was very favorably and profoundly impressed not alone with the artistic presentation of the subject, but with the consciousness that its display thruout the country would be fraught with incalculable good in promoting progressive administrative justice. The moral that adorns the tale, with the triumph of justice as a climax, when intelligent, conscientious and efficient legal ability is furnished to the unfortunate arraigned at our criminal bar, will go far toward persuading the American public of the absolute necessity of taking some action looking to improvement in our criminal courts, to the end that justice may always triumph and human frailties and imperfection be overcome under our procedure.

With very best wishes I am,
Faithfully yours,
(Signed) CORNELIUS F. COLLINS.

CHAPLIN IN HARNESS AGAIN

After Twenty Weeks Comes Back as Producer

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 26.—Charlie Chaplin started this week at his new motion picture plant in Hollywood his initial production under his million-dollar contract with the First National Exhibitors' Circuit.

Twenty weeks have elapsed since Chaplin last performed before the camera. With his return he enters the motion picture field in the capacity of producer. Under the terms of his contract Chaplin will make eight subjects, to be completed in eighteen months.

Chaplin's last work before the camera was for the Mutual Film Corporation. Twelve two-reel subjects were made for that concern, the last of which, The Adventurer, was completed in August. The comedian then purchased the ground for his plant at LaBrea and DeLongpre avenues, Hollywood, and, after approving the architect's plans, departed for a vacation of five weeks in Honolulu.

THE BRASS CHECK

Bushman and Bayne Have Unusual Support

New York, Jan. 26.—Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, the popular co-stars, are supported by a cast of favorite picture players in The Brass Check, a screen version of George Allan England's story of the same name, which appeared in The All-Story Weekly. June Mathis, of the Metro scenario staff, made the screen adaptation, and the production is being directed by Will S. Davis.

Frank Currier, a Metro favorite, is cast as Silas Trevor, father of A. Richard Trevor (played by Francis X. Bushman) and head of the rubber trust. Robert Williamson plays Peter Glaner, a friend of Silas Trevor, and one of the directors of the rubber trust. Ollie Cooper, who plays Norma Glaner, daughter of Peter Glaner, makes her motion picture debut in this picture. Augustus Phillips, often a member of Metro casts, is seen as Wellington Dix. John Smiley, another Metro favorite, plays William Roberts, a director of the rubber syndicate. Hugh D'Arcy, the veteran actor, press agent, advance man and theatrical manager, is a notable addition to this cast. He plays J. Osborne Cole, a member of the rubber company directorate. Frank Joyner plays Henry Everett, a young inventor, the brother of Edith Everett, who is portrayed by Beverly Bayne, co-star with Mr. Bushman in The Brass Check. Rudolph de Cordova plays Cornelius Everett, father of Edith and Henry. Jack Newton plays Robert Dexter, the head of the Dexter Detective Agency. The Brass Check will be a Metro Bushman-Bayne Star Series production.

San Francisco, Jan. 26.—Samuel H. Levin, for several years associated with the San Francisco motion picture industry, has purchased land and ordered plans for a new motion picture theater to be built at Ninth avenue and Clement street in the Richmond District, San Francisco. The house will have a frontage of 62½ feet and 125 feet depth, with a seating capacity of 2,000 people. The cost is estimated at $250,000.

MAX LINDER

Will Resume Work in America in April

New York, Jan. 26.—Max Linder, the popular French comedian, who terminated his contract with Essanay last July on account of ill health, has cabled to friends in this country that he has now fully recovered, and that he expects to visit this country again in April. After making a few productions at his own studio in Paris, the Cinemax, M. Linder repaired to Switzerland.

Just which company will present him is still a point of conjecture, but surrounded by his own staff of producers, men and women who have made a name for themselves in the European comedy cinemas, there is little doubt but that his new efforts will be crowned with success.

The melancholy days have come,
Those days oft' prophesied,
Which moving picture magnates laughed
To scorn and then denied.

The melancholy days have come,
A lean and hungry year
Now stretches out before them
And fills their heart with fear.

The melancholy days have come,
And mergers, too, galore;
Retrenchment is now the watchword,
The bread line's in store.

The melancholy days have come,
The wild, mad spree is o'er,
Relentless but the dark brown taste,
The aching head—no more.

The melancholy days have come,
And with them words of woe;
The saddest come of tongue or pen,
Good old "I told you so."

—WATCHE.

Right now when one-reel subjects are coming into big demand the supply is falling off so rapidly that a famine is threatened.

Over 900 exhibitors shut up shop during the first half of January. Of these all but about a dozen (in Canada) were United States exhibitors.

What Burns Mantle said about "Cheating the Public" was plenty. Also, every word of it was true.

The Motion Picture Exposition will not be missed. It would not have paid had it been held, but if there had been a profit the money would have done the exhibitors who shared it more harm than good.

Mergers. Take four or five motion picture concerns all broke and unite them. Result, one larger concern still broke.

The theater too has not increased the number of film fans. Nothing will do that save better pictures. The art of picture making is not improving. Until it does and until the exhibitor is given a chance for his white alley things will continue to go from bad to worse.

Among those who are acting in Jack Spurlock, Prodigal, which Fox folk are making somewhere in New Jersey, is Mike Donlin, former idol of the New York baseball fans.

John Emerson and Anita Loos, formerly director and scenario writer, respectively, for Douglas Fairbanks, have duly looked over the field and allied themselves with the Paramount.

Exhibitors still continue to shut up shop all over the country.

That the general public is as well or even better acquainted with the various film productions than the theater managers themselves is the belief of Howard Gale of New York, a well-known theatrical man, who was in Saginaw, Mich., recently re the interests of the pictures, The Garden of Allah and The Warrior. He declares that the people are greatly interested in the movies and read nearly everything printed in the special theatrical publications, general magazines and newspapers, and when any production is billed for appearance they know what to expect, and whether the prices will be higher than usual.

C. Patton has opened the Empire Theater at Eldorado, Kan., with a new pipe organ installed. Patton formerly owned the Royal Theater there.

Manager True, of the Strand Theater, Hartford, Conn., had the S. R. O. sign out at each showing of Thais, with Mary Garden in the leading role. It was the first time the film was shown in Hartford and it did a record business during a week.

Two important East End, Cleveland, picture houses changed hands last week. A. Tucker leased the Chaplin Theater to John Reinhardt for five years. Plans are under way for the enlargement of the house to accommodate 800 persons. Mary E. Cowan leased the house at Wade Park avenue and Giddings Road to J. H. Erben for ten years.

Announcement is made of the plans for building a new Quinn theater on a site next door to the present Quinn Rialto Theater on South Broadway, Los Angeles. The new house is to be the first of a number of theaters, which will be known as the Quinn Circuit in Southern California. The site is now occupied by a hotel, but this will be entirely remodeled and a theater of 900 seats installed, with offices on the third floor and two store spaces on the ground floor. The new structure is to follow lines of Spanish renaissance. The property has been secured under a ten-year lease. According to present plans both theaters will be operated side by side by Mr. Quinn.

The new continuous policy of the Castle Square Theater, Boston, started off last week with every indication of popularity. The bill for the week was Pauline Frederick, in Until They Get Me, and baby Marie Osborn, in The Little Patriot. The last half, Marion Davis, in Runaway Romany, and Bessie Barriscale, in Madam Who, both new pictures to Boston. The new policy has made a great improvement and the house is now playing to good business.

Wol Sohin, manager of the Belasco at Quincy, Ill., has signed up for the Goldwyn service for his theater. He will use this in addition to the other leaders he has on his program.

The A. E. A. is gaining friends in Boston every day. Many of the exhibitors there are loud in their praise for the stand the association has taken, and at the convention to be held there next spring it looks now as if there is going to be something doing.

The Palace, Burlington, Ia., is now showing Paramount Pictures, and Dick Bertram is continually increasing the size of his superb orchestra.

Miss Garden's Thais drew big crowds to the Majestic, Tulsa, Ok., where Goldwyns are screened, but the feature did not excite enthusiasm among film fans, except for the dignity and gorgeousness of the production. General opinion was that Miss Garden should stick to her singing. Her age prevents her from becoming a screen favorite. Lina Cavalieri's first movie, on the other hand, was well received and the beautiful young prima donna, it is predicted here, will become quite a popular screen actress. Mae Marsh's Cinderella Man, which was the Christmas attraction at the Majestic, was voted about the most delightful picture that has visited Tulsa in many weeks.

The Nickel Theater, St. John, N. B., R. J. Armstrong, manager, threw open its doors to the public for the first time January 16. This theater is a converted skating rink and seats about fifteen hundred people comfortably. The price of admission is five cents all over the house and pictures are run exclusively. The Nickel is nicely furnished with comfortable seats and wide aisles. Five shows a day are run, two in the afternoon and three in the evening. The theater was packed at all shows on the opening day, so it looks as if its success is assured.

Harry McPhee, assistant manager at the Allston Theater, Boston, has been promoted to manager, taking the place of Frank Brown. McPhee has been with the Allston since it opened three years ago, and has always been a hard worker and very popular with the patrons.

E. G. Bradock is now the owner of the Regent Theater at Great Bend, Kan. This house has a seating capacity of 800.

The war tax has forced several of the movie houses in Seattle to raise the 15-cent admission charge to 20 cents, the theater paying the tax. By charging 15 cents for admission the theater manager is forced to pay practically 15 per cent of this amount to the Government for war tax, instead of the 10 per cent the bill provides for. To get around this same dilemma the Palace Hipp. management at the outset raised the night price of admission from 15 cents to 20 cents and absorbed the war tax. The same thing was done at the Orpheum. Every theater in town is now paying the tax except the Moore (Orpheum vaudeville), Metropolitan (road attractions) and the Wilkes (stock). These houses add 10 per cent to the price of tickets and the patrons pay the extra fee at the time of purchasing tickets.

The Cincinnati Enquirer in a recent edition said: "While comedies being offered by various producing companies continue to improve there are a few film concerns which should be given attention by the Ohio Board of Censors. The pictures presented by these companies have merit as comedies, but are spoiled by scenes that are extremely risque. If the officials at Columbus would order about 200 feet of film cut from each of the pictures at fault they would be doing a favor to the community."

Paul Thompson is one of those managers who is promoting big-time ideas in Fairmount, N. D., at his theatre. He is running five-reel features with a two-reel comedy, charging ten and fifteen cents, with the patrons paying the war tax.

A new house is to be projected at Cherryville, Kan.

Floyd Wheeler, proprietor of the Strand, Scotland, S. D., has fitted up his house with an independent lighting system, and is now in position to show Scotland something real. The local current was not sufficient to meet his requirements.

J. L. Leslie, superintendent of the beautiful new Gifts Theater, Cincinnati, is making an excellent showing in his handling of the house. The Co-Respondent, with Elaine Hammerstein, packed them in last week.

Manager A. J. Moeller of the Franklin Theater of Saginaw, Mich., has arranged to celebrate anniversary week during the week of January 27 by offering a special list of attractions. This will mark the third anniversary of the theater and the second of Moeller's management.

Sheehan & Lurie, owners of The Rialto, San Francisco, are building a new theater at Eureka, Cal., to be called the Rialto. The house will be on the plan of the San Francisco house, and will cost $100,000, and have a seating capacity of 1,200 persons. Inclines will be used instead of stairways. A $20,000 organ is being installed. It is expected that the house will open about May 1.

S. H. Gibbons has been appointed manager of the Columbia Theater at Junction City, Kan.

The old Palace Theater, Boston, is the only Italian house in that city. The theater is operated by the sons of Italy and is playing to excellent business.

Lightless nights are not hurting the picture shows in Oklahoma City very much. They have just as large crowds as ever.

The fuel shortage has worked havoc with the playhouses in Saginaw, Mich., as it has not only forced them to close one day a week, but prevents them from running more than five hours daily. It has become necessary for the movie managers to arrange a regular schedule of hours for the pictures, with a limited number of performances, afternoon and evening, and in some cases with a shorter exhibition. These schedules have been fixed by the different theaters according to their own conditions. While this is naturally having an effect to reduce business some of the managers believe that if the patrons can get the habit of coming at certain hours they will continue doing so after the restrictions are lifted. In that case by a slight increase in the number of hours daily the managers believe they can still run on the basis of regular but limited performances, bringing in nearly as large receipts with greatly reduced expenses.

Charles R. Williams, manager of the Strand, Providence, R. I., put on Mary Pickford in Stella Maris the week of January 21. It's the first time a Pickford picture has been shown in that city in some time. Fatty Arbuckle made big hits at the Emery, Fay's and the Strand. The Empire showed The Blind Adventure and the Modern Draft 258. This picture went well. Fay's feature picture was J. Warren Kerrigan's A Man's Man.

The Little Theater, Seattle, has booked the sixteen Wm. S. Hart reissues of two-reelers. Dakota Dan was shown last Thursday as the first of the series. House Manager Homer Smythe states that the picture pulled record business for the four-day showing.

Manager Ralph Talbot, showing Artcraft-Paramount features exclusively at the Palace, Tulsa, Ok., reports that he broke all records last Sunday with Douglas Fairbanks in Reaching for the Moon. The smiling comedian is a great favorite there. Harry Lauder jammed Convention Hall with nearly 4,000 people, breaking all records for that auditorium, on Sunday night, the 12th. It was his first visit to Oklahoma, and he was given an enthusiastic reception. In a curtain speech the Scotchman aroused the audience to tumultuous enthusiasm and pleaded for the heartiest support for our soldiers when they go over the top.

The Mystical Theater at Mulberry, Kan., has been bought by Reeds & Goss. The new owners have had it thoroly remodeled.

Wichita, Kan., will soon have a new house, to be ready this fall, and will have a policy of pictures and vaudeville.

The recent siege of heavy weather struck a severe blow to the small theater owners in the Iowa and Kansas section, many of them being unable to show at all. This, together with the present holdup prices, has made it tough sledding for the small fellows everywhere.

Men Who Have Made Love to Me, Mary MacLane's Picture, didn't get by the Ohio Censor Board, while Theda Bara's Cleopatra was passed.

Our Navy, which was booked for two weeks at the Tremont Temple, Boston, has been shown in natural colors, was held over for an extra week owing to the big demand for seats. The pictures did a wonderful business at prices of 25, 50c.

The Alhambra, Los Angeles, which has played the British, French and Italian war films with great success, now announces the first of the Russian war pictures, showing fighting on the East front.

Intolerance, playing at a twenty-five-cent admission, in the Innovation to Harrisburg, Pa., by Wilmer and Vincent, in the Colonial Theater. The picture played there for three days to crowded houses.

THE HOPPER

Five-reel Triangle feature, from a story by Meredith Nicholson. Scenario by Jack Cunningham. For release February 10.

THE CAST:

Mang, the serpent	Thomas Kurihara
Wilbur Talbot	George Hernandez
John Wilton	Walt Whitman
Muriel Wilton	Irene Hunt
Roger Livingston Talbot	Eugene Corey
Roger Livingston Talbot, Jr.	Peaches Jackson
The Hopper	William V. Mong
Mary	Lillian West
Humpy	Louis Dunham
Director	Thomas N. Heffron
Photographer	William Heinhart

Tangled destinies, involving two rival collectors of ancient porcelains, their children, two reformed safe blowers and an ex-shoplifter, provide amusing situations for this laughable comedy-drama. Over their destinies, one is allowed to infer, the sprit of the creator of a wonderful Chinese vase presides the a time.

The opening scene shows Mang, the serpent, completing his masterpiece, while the headsman waits. The real story begins when Wilbur Talbot pays a fabulous sum for the Mang vase, and is accused of treachery by John Milton, who has waited for ten years for the owner of that vase to die, and who intended buying it at the public auction at which its sale was announced. Wilton forbids his daughter to associate with young Talbot, who is forbidden by his father to speak to the girl next door. Of course, the two young people elope.

In Maine a safe blower gets $20,000, in Connecticut another safe blower loses the sight of one eye, and in New York a shoplifter loses her nerve when pursued by the police. The apparently unrelated threads one picked up one woven together into a cleverly constructed story. The Hopper, the Maine safe blower, marries the shoplifter, and, with his pal, goes to California to start a chicken farm.

In a tram he sees a New York detective, and, believing he is being pursued, he jumps into a roadster by the side of the road. In the car is the Talbot baby, and before it is recovered by its parents Talbot has ordered the arrest of Wilton for the theft of their grandson and of the Mang vase, and Wilton has accused Talbot of the theft of his wonderful porcelain saucer. The picture is lavishly staged, finely acted and combines dramatic suspense with the merriest comedy.—M. D.

WOLVES OF THE RAIL

Five-reel Artcraft feature. Released at Rivoli Theater, New York, January 21.

THE CAST:

Buck Andrade	William S. Hart
Faith Lawson	Vola Vale
David Cassidy	C. Norman Hammond
Murray Lomaster	Melbourne MacDowell
Pablo Trilles	Billy Elmer
Pasquale Trilles	Thomas Kurihara
Author	Denison Clift
Director	Thomas H. Ince

Bill Hart is allowed a sense of humor in his new Artcraft picture. This delineator of a stern, severe Western type so seldom smiles one is glad to know that he can, and his single flash of amusement at the transformation of Buck Andrade, outlaw, into David Cassidy, outlaw chaser, lightens the picture and establishes a sudden friendliness between the star and spectators. After that one semi-smile Bill Hart might do anything at all and he would have the audience with him.

Wolves of the Rail affords Hart a first-class story, presented with the technical perfection that characterizes Ince features. A band of outlaws hold up a Western express, and one of the outlaws steals a woman's necklace in violation of the leader's promise that women should not be disturbed. His punishment is severe, and, to revenge, when Buck Andrade, the leader, is called to his mother's deathbed, the rebellious outlaw races ahead to tell the mother her son is a thief.

When Buck arrives he faces a trying ordeal, and, to comfort his mother, he promises never to steal again. He disbands his gang and is invited by an Eastern detective to assist in the capture of Andrade. When the detective learns his identity Buck decides to assume the identity of the man-hunter, along with his clothes and his papers. Then he proceeds to clean up the section, is entrusted with the army pay-roll, trusted by the railroad president, allowed to give orders to the division superintendent, and is loved by a girl dispatcher, when Cassidy reappears, determined to take him.

ZONGAR

Five-reel feature of the Physical Culture Photo Plays, Inc.

This might be well termed an athletic romance. George Larkin plays the hero, a part which enables him to perform many daredevil feats. The story promotes a series of thrills and there are many melodramatic scenes in which the villain endeavors to outdo the hero. There is a pretty little love story. The hero is seen in thrilling automobile chases, airplane flights, and there are thrilling rescues of the heroine. On one occasion she is dragged out of an automobile by the hero, who swoops down above her and rescues her while in his airplane. In another scene there is an exciting fight, in which the hero comes off victorious. The photography is fair and there is plenty of action. Dolores Cassinelli plays the villainess with unusual skill, and the film closes with a happily conceived love scene.—H. E. C.

THE GRAIN OF DUST

Three-reel Crest Pictures Corporation feature. Released under direction of Harry Revier at private showing to New York January 19.

THE CAST:

Frederick Norman	Ramsey Wallace
Joseph Galloway	Ralph Delmore
William Tellow	James O'Neill
Ursula Norman	Corene Uzzell
Josephine Burroughs	Edith Day
John Hallowell	Richard Wangerman
Prince Boris	Jacques Tyrol
The New Minister	Cecil Fletcher
Emily Howe	Elizabeth Ferris

and

Lillian Walker as........"The Grain of Dust"

The Grain of Dust, a popular novel of some few years ago, by David Graham Phillips, supplied the plot for this interesting photodrama.

No expense has been spared in the staging of this feature, in which Ramsey Wallace and Lillian Walker are starred.

Notwithstanding the lack of novelty in the Sheaf story, the first two reels move with considerable dash, and, altogether, the story holds interest throut.

Ramsey Wallace brought to the character of Frederick Norman a certain dominating strength which proved strangely fascinating.

The pictures were clear, and in some of the close-ups, in which Lillian Walker wore a silver-spangled evening gown, they were dazzlingly beautiful.

A picture taken from the interior of a moving automobile, exhibiting a swift moving land and water view of delicate beauty, was seen thru a small circular glass window in the back of the car, and proved signally interesting.

Dorothy Hallowell, the daughter of a chemist, obtains employment as stenographer in the offices of a firm of Wall street lawyers.

THE HIRED MAN

Five-reel Paramount picture. Released January 28.

THE CAST:

Ezry Hollins	Charles Ray
Caleb Endicott	Charles French
Walter Endicott, his son	Gilbert Gordon
Mrs. Endicott, his wife	Lydia Knott
Ruth Endicott, his daughter	Doris Lee
Stuart Morley	Carl Ullman
Director	Victor L. Schertzinger
Supervised by	Thomas H. Ince

What is the loss of a farmhouse compared to the acquisition of a prize-winning son-in-law? Especially if the house is insured. More especially if the burning of the farmhouse provides a spectacle as brilliant as that in the last reel of Charles Ray's new picture.

As the bashful young hired man, who saves his wages to pay for an education, then gives up his chance to save the brother of the girl he loves from jail, Ray gives another of his intensely human characterizations.

Ezry Hollins spends his evenings studying in his room in the Endicott barn to prepare for the State Agricultural College exams. On the day that he leaves the farm for college Ruth Endicott's brother, employed in a bank, confesses to Ezry the theft of $500, and implores the hired man to give up his tuition fund to make good the embezzlement. So Ezry goes back to the farm.

Ruth breaks her engagement to go to the harvest dance with the banker's son, and spends the evening instead teaching Ezry to dance. The banker's son, returning, discovers them, and hastens away to bring Ruth's father. Ezry is ordered to leave the farm, but before he obeys the banker's son sees more kinds of stars than shone in the heavens.

There is a country fair, with a midway, agricultural exhibits and a hurdle race won by the hero; there is a harvest dance, exploiting again the steps of '89, and there is the thrilling rescue from the burning farmhouse to add interest to a play that is full of human interest. Doris Lee, who played opposite Ray in His Mother's Boy, makes Ruth Endicott an attractive heroine.—M. D.

THE DIVINE SACRIFICE

Five-reel World picture, Brady-made. Released week of January 22.

THE CAST:

Madeline Spencer	Kitty Gordon
Helen Carewe	Celene Johnson
David Carewe	Jean Angelo
Rupert Spencer	Frank Goldsmith
Dr. Merwin	Charles Dungan
Linda	Mildred Beckwith
Jess	Vera Beresford
Timmie	Ethel Burner
Robert Spencer	Harry Fraser
Director	George Archainbaud
Author	Alma Speer Bandlog
Photographs	Philip Hatkin

Kitty Gordon's new picture will have a vital claim upon public interest if for no other reason than that it introduces to the screen the daughter of the famous English beauty.

The story has been given an extraordinary development. Madeline Spencer is the neglected wife of a notorious gambler. David Carewe, a noted surgeon, is the disappointed husband of a selfish woman, who prefers society to a family. The surgeon founds an institution for invalid children, which is often visited by the gambler's philanthropic wife, and the two become friends. Then Mrs. Carewe sails for a year in Europe. On the same boat is the gambler, with a person whom he introduces as his wife, and when the death of the three in a Continental holocaust is reported in the press Carewe and Mrs. Spencer marry.

But Mrs. Carewe is not dead. She returns to the man whom she has suddenly discovered that she loves, but not enough to divorce him when she learns he has married again. Years later, when the daughter of Carewe and Madeline is sought in marriage by a wealthy Englishman, the mother persuades the real Mrs. Carewe to acknowledge the girl as her daughter, and at the fashionable wedding that follows is merely a spectator, her daughter and her daughter's father given voluntarily to the other woman.

The role of self-sacrifice is so unusual for Kitty Gordon that just at first she doesn't seem quite at home in it. But as the story is developed her work grows in strength and subtle power. Vera Beresford, the star's pretty daughter, is also the daughter of the play. She is charmingly girlish, and plays a small part with verve. Incidentally she has the Kitty Gordon nose and mouth. She is not so tall as her mother, and is slender and lithesome.

Beautiful frocks and settings, the usual accessories of a Kitty Gordon feature, play their part in a picture that has many elements of success.—M. D.

THE EYES OF MYSTERY

Five-reel Rolfe-Metro picture. Adapted by June Mathis from the story, The House in the Mist, by Octavus Roy Cohen and J. U. Giesy. Released January 21.

THE CAST:

Carma Carmichael	Edith Storey
Jack Carrington	Bradley Barker
Roger Carmichael	Harry S. Northrup
Quincy Carmichael	Frank Andrews
Stark Graham	Kempton Greene
Seth Megget	Frank Fisher Bennett
Brad Tilton	Louis R. Wolheim
Uncle George	Anthony Byrd
Aunt Liza	Pauline Dempsey
Director	Tod Browning

An old man's attempt to foil a blackmailer and foster a romance brings about a series of lively and unexpected happenings that culminate in a riot of moonshiners. Yet it isn't a revenue play. The moonshiners constitute the last weapon of frightfulness used by the blackmailer and his gang. The story, originally published in People's Magazine, is weirdly entertaining.

Quincy Carmichael, whose niece has been abducted from his hunting lodge in the Adirondacks by her dissolute father, decides to retire from life for a while after the manner of the old millionaire in The House of a Thousand Candles. The girl had been taken to her father's little cottage across the river from the Carmichael ancestral estate in Virginia, and the old man repairs to this estate to take up his abode in a negro's hut, said to be haunted.

His will leaves all his property to Jack Carrington, provided that young man should find in the Carmichael home a codicil to the will. Lured by the promise of mystery contained in the injunction "Let your eyes be your guide" Carrington and a chum repair to the long-unoccupied Carmichael mansion, where repeated attempts are made upon their lives by the gang across the river, which eventually adopts the fiendish plan of telling the moonshiners they are revenue men.

Edith Storey makes the heroine so convincing that her peculiarities of daring seem a matter of course. She makes midnight visits thru a subterranean passage to the home of her late uncle, makes her horse swim the river, and fights, in midstream, the man who pursues her in a boat, and aids the enemy in the fight against the moonshiners. Strenuous as the role is, she plays so naturally that the character never seems improbable. Her support is excellent.—M. D.

OUT WEST

Two-reel Paramount-Arbuckle comedy.

Nothing of the usual stuff of which comedies are made is to be found in "Fatty" Arbuckle's new Western film. Out West is new. And from the moment when Fatty is first shown, hiding in a locomotive tank, to the last fadeout it sparkles with fun and action and originality.

Here are a few of the things Roscoe does: After being nearly drowned in the tank when the train stops for water he steals the brakeman's lunch and is thrown from the train into an arid desert. He becomes delirious, drinks a well dry, is attacked by Indians, arrives in the toughest spot of the toughest town in the West just as a hold-up is in progress, disperses the outlaws with an exhibition of gun play that Bill Hart might envy, meets a Salvation Army girl and saves her from a villain who is immune to gunfire, and performs a few other amazing feats.

TRIANGLE AND UNIVERSAL CUT DOWN ON PRODUCTION

Former Closes Plant for One Week — Officials Deny Action Was Due to General Conditions in Industry, Asserting Fuel Situation Responsible

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 27.—Rumors are current that the closing of the Triangle Plant this week, announced to be for a short time only, and the slowing up of production at the Universal Studio are forerunners of a general shutting down of activities of these companies.

The Triangle plant, which employed 600 people and had a weekly payroll of $30,000, it is said, closed for a week by Order from H. O. Davis, who is in New York, and who announced that the reason for this action was the cutting down temporarily of the market for films, the fuel order, the closing of the Triangle plant at Ft. Lee, and the difficulty of getting raw supplies over the congested railroads. William Desmond, Irene Hunt, Roy Stewart, Olive Thomas, Alma Reubens, Marjorie Wilson, Belle Bennett, Barney S. Katy and William Franey are the principal players affected by the closing of the Triangle studio. These are all under contract, but have agreed to submit one week's salary in aiding the company to pass over the crisis without endangering future productions.

The company has been operating twelve dramatic and five comedy companies.

The Universal Company announced the laying off of 200 employes for an indefinite period. Officials of both companies this week denied that their action was due to general conditions in the industry, but asserted that the fuel situation was responsible. Officials of other companies said that while the fuel order was causing the Eastern branches of their firms large losses they did not expect to close down their Western studios.

HESPERIA OFFICIAL,

Edgar C. Brooks, Elected Vice-Pres.

New York, Jan. 28.—The latest addition to the ranks of film exploiters on a world-wide scale is Hesperia Films Co., Inc., of which concern Edgar O. Brooks has been elected vice-president and general manager.

The Hesperia Company will handle big features only, of both domestic and foreign manufacture, the exploitation in the United States, Canada, Cuba, South and Central America, with a probability of extending its operations later to Australasia, China, Japan, Philippines, India and South Africa.

The directors of Hesperia have shown great business acumen in appointing such a well-known and experienced executive as Mr. Brooks for general manager. His qualifications for the important position he now occupies are obvious. Mr. Brooks recently resigned the general sales management of the Mutual Film Corporation (after a connection lasting upwards of two years) and his previous affiliations with the firms of Gaumont, Universal and Cosmofotofilm, when he handled every conceivable branch of the business end of motion pictures during six years of active participation in the American field, will render him invaluable to the firm.

Hesperia's initial feature release will be a seven-reel picturization of Eugene Sue's dramatic masterpiece, The Wandering Jew, under the title of Morok. A private trade showing of Morok has been arranged at Wurlitzer Fine Arts Hall for Wednesday, January 23, at 2:15 p.m. Tickets for this premiere may be obtained on application at the offices of the Hesperia Films Co., Inc., Suite 906, Fitzgerald Building, 1482 Broadway, New York.

KY. COURT OF APPEALS

Decides Sunday Opening Violates Law

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 28.—The Kentucky Court of Appeals this week rendered a decision to the effect that Sunday shows in theaters are a violation of the Sunday closing law, and fixed a fine of $50 as the penalty for each offense. Many contend that this order will not be operative generally. Should this ruling prove effective thruout the State it will decide the fate of many of the small exhibitors who rely on their Sunday patronage to pull them over the week, as their night shows are generally known to be merely sufficiently remunerative to pay expenses, and the Sunday showing is known as their "profit day." Conditions for the exhibitor in Kentucky have been none the best since the United States took a hand in the war. Unlike other States Kentucky and West Virginia exhibitors are required to shoulder a different form of license, which is proportionate to the size of the town rather than the size of the theater, and again the Kentucky exhibitor has both a city and State license to carry. These burdens, added to by the general business depression, extortionate rentals, etc., have made the Kentucky exhibitor's life none too smooth, and they await the effect of this new ruling anxiously.

COURT SPOILS SECRET

Anita Stewart Has To Confess Marriage

New York, Jan. 28.—Anita Stewart's secret marriage is no longer a secret. In the Supreme Court yesterday, when the Vitagraph's suit for an injunction to restrain her from acting for any other film concern was heard, the actress was asked whether she was married or single. Altho she demurred, the court allowed the question, and Miss Stewart's romance was disclosed.

Rudolph Cameron, of Washington, D. C., a motion picture actor and member of the Lambs, was married to Miss Stewart some time ago, according to the testimony, and the marriage was kept secret because of the recent illness of the bride and for business reasons. The two have been acquainted for several years and in the last few seasons have been seen much together.

A while ago Cameron and Miss Stewart appeared together in a feature film and since that time their friendship has been marked. The bridegroom had a prominent part in the Lambs' Gambol a year ago. He was in the courtroom yesterday with Miss Stewart.

VIRGINIA EXHIBITORS

To Discuss Means of Defeating Censorship Bill

New York, Jan. 28.—Tomorrow noon the exhibitors of Virginia will assemble at Murphy's Hotel, Richmond, Va., to discuss means of defeating a motion picture censorship bill, which has been introduced in the Virginia Legislature and which is now in the hands of the Committee on Morals and Social Welfare. The bill, in its present form, would impose unusual hardship on the exhibitors, and President Jake Wells, of the American Exhibitors' Association of Virginia, has notified all the exhibitors of the State to be present at the meeting tomorrow, and is making every effort to see that if the bill passes it shall be put in such shape that it will not work any injustice.

BIG ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN

Launched in Behalf of Special Releases

New York, Jan. 26.—An advertising and publicity campaign, nationwide in scope, and embracing the use of billboards, magazines, daily newspapers, trade publications and special circularization, is being arranged by Frank Hall, president and general manager of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, as an exhibitor's aid in the exploitation of special releases, The Zeppelin's Last Raid, Those Who Pay and The Belgian. It is the intention of the Booking Company to bombard the populace from billboards for a period of three months, but the other advertising will continue indefinitely, and will cover the United States and Canada. A supplementary campaign will be inaugurated soon by the Robertson-Cole Company to cover the foreign field.

"The success of special productions such as we distribute," declared Mr. Hall, "depends largely upon advertising. We have made it a point in the selection of our subjects to take only such productions that readily lend themselves to intensive exploitation."

The U. S. advertising campaign also will extend into the foreign territory, in which phase of work it will co-operate with the Robertson-Cole Company of New York and London, to which the foreign territorial rights have been distributed. It is the intention of the U. S. officials to establish their concern firmly in the foreign markets, and it is planned at present to utilize many of the leading newspapers in England, France, South America and South Africa in the effort to acquaint photoplay devotees in foreign lands with the U. S. pictures.

CRANE WILBUR

To Establish Company in Bay District in California

San Francisco, Jan. 22.—Crane Wilbur, head of Mac Donough Stock Company, Oakland, unfolded to the Home Industry League last week his plans to establish a moving picture company to operate in the Bay District and with headquarters across the bay. Wilbur declared that on account of the higher cost of traveling, due to international revenue tax, there will be fewer of the big theatrical companies to come to the Coast, and this emphasizes the necessity of stock productions. His present lease on the Mac Donough expires in June, and in the meantime he will try to make permanent leasing arrangements and to organize his picture enterprise. He said.

"There are 10,000 people in Los Angeles vicinity dependent on the moving pictures for their livelihood. The salary list is $250,000 a week, or a million or more a month. Los Angeles has received worldwide reputation and advertising on account of this industry. There is no reason why the bay district should not get its share of this lucrative business."

Wilbur spoke at the luncheon yesterday. An address was also made by Charles W. Duncan on the Influence of Color in Advertising. Duncan brought out the underlying principles in coloring advertising matter, such as cards and posters, so as to attract the eye.

COMMENDS EAGLE'S EYE

John McE. Bowman Knew of Hotel Conspiracy

New York, Jan. 26.—When Chief Flynn learned of the existence of the Imperial German spy conspiracy to blow up the Hotel Ansonia on the night of the Fleet Review Ball, Friday, May 14, 1915, to destroy the officers of the Atlantic fleet, which had come to New York for review by President Wilson, he took John McE. Bowman, president of the company operating the Ansonia and Biltmore hotels, into his confidence. Mr. Bowman aided Chief Flynn all he could in frustrating this plot.

Mr. Bowman attended the recent trade showing at the Grand Theater of The Eagle's Eye, the serial photodrama in which Chief Flynn is exposing enemy spy plots. After the run of the picture Mr. Bowman wrote Chief Flynn the following letter, the second paragraph of which is particularly of interest.

New York, January 18, 1918.

Mr. W. J. Flynn,
New York City.

My Dear Chief—I have just returned from viewing your wonderful film, The Eagle's Eye, and I am so much impressed with its power to do good that I must write you this line to congratulate you.

The episodes connected with the Hotel Ansonia were particularly interesting to me on account of the hours of mental anguish we all went thru before the navigating officers of our fleet were out of danger, and, in viewing the picture, I realize more than ever the strain you were under during that dreadful twenty-four hours.

Most pictures of this kind border on the melodramatic, but this has not one ounce in it, but is really dramatic from beginning to end, and if, at the end of the third episode, when you ask people in the audience if they were not going to help destroy German autocracy, I am much mistaken if the appeal does not bring the spectators from their seats into a loud declaration of loyalty to this great country in which they are living. I, personally, with the cold, sober thought in my mind that it was only a picture, could hardly restrain from rising and giving the answer the appeal called for.

It is extraordinarily well done, but the touch of authenticity behind it, and will convey a wonderful message to the doubting ones, some of whom still believe we should be neutral.

Wishing you every success in the wonderful story you are putting before the public,

Yours very sincerely,
(Signed) JOHN McE. BOWMAN.

"A CLOSE-UP"

ECONOMY can be made the greatest asset of any business or it can be made a stumbling block that may blight the hopes of the most successful.

HISTORY today is in the making in the Motion Picture Industry. For the EXHIBITOR this history holds much of importance. He may read it and profit thereby or he can pass it by unheeded.

TO NEGLECT to renew or fail to order a subscription to the magazine which is the medium thru which he may keep in close touch with the panoramic movement of events is NOT WISE ECONOMY.

YOUR PAPER, Mr. Exhibitor, is The Billboard, and unless you read it each week YOU fail to get that "CLOSE-UP" which means a clear and comprehensive knowledge of the situation.

THE INVESTMENT of three dollars in a year's subscription is really WISE ECONOMY.

As the National Secretary Sees Things

EXHIBITORS! DON'T SELL OUT. STAY WITH THE BUSINESS. HOLD ON. YOUR DAY IS COMING—IS HERE.

A good farmer will tell you:
"Don't expect to grow anything
If you take it all off.
You must continually
Put something on."

This is true in any business,
Even including
The garden of the motion picture,
"The motion picture theatre."

(Just returned from a meeting
Of the Allied Exhibitors' Legislative Committee.
The tax situation is hopeful,
Except we need more co-ordination
From all exhibitors.)

Incidentally met with several film producers.
It's a delightful change to hear them say:
"The exhibitor is the industry;
The exhibitor is the permanent asset;
The exhibitor must be encouraged because
The exhibitor is the only hope we have
To relieve the present deplorable condition
In the film market."

What does this mean?
Is there a change of heart?
No. Not on your tintype. But
There is a change in film conditions.

Listen!
There have been about 300 reels of film
Produced each week,
Where 100 reels of good film
Would be plenty.
There is a great surplus of film

Consequently the producer is Coming to the exhibitor because
He lacks sufficient market.
We have the market,
Therefore
Several booking arrangements are offered
Producer to exhibitor direct.

That's fine.
Consider them all, but
Exhibitors, be careful, and don't forget
You have the film farm the film market.
Don't sell out again as you have in the past
By the Advance Deposit System
Through the Star System.

This booking thing
Is a very good thing, because in this way
Producers will learn,
Exhibitors will learn,
The whole industry will learn
To judge values better
And not pay so much for Stars
Or Star Pictures;
And keep down the cost of production
And not talk about making millions
When the facts are
The producers are broke,
The exhibitors are broke,
Generally speaking.
It is a case with most of us
"Of trying to keep up with the Joneses."

Here's the thing—
The producers have been squeezing every penny
Out of the exhibitor
Until they have got him drained dry
(And the exhibitor allowed it).

If the producers are smart they will Look at the handwriting on the wall
And save themselves
By giving their good pictures to exhibitors
At reasonable prices ON A WAR BASIS.

Producers have heretofore taken it all off,
And, like the good farmer,
They will now have to put something on.

The most profitable thing exhibitors can do is
Go to the exhibitors' meetings.

Deal with the fair against the unfair producer;
Pick them out at the meetings;
Book good pictures from fair producers;
Combine your buying power
And film service will drop.
Individually it won't
Or even keep on an equitable basis.

One unfair producing company,
Which
Demands all kinds of deposits,
Tries to grab all the big stars
And raises film service three times,
Finds that
It gets a large number of cancelations
Every time there is an exhibitors' meeting.

The reason is this:
Exhibitors have found that
Advance deposits are not used to make good pictures,
But to juggle the film market;
That big stars on "Open Booking Bunk"
Have cost them so much
There is nothing left to pay the rent.
Exhibitors refuse to be bulldozed and Exhibitors are coming into their own. Therefore Don't sell out your theatre or sell your film market
For a mess of pottage, as you have in the past.

Hold on with a mighty grip.
Pick the best pictures at a fair price;
Don't put it all in film service;
Keep some for depreciation and profits.
We must also put on something.

MAKES CHANGES

Bluebird February Program Switched

New York, Jan. 26.—Changes in both plays and titles are announced by Managing Director Carl Laemmle for the February program of Bluebirds. The stars involved include Monroe Salisbury, Mae Murray, Carmel Myers and Franklyn Farnum. Production is so far advanced at Universal City that Bluebirds for March and April are also completed. Here is the final arrangement the February:

The Wife He Bought will be presented by Carmel Myers February 4. This feature was created from One Clear Call, by Larry Evans, directed by Harry Solter, who used a scenario provided by Harvey Gates. The supporting company will have Kenneth Harlan as Miss Myers' leading man, with Howard Crampton, Fred Schilling, Allen Sears and Sidney Deen playing essential roles.

Hands Down will have Monroe Salisbury as its star, released February 11. Ruth Clifford being featured as Salisbury's leading lady in a Rupert Julian production. Elliott J. Clawson wrote the story under the title of The Highest Card and also furnished the scenario. Director Julian plays an important role and will be featured in the support, others in the company being W. H. Bainbridge, Al W. Filson and Rita Pickering.

The Morals of an Actress is a Robert Leonard production, to be presented by Mae Murray February 18. The story was written especially for Miss Murray by H. Sheridan Bickers, under the original title of The Eternal Columbine. This promises to be an exceptional screen production, in that it will combine the ancient pantomimic art, in a prolog, with modern drama in the later section.

The Rough Lover, to be presented by Franklyn Farnum February 25, has been previously referred to under its original title, Breeze Bolton Blows In, a published story by Joseph F. Poland, prepared for the screen by Charles A. Kenyon, the author of the stage success, Kindling. Joseph De Grasse directed the presentation. Juanita Hansen will be Mr. Farnum's leading lady, with Catherine Henry, Martha Mattox and Frederick Montague playing prominent roles. In The Rough Lover Mr Farnum plays a dual role, requiring his presence upon the screen almost continually.

Allotments of Bluebirds for March are tentatively forecasted thus: March 4, Carmel Myers, in The Green Seal, March 11, Monroe Salisbury, in Hungry Eyes, March 18, a Dorothy Phillips production, Her Fling, March 25, Mae Murray, in The Eleventh Commandment.

CHIEF FLYNN TALKS

Tells Why Eagle's Eye Was Produced

New York, Jan. 26.—William J. Flynn, recently retired chief of the United States Secret Service, has made a public statement in reference to the production of the serial, The Eagle's Eye, founded on a story by him exposing the plots and crimes of the Imperial German Government's spy organization in this country, and his reasons for lending his name to this enterprise.

Chief Flynn states that his object is to inspire patriotism and foster loyalty in the United States Government, to impress on citizens of every race and creed the importance of standing by the President in this, the most trying hour the American nation has ever known; to encourage enlistment in the United States army and navy and establish the fact that conscription is absolutely necessary to the safety of the country; to encourage purchases of Liberty Bonds and financial aid to the Red Cross, and, finally, to do all possible to convince doubtful ones that universal democracy is essential to the peace and prosperity of the entire world.

"Propaganda in behalf of these objects," said Chief Flynn, "has been shown to be necessary. The people are entitled to a full knowledge of the Imperial German Government's crime against America. Motion pictures present a most powerful and novel medium to this end. The events depicted in my story treat of closed and concluded cases and deal with facts not hitherto made known, which are interwoven with a romantic fictional story to present them in an entertaining and interesting manner.

"It is my hope that every one will be afforded the opportunity of learning from the screen the serious menace which confronts this country in the insidious spy organization of the enemy now existing in our midst. If this result be accomplished my object will be achieved, for every true American with a knowledge of the facts will stand by the flag and mothers, wives and sweethearts will gladly give up their men folk to aid in meeting the grave crisis which now confronts our Government."

SMITH SOUNDS WARNING

In Appeal to Showmen To Attend Hearing Before Railroad Commission of Georgia

FELLOW SHOWMEN—Do you know that nearly all the railroads operating in Georgia (which means more than half of the railroads of the whole South) appeared before the Railroad Commission of Georgia on Thursday, January 24, with the avowed purpose of getting the sanction from the Commission to REFUSE TO HANDLE PRIVATE SHOW CARS AND SHOW PARAPHERNALIA!

Do you know that means a one-car show as well as a 30-car show and vice versa?

Do you know that when they speak of private cars they mean show cars and not cars that are carrying pickles or pork? Other private car owners such as Armour, Heinz, The Standard Oil Co., etc., FIGHT for their RIGHTS as citizens of the U. S. A. and that's one reason they GET THEM.

Do you know that a railroad company not long ago told Al G. Field it would not handle his car, and that he had to get busy with Washington at once?

When you use the term inconvenience to some railroad lawyers they answer you by saying that they don't wish to inconvenience show folks, they will move our cars back home and we can stay there till after the war. How do you like that argument?

Do you know that at the meeting in Atlanta there were only two showmen present—J. C. O'Brien (the minstrel man) and C. Smith of The Smith Greater Shows? A few more were represented by attorneys, including Al G. Field and J. Stanley Roberts. The railroads' representatives filed into the meeting in a body, then the showmen's three representatives came. It looked like a very small fly trying to fight a very large ferocious lion. They are ferocious, too, brother showmen, and they are trying to get you.

What difference does it make to them that they ruin you? What difference does it make that the amusement profession has given to the American army a bigger percentage of men than any other profession, and will pay in revenue to the U. S. Government a tremendous sum in 1918 if allowed to operate as should be. A good many railroad officials have made up their minds that they are not going to handle us, and we will have to fight every inch of the way if we have our rights recognized.

Now then! This is what happened in Atlanta. When these few representatives saw what a predicament they were in and realized how "very small" the show business would appear against the tremendous representation of the railroads it was decided to ask for a postponement to see if we could not gain a little strength. Hugh H. Cobb, of Adamson & Cobb, attorneys, explained to the Commission that time enough had not been given to notify showmen of the meeting, and at his earnest request another 30 days was given for both sides to prepare their arguments. The date of the hearing was set for February 21, 1918.

Do you know that there were at hand 50 shows within a section of 200 miles of Atlanta (in winter quarters and no route) that could have been represented at that meeting? There should have been a hundred showmen there at least.

Don't you think a hundred representative showmen could do something real at a meeting of this kind? Depend on letters and wires to the Commission? No (they will suffice if you are sick in a hospital, to corroborate what the other fellows say in person). You know how little value is placed on a deposition in a court of law. Why a smart lawyer can sink a dozen of them deeper than the Lusitania with a three-minute talk to the jury. Good lawyers use depositions only when there is no other testimony. "Stand before the jury so you can spit in at them." Shouldn't good showmen do the same? The Georgia meeting February 21 is going to be the first shot fired—the first trench. Are we going to hold it? Let's all be there and win the first skirmish. Let's have one victory to our credit right at the start.

C. SMITH,
Prop. of the Smith Greater Shows.

CARNIVAL CARAVANS
By Ali Baba

Tallbolt, Miss.

Dear Ali—You go ahead and slap in that write up of my opening I sent you. By the time it is printed I will have my show open. In spite of losing my angel Mayor, I got busy [illegible] up the people we owed and got them to let me open here without paying any license and free lot, so I can use that money to pay my debts. I ain't got a decent front on any show, but I am going to open with what I got. One time I was opening a carnival company and I did not have a jig show, but the day I opened I got a phone from a stranded minstrel, twenty-five jigs, band and orchestra. They were ten miles away, so I wired tickets for the whole bunch. We had a big, old, ragged top, stage and some seats, no front, so we builds a long ballyhoo and a ticket box and a string of lights. First night we ballyhooed, next night the house was sold out before we could ballyhoo, and so many people bought tickets for the second show that they crowded up on the ballyhoo stand and broke it down and threw it to one side. After that all the door talker did was to come out and get in the ticket box, jerk his thumb over his shoulder and say "The show is now open." I have come to the conclusion that all you need to get the money is a ticket box outside and a d—n good show inside. Yours for the kale,

COL. HOOZA NUTT.

Walter Wheeler succeeds the late Arthur Wheeler as vice-president of the J. D. Esto Co., Shoo-Ball and Score-Ball manufacturers of Philadelphia. John W. Harper has been appointed secretary and treasurer and general manager of this well-known firm.

Jim Patterson did not attend the Kansas City meeting and, judging from the meager data at hand, there were several others absent also.

Frank L. Albert may be addressed at the Hotel Raleigh, Washington, D. C.

A correspondent writes as follows, viz.: "I attended the meeting at the Baltimore Hotel, Kansas City, last Monday. Nothing was accomplished. A suggestion to send Tom Allen to Washington at the expense of those present was not favorably received and failed of adoption."

Bill Dyer is in Jacksonville with his merry-go-round, playing still in the jig districts.

Louis Schrappencase is figuring and a substitute for sugar for his juice stand on the Dorman & Krause Shows. His best to everybody.

Ed Salter, Eddie Madigan and Larry Boyd had a confab in Jacksonville the other day and decided that the carnivals were a necessary evil, and, therefore, the railroads should carry them. This is important news to the showfolks.

J. J. Todd, one of the greatest Irish comedians in the carnival game, is acting as assistant foreman of a large cigar factory in San Antonio. Toddy says handling cigar makers beats handling a plant show any day.

Johnnie Wilson says he passed you on his way South, Bennie Smith, but that he is coming back to Washington, D. C., and hopes to meet you soon.

Bert Taylor, one of the best billposters who ever hung a stand of paper, is putting in the winter at Cass Lake, Minn., peddling tobacco and junk to 150 lumber jacks, as he is timekeeper and storekeeper there for a big lumber contractor.

Clarence Auskings, agent for That Cristy Show, is spending another winter in Galveston, Texas.

Art Hyde, who is general agent for horseshoe nails at present, says he is done with the game for good—but wait, the bands haven't begun to play as yet.

Gov. T. W. McMahon—We understand it's a twelve-car show for 1918. Go right to it. Your show has the rep. in the Northwest.

J. L. Landes—How's all the family?

Wonder how Gov. Macy is getting along with his new show? What's the good word, Governor? Got any more yellow postals?

Walter K. Sibley is awfully quiet these days.

Bennie Franklin and John L. Reh have been seen with their heads together pretty much here of late in Baltimore. Those in the know scent a suspicion something big. John made a hit with his pit show the past season, and you can't tell what these two live wires may sprout.

The only Edward Jessop is now in Detroit. It is alleged he is there on important business.

Harry Oberholser, well-known concessionaire, is now with the colors. Hixie is at Ft. Sill, Okla., a drill sergeant, instructing officers in artillery fire. This is the second time Harry has gone out with Uncle Sam.

Anyone locating a trunk marked DETROIT P 23 will confer a favor on Ali by informing him. It was lost in Jacksonville, Fla., December 15, at the close of the Krause Show.

Mrs. Belle Nalbandian is slowly recovering at the Seton Hospital, Cincinnati, from a serious fracture of the leg.

James Campbell has fully recovered from a serious attack of typhoid and is back on his feet again after a long stay at the Garfield Park Hospital, Chicago. The nurses who attended Campbell got some excellent tips on how to frame all sorts of joints that would make a barrel of coin for them, as Campbell revealed all sorts of good trade secrets while delirious.

We have frequently criticized grifters and we will confess the conviction strikes us whenever we patronize a railroad lunch counter that this concessionaire must have learned the rules of his game somewhere else.

Can anyone tell how many of the Gooding family own merry-go-rounds? It's impossible.

Chas McMahon—Is she still hungry?

Heard that Don Stevenson is building a small picture show down in Texas.

Still with the news company, Spot Hadley? How's the fish pond?

Eddie Owens has joined out with L. H. Van Dine, of the Van Diver System, this year again, on the Rubin & Cherry Shows, and has taken up his address in Montgomery, Ala. One likable fellow is Eddie.

Mondays beatless, Tuesdays wheatless, Wednesdays meatless,
These are with us now.
Thursdays sweetless, Fridays treatless, Saturdays streetlightless,
Coming soon, I vow.

Harry Ravor's election as governor of the New York Branch of the Showmen's League gave wide and universal satisfaction.

Doc Waite, of the Clark & Conklin Shows, blew into Ciney from "somewhere in Alabama" last week with the store show bee in his bonnet, and is cooking up something in Dayton, O. Doc looks fine.

Mrs. Theo. McCurdy, wife of the eminent Will Run, is in a Cincinnati hospital awaiting a serious operation, and would appreciate a line from her many friends. Her address is Mrs. T. McCurdy, 209 Christ's Hospital, Cincinnati, O.

January 28 saw the passing of one of the most respected and best known Bedouins in the business, Capt. Billy Stewart, of Angola fame. Capt. died at the age of 74 years of the dread malady, cancer of the liver, at his home in Ft. Wayne, Ind. The show world will always hold a fond memory of this genial old veteran.

days for them in their concert. They have a nice, clean, 1,000-pound bucker they call Jesse James. I left them at Groveton, Tex. They were doing a nice business. I have taken up a claim at Navasota, Tex., from a sorrel horse they sent in from nine miles out in the country. I got $27 for the ride, but he turned my pack the third jump. I then rode the horse. Most of the people thought I was thrown purposely, just to get a bet, but it was on the square. Luck to all you woollies."—W. W. Hillingham.

Bill Carson—Let's hear from you. Have you forgotten the Wild West bunch since hitting Broadway?

A portion of an advertising pamphlet mailed out to contest hands by an old contestant, who staged a small contest last season, reads as follows: "All the boys will be here. ——— (name of town) is a town that the cowboy can indulge in his innocent and harmless amusements without molestation, as it is a known fact that the key to the city is always thrown in the river until after the contest." However, the author failed to state just what the innocent and harmless amusements of the cowboy are, and this same question might set many of them to thinking.

Texas Cooper—Drop us a few lines with the news from your district.

Kemp Family—Let's hear from you.

Col. Vic Cody—Where are you? Have you quit the game?

CAPT. LATLIP SHOWS

Charleston, S. C., Jan. 28.—Altho the weather has been anything but favorable, work on the Capt. Latlip Shows goes merrily on. The Captain upon his return from the East, was well pleased with the work accomplished. While in the East he stopped at his old winter quarters in Bradley Beach, N. J., and had the show paraphernalia stored there shipped to Charleston. He also was successful in lining up several very good spots for the coming season while away.

The new 70-ft. front for the show called Over There is completed and makes a brilliant appearance. The Over There Show is a creation of Capt. Latlip, and is entirely new in the carnival field. If there is any money around this attraction should get it.

The office of the Latlip outfit here in Charleston is a very busy place. All the boys from the local theaters make it their headquarters. Roy Livingstone leads them all when it comes to telling funny stories.—PAT FINN.

MIGHTY HAAG SHOWS

Shreveport, La., Jan. 28.—The Mighty Haag Shows, in winter quarters here after an absence of two years, during which it wintered in Georgia, will start out some time during March. Manager E. OBITUARY

BAGLEY—Robert J. Bagley died Sunday, January 27, at the Claridge Hotel, New York City, at the age of 68 years. At one time he was connected with Colonel John A. McCaull in operatic enterprises, and, also, was a former manager of the Chicago Opera House. Years ago he founded a ticket agency in Chicago, which did a big business. Bagley was a native of Albany, N. Y.

BAKER—Mrs. Lewis H. Baker, mother of Johnny Baker, of Wild West fame, died at the home of and daughter, Mrs. Mary Trimble, Angelus Apartments, Omaha, Neb., in her 81st year. Mrs. Baker was a Nebraska pioneer. Her son is one of the best-known men in the show business.

CORNISH—William A. Cornish, an actor for twenty years, died at St. Luke's Hospital, Kearney, Neb., recently, at the age of 40 years. He was leading man with the Mitchell Players of Grand Island, Neb., last season.

DEXTER—Mrs. Emma B. Dexter (nee Bowcroft) died at London, England, recently. She was a soloist in the first Cincinnati May Festival, and resided in that city when her father, the late E. J. Bowcroft, was English Consul there.

EBERTS—Fred C. Eberts, manager of the Majestic Theater, Chicago, died there Thursday evening, January 24, after an illness of one week. Worry over the failure of his performers to arrive on time for two Mondays in succession is believed to have contributed to his illness. Mr. Eberts was born in Detroit, Mich., 44 years ago, and his vaudeville career had taken in the better part of the last eighteen years. His first experience as a manager was gained in the outlying Columbia Theater of Chicago when that house was the haven of melodrama. Then he assumed the reins of the Grand Northern, a downtown house, and successfully guided the fortunes of that theater thru several changes of policy, from the days when it was conceded Chicago's premier house for road shows up to the time when a vaudeville policy was considered its one best bet. Two years ago Mr. Eberts was chosen by Kohl & Castle to fill the vacancy left by the death of Lyman B. Glover, for many years manager of the Majestic.

ENSMOSER—Eugene C. Ensmoser, brother of Richard Lloyd of Newman's Tabarin Girls Company, died in the Deaconess Hospital, Minneapolis, Minn., January 22. Ensmoser was also a relative of Bing Cushman, who is well known in the profession.

FISHER—George H. Fisher, 56 years old, veteran stage manager and widely known in theatrical circles thruout the country, died the morning of January 24 at his home, Fort Wayne, Ind. He had been intimately associated with the life of that city for nearly forty years and it was said of him that the history and success of the theater in Fort Wayne were but the reflected history and success of his life. Born there November 22, 1861, and a resident of the city his whole lifetime thru, he entered the profession as a youth, securing employment at the old Colerick Opera House in 1879. Then followed successful associations with the Olympic and Bijou theaters, two pioneer Ft. Wayne houses, and a later connection with the Academy of Music, the first of the city's modern playhouses. Next he was appointed stage manager of the Masonic Temple Theater, filling that position most acceptably until he became stage manager of the New Palace. When the New Palace Theater was built Mr. Fisher designed and directed the building of the stage for that house, and upon its completion, was chosen its stage manager, a position he graced until the day of his death. His lifelong business associate was Frank E. Stouder, and the two of them had been interested together in theatrical affairs for over thirty-three years. Mr. Fisher was a member of the I. A. T. S. E.

GARVIE—Mrs. Edward Garvie (Mollie Thompson), wife of Edward Garvie the comedian, died after a brief illness at her residence, Mount Vernon, N. Y., Monday night, January 21. Mrs. Garvie, who was 51 years old, was the daughter of the veteran protean actor and entertainer, John Thompson, and made her first appearance before the footlights at the age of two years. Most of her life was spent on the stage as Mollie Thompson. As a young woman she is best remembered as the star of A Pair of Jacks, in which she was supported by Dick Knowles, the comedian; The Hustler and other farce-comedies. A tour of Europe, Australia and South Africa won for her the sobriquet, The American Girl. Returning to the United States in 1898 she met and married Edward Garvie, and the two of them later co-starred in several of Charles H. Hoyt's satires, including Black Sheep, A Day and a Night and A Trip to Chinatown. Garvie and Girard followed in the comedy, Natural Gas, and then a starring tour in George Broadhurst's play, Mr. Jolly of Joliet. One of the couple's best remembered performances was as The Song and Dance Team in Champagne Charlie, with the late Pete Daily. In 1908 Mollie Thompson retired from the stage to devote herself to a domestic life. An accomplished musician and actress, an educated woman, a devoted wife and a charming hostess, Mollie Thompson was the embodiment of "the best traditions of the American stage. A legion of friends will mourn her loss.

GAVIN—Thomas L. Gavin, treasurer of Ford's Opera House, Baltimore, Md., died in that city at his home, January 22, after suffering from tuberculosis for the past two years. He was 37 years old, and had been connected with Ford's the greater part of his lifetime.

GOLDSCHMIDT—Heinz Goldschmidt, 39 years old, who, during his connection with the Barnum & Bailey Circus, was the first bicycle rider in "loop-the-loop" in this country, died at New Haven, Conn., January 23. Goldschmidt was born in Germany, joining the Barnum & Bailey Circus when it appeared in that country. Some years ago he sustained injuries in a fall, and was forced to leave circus life.

HAROLD—Donald Harold, aged 67, a well-known actor of the old days, and late doorman of the Palace Theater, Baltimore, Md., died at his residence in that city January 26. Mr. Harold whose career dated back to the days of the Holliday Street Theater and the Concordia Opera House in Baltimore, and been pensioned by the Columbia Amusement Co., and was sent to Baltimore from Buffalo, N. Y., last summer. He was born in Philadelphia, and made his first appearance in Baltimore in 1872 with Simmons & Slocum's Minstrels. In 1879 he was seen in Rice's Surprise Party and remained with Mr. Rice until 1882, in which year he joined Annie Pixley as comedian, playing with her for five seasons. He joined Lizzie Evans (now Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske) in 1888. Mr. Harold was with the original company that produced The Struggle of Life, and for six seasons appeared in many of the famous melodramas. From 1898 to 1900 he played with John A. Stevens in The Unknown, and later appeared in The Girl From Maxim's, when Sidney Drew first put on that play. Mr. Harold has also been connected with several noted stock companies, and was with Hallen & Hart. His last appearance on the stage was in Bartley Campbell's play, The White Slave, when the play was revived by the author's son, Robert Campbell. Mr. Harold's wife, May Thompson, a well-known actress, appeared with him at the time.

HAYDOCK—John Haydock, who enjoyed a long career as a Thespian, appearing in stock, musical comedy, dramatic productions and in motion pictures, died at the German Hospital, New York, January 19, at the age of 73 years. He was born in New York and made his debut there, and had been an actor for over forty years. For several years he was connected with the Castle Square Stock Company of Boston, and was with the New York Hippodrome for seven seasons. In late years he had acted in motion pictures, notably with the Thanhouser Company. Two sons, Stanley Sheldon, an actor, and Roy Sheldon, a motion picture director, survive him. LEONARD—Harry Whewell Leonard, actor, singer and author, died January 21 at New York City. He was an Englishman by birth, and came to this country about twenty-three years ago. Among his works are also some short stories and motion picture scenarios.

McCOLLOUGH—John K. McCollough, a Canadian, amateur skating champion of the world some twenty years ago, died in a St. Paul (Minn.) hospital January 26. He was also well known as a cyclist.

MICHELSEN—Mrs. Elizabeth Michelsen, wife of Mathias Michelsen, well-known pitchman and demonstrator, died at San Francisco, Cal., the latter part of December, at the age of 33 years. Mrs. Michelsen had conducted demonstrations at the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

NICHOLS—Will M. Nichols, stage manager of the Lyric Theater, Indianapolis, Ind., died suddenly in that city on the stage of the theater January 12. An attack of heart trouble caused his death. Two sisters, well known in vaudeville as The Nichols Girls, survive Mr. Nichols, along with a widow. He was 63 years old.

PICKERING—Maylin J. Pickering, who appeared on the stage for a time, under the name of John P. Maylin, died January 15, at Philadelphia, Pa., in which city he was the representative of the Actors' Fund of America. Pickering or Maylin, as he was known, met with little success on the stage, and went into business with his father. However, he always continued his connections with the profession, and was well known in Philadelphia theatrical circles, being president of the Actors' Order of Friendship, a Quaker City organization.

PRINZ—Louis Prinz, one of the best known of Philadelphia motion picture operators, died at his home in that city the week of January 13. He was 38 years old, and had been connected with the operating end of the motion picture business about fifteen years, his entry into the field dating back in the days of the movie store shows. At the time of his death he was assistant to Frederick Martin at the Drury Theater in the Quaker City.

RORKE—Mrs. Louise Nation Rorke, widow of Professor Michael K. Rorke, the dramatic director and elocution instructor, died at her home, Brooklyn, N. Y., January 21. She had lived in Brooklyn all her life.

STANLEY—Charles H. Stanley, noted comedian of years ago, who won equal distinction as an evangelist since his retirement from the stage about fifteen years ago, died recently at Washington, D. C., the result of a paralytic stroke. Stanley, who was 60 years old, entered the theatrical profession as a young man, and soon won recognition. He appeared in all the famous Hoyt farces and was a favorite in stock at Philadelphia. He had also toured in vaudeville, playing the leading variety houses of the country.

STONE—Melville E. Stone, Jr., son of the general manager of the Associated Press and writer of many plays, short stories and scenarios, died early in January at Pasadena, Cal., in the 44th year of his age. His contributions to the theater included dramatizations of Graustark and Brewster's Millions. He was a member of the Lambs' Club.

STROJON—Ida Strojon died at her home town, Pekin, Ill., recently. She was the sister of Mrs. May, the wife of Rodney May, former trainmaster of the Tom W. Allen Shows.

Mr. Wayburn was formerly associated with the Union Sport Machine Company of Chicago and New York, and retired from active business about 20 years ago. Besides Ned Wayburn another son, Ralph Wayburn, a nonprofessional, survives Mr. Wayburn.

WELLS—Jack Wells, popular song composer, died January 14 at his home, New York City. Death was due to blood poisoning. One of the biggest song hits of the past year, Joan of Arc, was written by Mr. Wells, in collaboration with Alfred Bryan. His latest melody, Chimes of Normandy, is now being published by Gilbert & Friedland.

ASLEEP AT THE SWITCH

The above is the way it ought to be termed, with reference to the tent show managers who are now, as were, playing the State of Florida when the railroads of Florida petitioned the State Railroad Commission to place an embargo on the movement of all private and show cars. The bunch lay dead and made no effort to defend their rights. The result was a case of "let George do it," and now the shows are lying at different points awaiting results. Among the shows held up were Gus Hill's Minstrels, J. C. Coburn's Minstrels, Herbert's Dixie Minstrels, Wolcott's Rabbit Foot Show, Eph Williams' Florida Blossoms and the Sparrow Stock Co. It has always been and always will be dog eat dog in the show business, and the sooner the managements of these different shows wake up to the fact that if they don't protect their own interests no one will the better it will be. If railroad conditions don't make some improvement for the better in a short time there will not be any of the car shows moving in the Southeast the coming season unless they resort to wagons and auto trucks. Respectfully yours,

J. C. O'BRIEN.

T. M. A. NEWS

Newark Lodge No. 28, T. M. A., held its annual meeting at the Musicians' Temple, 401 Plane street, Sunday, January 20, 1918. A royal reception was accorded Past Grand President David H. Greene when he appeared to install the officers. He appointed Brother Al Rubin, past president of New York Lodge No. 1, to assist as Grand Marshal. It was one of the most impressive ceremonies that has ever taken place in the lodge. Brooklyn Lodge No. 30 sent a delegation of 29 members, headed by President Charles McFadden and Secretary Thos. Foley, and the Jersey City, Paterson and Asbury Park Lodges also sent large delegations. Ten new members were obligated, and eight applications received, and, from the outlook, Newark Lodge will have a very prosperous year, as each and every member is out to increase the membership. Brother Phil Cohen left last week for Denver, Col., for his health. Brothers James Fleming, Louis Beis and Frank Gardner are on the sick list. At the close of the meeting Past President Greene gave a wonderful talk on the history of the order, and was greeted with cheers by the brothers. A social session then took place. Music was furnished by the T. M. A. Orchestra of 15 pieces, and a very fine cabaret show was given under the management of Brother William Kirsch. After this the brothers left, speaking loud in praise of Newark Lodge No. 28. The next meeting will take place Sunday, February 17, and a cordial invitation is extended to all visiting members to attend, as a good time is in store at every meeting held. —M. J. CULLEN, Secy.

This is the time of the season that most lodges have their annual benefit, in the way of a theatrical performance or grand masked and fancy dress ball. New York City Lodge No. 1 held its grand annual ball in the Amsterdam Opera House Saturday evening, January 12. Brother J. C. McDowell, Chairman of the Ball Committee, announces that it was one of the largest attended affairs in recent years. Disciplined officers and hustling committees are the keynotes of success in any lodge, which New York City Lodge can proudly boast of.

A word from the "Old War Horse," Moe Pickering, at Boston. "Boston Lodge has just finished its annual benefit performance, which netted the lodge a neat sum for the Sick, Relief and Death Fund. Boston Lodge, like its sister lodge, New York, has had years of experience in giving these affairs, and the committees see that every penny is safely lodged in the exchequer. Brother Moe has had two severe falls in the past week or so, causing him to be placed in bed. Both were caused by slipping on the ice. Weather in Boston this time of the year must be fierce, as we note from our own experience at home. Besides the falls our old "friend and brother" is suffering from an attack of sciatica, which, of course, makes matters worse. Your many friends, Moe, want to see you out at an early date, and be steady, old boy, and take your time.

Misfortune never comes singlehanded. We are informed of the untimely death of the mother of the secretary of Chicago Lodge No. 4, Brother Harry C. Lee. While Brother Lee is mourning the loss of man's best friend, mother, we, in silence, express our sympathy. The president of Chicago Lodge, Edw. A. Green, has been so ill that it was decided to postpone the installation of officers until the next regular meeting.

The grand president, Arthur DeArmond, and the grand secretary-treasurer received a special invitation from Philadelphia Lodge to attend the installation of its officers January 27. Owing to the present conditions of travel and shortage of fuel and very much business at home it was decided to wait until some future date to make a visit. We thank you, Philadelphia Lodge, for your kind consideration, and wish you success.

The benefit performance given by St. Louis Lodge No. 5 has been one of the bright lights of the season. It was given at the Empress Theater, and the managers of the different theaters contributed some of the feature acts for this occasion. The welcome address was given by the president of the St. Louis Lodge, Brother John Suarez. The handsome program helped swell the receipts, for the St. Louis public contributed liberally towards it.

Past Grand President David Greene installed the officers of Newark Lodge, and the past president of the New York lodge, Brother Al Rubin, acted as grand marshal. The installation took place on the 20th of the month, in the presence of about 200 members of Newark Lodge. The ceremony was very impressive especially to the visiting brothers from New York City and Brooklyn lodges. Brother Greene's remarks, regarding each should act as a committee of one to get into the fold one new member this year, certainly did appeal to his listeners, and each one resolved then and there to do his bit. Now watch Newark forge ahead.

The secretary of Louisville Lodge, Brother James Dunnavan, does not approve of the long, cold spell that they are having in their city. We all sanction your disapproval, and hope "Old Man Winter" will take a gentle hint and get out of the way. This cold snap put the grand secretary in his hole for the past four weeks, but we hope to see him out on February 2 for business.

There are several lodges that have not sent into this office their annual report. Kindly make a note of this and mail it immediately, so that the grand secretary can complete these reports. Also wish to mention that a few have neglected to send in the per capita tax for December. Kindly attend to this matter at your next meeting.

A word from Brother J. H. Trammell, secretary of Houston Lodge, stating that they have installed their officers; also that they have several applicants ready for the next meeting and they are doing well, and in general are well satisfied. What more could one expect? The delegate to the late convention, Brother F. C. Gleich, who also is the deputy grand president for the State of Texas, was chosen for the office of president of Houston Lodge.

An error occurred in the last general circular sent out from this office, in which Lancaster Lodge placed on the suspended list the name of one of its members, Brother Charles M. Howell, who proved to have sent in his dues, showing postal money order stub. The letter never reached the secretary of the lodge, and due inquiry showed that it was lost.

William A. Bauer of Pittsburg Lodge still continues to be the central figure in the social class of "Gentlemen Drinkers," an organization founded purely by members of Pittsburg Lodge not to discuss business after they leave the theater, or worry about anything in general while they are assembled for the regular evening festivities. We don't blame you, boys at all. Here's luck.

The Theatrical Stage Employees No. 5 Ball, given at the Central Hall, Cincinnati, Thursday, January 24, was one of the best attended, and the best conducted affair of its kind this season. Brothers William Parker and William Meader handled the crowd and change like old troupers, while Jack Alf and Chas. Spoerlein took care of the selling of tickets and refreshments. The special features were the snow dance, moonlight waltzes, and the glittering glides. The mirror effects were the most wonderful seen in this locality and are much talked about. The electrical effects were simply wonderful and the decorations were splendid. It did one's eyes good to see what a hustling bunch of boys can do to make an entertainment of this sort such a huge success. Energy is all you need, boys, and a few good leaders.

both of whom are prominent members of the two National Exhibitors' Associations. The plan was outlined at a convention of the Allied Exhibitors' Organizations held in Washington December 11 and 12.

The idea has proved a popular one and exhibitors have been quick to realize its advantages. With the acquisition of the new producers, those who are working on the plan will be placed in a better position than ever before to carry on an aggressive campaign to bring the advantages of the co-operative booking plan to the attention of exhibitors.

lonial since Maude Fulton came along with the show product of her own brain work and all exterior circumstances blazed at exceptional prosperity.

When the news was flashed that Al Woods' Cheating Cheaters would come to the Colonial Monday night the local Morosco management refused to believe the tidings, having had no previous notice that the Morosco run would terminate. But later the fact was ruefully acknowledged at the Colonial box-office, and Maude and her fine cast and pleasing play will hie to pastures new—outside of Chicago.

The Colonial, tho owned by Jones, Linick & Schaefer, has Klaw & Erlanger bookings. The setback which Morosco's prosperous run at the Colonial has had, making room for Woods' attraction, may have serious influence on later Woods offerings, as the latter's schedule is so arranged that it partakes of both K. & E. and Shubert bookings in Chicago houses, arrangements having been entered into before the new fight became acute. If the Shuberts choose to retaliate for the blow now being struck at the Colonial peculiar complications may ensue when Woods brings one of his shows to the Chicago Princess (a Shubert house) while another plays a K. & E. theater here.

COMMITTEES ARE APPOINTED FOR N. Y. BRANCH OF S. L. OF A.

obtain possession on February 1. A telegram was received from Mr. McGarvie expressing his regret at not being able to be present. He assured the members he would give every support in the effort to establish a representative organization in New York City, but stating that he hoped to be present at all future meetings.

On the recommendation of the Organization Committee three trustees were elected. They were William H. Donaldson for three years, David Epstein for two years and Charles P. Medock for one year. On the recommendation of the Organization Committee the following committees were approved.

Finance—Ways and Means—Samuel W. Gumpertz, chairman; Charles P. Medock, Karl Guggenheim, James A. Timney and Ben Roessler.

Press Committee—George L. McFarlane, chairman; William Judkins Hewitt, Sydney Wire.

House Committee—George H. Hamilton, chairman; A. F. Wunderlich and Edward Hayes.

Relief Committee—David Epstein, chairman; John J. Stork, Neimey Saleh.

Attorney—James A. Timney.

The Organization Committee recommended the appointment of a special Entertainment Committee to work in conjunction with the Finance Committee, but it was voted to leave the selection of such a committee in the hands of the Governor. Numerous addresses were made, most of them being for the good of the order. Among them who spoke were George H. Hamilton, Jerry Barnett, Harry Witt, Elmer Walters, who had just returned from Denver; J. M. Kinsel, Harry Beecham, Owen Brady, Jack London, J. G. Kaempfer, Bert B. Perkins, Karl Guggenheim, James Goldie, Robert McPherson, Tobias A. Keppler, Edward C. White, Victor D. Levitt, David Epstein, Sydney Wire, Nervo and Mart McCormack.

Harry Witt spoke a second time, and suggested that a special vote of thanks be tendered A. A. Powers in appreciation of the good work done by him and his faithful service rendered the members during the period of organization.

This was greeted by applause. He further suggested that a letter to this effect be written by the secretary to the Chicago body. On the suggestion of the chair Mr. Witt also added the recommendation that a similar letter be written to Mr. Powers, the same to be suitably engrossed, signed by the officers and presented to Mr. Powers.

Mr. Powers then received an ovation, and a rising vote of thanks was tendered him. Mr. Powers responded stating that for the first time in his life he was afflicted with stagefright. He recovered quickly, however, and made another of those rip-roaring speeches of his, which contained the element known as "punch." He suggested that punch be applied in the perfecting of the organization here in New York, and gave some good advice in the direction of the administration of the branch's affairs.

He also cautioned the members as to the material brought into the organization for membership. Altho he was anxious to see the branch grow rapidly, he said, he felt that caution should be held in the passing on applications. It was every member's organization, he said, and every member should do his utmost for the uplift of the branch.

As there was no further business the meeting adjourned, another meeting to be held at the same place on Friday evening, February 1. Among those present were the following:

be of the same vital assistance to the Government in its War Stamp campaign that it has been in the Liberty Bond, Red Cross and other campaigns. The picture industry has organized a vigorous drive for this campaign, and the entire profession will bend its energies toward making the War Stamp endeavor the success that the Liberty Loan and Red Cross drives have been.

Whatever grumbling may be heard as to the war conditions and the burdens imposed, it must be said of the theater that it is bearing its burden with credit, that it is seeing its usual system disorganized by many innovations, that it is readjusting itself to new and strange conditions, but that its conduct in every new crisis is free from bitterness, complaint or refusal to do its bit. In very truth the theater has been put on its honor, has demonstrated to the world its loyalty to the country and has proved, beyond contradiction, that the people of the stage need yield to none either in courage, patriotism or devotion.

LADIES' AUXILIARY A SUCCESS

Membership Doubles at Second Meeting

Chicago, Jan. 26.—The second meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Showmen's League of America found an enthusiastic crowd of ladies on hand and many applications for membership. Many letters are coming in in response to the story published last week, and it will only be a question of a short time before the organization will have a membership of which it may well be proud. The charter is still open, and all still have an opportunity to enroll as charter members. It is always a source of great pride to be numbered among the organizers, and it is hoped that no one who is eligible will neglect to send in her name.

At the meeting held yesterday afternoon, after the applications for membership had been passed upon, the following committees were appointed. By Laws Committee, Mrs. Edward F. Neumann (chairman), Mrs. W. Fred McGuire and Mrs. Walter D. Hildreth; Membership Committee, Mrs. F. J. Owens (chairman), Mrs. Tom Rankine, Mrs. Al Latto, Mrs. Baba Delgarian and Mrs. George Rollo; Finance Committee, Mrs. W. F. McGuire (chairman) and Mrs. Al Latto; Entertainment Committee, Mrs. Tom Rankine (chairman), Mrs. James Cunliffe and Mrs. John Miller; Press Committee, Mrs. W. D. Hildreth (chairman), Mrs. W. H. Rice and Mrs. Edward C. Talbott.

The regular weekly meetings of the Ladies' Auxiliary will be held in the Showmen's League Club Rooms Wednesday afternoons from 2 to 6 p.m., the league having donated the use of a part of its club rooms on that day until the ladies secure quarters of their own.

WITT'S OVERLAND CARNIVAL

New York, Jan. 28.—Manager Harry Witt of the Victoria Attractions announces that the Victoria Shows will travel overland. Several showmen have already contracted to join. The show will open May 1. Many big things can be looked forward to as Mr. Witt's secrecy is suggestive. It is understood that Harry Witt will not handle any of his own concessions.

SERVICE!

That's what did it. Quick action, thorough understanding and intelligent and discriminating handling of mail resulted in practically nine-tenths of the professional entertainers of America making their address in care of The Billboard. Service is rapidly attracting the others.

WE ARE NOW FORWARDING AN AVERAGE OF OVER 1,000 LETTERS A DAY EACH DAY THEY ARE RECEIVED.

Many of our clients are not put to the necessity of writing for their mail more than once or twice a season.

We do not have to advertise 5% of the letters that pass through our offices.

IN WRITING FOR MAIL THAT IS ADVERTISED, USE A POSTAL CARD. A self-addressed and stamped envelope is not necessary. Give your route far enough ahead to permit your mail to reach you. Write names of towns, dates and signature plainly.

MAIL IS HELD BUT ONE MONTH

and thereafter is sent to the Dead Letter office. It is advisable to write for mail when your name FIRST appears in the list. Address your postal to "Mail Forwarding Service," The Billboard.

WASHINGTON SQUARE PLAYERS

considering their limited opportunities, give excellent accounts of themselves.

CAST OF SUPPRESSED DESIRES

Henrietta Brewster ....Clare Tree Major
Stephen Brewster ....Robert Strange
Mabel, Henrietta's sister, who lives in Chicago ....Marjorie Vonnegut

To the production given Suppressed Desires by Arthur E. Hohl is in large measure due the success it scores, altho the work of the actor and actresses is exceptionally good.

CAST OF THE SANDBAR QUEEN

"Flatboat Slim" ....Arthur Hohl
"Wingy" ....Edward Balzerit
"Blacky" ....Abram Gillette
"Shotgun Smith" ....Jay Strong
"Shorty Gerety" ....Hugo Gillespie
The Inspector ....Eugene Lincoln
The Sandbar Queen ....Helen Westley

The production by Edward F. Flammer is excellent. Helen Westley shines resplendently and Arthur Hohl is great. None of the others have any chance.

CAST OF POKEY

Pokey, better known to history as the Princess Pocahontas ......Florence Enright
John Rolfe, a botanist ....Frederick Roland
Captain John Smith of Virginia..Robert Strange
Powhattan, Chief at Werowocomoco ....Abram Gillette
Mrs. P., his squaw ....Helen Westley
The Elder Mrs. P., his mother ....Kate Morgan
Storm-in-the-Eye, a young brave....Jay Strong
Hail-in-the-Nose, a young brave ....Eugene Lincoln
Wind-in-the-Ear, a young brave.. ....Vincenzo Ioucelli

Pokey is produced by its author, and its production is a strong plea for allowing authors more "say so" in this matter than they are customarily accorded. Florence Enright's work is simply superb—even its realistic repulsive features being so well done that admiration of her artistry almost entirely nullifies the disgust that the business assigned her arouses. Helen Westley's lines are fat, and she evokes laugh after laugh. Kate Morgan has a difficult role but proves entirely equal to it, as does also Frederick Roland similarly handicapped. Robert Strange is irresistibly droll and absurd. "Pokey" on the whole is a gem, but despite its sketchiness it is more of a historical lampoon than it is a cartoon comedy. A cartoon serves some purpose, but Pokey is built to laugh at solely.

The bill as a whole possesses balance, variety, contrast and homogeneity, but it savors far, far too strongly of the aroma of very old game to gain any real or lasting vogue.

One feels that this sort of thing is all right for the long-haired, big-necktied, velveteen-jacketed and cloak-wearing habitues of the Comedy, but that they ought to be passed thru a sterilizing chamber as they emerge from the house and before they again mingle with an unsuspecting and unvaccinated world.—WATCHE

The critics on the dailies were quite generally kind and indulgent.

The Sun—The evening's offering was the most enjoyable the Players have furnished this season.

The Mail—The present bill is not without merit.

Telegram—Each of the plays was well received and several of the players, who appeared in more than one cast, were generously applauded for excellent work.

Evening Sun—The bill furnishes entertainment and relaxation for the intelligent theatergoer.

World—Pokey showed a lively sense of the grotesque, was shot thru with humor, and it had also the merits of being picturesquely staged and well performed.

American—They had four one-act plays to offer and, altho they were scarcely up to the mark set by the organization, they nevertheless furnished a pleasantly varied entertainment.

houses on its books—recognizes the seriousness of this situation. Its general management is determined to back up the theater owners in every way possible. Great leeway is given worthy managers, even to the point of reducing or dispensing entirely with stipulated commissions, when it is shown that the house manager's claims for consideration are bona fide.

Of course this is not altogether altruistic, as competition is very keen and it is only natural that a big booking syndicate should reduce to the minimum the chances of "switching bookings" under difficulties—shifts that may become permanent when conditions revert to the normal. For the smaller circuits are likewise making concessions, figuring more upon a broadened scope of influence in the future than upon immediate profits accruing.

But, in some instances, the bigger circuits have a virtual monopoly, the houses being so located that opposition figures little in the reckoning. It has been demonstrated time and again that such houses are afforded the same chances for redress given more fortunately located ones, the tendency being to consider the merits of the individual claims rather than the necessity prompted by business considerations arising from opposition for making concessions. Many small town managers will readily testify to the manner in which the circuits are co-operating not only by reducing or obliterating commissions in exceptional cases, but also by trying to keep up maximum quality bills at minimum cost.

Performers who feel that they have much to contend with because of limitations forced by conditions will find succor in the thought that, while everything may not be rosy with them, conditions have made things little less roseate for those ordinarily considered in positions of affluence. Agents in some branches find that their entire field of endeavor has been swept away by conditions, yet they are sticking to their posts, confident that the near future will bring forth a promising readjustment.

Perhaps it is a good experience for everyone concerned to go thru an interval that seals the real mettle of the various factors in the sphere of amusements. Those who exhibit a considerate attitude now are more than likely to reap a worthy reward in closely cemented friendships and profitable business relations.

of the country, his owning of railroad properties in Montana, Ohio, Arkansas and Oklahoma, and his undoubted ability in handling big transportation problems have given more strength to the fitness of him for the position. He could bring in Charles Wilson and his large staff of transportation experts under his employ and render undoubted service to Director-General McAdoo, no matter for what he might be called upon to do, is the general opinion at large in the theatrical and show world at this time.

James T. Clyde arrived in the city this morning and called at The Billboard office. He registered at the Elks' Club for a short stay.

No one seems to be concerned in New York at present about the welfare of the actor, but the actor himself. Is it not possible to have stock companies in all of the largest cities to help the actor in this, his hour of immediate need and distress?

Mark A. Leuscher must be given credit for the great success the New York Hippodrome is having in engaging such artists as headliners like Harry Handel and May Wirth.

Broadway is in a total eclipse now every night except Saturday. Curfew rings regularly. The principal occupation is not "star gazing," as the nights have been bad for that pastime. Theaters are prospering with but few exceptions. The successes have caught on in regal style. The people must and will be amused. They go where the goods are to be had as sure as you live. Obey the few and prosper is the new motto for the theater.

James J. Armstrong, one of the first of all modern booking agents of acts a in vaudeville, and "added" attractions for burlesque, was meandering along the narrow path the other morning with a friend of long standing, and of confidential acquaintance. The friend remarked that theatrical business is now in the hands of "Bolsheviki." Armstrong replied something to the effect that a man would need a fiddle to play the names of some of the theaters and a great many of the attractions playing in them.

Henry Horton, familiarly known as "Hi," and one of the stage's greatest actors of rustic roles, has been promised a long route for his latest sketch, which all agree is one of the best in vaudeville today.

Joseph Mayer, long and favorably known as a circus program publisher, is a mighty busy man in his office in the Longacre Building.

Fred McClelland was on Broadway last evening, having recently come in off the road. He is now at his home in Sea Gate awaiting an early call to managerial arms.

John Ringling was noted as being absent from his usual business meeting places early in the week. This started the rumor mongers to spread the news that he had gone to his winter home at Sarasota, Fla. This, in the eyes of all the circus fraternity, assures them that all the big circuses are due to more and more speedily, when the proper hour arrives.

Talk of an international amusement palace is buzzing as a very possible fact of accomplishment in New York's theatrical center at an early date. The little birds whisper that it will house in tabloid form features of the opera, drama, vaudeville, circus, musical, carnival, cabaret and motion picture. Does this not bring us back to the days of Oscar Hammerstein and his Olympia? May the gods smile gracefully on the one who strives to attempt to launch such a gigantic amusement enterprise.

Jas Drum has closed his long engagement as general press representative for Thomas Healey's Golden Glades. He kept that skating cabaret fully alive and before the press and public for about a year with his master style in of writing and typed pages. He put over Cuba Crutchfield and other stars at the Glades to the entire satisfaction of all concerned, the Apache dance on ice skates, White Hussars, and the duel on ice. In placing Crutchfield he head lined ads with "Prairie dogs, didn't need lorgnettes to see Cuba Crutchfield swing a rope and observe the world's best skaters." That Zip Zippy show at the Golden Glades goes merrily on now minus Drum's beats in the press.

to Monday night. Now that the uncertainty following the fuel-conservation order has given way to definite knowledge regarding Tuesday closing most of the local and offices are doing a brisk business, the closing order proving a blessing in disguise, because of the added significance of Monday.

changes of policy, from the time when it was known by this name as Stair & Havlin's banner home for road shows, until vaudeville was ushered a few years ago, when the house became known as the Great Northern Hippodrome.

At the Great Northern, during his many years of service, he established such an enviable reputation for ability to handle problems confronting the executive management in an easy-going manner that when Lyman B. Glover, pioneer manager of the Majestic, died Eberts was selected to guide the destinies of the house.

No local appointment ever gave greater pride and pleasure to its recipient. Management of this house represents the very pinnacle of vaudeville executive favor—and the appointment meant to Eberts the realization of his fondest dreams. His services as manager of Chicago's largest vaudeville theater more than fulfilled the expectations of the owners. Performers liked Eberts because of his democratic, friendly manners. With the exception of the week of his death he was to be found at the front of the house at the beginning of every performance.

Eberts' actual theatrical experience was couched in the last eighteen years, beginning with the conduct of the outlying Columbia Theater in the days when melodrama held sway. When he first joined the staff of the Great Northern many wondered if the quiet, unassuming chap would make good as a down-town manager. But he had devoted part of his earlier career to politics and had so many friends in political positions of power that it was said he could gain more favors from various city administrations than any other local manager.

Death has found a fertile field with the Kohl & Castle interests lately, wiping out nearly all the great names that made the combination famous. In June of last year Chas. E. Kohl, son and heir of the senior founder died in Oconomowoc. George Castle, last surviving member of the firm, died in his winter home in Miami, Fla., only a few weeks ago.

Eberts had a sunny disposition and took pride in aiding worthy local ventures. Some believe that the uncertain condition of vaudeville, due to transportation tie-ups, which wrought havoc with bills, and worry over the fuel administration order contributed to his fatal illness.

He is survived by a widow, Mrs. Mary Eberts, and a daughter, Nellie, who were at his bedside when he passed away. His mother resides in Detroit, Mich., and the remains were sent to Detroit for interment.

W. G. Tisdale, manager of the Majestic Theater, Milwaukee, is now holding the managerial reins of the Majestic, Chicago, succeeding Mr. Eberts. When Eberts became ill last week Tisdale was requested to come to Chicago and take charge temporarily. Now that he is "on the ground floor" in managerial capacity of the Chicago vaudeville house it is believed that he will go into the position permanently.

CHEERING WORD FROM McADOO FOR CIRCUSES AND CARNIVALS

No Special Railroad Restrictions Against Shows

Service Will Be Just as It Was Before the War

Transportation of War Material Only Given Preference

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—The railroad equipment of the country during the coming season under Government control and operation will be utilized in every way possible consistent with the war's needs in providing transportation facilities for circuses and carnivals, which are now "chafing at the bit" in their eagerness to get on the road. This statement of the attitude of the Director-General of Railroads, Mr. McAdoo, is official, and comes right from his offices in the Interstate Commerce Commission Building, where all railroad matters are handled. There will be no especial restrictions placed against circuses and carnivals. In the opinion of those assistants of the Director-General in charge of transportation details the service provided circuses, carnivals and any other amusement companies requiring extensive equipment will be "just as it has been before," or before the war started and disturbed conditions so greatly in every walk of life.

Naturally, the transportation of supplies and of soldiers and sailors will come first, not only ahead of amusement equipment, but of everything else, so that there will be no discrimination. But, due to the rapidly improving weather conditions and the easing up of the congestion on railroad tracks thruout the Northeast, East and Middle West, the outlook is such as to justify proprietors of road shows in getting ready for their usual tours and without any disturbing thoughts as to inability to get transportation facilities.

The big point is that there will not be any discrimination against this class of transportation. The Director-General of Railroads, like the President, is strongly of the view that in times such as these the people of all sections, cities and rural districts alike, need a tonic such as can be furnished by clean amusements. Therefore, the inclination of those in highest places is, first, to encourage amusement, and this will be done in the direction of railroad transportation primarily wherever possible.

DEATH TAKES WIDELY-KNOWN PUBLICITY AND THEATRICAL MAN

Leander Richardson Dies After Short Illness of Pneumonia

Was Connected for Many Years With Brady Enterprises

Credited With Introducing Theatrical News in Dailies

New York, Feb. 4.—Leander Richardson, the well-known author, dramatic editor and critic and publicity man, died last Saturday morning at his home in this city, 128 West Forty-seventh street. Death was the result of pneumonia. He was taken ill eleven days ago, and had been in an unconscious condition since last Wednesday. He was 62 years of age. His wife was at his bedside when death overtook him.

Mr. Richardson was one of the most widely known theatrical and newspaper men in the country, and had a notable career. The son of Mary Louise and Albert D. Richardson, he was born February 28, 1856, in Cincinnati, O., where he received his education.

His first connection with the theatrical profession was as editor of The New York Dramatic News, a weekly publication, working in that capacity from 1881 to 1898. From 1898 to 1900 he was on the editorial staff of The Morning Telegraph, and subsequently became editor of The New York Enquirer. He then engaged in publicity work, associating himself with William A. Brady as general press representative. Later he became general manager for William A. Brady's stage productions, and for the past three years until his death was publicity director for the World Film Corporation, of which Mr. Brady was general director until last week, when he resigned.

The deceased was a brilliant, forceful writer, and was credited with being the first man to introduce theatrical chat into the New York papers. Much amusement gossip appeared over his signature in various papers until this form of contribution became a regular department of every paper in New York.

Among the novels of which he was the author were The Dark City, Lord Dunmersley, As Ye Sow, and the following works from his pen were adapted to the American stage: Olivette, the Snake Charmer; Anselma and The Nominee. He was also the author of

CRANDALL CIRCUIT PUTS OVER BIG THEATER DEAL

Secures Ownership of New Metropolitan Theater in Washington—Knickerbocker Has Also Been Taken Over—Perfects Strong Chain of Motion Picture Houses

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—Harry M. Crandall, head of the Crandall Circuit of Theaters in Washington, D. C., spent the greater part of the past week in New York busily engaged in sewing up some important film contracts. Incidentally he brought with him word of the consummation of the biggest deal of the year in Washington theatrical and real estate circles. Mr. Crandall, Barry Bulkley and R. W. Bulkley purchased all right and title in the Crandall Theater Company, controling the Metropolitan Theater, now nearing completion at F and Tenth streets, N. W., Washington, D. C. Thru this transaction Tucker K. Sands, cashier of the Commercial National Bank, Fred S. Swindell, attorney, and A. Muehleisen relinquished all connection with the Metropolitan Theater. This new deal sets at rest rumors as to the final ownership of this valuable and palatial playhouse, which will throw open its doors to the public of Washington about the middle of March under the direction and auspices of Harry M. Crandall. The new officers of the company are Harry M. Crandall, president; Barry Bulkley, vice-president and secretary, and R. W. Bulkley, treasurer, who, together with Peter A. Drury and Michael J. Keane of the Merchants' Bank, constitute the Board of Directors. In the transaction Peter A. Drury conveyed to Harry M. Crandall nineteen parcels of real estate for a consideration of $175,000. The negotiations were conducted thru the real estate offices of Moore & Hill, Inc. The capitalization of the new Crandall Theater Company is placed at $700,000.

In addition to the Metropolitan Theater Messrs. Crandall, B. and R. W. Bulkley and A. E. Beitzell have purchased outright the recently opened

Atlantic City

To Have a Symphony Orchestra

Atlantic City, Feb. 2.—Atlantic City is to have its own Symphony Orchestra this coming spring, under the direction of Carl Deall, who has figured conspicuously in many successful shore musical directorates. The Atlantic City Symphony Orchestra or Garden Orchestra, whichever name will be permanently chosen for the new organization, began its activities last Sunday morning. At that time a rehearsal was held in the ballroom of the Garden Pier. The membership of the orchestra will consist of the leading members and principal musicians of the resort, who, thus banded together, will be available for concerts of any character in Atlantic City or for out-of-town engagements. Samuel W. Megill, of the Garden Pier, has been selected as manager, and will attend to the bookings and other business affairs of the orchestra.'

Explaining Smileage

Marc Klaw Tells What the Term Means

New York, Feb. 2.—Marc Klaw has sent out the following statement in reference to the Smileage Book drive inaugurated by Mayor Hylan's proclamation of Monday: "From letters that I have received containing inquiries regarding the Smileage Books there seems to be some confusion to the public mind as to just what the Smileage Book is. It is a book of coupon stamps or tickets, each coupon valued at five cents and bearing the signature of Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War. The books are in two sizes one containing twenty stamps, price $1, and a larger one containing one hundred stamps, price $5. They are designed to be purchased by friends and relatives at home to send to the boys in the camps, who may use the stamps in lieu of money, as they are good for their face value in the purchase of tickets at any of the camp theaters. The sale is intended to raise a fund to equip regu-

Artistic Success

Wpe Initial Performance of Cortney Little Theater Players to Spokane

Spokane, Wash., Feb. 2.—The initial performance of the Cortney Little Theater Players at the Little Theater, 615 S. Howard street, Wednesday, was an artistic success and augurs much for the future of dramatic art here. For simplicity and charm the productions would be hard to match. A small but enthusiastic audience was on hand at the opening performance. The attendance the second evening was much larger. Three short plays were given, Joint Owners in Spain, Land of Heart's Desire and The Dear Departed.

The next productions will be given February 06 and 07, March 26 and 28 and April 20 and 24. This is the only Little Theater in the Northwest devoted to dramatic productions.

Camouflage on Stage

New York, Feb. 2.—Henri de Vries is to produce a new play, called Camouflage, which, despite its title, is not a war drama, but rather a comedy employing novel camouflage effects. A special showing of the production was given at the Morosco Theater yesterday afternoon before an invited audience.

Los Angeles Puzzled

Over Booking of Johnny, Get Your Gun, at Majestic, Instead of Mason

Los Angeles, Feb. 2.—To what degree the reported disagreement between Eastern theatrical firms would affect Los Angeles was intimated this week when it was announced that Johnny, Get Your Gun, had been assigned to the Majestic Theater in this city. Several months ago Klaw & Erlanger, Cohan & Harris and Oliver Morosco signed an agreement whereby all road attractions were to be shown at the Mason, at the same time it being agreed that no rival productions would be given at the Majestic. This treaty included attractions sent to the Coast by the Shuberts and John Cort, it was understood. The booking of Johnny, Get Your Gun, a Cort attraction, at the Majestic aroused suspicion and in certain quarters the wires were pressed into service, but to no avail as far as verifying the report that K. & E. and the Shuberts would carry their grievances as far West as the Pacific Coast.

Manager W. T. Wyatt, of the Mason, declares that having had no answers to his telegraphic inquiries to the East he is at a loss to understand the situation. Donald Bowles, manager

New York, Feb. 2.—Warner Baxter, who has the part of Ricardo, the Vermicelli King, in Lombardi, Ltd., and Winifred Bryson, who acts the character of Muriel, a mannequin, in the same play, were married in the Bronx Wednesday. The marriage is the culmination of a romance which began in Los Angeles when they appeared in motion pictures.

Camp Lewis Theaters

Two Will be Controlled by Camp Lewis Company and Third by Government

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 2.—Two new theaters, each having a seating capacity of 2,000, are under construction at Camp Lewis, and it is planned to have them completed by March 1. The houses will be controlled by the Camp Lewis Vaudeville Company, of which John Donnellan, former Sullivan & Considine manager, is at the head.

Amusements at the camp go on a new footing, very shortly, according to a bulletin sent out by Division Headquarters. The announcement is made that all theaters and other places of amusement of a competitive character that have been established by the various organizations in the division must cease to operate immediately upon completion of the new million-dollar Amusement Zone to be called Liberty Park. The only exception to the order is the huge Liberty Theater, just completed near Division Headquarters, and which is to be operated under supervision of the commission of training camp activities.

The opening date for the Liberty Theater has not been set, but will be ready for business as soon as the attractions now playing camps in the Eastern section of the country get this far West. Baby Mine will be the opening bill, with Ida Stanhope, former Prince of Pilsen star.

Edward R. Braden will be the house manager at this camp at a salary of $2,500 per annum, with quarters and food allowance.

The Smileage books were received this week and will be put on sale in a few days. Fifty thousand men are stationed at Camp Lewis, one of the largest cantonments in the United States.

Cardinal Endorses Campaign

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 2.—Cardinal Gibbons has given his approval and support to the campaign of the Baltimore Rotary Club to sell $65,000 worth of Smileage books.

Baltimore Theater Sale

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 6.—Blaney's Colonial Theater, on North Eutaw street, which was to have been sold under foreclosure proceedings December 21, will be actually sold at public auction Friday, February 21. The sale in December was estopped by a restraining order secured by the attorneys for Charles E. Blaney and his wife, Cecil S. Blaney, who claimed that the amounts due Lee Shubert under two mortgages, one for $14,000 and the other for $20,000, had been partially paid by moneys paid Shubert under lease, and asked that the exact amount due be ascertained by accountants to be appointed by the Court. The accountants have filed their report, and the amount due is approximately $20,000. Therefore the trustee, S. Ralph Warnken, has advertised the property for sale at public auction, and it will positively be sold February 21.

For New Hospital

American Actresses To Aid British Fund

New York, Feb. 2.—The Actresses' Franchise League has joined forces with the British Women's Hospital Fund. Already they have raised £100,000 toward a new hospital which is being built. May Whitty (Mrs. Ben Webster), who is a sister of one of the earnest workers at the Stage Woman's War Relief, Mrs. Thos. Wise, has been given the title of Dame Commander of the Empire in honor of the splendid work she has done in London. The quick response of theatrical women is visible everywhere.

Avaunt Pessimism

The closing of the theaters will not last longer than the middle of February. This on the authority of a very prominent personage in Washington.

Show prospects have been distorted by pessimistic misanthropists, and their insidious propaganda has been, perhaps unmeaningly, distributed all over the country, until a despondent attitude has been adopted by many show owners.

Never fear—your shows will go out, and WILL MOVE. You may arrive a little late sometimes, but you will GET THERE.

Our Government is not going to hang sackcloth and ashes on the American spirit—for it knows that immediately a state of perpetual gloom is permitted to exist that this spirit would be nullified. The theater and the outdoor show are the only agencies of mental relaxation from the horrors of the world's greatest catastrophe, and when the future historian compiles the record of the twentieth century it will be shown incontestably that to show people was due the credit for the survival of true Americanism.

Al G. Field reports that his business thruout the country is as good as ever. The Ringlings are making preparations for their biggest season.

Abstain from all allusions to the Cave of Despair, for thru the clouds of despondency is plainly visible the rainbow of prosperity.

Modifies Closing Rule

Providence, R. I., Feb. 2.—State Fuel Administrator Holmes has modified the theater rule laid down by the Federal Government to fit the situation peculiar to this city. Amusement places may open at 11 a.m. instead of 12 and remain open until not later than 10:15 p.m.

Altho the actual amount of fuel saved by restricting such houses is comparatively small, Mr. Holmes points out that the intention is to thus impress upon the public, or at least the theatergoing portion of the public, the seriousness of the coal situation. It is not solely a psychological measure he says.

This change was made as the result of protests of local theatrical men and other amusement proprietors.

Woods' Chicago Staff

Chicago, Feb. 2.—The Chicago directorate of Al Woods' theatrical enterprise which required the erection of a big building at Dearborn and Randolph streets is now known. Joseph G. Syndecker, a blown-in-the-bottle Chicagoee, is the new manager. His principal associate will be Louis M Housman, whose exploits in p. a. capacities suggest that startling devices will be conceived for promoting the success of attractions stopping at the new Woods home. Ray West, of the Olympic, is slated for treasurer. The office building to which the theater will be housed will be called the Raeburn.

BROADWAY AND BYWAYS

By William Judkins Hewitt

New York, Feb. 2.—Crowds are flocking to the theaters for the matinee performances. The weather is cold and clear. The word coming from the nation's capital that the Tuesday theater ban may soon be a thing of the past has put theatrical New York in a better frame of mind.

• • • • • •

Early part of the week the press was full of matter relative to the Home of Mystery theater that is credited to the initiative of William J. Hilliar and Harry Houdini. That it will be among the places of note in the theatrical district by early next season is generally conceded.

• • • • • •

Producers and theatrical managers have a serious grievance against the theater owners and operators, according to a story going the rounds of Broadway today. It appears that it is going to result in some concerted action on the part of the producers and managers to alleviate their oppression, such as high percentages, rentals, heavy and exorbitant "extras" and the alike unreasonable demands made upon them by the theater owners and operators in this city and the entire country. That the producers and managers will organize and fight for better terms all around is expected to break within the next few days as the "heaviest piece" of theatrical news of the present season. Many of the biggest names on the street are spoken of as the fathers of this movement and in the incorporation of the Producers and Managers' Association as Dame Rumor has planned.

• • • • • •

As everyone knows, many of New York's best and biggest things are not on Broadway. Up on West 110th street we discover that William Grupp, the former ex-middleweight boxer, has a gymnasium the like of which can not probably be found in any other city in the world at the present time. It is a "workout" place and auditorium for the use of the professional boxer, wrestler, circus and vaudeville acrobat, aerialist and physical culture artist, both male and female. It is about forty feet from the floor to the roof. It has a regulation "squared circle" for boxing and wrestling, pads for the tumblers, shower baths, and all necessary equipment is all around the place. Instructors for teaching boxing, wrestling and physical culture are at your service by appointment, as regular office hours are maintained by the management for each branch of the athletic business. Take our tip, if you want anything in this line go up to Grupp's place. It should be of especial interest to the circus performer at this time of the year, when all should be training.

• • • • • •

Turner & Dahnken, of San Francisco, have secured the rights of the Public Defender picture for the Pacific Coast. Mr Dahnken was in the city this week attending the sessions of the First National Exhibitors, of which J. D. Williams is the master head. Very important deals in connection with the Charley Chaplin releases are credited from this gathering of "First National" Exhibitors.

• • • • • •

James A. Timony has returned from Washington, where he went in the interest of certain theatrical interests in connection with the movements of companies over the transcontinental lines. Timony is much pleased with the results of his trip, and is very optimistic as to the future as regards railroad matters in which the theatrical man in general is vitally concerned.

• • • • • •

All agree that the theatrical business is showing a decided improvement by way of the box office. Some day $1.50 will be the "top" price of admission for theaters in this city and $2 "top" elsewhere. The "cut" has taken root in some places already. Kick us they may, it is coming to the "drop." The public is pressing it.

• • • • • •

E. F. Albee went to Florida early in the week.

• • • • • •

H. F. McGarvie returned from Washington on a business trip of importance.

• • • • • •

All vaudeville theaters are showing marked improvement in attendance.

• • • • • •

Reports on Broadway today to the effect that Louis Berni will launch a big amusement exposition.

• • • • • •

Gus Edwards may be the first to put on a Wild West Cabaret. He is credited with having accepted the idea and will attempt its early development in one of the city's largest restaurants.

• • • • • •

The news that all the big circuses will go out has put good cheer into the hearts of all the followers of the white tops who wintered in this city.

• • • • • •

William A. Brady, according to the press, considered his labor in connection with the World Film Corporation "onerous labor," and by reason of that has retired from the head of that firm.

• • • • • •

Sylvester Schaffer, the versatile vaudevillian, showed up on the big street last Tuesday.

• • • • • •

Al G. Field passed thru last week. He will spend the next week or two in the East, most of the time in Trenton on legal business.

• • • • • •

Samuel W. Gumpertz was on Broadway the other day. He is greatly enlarging his Coney Island interests.

• • • • • •

The Coney Island Board of Trade met last night. Many New Yorkers that are interested in the welfare of the "Island" were present.

• • • • • •

The Showmen's League of America (New York branch) will have its first meeting on February 8, in the old Republican headquarters, 817 Sixth avenue. Work of remodeling the rooms is progressing at a rapid pace.

• • • • • •

Rumor on Broadway today has it that Frank P. Spellman has disposed of all his holdings in the United States Circus Corporation to the Ringling interests.

• • • • • •

Some have it today on the big street that the Ringlings are in the open market to purchase 300 auto trucks.

• • • • • •

Jobe R. Rogers (yours merrily) has been selected as general manager of the clubrooms of the Showmen's League of America, New York branch.

Harry R. Raver has recovered from his four days' "shut in" on account of illness.

New Morality Play

Hobart's Loyalty Will Be Produced by Comstock, Elliott & Gest

New York, Feb. 4.—Messrs. William Elliott, F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest announce that this week they will begin rehearsals on another notable production, entitled Loyalty, being a modern morality play from the pen of George Hobart, author of Experience, to which popular success Loyalty will be a sequel. The new play will require a big company, the cast of characters calling for eighty-two speaking parts. There are also twelve scenes, some of which are said to be found on patriotic motifs, as is suggested by the title of the piece.

The premiere of Loyalty will take place in Washington, D. C., the producers believing that no more appropriate birthplace for such a play could be selected than the National Capital. Immediately afterward it will come to New York, at a Broadway theater to be announced later. Meanwhile Experience is finishing its fourth successful year and playing its farewell engagement at the Manhattan Opera House.

New Admission Price Bill

Providence, R. I., Feb. 2.—A bill was presented in the House of Representatives here this week relating to the price of admission charged by theaters on certain Mondays. It is understood that the purpose of the bill is to prevent theaters from charging holiday prices on heatless Mondays.

New York, Feb. 4.—The Lady of the Camellias is on the last week of its engagement at the Empire Theater, closing there Saturday night. The Empire, after being dark for three days, will reopen Thursday night, February 14, with R. C. Carton's comedy, The Off Chance.

700th Time in London

New York, Feb. 4.—Chu Chin Chow, the present success at the new Century, will celebrate its 700th performance at His Majesty's Theater in London February 9.

Highland to Australia

New York, Feb. 2.—George A. Highland, for a number of years stage director for Klaw & Erlanger, leaves New York for San Francisco today on his way to Australia, where he will stage plays for the next two years. He will travel in the company of Hugh Ward, the producer and manager of Australia. Among the manuscripts Mr. Highland has taken with him are Katinka, Oh, Boy; Oh, Oh, Delphine; A Tailor-Made Man, Maytime, Business Before Pleasure, Parlor, Bedroom and Bath, The High Cost of Loving, The Man Who Came Back and The Thirteenth Chair.

Under Pressure in Chicago

VAUDEVILLE CABARETS

"PAPERS WERE STOLEN," SAYS MOUNTFORD AT INVESTIGATION

Referee Asks if Witness Is Trying To Be Facetious—"Calls" Camouflaged Contribution—$50,000 "Subscription" To Strike Fund Was a Myth

New York, Feb. 2.—Harry Mountford, at the continued hearing in the White Rats' investigation yesterday afternoon, made the open accusation that important documents of the Rats which are not produceable had been stolen and are now in the possession of those who instigated these proceedings. This charge brought a sharp reply from Alvin T. Sapinsky, attorney for those responsible for the investigation, and Referee Lewis Schuldenfrei personally took the witness in hand and conducted a sharp interrogation as to these alleged thefts, when they occurred and under what circumstances.

The hearing was the most sensational and the most productive one yet held, and Mountford was the one to furnish the pyrotechnics. Time and time again he was questioned by the referee.

Mountford, it must be admitted, never failed to be ready with an answer. Many times he would make an answer and then glance about the room with a satisfied smile on his face, as much as to say, "I got out of that rather neatly, don't you think?"

Mountford was questioned regarding the personal expenses of the White Rats' officials on their various trips, strike fund expenditure, etc., and this questioning brought out some vitally interesting facts.

"What arrangement," asked Mr. Sapinsky, "was made to check up the expenses of the officials of the Rats on their various trips?"

Mountford replied that the expense accounts were paid in the regular manner, that vouchers were submitted for all bills of expense.

"Were these vouchers preserved in the records?"

"I think so—they should be."

"Now, taking up the statement of the $4,492.08 expended on the Oklahoma strike, are there any vouchers in existence?"

In reply the witness announced: "The vouchers for this expense were in the possession of the attorney's real clients."

"What do you mean?" asked the referee. "Are you referring to Miss Goldie Pemberton?"

Emery Theater at Providence

"Comes Back" as Vaudeville House

Providence, R. I., Feb. 2.—Four weeks ago there was a great deal of speculation here on the part of the theatrical men as to the possibility of the Emery Theater ever coming back. During the last two weeks the theater has turned away patronage at two performances daily, while the third, or supper show, has drawn bigger than in old days. Manager Toohey has received the congratulations of scores of Boston and New York theatrical men on pulling the vaudeville house (Loew bookings) back to the standard set previous to its almost complete collapse with traveling musical comedies and dramatic companies and the showing of moving pictures.

CLEO MAYFIELD

Miss Mayfield and Cecil Lean have returned to vaudeville on the Orpheum Circuit in Songs of the Moment. She is recognized as one of the most beautiful women of the stage, and has a wealth of beautiful costumes.

New Act for Foy

New York, Feb. 2.—Eddie Foy has just completed a tour of the Orpheum houses in The Old Woman Who Lives in a Shoe, and notwithstanding the worry attendant upon the serious illness of Mrs. Foy, who was recently operated upon in El Paso, Tex., he has found time to prepare and produce a new act with his numerous children. The latest offering is entitled Slum Where in New York, and was written by George V. Hobart and the New York slang-slinging newspaper writer, Bugs Baer.

Pantages for Patts

Chicago, Feb. 2.—The Aerial Patts are booked for the full schedule of the Pantages Circuit, opening in Minneapolis March 3. They have just returned to Chicago after filling Eastern dates.

Booking Agents Arrested

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 4.—Several theatrical booking agents were arrested here for operating without a city license. They are Howard Royer, 228 Fourth avenue; Jack Mazaro, 339 Fifth avenue; L. B. McLaughlin, Fulton Building.

Moss Gets Another

New York, Feb. 4.—The Grand Opera House on Twenty-third street, which is now being furnished acts by Bill Casey, will, beginning Tuesday, February 12, be booked by B. S. Moss. The Opera House, which was reported to have been on the alleged "blacklist" of the Vaudeville Managers' Protective Association, has finally been admitted to the organization after a number of refusals. Bernard Simon booked the the house previous to Casey.

Elizabeth Brice as "Single"

New York, Feb. 2.—Altho the war has split up the combination of Brice and King, Elizabeth Brice is not to be lost to vaudeville. She will appear as a "single" woman with a pianist. Charley King recently joined the navy, but his family will continue to be represented in vaudeville, as his sister, Mollie, of picture fame, recently returned to the two-a-day, in which field she was famous a few years ago as a child impersonator of famous stars.

Disciplined by Fines

Performers Pay for Their Shortcomings

New York, Feb. 2.—At a joint committee meeting of the Vaudeville Managers' Protective Association and the National Vaudeville Artists several artists were fined for infractions of the regulations of the organization. George White was fined a full week's salary for refusing to play the Hipp., Cleveland. He took a late train and then complained about his dressing room, and eventually got into an argument and was canceled. He was ordered to pay to the treasurer of the N. V. A. a sum equivalent to his contracted salary for the engagement.

Joe Schenck of Van and Schenck and Morton of Morton and Clare had an altercation at the Royal Theater ending in a fist fight. It cost Schenck $100 and Morton $50. This method of adding to the treasury of the N. V. A. will in all probability be adopted for the future, as the managers' association feels that the act will be properly disciplined by the financial loss.

Lewis & Lake Company

To Play New Pacific Musical Revue Wheel

Seattle, Feb. 2.—After the Lewis & Lake Musical Comedy Company completes its tour of the Pantages Circuit about the middle of March it will return to this city and will form one of the three musical shows that are to play the new Pacific Musical Revue Wheel of three stands—Seattle, Portland and Los Angelm.

Big Hospital Benefit

New York, Feb. 4.—A. Paul Keith and E. F. Albee have donated the talent for a benefit performance which will be given for the New York Foundling Hospital at the Manhattan Opera House Sunday evening, February 10. Among the stars who will appear are George M. Cohan, Grace LaRue, Paul Dickey, Leo Carrillo and Rock and White. Douglas Fairbanks in a photoplay, and the dramatic picture, Souls Redeemed, will also be shown.

Auditorium at Spokane

Opens As Orpheum Circuit House—Charles E. Bray Present

Spokane, Wash., Feb. 2.—Patrons of big-time vaudeville crowded the Auditorium Theater this afternoon to witness Martin Beck's attractions again after a lapse of three years. Charles E. Bray, of the Orpheum Theater and Realty Company, was present at the opening. Cliff P. Work, manager of the Oak Theater at Seattle for a short period, will represent the Orpheum Circuit in Spokane.

Gertrude Hoffman's forty-eight-minute revue heads the bill, which consists of Lytell and Vokes, in a comedy skit; Leo Beers, a distinctive entertainer, with whistling, songs, patter and piano; J. C. Nugent, in a sketch with real comedy; Kerr and Weston, who excel with strenuous dances; Kelly and Galvin, in patter, which went big; traveling and concert orchestra.

The prices range from 25 cents to 75 cents, and the same bill will appear in Tacoma the last half.

Vaudeville Reviews By Special Wire

Chicago Palace

(Reviewed First Show Monday, February 4)

Chicago, Feb. 4.—Stormbound conditions were still with us, accounting for the absence of the bill's headliner, Eva Tanguay, who was held up in the vicinity of Grand Rapids, Mich.

No. 1—The trotting bear, Lolette, does rollers and performs astounding feats for such a clumsy-looking quadruped, and with an intelligent trainer, who co-operates, presents interesting stunts. Twelve minutes, in full stage; one curtain.

No. 2—Homer Dickinson and Gracie Deagon, graduates from neighborhood houses, showed entertaining stamina of big-time caliber. Gracie's baby voice made her childish antics interesting, and Homer showed he was more than a comedy one by piano work, which was effective despite the fact that the piano was brought on in a most awkward manner, after the act had progressed for many minutes. Their encore presentation of refined nonsense won three additional bows, after the regular offering had scored one. Twenty three minutes, in one.

No. 3—Trixie Friganza filled the time interval allotted to Eva Tanguay, being allotted this early position to afford time for presenting her act at the Majestic, where she is a regular attraction of the week, and under which house her act is reviewed in this issue. She consumed twenty-six minutes, and got four bows.

No. 4—Edith Clifford proved one of the bill's real delights. Her parodies struck a responsive chord, and her personality made ordinary songs sound immense. Sixteen minutes, in one, four bows. Louis Truesdell rendered valuable assistance at the piano.

No. 5—Bart and Clark have a novel, original and most interesting conception billed as Columbia and Victor, in which each impersonated the spirit of the phonograph named, making a surprising entrance from the phonograph cabinets after springing clever lines relating to the activities and experiences of these machines. Their singing is adequate and their dancing superb. Fifteen of the best minutes on the bill, opening in one, closing in interior three and winning four curtains.

No. 6—The Four Mortons, second edition of the old reliables, introducing a new set of youngsters, but with the same beloved old folks, afforded a splendid study in contrast. Their present offering has far more artistic effect than any of those they used to delight vaudeville patrons with. The old folks showed remarkable vigor when matched with the youngsters in dancing and their comedy lines caught on like wildfire. The youngsters made a fine appearance, and were most interesting. Twenty two minutes, in one; four bows.

No. 7—Howard and White were in many respects like Dickinson and Deagon, their late spot placing them at a disadvantage as Bernice Howard, like Gracie Deagon, did a kid bit and Jack White much in the manner of Homer Dickinson showed skill at the piano. Their conversational manner of introducing songs was very clever. Seventeen minutes, in one, two bows.

No. 8—Van and Belle, supported by scenic equipment exceptionally attractive to the eye, giving a fine glimpse of summer surroundings, prove themselves most entertaining missile experts, missing just often enough to make their stunts more effective when properly executed. Twelve minutes; opening in one and closing in full stage.—CASPER.

JAMES J. ARMSTRONG DIES

Was Dean of All Vaudeville Agents

New York, Feb. 4.—James J. Armstrong, dean of all vaudeville agents, died Sunday night at his home, 124 Jewett avenue, Jersey City Heights, N. J. Death was due to pneumonia. He was born in New York City sixty-three years ago and his show career dates back to 1880. In 1888 he was manager for Dick Fitzgerald's Early Bird company, and in 1889 he took charge of Dick Fitzgerald's Vaudeville Agency. On the death of Fitzgerald in that year he continued the business in conjunction with Kate Fitzgerald. After Mrs. Fitzgerald's death in 1890 Mr. Armstrong ran the business, conducting it up to the present time in his own name. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made. The profession loses in his death one of its most beneficial members and one who was always quick to respond to those who were needy. His good deeds are numbered into the thousands.

B.F. KEITH'S PALACE THEATER

When you have played the Palace, you have "made Broadway"

(Reviewed First Show Monday, February 4)

New York, Feb. 4.—When Frederick F. Daab and his excellent orchestra played The Star-Spangled Banner at the first show today the theater was almost empty. The usual Monday matinee patrons did not arrive until about the time the third act was on. But the house gradually filled up, and it became evident that the three-a-day policy was a success. In fact, one wonders if this will not be the usual method of running the Palace, even after this fuelless bogy has disappeared. Long before the show was over the lobby was crowded with second show patrons. The program was one of the best offered here this season, but it was tough sailing for the early acts, as empty seats do not laugh and applaud. Valeska Suratt and Jack Wilson were the prominent features of a real vaudeville bill.

No. 1—Palace Orchestra, admirably conducted by Frederick F. Daab, aided the ushers in seating the early birds.

No. 2—Hearst-Pathe News Weekly. What a wonderful educational feature these pictures have become Probably no other force in America has the same patriotic punch as is possessed by this film.

No. 3—Curran and Newell, in A Chinese Circus. These boys opened with eccentric dancing to empty seats. It reminded one of the old days when you looked thru the curtain and heard the stage manager say: "You ought to have been here last Thursday." After their first dance one thought of the burial of Sir John Moore. "Not a sound was heard, not a funeral note," but when they went into full stage and got on the horizontal bars their cleverness became apparent to the few who had braved the early hour, and they went over excellently. In one and full stage for twelve minutes.

No. 4—Boudini Brothers, piano accordionists, did the best they could; in fact, it seemed a shame that these clever chaps had not been in a better position, for they are two real musicians and deserved a better fate. Ten minutes, in one; one bow.

No. 5—Bert Melrose, the international clown, worked for nineteen minutes. He would do much better if he were to cut his act down to about eight or ten minutes. He is a clever pantomimist undoubtedly, but one tires of it for so long. If Jim Morton had stepped out here to announce the next act it would have given a touch of life to the show, but they were walking in on Bert all thru his act, and he did very well.

No. 6—Annette Kellermann, with her big show, repeated her last week's success. This real performer seems improved each time you see her, and it is very evident that she has ambitions to become the greatest female entertainer in vaudeville. It is very refreshing to see one who is already a star not being content with the laurels already heaped upon her, but who is determined to continually keep abreast of the times. Forty minutes, in many beautiful settings. Four curtains and a speech.

No. 7—Wellington Cross, with Ted Shapiro at the piano, was greatly liked. He is one of those lovable light comedians that are a rarity in vaudeville, and this single that he is doing shows much thought and care in its preparation. He received encores and did sixteen minutes of real entertainment.

No. 8—Valeska Suratt, in The Purple Poppy, was the hit of the show. In fact, she was a surprise to the Palace crowd, she having always been associated with the dyed-in-the-wool vampire. It was delightful to see her as the sister of a Russian revolutionist avenge the death of her brother. This artist is bubbling over with personality, and in this little playlet she proves herself an actress of great range. Howard Hall, as Nicholas Sarapoff, was very good, and William H. Turner, as Bryan O'Dare, deserves special mention. Miss Suratt, you have proved yourself to be not merely a wearer of fine clothes. Twenty-six minutes, in special settings; seven curtains.

No. 9—Jack Wilson, in what the program says is An Impromptu Revue, but in reality is a pot-pourri of Wilsonisms. This delightful comedian need never fear that anyone else will steal his material. He is original in everything. His burlesque remarks regarding the preceding acts caused roars of laughter. He is assisted by Tom Mitchell, a good singer, and Helene Goff, who looks stunning. New York understands Wilson and he understands New York, and gives it just what it wants, with the result that everyone in the house today shed tears of laughter at this droll person. Twenty-six minutes, in one; many bows and encores.

No. 10—Madame M. Cronin's Electrical Novelty closed the show. This is a very showy offering, with electrical effects, ably assisted by Mlle. Juliette, a very clever dancer.—HILLIAR.

Majestic, Chicago

(Reviewed First Show Monday, February 4.)

Chicago, Feb. 4.—In keeping with the big-time vaudeville houses that are running three performances on heatless Mondays the Majestic opened the first performance promptly at 1 p.m., but the first of these early performances found quite a majority of theatergoers at a loss to know just what was going on. The main floor was pretty well filled, but the upper balconies and boxes were only sparsely seated. The McIntyres, billed for opening, failed to appear at the first show.

No. 1—Orpheum Circuit Travel Weekly.

No. 2—The McIntyres; absent.

No. 3—Frank Allen and Grace Francis, a comedy dancing and singing team, open in a mediocre way, but score their point when they swing from singing and jesting to eccentric dancing. They brought down a big laugh when they concluded with an eccentric soft shoe dance, which they put over nicely. Ten minutes, in one, two bows.

No. 4—Ed Lee Wrothe is the same good character comedian that Chicago remembers from away back when he was the Irish character in The Bickel, Watson and Wrothe Trio. He appears in the role of Janitor in an interesting little comedy plot in which he is assisted by a good cast of few people, who help in putting over the act in good shape. Twenty-five minutes, in three.

No. 5—Yvette and Saranoff are seen in an other new offering which they term A Ragtime Concerto. Both members are violinists, possessing rare ability and remarkable versatility, and they proved to be one of the refreshing bits of the bills, with an exceptional routine of songs, dances and violin duets, which they present before three different drops, working in one, two and three. Twenty minutes, two bows.

No. 6—Pat Rooney and Marion Bent have forsaken the old reliable newsstand, and the only remaining bit left of their oldtime hit sketch is at one point where Pat brings forth a couple of the magazines from which they both extract their comedy lines and patter. They appear before a new drop, and, as usual, Pat scores a solid hit with his wonderfully clever dancing. Twenty minutes, in one and two; two bows.

No. 7—The Dancing Girl of Delhi, an Oriental fantasy from the tales of the Mohammedan courts, is staged in a scene representing the terrace garden of a palace. A half dozen lithe and graceful dancing girls with Vanda Hoff and Betalo Rubino compose the cast enacting the plot, which introduces weird, ancient dances offered in gorgeous costume and richly appointed settings and draperies. Eighteen minutes, in full; four curtains.

No. 8—Trixie Friganza, adorable and robust Trixie, who holds a warm spot in the hearts of Chicagoans, and proved that she is still capable of bringing joy and laughter to her audiences, occupies the honor position and puts over the laughing riot of the bill. Trixie attempts dancing just prior to her closing and she burlesques it in a manner that brought the house down. She is also assisted by Mellown Ten Eyck and Max Weily Eighteen minutes, in one and three; three bows and encore.

No. 9—Sports in the Alps closed the show with nary a walkout. They have indeed a pantomimic novelty with a scene in the Alps, the sextet of acrobats appearing in winter garb on skis and sleds, etc. They perform many hazardous feats springing from teeterboards to each other, closing with a topmounter standing four high, which brought a big applause. Eight minutes, in full.—ZIN.

BEREZNIAK BACK IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Feb. 3.—There are some enjoyable times to visit the East time in the middle of a severe winter, in the opinion of Leon A. Berezniak, the well-known Chicago theatrical lawyer. Mr. Berezniak is entitled to speak with authority, as he has just returned to Chicago after two weeks spent in the frozen wilds of New Hampshire, Massachusetts and New York, where he was obliged to go by important legal business. He reports railroad transportation conducted with difficulty because of the cold and snow, but fairly well maintained. The theatrical business, while apparently prosperous, was somewhat affected by like conditions. He met many members of the profession while in the East and received many attentions at their hands.

RAY MERWIN ILL

Chicago, Feb. 4.—Ray Merwin, the booking agent, is confined in a local hospital with a stroke of facial paralysis.

Orpheum, San Francisco

No. 9—Pathe photoplay; four minutes.—BOZ.

Columbia, St. Louis

(Reviewed Monday Matinee, February 4)

St. Louis, Feb. 4.—The Orpheum had a big house in spite of the street car strike and no cars running. Manager Sullivan had a hard time in putting on a show owing to delay in acts getting in. Three Bobs, Frankie Heath, Milo, and Aveling and Lloyd did not arrive for the show. The Act Beautiful and Miss Olga Boris substituted. Fritzi Scheff headlined. The Seven Honeyboys were the big hit, with Miss Boris a close second.

No. 1—Hearst Weekly. Fifteen minutes.

No. 2—Burdella Patterson, in a novelty posing act, which is artistic thruout and pleased. The slides were beautiful and effective. Fifteen minutes, full stage, two calls.

No. 3—Seven Honeyboys, in melody and wit, pleased. The Liberty Bell number was their best, and it went over strong. Twenty-five minutes, in one and full stage; six calls.

No. 4—George Nash and Company, in the sketch, The Unexpected. Burglary is the theme, and it was cleverly worked out and played. The audience enjoyed every minute of it. Twenty-five minutes, full stage; three calls.

No. 5—Miss Olga Boris, pianist, is a wonderful artist, and played difficult selections with ease and effectiveness. Big hit. This was an extra number. Fifteen minutes, in one; five calls.

No. 6—Fritzi Scheff, prima donna, pleased with all numbers, which ranged from popular to opera. Her Kiss Me number was the biggest favorite. Fifteen minutes, full stage; three calls.

No. 7—The Act Beautiful, posing with horse and dogs, is beautiful and artistic work, but the act is too long, but nevertheless pleased. Fifteen minutes, in four; three calls.—WILL.

KRANER ILL—IN NEED

Eddie Lou Kraner, formerly a member of the Ham Tree Company and a number of repertoire shows, as well as a vaudeville performer, is confined in Harper's Hospital at Detroit, Mich., where he has undergone an operation for appendicitis. He arrived in Detroit and was about to work in vaudeville when he was stricken with the malady. Mr Kraner has a big hospital bill to pay, which he is unable to meet. He would appreciate donations from his friends, or would rather have some manager for whom he has worked pay his bill and then let him work it out. Address him in care of the hospital.

PHENOMENAL BUSINESS

Being Done by Plaza Theater at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Reports from St. Petersburg, Fla., tell of phenomenal business having been done so far this season in the magnificent Plaza Theater.

One-night stand attractions and repertoire companies have broken all previous records for St. Petersburg, this season's business averaging more than seventy-five per cent better on the gross than last winter, which was St. Petersburg's best season.

J. A. Coburn's Minstrels did $2,000 on the day, with Gus Hill's Minstrels a close second. The Starnes Stock Company, at popular prices, kept the big playhouse filled to the doors during a week of the worst sort of weather.

The Plaza is one of the largest and most modern theaters south of Baltimore, having a seating capacity of 2,200. It was built at a cost of $225,000, and until last season was far ahead of the city. In the past four years it has held the record for daily business for a number of attractions.

One of the principal reasons for the big business being done in St. Petersburg is the fact that Gandy Brothers, managers of the Plaza, refuse to book a one-nighter that does not look good to them, and thereby protect their patrons. A dozen or more attractions have been rejected this season. Business has been secured by the repertoire companies by offering such attractions at the lowest prices and making use of the large seating capacity.

There is no apparent reason why the present business should not hold up until April.

HARRISBURG'S NEW HOTEL

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 3.—After many trials and tribulations caused by the cold weather and the snows the new Penn-Harris Hotel, which is being erected here, is at last being put under roof. For many years Harrisburg, the capital of this State, has been without proper hotel accommodations. Many theatrical people who have played the town have expressed their dissatisfaction. The Penn-Harris is to be a beautiful new structure of ten stories. It will be opened in several months. Prices are to be popular, and the best of equipment has been promised.

DOING OUR BIT GOES

FATHER AND THE BOYS AGAIN

Los Angeles, Feb. 2.—William H. Crane, who is keeping from inactivity in Los Angeles by appearing at Red Cross affairs, this week set to rest the rumor that he was arranging to become a boxing impresario by stating his plans which gave rise to the report. Mr. Crane declares that his pet ambition, at present writing, is to take out George Ade's revamping of the old play, Father and the Boys, with the well-known fighter, Jimmy Britt, for one of the leading roles.

WANTS MARRIAGE ANNULLED

Los Angeles, Feb. 1.—Melbourne McDowell, a well-known tragedian, widower of Fanny Davenport, is suing for the annulment of his marriage to Kathryn Neff, a former nurse, to whom McDowell claims he was married while in a semiconscious condition in a local hospital.

BROADWAY MUSIC HITS

New York, Feb. 2.—The Broadway Music Corporation has launched three big hits in the music world recently which are all the talk up and down Melody Land. They are Au Revoir, But Not Good-by, Soldier Boy; My Mind Is Made Up, I am Going to Marry Caroline; Just a Little Cottage, I'll Call It Home, Sweet Home. These three songs were issued about New Year's, and Will Von Tilzer, the president of the Broadway Music Corporation, states that they are being sung by more headline vaudeville people than any songs that the Broadway has published in the past two years. This is rather a broad statement when we consider that the Broadway had two of the biggest hits in 1917. Certainly this concern is now in the front rank of music publishers, and with its large staff and well appointed offices at 145 West Forty-fifth street, New York, it is in the floodtide of success.

EVERYTHING IN SONG SLIDES

New York, Feb. 2.—The Greater New York Slide Company, 154 West Forty-fifth street, keeps up with the times in supplying the song slide trade. Their glass and mica slides are of first quality in every respect and their stock is so voluminous that there is a chance of the singer finding anything he wants in the way of chorus slides for popular songs. The song slides are handsomely colored to match the verse and chorus, there being about ten slides, including a title and mica chorus. Whole set costs $3.75. The chorus slides rent 35 cents each or three for $1. This company also does a big business in the supplying of special slides made to order. For such service their charge is exceptionally reasonable.

THEATERS IN SEATTLE

Have No Complaint To Make About Business—All Faring Big

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 2.—The Metropolitan Theater has had more attractions so far this season than were shown there for the entire season of 1916-'17. Some twenty-seven shows have played the house this season, and about an equal number of big attractions are yet in the offing. And several shows have canceled all Northwestern dates this season because of poor business in California territory. Last season the traveling shows were about equally divided between the Moore and the Metropolitan, and as they were few and far between both houses were dark the greater portion of the time. So far this season has been a winner here for everything in the theatrical line.

Orpheum vaudeville opened the season at the Moore the last week in September, and the shows have been playing to full houses ever since. Pantages' eight business runs to capacity seven days a week. At the Palace-Hip. W. V. M. A. road shows play to capacity both matinee and night. The Orpheum, former Sullivan & Considine house, is playing four acts of Transcontinental vaudeville (booked by Matthews) and two acts of Tour B Hippodrome vaudeville (W. V. M. A.). The old Tivoli Theater, First and Madison, has been rechristened the Gaiety, and the Armstrong Folly Company is showing burlesque offerings to full houses. The Lyric, in the South end of the city, is offering a combination of vaudeville and musical tabs, and enjoys fair patronage. The Alhambra was taken over by the Wilkes Bros. early in the season, and was renamed the Wilkes Theater. The Wilkes Players are now in their 23d week of stock here. During that time they have played at three houses, Metropolitan, Orpheum and the Wilkes Theater.

BACK TO VAUDEVILLE

New York, Feb. 2.—Charles Richman, the motion picture star, will appear in vaudeville soon in a playlet, entitled All for a Girl. This marks his first appearance on the speaking stage in three years.

JOHN W. VOGEL

Busy Getting Minstrels in Shape for Coming Season—To Open About July 1

Millersport, O., Vogel's Beach, Feb. 2.—When John W. Vogel's big minstrels take the road about July 1 for the 1918-'19 season, the performance will be absolutely new from beginning to end. John W. Vogel needs no introduction to minstrelsy, being one of the oldtimers and popular thruout minstrel land. He has provided the best costumes money can buy for the first part and for the uniforms of his band, having contracted with one of the big regalia manufacturers for both costumes and uniforms.

A contract has been made with one of the leading instrument manufacturers for 18-karat gold-plated band instruments, it being Mr. Vogel's intention to have a concert band the equal, if not the peer, of any of the concert organizations making a specialty of band music.

The company this season will number upwards of fifty people and will be composed of the best minstrel talent obtainable. The Donaldson Lithographing Company, of Newport, Ky., is making for Mr. Vogel a new line of printing, which will be superior to many in use by similar organizations. The new scenery will have special settings for every act. The private car of Mr. Vogel is at present being overhauled and repainted and will be up to the M. C. B. standard in every respect when completed.

A call for rehearsals has been made for June 20 at or near Columbus, O., the tour scheduled to open about July 1.

K. & E. MAY BUILD IN ALBANY

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 2.—A representative of the Klaw & Erlanger interests has been in Albany investigating available sites for a new theater. No announcement of plans has been made and all the sites investigated were in State street, indicating that an elaborate building was contemplated.

PRICE-BONNELLI SHOW HALTS

The Price-Bonnelli Greater New York Minstrels, managed by James Bonnelli, closed suddenly at Huntingburg, Ind., January 28, owing to transportation difficulties.

IN FINANCIAL STRAITS

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Wood Appeal to Profession for Assistance

The Billboard has received a very pathetic letter from Mr. and Mrs. George C. Wood asking that an appeal for financial assistance on their behalf be made to their friends in the dramatic profession. Mr. Wood is an old character actor and scenic artist, having been in the profession for thirty-nine years. For the past three years or more he has been suffering from hardening of the arteries and slow or "creeping" paralysis until now he is almost totally helpless. The Actors' Fund of America has been sending Mr. and Mrs. Wood $5 weekly, but with food and fuel very high and $8 a month rent to pay Mr. Wood says this money doesn't last long. Furthermore, he needs medical attention badly.

The Billboard has sent on its bit to these deserving folks, and sincerely hopes that the members of the profession will respond to this appeal. Mr. and Mrs. Wood can be addressed box 28, Perry, Ill.

NEW YORK CALLERS

Well-Known Showmen Drop in on Billboard

New York, Feb. 2.—Ollie Hamilton, manager of Ollie Hamilton's Vaudeville Show under canvas, playing thru the Carolinas, was a caller at The Billboard office Thursday. Mr. Hamilton is spending a week here and will leave for his wife's home in Watertown today. After a two weeks' stay there he will return to Hartsville, S. C., the winter quarters of the show, and will get things in readiness for the opening, April 1. Mr. Hamilton reports good business last season and is looking for even better business next season.

William Sterling Battis, known in the lyceum and chautauqua fields as the Dickens man, dropped into The Billboard office this week. He was on his way to Camp Dix, where he entertained the soldiers three days with his impersonations.

Julian Michels, ahead of the Oh, Girl show, just dropped in long enough to catch his breath and say "Good morning."

IN NEW YORK

Annette Kellermann, dainty, dashing, diving darling, has left the movies long enough to produce her Twentieth Century Revue. Aided by a large company and beautiful settings, Miss Kellermann proves herself a veritable protean artist. She dances, sings, walks a wire, delivers a monolog and finishes with her famous diving scene. At the Palace, first performance Monday.

Swor and Avey, merry, multiloquent, magnetic, minstrel men, registered a big hit on their return to the Palace. When two real comedians play straight to each other the result is a continuous laugh, and these two artists allow no opportunity to escape them. Palace Theater, first performance Monday.

Swift and Kelley. Earnest, exuberant, eccentric entertainers. They have one of the fastest vaudeville interludes on the stage today. Their material is new and very humorous. Swift has a peculiar delivery, which accentuates his comedy, while Miss Kelley is clever and charming. At the Colonial Theater, Wednesday evening.

Austin Webb and Company, in Hit the Trail. Timely, topical travesty. Jimmy Spaulding, an evangelist, has preached on conscience. A little girl comes and confesses to him that she has robbed her uncle, a street car conductor, of $2. The conductor comes and admits that he has robbed the company of $200. Then comes the president of the company and confesses he has stolen $20,000. What Spaulding, admirably played by Austin Webb, does with these people makes a great little comedy playlet. At the Colonial Theater, Wednesday evening.

Three Dooleys, delightfully droll dispensers of depression, in a potpourri of "Dooleyism," cooked up and served to vaudeville taste by these past masters in the art of buffoonery. Everything they do is clever; in fact, they are in a class by themselves. At the Colonial Theater, Wednesday evening.

Willie Solar, sweet, singular, sensational singer, was easily the hit of the bill, and had to make a speech. In the most unassuming manner he gets the maximum effect out of each number, and whether singing or acrobatic dancing he is a star. At the American Roof, Monday evening.

Mullen and Coogan, jocose, jovial, jocular jesters, in a nut comedy, singing and dancing number. Mullen's burlesque rendition of Good-by, John Barleycorn, was an artistic gem. Coogan is a very clever dancer, and as a straight to Mullen's nonsense was excellent. These boys are going into a big production. Palace Theater, first show Monday.

IN SAN FRANCISCO

(Bez's Selections)

Allan Brooke and His Company, in his humorous tragedy, Dollars and Sense, pleased mightily. Plenty of humor and satire to overcome any disagreeable impression which the woman character of the play may have given. The winning personality of Mr. Brooks quickly found for him friends and admirers among his hearers. The tri-stage setting is artistic and clever. In full, thirty minutes; five encores.

The Four Marx Brothers and Company, comedians, vocalists and versatile musicians, entertained for forty minutes with an act full of ginger and catchy humor. Arthur Marx, a tantalizing harpist, with music good, bad or indifferent, as he chose to make it, found favor immediately with his listeners. Julius H. Marx, a droll humorist, produced a laugh a minute. Milton and Leonard Marx, a dancer and pianist, proved themselves capable artists. These brothers had the audience with them from the beginning, and the act closed with sincere applause. Forty minutes, two to full.

NEW BILLS INTRODUCED

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 2.—Two bills pertaining to amusements were introduced in the Legislature this week. One was by Assemblyman Peter J. Hamill of New York City, which makes it a misdemeanor for theaters and other places of amusement which advertise a program of acts for one performance and repeat any act or number without giving all other numbers on such program during any one performance. The other bill was introduced by Assemblyman Mark Goldberg of New York, and requires the promoter of a charity benefit entertainment or exhibition in New York City to be licensed by the Commissioner of Licenses where such promoter has not been connected for at least three months preceding with the legally incorporated charity for which the benefit is given. In applying for a license a statement must be furnished giving the estimated costs and receipts. The fee is $1.

LAST FUELLESS MONDAY?

Washington, Feb. 4.—It is reported here that today will be the last fuelless Monday, and that the Fuel Administrator will revoke the order tomorrow.

In the event of the order being revoked theaters generally will go back to their usual course of performances.

NAT GOODWIN COLLAPSES

New York, Feb. 4.—Nat C. Goodwin collapsed Saturday night after his performance of Why Marry. He was taken to his apartment in the Claridge Hotel, and it was feared that he was in for a siege of pneumonia today. However, his condition is reported as much better.

CONNIE WILDE

Makes Brilliant Debut at Keith's, Cincinnati

Miss Connie Wilde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wilde, celebrated English shadowgraphists, scored brilliantly in her first stage appearance at Keith's Theater, Cincinnati, last week in a delightful song and dance number.

Miss Wilde is the possessor of a truly remarkable combination of beauty, grace and charm. She dances with infinite ease and grace and sings beautifully in a rich melodious voice.

If the reception accorded at her premiere counts for anything she is destined to reach the heights of vaudeville achievement very soon.

Immediately after the initial appearance the Western manager of one of the largest film companies recognizing her ability made an offer for her appearance in the silent drama. However, the offer had to be declined because it naturally superimposed the necessity of separating her from her parents to the professional engagements, which she was opposed to doing.

STAGE WOMEN'S WAR RELIEF

New York, Feb. 2.—In answer to Florence Nash's stirring appeal to every branch of the theatrical profession for $1, $3 and $5 subscriptions to aid the Stage Women's War Relief in purchasing hospital supplies and satisfying the needs of the actor-soldier-sailor and his family, the following message came from an unknown man with $100: "You have neglected to appeal to an important branch of the theatrical profession, the audience, which I believe is still an essential part of the theater." Miss Nash, who is called Miss Red Tape for her astonishing business capacity and system, was a trifle upset. Here was a hundred dollars in cash and the biggest subscription which could be placed on the official enrollment sheet is $5. She soon thought her way out of the dilemma, however. An open sheet was devised for large donations, and her joy was complete.

When the co-operation of the men of the theater was asked in raising much needed funds to carry on the ever widening activities of the war relief Thomas Wise came forward with the immediate plan of giving a matinee of General Post, January 28, the tickets to be sold to theatrical people, and the entire receipts to be turned over to the S. W. W. R. The response at the auction of the seats and boxes, January 18, was heart warming. Large sums were bid by well-known stars and managers. Checks have been sent to the workroom, and when the curtain rose at the Gayety Theatre there was not a vacant seat in the house.

The work at the War Relief has progressed so rapidly that it has been necessary to provide additional space. Thru the kindness of Vincent Astor, Esq., two rooms have been donated in the Astor Court Building at 18 West 34th street.

Mrs. Jacob Litt came to the workroom of the S. W. W. R., 366 Fifth avenue, with a hurry call for a program to be given to the Base Hospital at Yaphank. Percy Haswell, who was rolling bandages at the time, instantly volunteered her services. That evening she sang, danced and gave a one-act play for the soldiers, and the boys pronounced her a "troupe" in herself.

By permission of the president of the Twelfth Night Club, Bijou Fernandez will start a branch of the Stage Women's War Relief for the making of surgical dressings, kit bags and knitted articles.

BURLESQUE

MANY SHOWS WILL CUT THE BURLESQUE SEASON SHORT

Some Producers Have Already Given Orders To Bring Their Shows in Ahead of Regular Closing—Disposition Seems To Be To Watch Conditions and Play Safe

New York, Feb. 2.—Burlesque producers have informally adopted the slogan: "Watch conditions and play safe." While their business has not yet suffered to an extent which would warrant their feeling any great concern, they are, nevertheless, much alarmed over future conditions, and they have no intentions of being caught in any such avalanche as engulfed them in the latter part of the season of 1914-15.

It was learned this week that several of the producers have already given orders to their managers to bring their shows in the last of April. The season proper closes on May 18, so that these producers will curtail their season by two or three weeks. It is expected that many more shows will decide on the same course, and that the middle of April will find the various organizations dropping out of the running in great numbers. How many of them will do so will depend on the conditions which develop from now on, but even at its best, the season in burlesque promises to wind up in the chaotic manner which characterized the bad season of 1914-'15.

The experience of producers in that season was that the shows which held out to the last found the closing weeks most unsatisfactory and that those which closed earlier had the laugh on them. Many of the theaters, which found themselves deprived of shows for the last few weeks of the season because the shows scheduled to play these weeks had dropped out, made no attempt to keep open to the last. Some of these houses which played No. 1 attractions booked some of the better shows of the No. 2 Circuit, but in every instance the business did not warrant the effort. The dropping of some of the shows, however, seriously upsets the circuit and house schedules, and it would seem better all around, if conditions prove unsatisfactory, if the official season be curtailed instead of some of the shows dropping out and others continuing.

The burlesque shows have made a great deal of money this season, they are still playing to a profitable business, and it would seem as tho certain of the producers are showing themselves unduly weak-kneed. If the circuit officials see that business is still maintaining a fair average they should insist on them all fulfilling their contract to play the entire season and not permit them to drop out at will, thus seriously impairing the regular schedule.

B. F. KAHN INVENTIVE

Keeps His Houses Supplied With New Ideas

New York, Feb. 2.—B. F. Kahn's stock burlesque houses can attribute a great deal of their success to the many innovations supplied by Mr. Kahn, who has an inventive mind, and is always devising something new and who gives every show something of a topical or up-to-date nature to supply "pep." The present week he put on a novel chorus number at the Union Square, which was a clever burlesque on the "meatless day," "wheatless day," etc., idea.

Kahn also has a novel program at the Union Square. It has a newspaper feature, which acquaints his patrons with the news of the house, written in a newsy manner. One column is devoted to replies to inquiries by stage-struck girls.

Talented girls find unusual opportunity to progress under the Kahn system. He has a wonderfully clever organization of chorus girls, and a girl who shows talent does not always stay a chorus girl. Recently a girl came to him, served three weeks in the chorus and showed such unmistakable talent that Mr. Kahn promoted her to a soubret role. Her name is Dixie Dixon—at least that is what the program calls her. She is better than the average soubret, is pretty and vivacious. It is easy to predict that Dixie Dixon is a name which will shine brightly in burlesque in another season or two.

SOME GOSSIP

Garnered on the American Wheel

By JAY SEE

Chicago, Feb. 2.—With Kansas City's theaters closed Monday and Tuesday by order of city's fuel administrator, Jack Reid and his Record Breakers did exceptionally big business the five days they played the Century. The same show this week is smashing large attendance records at the Standard, St. Louis.

Al Kelly, formerly treasurer of the Gayety, Minneapolis, is manager of the Gayety, this city, instead of the Empire. The latter house continues under the guiding hand of Arthur Moeller, who drops from his sleeve many a stunt to promote business.

No day has too many working hours for John Whitehead, and he presides over the destinies of the Englewood Theater with the same enthusiasm he showed when he first took up the managerial reins here two years ago.

An added feature this week to the Some Babies' performances in the Englewood Theater is Jack Dempsey, who is being touted as Jess Willard's opponent July 4. Owing to the restrictions placed 'round boxers in this man's State Dempsey is not allowed to show one small part of how good he may be.

Closing local theaters each Tuesday has resulted in making Monday as good from a big business viewpoint as Sunday. In fact, the second day of the week means a sell-out at each performance.

Grouchy house treasurers would do well to visit the Standard Theater, St. Louis, and note the genial smile and pleasant manner in which James Martin handles the patrons of that house.

Ella Reid Gilbert, following a few weeks' rest at her home in St. Louis, this week resumed her role in Jack Reid's Record Breakers company.

On the highest authority it may be stated that Jack Reid has completed plans for springing one of the biggest surprises of the age at the beginning of the next burlesque season. His company will retain its name, the Record Breakers, but production and performance will be so widely different from any heretofore offered as to prove a revelation to burlesque patrons.

Billy Rothwell, he of Minneapolis hotel fame, is here this week showing out and renewing acquaintances.

Is there a burlesque house manager who does not own and drive an automobile?

Who will explain why one show goes over its route, bills indifferently and plays to cracking good business, while a better show, billed like a circus only plays to normal houses?

When are tack cards not worth the cost of the tacks?

Harry LeVan, one of the comics with Some Babies, declares the fuel conservation order will somewhat delay the completion of the burletta he has in preparation.

Tom Coyne, featured comedian with Some Babies, says the ten-foot snow piles out this way remind him that Long Island is a pretty good spot to summer on.

Sam Scribner of the Columbia Amusement Company was elected president of the Siwanoy Golf Club of New York at the annual meeting of the Board of Governors last week.

O'CONNOR

Pronounced by experts to be another "McGinty." It is a serio-comic Irish song with a merry Celtic jingle.

A MESSAGE FROM OUR BOYS OVERSEAS

WE HAIL FROM THE U. S. A.

An inspiring patriotic melody that will send them home whistling. The patriotic song crop was big; this is the best in the bunch. O'CONNOR and WE HAIL FROM THE U. S. A. are both corking march airs. Send 25 cents and receive piano copies of these two gems. Orchestrations in preparation. Special wholesale proposition to song boosters.

GERARD VISITS BALTIMORE

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 1.—Barney Gerard, whose Follies of the Day company is causing Manager Buck Sadtler to hang the S. R. O. sign in front of the Palace Theater here this week, motored down from New York last Sunday just in advance of the heavy snowstorm and blizzard that has this section in its grip. Mr. Gerard deserves the success his show is earning for him, as it is without doubt one of the best on the burlesque stage today. The comedians are par excellence, the songs bright and catchy, the girls are charming, and it has the youngest chorus in captivity. Let it be said right here it is some chorus.

LALOR MANAGES LIBERTY

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 2.—Frank J. Lalor, manager of The Aviators, which played at the Orpheum here Thursday night, will manage the Liberty Theater at Camp Meade, it has been announced.

Lalor is a prominent figure in the burlesque world. His many friends unite in extending congratulations to him.

THAYER'S THUNKLETS

New York, Feb. 2.—Among those engaged for the new show which will replace Biff, Bing, Bang on the American wheel are Edgar Bixley, Ben Howard, Blanche Franklin, Grace Harvard and Francis Reynolds. Will Vidocq is the manager.

Eddie Cox is to leave the cast of Some Babies.

Hattie Randolph and Nellie Crawford are to replace Bonnie Lloyd and Agnes Wilson with the Girls From the Follies.

Jean Bedini has signed up Clark and McCullough to head Puss Puss next season.

Babette's return to the cast of Oh, Girl, was greeted by general rejoicing in burlesque circles, for Babette is immensely popular.

Now that Biff, Bing, Bang is off the road it is said George F. Belfrage will spend most of his time in New York.

George Betts joins the Union Square Stock next week to take the place of Francis Reynolds, resigned.

BURLESQUE NOTES

William A. Goebel, known in burlesque as Billy Weston, a member of the cast of the Hip, Hip, Hooray Girls, filed suit for divorce from his wife, Ella Goebel, while the company was playing at the Grand Theater, Hartford, Conn. He alleges desertion. A hearing will be given the plaintiff and his witnesses by Judge Greene of the Superior Court of Hartford.

"Buck" Dunne joined the cast of the Armstrong Folly Company at the Gaiety Theater, Seattle, January 27, as straight man, replacing George Dore, who left the cast to form a partnership with Dick Lonsdale, the Swedish comedian. They will launch a musical comedy company.

Tom Howard, who opened the season doing a bit with Charlie Taylor's Darlings of Paris, is now doing second comedy role, replacing Jimmie Parelle, who left the show in Chicago. Tom is reported to be one of the comedy hits of the show. This is his first season in burlesque, and he is fast making a name for himself.

New York, Feb. 2.—The Abbey Court is a most inviting and cozy furnished apartment house for those who prefer the refined environments of the Upper West Side.

A well conducted restaurant in the building adds greatly to the various conveniences to be found in The Abbey.

Clara Framee, the vivacious little blond lady who tickles the ivory keys of the melodious organ at the Harlem ?and, on 125th street, furnished much merriment for the guests at the Crescent Apartments when she flashed the letter from F. Sharpe, reviewing the Hidden Hand movies.

Blanche Thearn, of the Grand, claims that F. Sharp does not live up to his nom de plume, for as a critic of pictures and theatricals he is A. Frost.

James J. Hallo, said to be the "original wop kid" in vaudeville, recently returned to Manhattan and opened up a "Unalyte" exhibition on Eighth avenue, where he is assisted by Joe Smith, who handles crayons for Vaudeartist Keaney, of girl show fame, who is now living on easy street.

Mrs. Mayo, mother of Margaret Mayo, visited the Silver Cat Show at the McAlpin Hotel and discussed cats and theatricals with Elizabeth Kingston, who furnished the "mascot" that The Billboard donated to the Actors' Fund Fair.

Kate Allen, a legit of ye olden times, is enjoying a well merited rest from stage activities, along with her daughter, Grayce Beebe, who was one of the original Beebe Barber comedians, and later on with Jake Litts' Old Kentucky and Neil Burgess' County Fair. Miss Beebe will sign up with a new show in the near future.

Jacob Brill, who is well known to many professionals as a "first nighter," is a frequent guest of "The Manhattan Hotel."

As an official of the Dairymen's League he is a fund of information on matters pertaining to county fairs, the same is applicable to up State politics and hotels.

Frank P. Folsom, former advance agent and vaudevillian, made his appearance on Broadway during the last week, accompanied by a man size bank roll, which he contemplates investing in a vaudeville act that promises to be new, novel and unique. Go to it, old pal, the more the merrier.

If you are stopping at any one of the hotels advertised in the Hotel Directory and you desire your friends to know where you are, pen a few lines as to your act, where you are playing, etc., hand it in at the desk and it will be picked up some evening during the week by the writer when he makes his rounds. Be sure and sign your name to all communications.

AN INSPIRED SONG

How Mr. Harris Came To Write New Success

New York, Feb. 2.—Charles K. Harris' new song hit, What a Wonderful Dream It Would Be, was a happy inspiration during the snowstorm one day last week. Trying to hail a taxi to take him to his home and finding them all engaged he took a topless car ahead. Sitting just ahead of him was a silvery haired, sweet faced old lady, accompanied by a young girl about fourteen years of age. The girl was saying: "I had a wonderful dream last night, grandma. I saw Dick and Harry come sailing home and we went down to the boat to meet them and, oh, how joyous and happy they were —the war was over!" "And then, my dear, what happened after that?" asked the grandmother. "And then," said the girl, "I awoke and found it only a dream." "Yes," said the sweetfaced old lady, "but what a wonderful dream it would be if our dear laddie boys came sailing home and the war was over—it would set many a heart at rest."

Mr Harris soon reached his destination, but the story he had heard kept ringing in his ears. The result was that he wrote a song around the title, What a Wonderful Dream It Would Be. From all indications it looks as tho it would be another Break the News to Mother. He has already had it tried out and it is being sung with success by Leopold and Lewis, Martin and Lum, and several others, and they inform Mr. Harris that the song is a hit. The song is now in press and orders are piling up from all over the country, even the title of the song itself creating a big popular demand. The other Harris ballads are selling strong, including Is There a Letter for Me, When the Cherry Trees Are Blooming (in Japan), Will You Be True, Just a Bit of Driftwood (on the Sea of Life), I Miss the Old Folks Now and Sweetness (Honey Suckle of Mine), and Break the News to Mother.

PLAYWRIGHTS,

Adapters and Translators

Larry Evans and Walter Percival are the authors of Among Those Present, which George Tyler has accepted, and in which he will star Henry B. Warner.

Earl Carroll wrote the book of The Love Mill, which reopened last week.

Alan Dale is not the first critic to write a play by any means. As a matter of fact, it is far more difficult to find one who has not written one than one who has. Dale, however, is among the few who have written a successful one. Maybe he will prove another Shaw. Who knows?

The industrious Hattons will see another of their brain children produced this coming season. It is called The Indestructible Wife, and Wm. A. Brady will offer it at the Hudson, New York City, shortly.

Report has it that Augustus Thomas has a winner in The Copperhead produced at Boston last week.

Owen Davis is said to be experiencing difficulty in meeting the views of Manager Charles Hopkins, of the Punch and Judy Theater, New York, and that this accounts for the tardy completion of The Arabian Nights.

Anthony Paul Kelley is the author of a play that Cohan & Harris have accepted. It is entitled Three Faces East.

The Philosopher of Butterbiggens, a Scotch character short play, written by the late Harold Chapin, and brought to this country by his well-known actress-mother, Mrs. Alice Chapin, was successfully produced in London last week, and is to have a New York premiere this season. Campbell Gullan, remembered for his Bunty work, was the principal.

The Shuberts will shortly put into rehearsal a new play by Frederick and Fanny Hatton, entitled The Squab Farm. The leading members of the cast will be Lowell Sherman and Alma Tell.

Sada Cowan's one-act play, The Moonlit Way, was seen for the first time on any stage Friday afternoon, February 1, at the Lyceum Theater, New York, presented by members of the American Society of Dramatic Arts and Empire Theater Dramatic School.

Clyde Fitch's art collection is to be sold February 6 for the benefit of the Actors' Fund. The date of sale had already been announced, but it was not known until last week that the Actors' Fund is to receive the proceeds.

George Broadhurst has collaborated with Mrs. Lillian Trimble Bradley, and the result is The Woman on the Index, which is already in rehearsal. The play is founded on a short story printed in Munsey's Magazine.

No less than three authors will divide the honors of writing Among Those Present. They are Larry Evans, Walter Percival and George S. Kaufman.

What a pity that the Hattons persist in soiling their good work with dirty allusion.

Earl Carroll is now a full-fledged librettist. The book of The Love Mill is his.

A writer in The New Republic inquires: "And the playwright! Has he thought for a moment that there might be something in his being 'literary' and self-expressive himself?"

And what do you think of that?

Hartley Manners and his work are much talked about in New York these days. No little part of the discussion finds its way into print, either.

Show your patriotism by contributing to the American Red Cross fund.

WELL! WELL! WELL!

Here We Are Again!

After waiting an entire year, we are ready to offer you the logical successor to "Me and My Gal." This is the same type of song, but will surpass the wonderful record scored by that masterpiece. Don't wait until it's "killed," but send for it immediately. You'll like it, and we guarantee you will keep it on. Read the lyrics.

"FOR THE TWO OF US"

Words by Edgar Leslie Music by Harry Ruby

VERSE

I know a boy and girl who are feeling oh, so grand,
Down at the altar they soon will be kneeling hand in hand.
You're wond'ring who they may be:
It's just my dearie and me.

CHORUS

For the two of us
There's a June honeymoon;
For the two of us
Happy days.
Folks all around have invitations;
Each one in town sent congratulations;
For the two of us
Soon the choir will sing,
As we take the marriage vow.
We have a house and lot to live upon;
It was a gift we got from Uncle John;
It may be for three of us later on,
But it's just for the two of us now.

(Copyrighted, WATERSON, BERLIN & SNYDER CO., 1918)

SECOND VERSE

I'm all prepared for the big celebration soon to be;
There'll be a crowd with a band at the station.
They'll keep us busy I know
Dodging the rice that they throw.

CONFIDENTIAL!

Maybe this tip will help out some good pal, so I give it to him for what it's worth. Harry Tenney (Stern's Professional Manager) happened to see my act and told me I had a couple of bad numbers in my "rep," so I made an appointment with him at his office next door to the Palace Theatre, 1556 Broadway, New York, and he gave me "TISHOMINGO BLUES" and "SOMEBODY'S DONE ME WRONG." It's wonderful, but these two numbers lifted my act 500%. While I was there Ragtime Reilly was rehearsing "SEND BACK DEAR DADDY TO ME." Now you watch and see if I ain't right! He'll set any audience wild when he comes down to the punch lines,

"Stop All This War and Give Us Victory, And Send Back Dear Daddy To Me."

I don't want to tell you too much about Stern's business, but the day I was in it looked like an N. V. A. convention and I met more pals than I've seen in a year. Henry Lewis was rehearsing a number, but I can't tell you the name. If you go up to the Winter Garden you will hear it for yourself. Van & Schenck stopped in for their orchestration of "GRAVEYARD BLUES" and the De Wolf Girls rehearsed "I'M OLD ENOUGH FOR A LITTLE LOVIN'" and "SOMEBODY'S DONE ME WRONG." Gertie Cogart and Burke Bros. and Kendall were after "SEND BACK DEAR DADDY TO ME" and Lewis & Leopold and The Three Southerners and Lew Hawkins were all after "SOMEBODY'S DONE ME WRONG." Say, that guy Skidmore is some writer. This is the third Deacon song he's put over: First, "PRAY FOR THE LIGHTS," then "BROWNSKIN GAL" and now I think he has a million acts on "SOMEBODY'S DONE ME WRONG." The next time I am in Chicago I am going to stop in at Stern's, 119 No. Clark St., and get acquainted with Skidmore. If he ever gets through with Stern's I'll bet he will go back to Kansas City and buy the town. Keep this under your belt: When I was in to see Tenney last he was opening enough professional mail to choke a young postoffice. Most of it was for "SEND BACK DEAR DADDY TO ME," "SOMEBODY'S DONE ME WRONG," "WHEN THE MOON IS SHINING SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE," "WAIT FOR YOUR HONEY BOY" and "INDIANOLA," and then a khaki-clad son of Uncle Sam came rushing in for a copy of Art Pfeiffer's new soldier song, "WAIT FOR YOUR HONEY BOY." I hope I haven't betrayed their confidence, because I know they are not giving these numbers to EVERYBODY!

THE SONG WORLD

FOLLOWING THE LINE OF LEAST RESISTANCE

Mistake Often Made by Performers Securing New Material—Should Be Better Posted on Music Field

Performers all too frequently follow the line of least resistance in securing new material. Even when in the largest cities a certain inertia causes some who should know better to remain away from publishers' offices until sought out by "outside men" and pampered and flattered into paying a visit to certain offices.

From an idealistic standpoint this indifference of the performer would be sublime if it represented real activity instead of passivity. It would be nice to picture performers as discriminating individuals who judge publishers by their output rather than by the amount of noise made, and who select material impartially, gladly accepting what the smallest publisher offers, provided it is meritorious.

Performers usually haven't the slightest idea of how many publishers are in business—nor have they learned that the song most inaccessible is frequently the best for their purposes—save in a general way. Noise and fourflush are sometimes important elements in their own climb to fame and it seems that they respond to the persuasive qualities of these influences when seeking their most important material—songs.

This has had a two-fold effect. It has led publishers to use far more advertising space than would advertisers in any other field in announcing new songs—and it has led performers to accept superlatives in such a complacent manner that copy-writers run the entire gamut of extravagant claims without awakening more than lukewarm interest.

Performers of the higher strata frequently object because of the manner in which the army of outsiders pester them behind stage. Yet, when it is reflected that publishers realize how little performers keep informed regarding what is going on in the publishing field, publishers can hardly be blamed for resorting to extraordinary measures in the endeavor to bring the merits of their offerings to the performers' attention.

Yet the light in which each stands in the eyes of the other is hardly complimentary. It is not pleasant to contemplate publishers regarding performers as prey—and it is hardly less disconcerting to the performers looking upon publishers' representatives as "pests," particularly when the publisher dedicates much of his effort in the interest of singers.

Mere expressions of impatience at publishers' overtures do singers no good whatever. They (the singers) must realize that they themselves are responsible for much that is unpleasant in present conditions. When the performers educate themselves in contemporary music to a point that will cause the publisher to realize that he cannot announce songs as if he were selling bogus stock to easily influenced "suckers" the publishers' methods of approach will amount to something more than empty braggadocio.

Performers owe it to themselves to know what's going on in the world that means so much to them. They need have a broader field of information of announcements emanating from the publishers, which, naturally, are prepared from a standpoint of self-interest only.

SPILLARD AIDS GOVERNMENT

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Will (Billy) Spillard, remembered in Chicago music circles as an exceptionally energetic "outside" man of a half decade ago, after a most successful political career, is now an important cog in the United States Internal Revenue Department. Spillard still takes interest in popular music doings, and occasionally pays visits to publishers' professional departments.

WRITES PRODUCTION

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Milton Schwarzwald, an employee of Remick's Chicago office, has composed the score for the new Weiss Winter Garden Review. Milt got a taste of real production writing when he wrote the musical number in Flora Bella, Lina Abarbanell's last year's vehicle.

THE AMATEUR'S THREAT

The way these fellows steal my songs is really quite a shame. They use the words, the rhymes, the thoughts that ought to win me fame. You noticed Irving Berlin rhyme two good words, "walk" and "talk." Well, I conceived of using them when Berlin was a gawk. Yet if you'd put me in a crowd with Berlin, I declare, the bunch would rush to meet him—AND NOBODY'D KNOW I'M THERE.

Gus Kahn has written lots of songs, and some are mighty fine, but I admit the best of his are very much like mine. Just take his Pretty Baby, it was quite a hit no doubt—well, I used "Baby" long ago, but left the "Pretty" out. Yet if you'd put me in a crowd with Gus Kahn, I declare, the bunch would rush to meet him—AND NOBODY'D KNOW I'M THERE.

Take H. Von Tilzer's melodies, they hold many a note that I have used time and again in wondrous songs I wrote. He never blushed when he would use those notes conceived by me, in fact he'd often have his songs dished up in the same key. Yet if you'd put me in a room with Harry, I declare, the bunch would rush to meet him—AND NOBODY'D KNOW I'M THERE.

But some day I will show them it's not wise to imitate the style and the construction of the really, truly great. I'll write my hits so quickly they'll be famous long before those jealous imitators get a chance to look them o'er. Then if you put me in a room with all their guys, I swear, the bunch will rush to meet me—AND NOBODY'LL KNOW THEY'RE THERE.—CASPER NATHAN.

CATALOG CALISER

Personality usually refers to the magnetic qualities of an individual, but there are publishing firms which so closely adhere to a given type of output that their issues may be said to possess "personality." Performers learn to respect their imprints for definite types of material. In the days when Maurice Shapiro guided what is now known as Shapiro, Bernstein & Co. the firm was trusted implicitly for the market's best ballads, particularly when Herbert Ingraham was preparing them. The Snyder concern established an enviable reputation for fast "rags." Witmark had wonderful numbers adhering to higher realms. The Remick concern adapted itself to changing conditions, always competing capably with any reigning types. Today the differentiation in output is not so pronounced—and the condition is cause for regret. When publishers lose their individuality performers lose interest in individual concerns to a corresponding degree.

COLD TYPE REVIEW

EXPLANATORY KEY: LV—Lyrical value. MV—Musical value. EA—Especially adapted for. GE—General estimate. C—Comment. PV—Phonograph value.

ROSE OF THE NIGHT, lyric by Arthur Longbrake, music by Harley H. Fusher (published by Buckeye). LV—Simple, yet intense, description of insatiable longing for "a rose that blooms for me when daytime fades away." MV—Has a fine melodic beat in the chorus, hinting that the words were written to the melody. EA—General. GE—Tho the conception is somewhat vague the composition holds well-defined appeal. C—Covered above. PV—Optional.

WHEN THE AMERICAN ARMY GETS THE KAISER'S GOAT, by (and published by) Ernest H. James. LV—Tells, in well-chosen meter, what America, aroused, will do to autocracy as represented by the Kaiser. MV—Rousing 6-8 time. EA—Marching or street song. GE—Theme title implies is well carried out. C—The general swing is so forcible that slight defects are hardly noticeable. The chorus is completed in such a way that it is necessary to contract the first word of the title in the concluding line to "'Merican." But this matters little. PV—Optional.

MY MIND'S MADE UP TO MARRY CAROLINA, words by Lew Brown, music by Rubey Cowan (published by Broadway). LV—Rather sprightly description of determination to marry Southern graduate of "Mammy's" culinary school of domestic science, regardless of financial complications. MV—Has a pleasing swing. EA—General. GE—Not at all new in conception, but well knit together. C—Covered above. PV—Uncertain.

(THOUGH DUTY CALLS) IT'S HARD TO SAY GOOD-BY, by W. R. Williams (published by Rossiter). LV—A tribute to our soldier boys, starting with "Everybody knows you'll do your duty," and ending with the title. MV—An exceptionally appealing march swing. EA—Patriotic gatherings. GE—Splendidly constructed. C—If you like a song relating to our boys that is devoid of idle boast and bombastic utterance this is it. PV—Suitable.

THERE'S A LIGHT SHINING BRIGHT FOR YOUR DADDY by (and published by) "Pat" Pfeiffer. LV—A child asks why Daddy doesn't come home, mother explains that he's "somewhere in service," and then a well-constructed chorus is built around the title. MV—Simple waltz thruout. EA—Counters. GE—Slightly old-fashioned, yet possessed of significant appeal. C—The question-and-answer arrangement of the first verse is what gives the song its old-fashioned aspect. PV—Optional.

YOU CAN FIND A LITTLE BIT OF DIXIELAND (NO MATTER WHERE YOU GO), by Walter Donaldson (published by Witmark). LV—The lyric fails to fulfill the promise implied in the title, for while the statement is elaborated upon nothing is expressed which serves to explain the title's claim. MV—On a par with the same writer's many Southern "Mammy" songs. EA—Dixie camp meetings. GE—The title is better than anything else in the song. C—Another contribution to Donaldson's catalog of Southern songs, which threatens to be endless. PV—Doubtful.

GOOD OLD SAN FRANCISCO, words by Wm. E. Davis, music by Henry Bossert (published by writers). LV—Laudatory comment regarding the protecting qualities of the Golden Gate city, introduced with buoyant "repetition" hints. MV—Spirited march verse, running into 6-8 chorus. EA—Native son activities. GE—Up to the standard of the better class of dedicatory songs. C—Covered above. PV—Optional.

VIOLETS WHITE AND VIOLETS BLUE, words by Lucy H. O. Stephens, music by Gwynne Davies (published by Boosey). LV—Only eight short lines to the entire lyric, yet they tell a remarkable story. The first four lines explain how these flowers were given by a lover, to be placed on the breast of his loved one. The second part tells how they were placed on the "still, cold breast" of the presumably dead lover. MV—Faithfully colored. EA—Concert, etc. GE—High-class. C—Those vaudeville singers who possess "concert" talent should look into this. PV—Not indicated.

I DIDN'T MEAN GOOD-BY, by N. J. Clesi (published by Triangle). LV and MV—Conventional ballad, sans novelty or punch in words or music. EA—Counters. GE—Very unemotional. C—Those who like long drawn out protestations of regret for misunderstandings and expressions of undying affection may want this. PV—Doubtful.

New York, January 29, 1918.

Mr. B. N. Roessler,

Care The Billboard, New York City.

My Dear Mr. Roessler—My last advertisement in your paper regarding my new heart-story ballad, What a Wonderful Dream It Would Be, was a great surprise to me, owing to the great many replies received thruout the United States. I never realized that The Billboard reached so many cities, towns and villages before, which goes to show that your paper must be growing, as I remember my first page adv. in your paper when I published in Milwaukee twenty years ago. I did not receive as many replies, naturally, as I am doing at the present time. Consequently that is why I know and can feel how your paper is growing daily.

I wish to congratulate you and your paper upon the wonderful results and trust that it will increase in circulation and in popularity daily. It certainly ought to be a great medium for all the New York and Chicago music publishers if they only knew, as I suppose they should, of the wonderful results to be obtained from an advertisement placed in your paper. Wishing you continued success, I remain

Yours very truly,

CHAS. K. HARRIS.

KAHN AND VAN ALSTYNE SOUTH

Chicago, Feb. 4.—Mr. and Mrs. Egbert Van Alstyne and Mr. and Mrs. Gus Kahn left for Miami, Fla., this afternoon. The Van Alstynes originally planned going alone, but later Remick's chief composer came to the conclusion that the mild Florida clime would afford a fine opportunity for writing up new songs with his lyric partner, and Kahn readily acquiesced. The couples will occupy a cottage, not the least necessary feature of which will be a piano, which the boys will find useful in "carpentering" their new songs. The vacation will last one month.

STONE WITH WATERSON

Chicago, Feb. 2.—M. J. Stone, formerly Chicago manager for Joseph W. Stern & Co., also more recently in business, under the firm name of Stone & Thompson, is now a road representative of Waterson, Berlin & Snyder.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Joe Bennett, Shapiro-Bernstein's hustling manager, is confident that Liberty Bell, the firm's catalog leader, will prove one of the quickest hits ever made in the West.

A MARVELOUS SELLER

Chicago, Feb. 4.—Few songs on the present popular market are proving as phenomenal sellers as is Some Sunday Morning, which has worked up a great demand on intrinsic merit without much "plugging."

FEIST'S BEST SELLERS

Chicago, Feb. 4.—The Leo Feist, Inc., is said to employ the most expensive staff of song writers in America, the present catalog finds its two biggest hits in songs which were purchased from other publishers' catalogs—Darktown Strutters' Ball (popularized by Will Rossiter) and Over There (which the Wm. Jerome Co. bumped over for a big hit).

RUBE QUITS SNYDER

Chicago, Feb. 1.—Rube Bennett, for many years quartet-arranging pianist for Waterson, Berlin & Snyder's Chicago office, has switched to the Leo Feist local payroll.

NEWSPAPER MAN'S SONG

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Ernest H. James, an employee of The Chicago Evening Post, is the writer and publisher of a popular song, entitled When the American Army Gets the Kaiser's Goat (He'll Wish He'd Never Seen a Submarine). The manner in which the number is taking hold has led the writer to issue several other songs.

FRANK CLARK ILL

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Frank Clark, Chicago manager for Waterson, Berlin & Snyder, is confined to his room in the City Hall Square Hotel with a severe attack of la grippe. Dr. Harry W. Martin is attending him. Joe Manne is assuming professional command in Clark's absence.

PFEIFFER SIGNS WITH STERN

Quincy, Ill., Feb. 2.—"Pat" Pfeiffer has signed a contract with Joseph W. Stern & Co., of New York City, to publish and feature his songs.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 2.—W. S. Canning, manager of the Providence Opera Company, John Stewartson, a well-known local musician, and David W. Dow have composed several songs, and are now forming a company here for the publication of them.

RAYMOND J. IDEN ILL

Dayton, O., Feb. 2.—Raymond J. Iden, the well known Dayton (O.) melody writer, has had to disappoint some publishers in regard to manuscripts. Mr. Iden caught a severe cold, which settled in the walls of his heart, and has been very ill for the past few weeks. His condition has improved during the past few days, however, and he expects to soon be back in harness.

THE CONCERT AND OPERA FIELD

FRED · N · WITHEY · NEW · YORK

Florence Easton, English-American

Florence Easton has "arrived" at the Metropolitan, New York. It has been a long, steep climb, via years of study, light opera with Henry Savage, concerts, grand opera at Covent Garden, London; the Royal Opera, Berlin; the Grand Opera, Hamburg, and the Chicago Opera, Chicago, but she has "arrived" and that is the important fact.

In the past American singers, no matter what their experience and capabilities, have had not a little to overcome in approaching the management of the great opera organizations—not so much as before the war, it is true, but still enough to make the obstacles seem almost insuperable to many artists. But by persistence Miss Easton finally overcame all hindrances and got her hearing at the Metropolitan, and having secured it she made good, and her standing among Mr. Gatti-Casazza's stars is now beyond peradventure.

Florence Easton Maclennan was born in Yorkshire, England, and as a very young child showed remarkable ability as a pianist. She accompanied her parents (who were well known concert singers in England and Canada) and even sang at one of their concerts before she was seven. Miss Easton went with her parents to Toronto, Can., where she began her piano work with Professor J. D. A. Tripp, and appeared as soloist at one of his concerts when only 11 years of age. Later on she returned to England and continued her studies at the Royal Academy of London. Her piano master was so enthusiastic about her work that he wanted her to give up vocal lessons and devote all her time to piano, but the voice proved in the end to be bigger talent. Miss Easton then went to Paris and studied for a year with Elliott Haslam, intending to make a French career, but the sudden death of her father changed all her plans, and she returned to England and made her debut at Covent Garden, London, with the Moody Manners Opera Company. She sang with this company for two years, as lyric soprano, and there met and married Francis Maclennan, the tenor. Miss Easton made her debut in America in Boston as "Gilda" in Rigoletto with Henry W. Savage, and then sang this role in nearly every big city in the United States and Canada, making a phenomenal success. The following year she sang Madame Butterfly, when it was first produced in New York, making a name for herself as "Cho Cho San." The following year she and her husband went to Berlin, where they were engaged at the Royal Opera House for six years, then for three years in Hamburg. During the nine years in Germany Miss Easton went every year, for six or eight weeks, to England, giving guest performances, also to Antwerp for concerts. During the seasons of 1916-1917 Miss Easton was a success in Chicago as "Butterfly," "Nedda" and "Brunhilde", being acclaimed the finest voiced of Campanini's song birds. Miss Easton and her husband have also created no little interest in the musical world this past season, giving Duet Recitals.

Recently Miss Easton very successfully created the leading role of the Metropolitan Opera Company's production of St. Elizabeth, and she shortly after was asked by a leading New York daily if she thought having children of her own had an influence on her beautiful portrayal of the role of "stage mother."

"I hadn't thought of that," she quickly responded. "I do believe that a woman's experience at home with her own children might be of some influence on the behavior of stage children. For instance, you will recall that "Elizabeth" had two little tots. The children cast for the part were at an age that made it rather difficult to impress them with the seriousness of the part. One little girl especially for the first few rehearsals would continually giggle—and at the wrong time. After being reprimanded several times to no avail I took her aside one day and tried the usually successful method of appealing to her imagination—children, you know, are veterans when it comes to imagining things. So I asked her whether she would laugh if her own papa went to war. Her big blue eyes darkened as she replied that she wouldn't. I explained that she must think of her stage papa as being her real one, and when he kissed her good-by and went away on his horse she might never see him again. Think how terrible it would be, I added, if you were never to see your own. It worked like magic. At the next rehearsal she had sobered, and two or three times her eyes looked a bit dim. I thought, however, it was my imagination in full play. But not soon after she had finished she came over to me and whispered sweetly: 'I very nearly cried that time.'"

The second performance of Lodoletta, at the Metropolitan in January, found Florence Easton singing the title role in place of Miss Farrar, who was ill. It was a hard test to take at short notice for a singer new to the company, as was Miss Easton, and quite without stage or orchestra rehearsal, but she came thru the test triumphantly. With Miss Farrar's voice in the condition which it has been all this season the honors on the vocal side, both for quality of tone and singing, according to the New York critics, all went to Miss Easton. Nor was her acting of the role one whit behind that of her predecessor—in fact in many points, say the critics, the part was drawn much more in accordance with the librettist's idea than by Miss Farrar.

Miss Easton's fresh simplicity was delightful in the first act. In the second the awakening of knowledge after Gianetto reveals to her the village gossip was strikingly depicted in the scene with Flammen, and in the third act she rose to truly great heights of pathos in the final scene. "No adjectives," says one critic, "are too strong to use in praise of her work as Lodoletta."

Thus one more American girl—altho English born—becomes a Metropolitan Opera House star. The day of the American singer is rapidly becoming a realization.

FLORENCE EASTON

New Metropolitan Opera prima donna.

AT THE FOUNTAIN HEAD

Despite the brilliant and spectacular entrance of the Chicago Opera Company into New York to remain temporarily, the great Metropolitan still remains the great fountain head of music in America, and it would be impossible to dim the luster of this great institution by the temporary visits of outside companies no matter how competent. The Metropolitan can therefore look with complacence upon the visits of all other companies in New York.

The past week at the Metropolitan has been a brilliant one, even more brilliant than ordinarily. Mr. Caruso has appeared three times, Miss Farrar once, Florence Easton twice, besides the appearance of Martinelli, Scotti and a large number of others of the dazzling array of Metropolitan artists, and the attendance has never been better despite the fact that the Chicago Opera Company was attracting no little attention. After all is said and done the Metropolitan is now, and will remain for some time to come, the fountain head of music in this country.

This week's program at the Metropolitan had as its chief feature the revival of Meyerbeer's Le Prophete on Thursday night, with Enrico Caruso and Mme. Margarete Matzenauer in the big roles. New Yorkers will be cordial to the Chicago Company and attend their performances in large numbers, but their loyalty to the great Metropolitan remains as ever.

CHICAGO GRAND OPERA IN NEW YORK

The much heralded season of the Chicago Grand Opera Company in New York, headed by Mr. Campanini and his array of brilliant artists, opened at the Lexington Avenue Opera House Wednesday evening, January 23, with Monna Vanna, having Mary Garden and Lucien Muratore in the title roles. A very large audience greeted the visitors, according them a hearty welcome to the metropolis.

Lucien Muratore, Mary Garden, Rosa Raisa and Genevieve Vix carried off the honors of the week, altho it is difficult to especially particularize amidst such an array of competent artists.

The greatest interest, however, in the visit of the Chicago Company, was centered upon Monday night, January 28, when the famous Galli-Curci made her first appearance. New York was eager and expectant, in fact had been on the qui vive all week, considering the first four nights of the opera as a sort of a prolog to the coming of the great Galli-Curci.

The Chicago prima donna did not disappoint them. Trilling like a bird she set 4,000 New Yorkers, who had crowded the house to its utmost capacity, on their feet, with an ovation that city has not seen the like of in a good many years. Moreover it was an ovation fairly and honestly won by the prima donna. Thus Galli-Curci broke the Knickerbocker ice.

The big scene in the second act started a 20-minute ovation, and the opera was stopped while Galli-Curci responded to fifteen or twenty curtain bows.

Speaking of her work The New York Times refers to Mmes. Melba and Sembrich as two of the greatest coloratura sopranos who ever lived, but say that it is no disloyalty to them to remark that the newcomer has some wonderful qualities no other artist in the last generation had possessed.

The Chicago Opera Company's season in New York will be particularly memorable because of the new artists introduced to New York. The season gives promises of being a big success both artistically and financially.

DAVID ADMITS IT

A week or so ago there was printed on a concert page of The Billboard the following little squib: "Even David Bispham makes mistakes, but will 'David' admit it?"

The following letter has been received from Mr. Bispham:

"Concert Editor Billboard—Referring to the enclosed clipping from your valued paper allow me to say that I do admit it whenever I make mistakes,' which will be seen by the enclosed, which you are at liberty to publish if you care to. Very truly yours, David Bispham."

Here is Mr. Bispham's story.

"For all the many operas, hundreds of oratorios and thousands of songs I have sung, my memory had to be carefully watched, and I dare not allow my attention to be distracted, when before an audience, by faces of men or of clocks which sometimes stare one out of countenance in concert halls, or indeed by anything which might take my mind off the performance in hand.

"An amusing thing happened recently when, in the midst of Harriet Ware's gem, A Boat Song, my eye happened to catch that of a friend who sat toward the front of the hall. My slippery mind immediately slid into a train of recollections, and with the sliding my tongue slipped and I made a mistake, which landed me in still another, but I went on as if nothing had happened. The song contains the line, 'lazily, drowsily away, little boat,' etc, but I, with seeming composure, lilted leisurely into 'lowsily, drearily bay little sweet!'

"The following morning, in The Sun, William J. Henderson remarked, apropos of my concert, 'Mr. Bispham's memory played him false at one point in the program; and then, no one makes mistakes with such authority as Mr. Bispham!'"

STOCK FOR HAMMERSTEIN OPERA HOUSE

S. A. Turner, Inc., has leased the Lexington Avenue Opera House, New York, built by Oscar Hammerstein and sold by him to the Frank Gersten Realty Co., Inc. The lease was assigned last week by Mr. Gersten to George D. Grundy, who conducts the dancing carnival in the Grand Central Palace. Mr. Grundy will form a stock company to play at the Lexington thru the coming summer. He will take possession as soon as the Chicago opera company leaves the house, about February 15th.

TUESDAYS IN BROOKLYN

Opera will be sung by the Metropolitan stars at the Brooklyn Academy on Tuesday night instead of Saturdays, the Fuel Administration having sanctioned the closing of that opera house on Mondays instead.

THE BETHLEHEM CHOIR

The Bethlehem Bach Choir, a chorus of 250 voices, was brought from Bethlehem, Pa., to New York last week thru the courtesy of Charles M. Schwab. Carnegie Hall was filled with an enthusiastic audience, which found the choir living up to its best traditions. The choir sang in conjunction with the orchestra of the Philadelphia Philharmonic Society, and the program was skilfully built of excerpts of Wagner, dealing with religious themes, thereby blending with Bach's church music. The purely orchestral numbers were from Parsifal, and included the Good Friday Spell, the March of the Knights of the Holy Grail and the prelude and glorification.

AIDA SUPERS STRIKE

Four privates in the army of King Ramfis of Egypt mutinied last week, refusing to appear in the military maneuvers before Thebes of the Hundred Gates in the second scene of the second act of Aida at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York. Instead they appeared before Captain Judels, head of the recruiting bureau of the Metropolitan, declaring that they would refuse to perform their military duties in connection with the gala reception of Radames unless their pay was immediately advanced from 50 cents to $1.

Captain Judels replied that the regular pay of private "supers" in the Metropolitan army on Aida nights was 50 cents, and the privates thereupon threw down their arms and walked out of the barracks. The opera went on as usual.

HELEN MOLLER'S DANCERS

Helen Moller and her ensemble will appear in Greek dances and interpretations on Monday evening, February 11, at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, to the accompaniment of a symphony orchestra and with costumes and decorations designed and executed by Miss Moller. The program will include interpretations of Schubert's Symphony in C Major and Tschaikowsky's 1812 Overture.

HAMLIN VS. APPELBAUM

Last week George Hamlin, lyric tenor, well known in musical and theatrical circles, who was to sing at a musical held at Carnegie Hall, New York, under the auspices of the Humanitarian Cult, suddenly left the hall because he felt that Mr. Appelbaum of that society was making a pacifist speech.

Before taking his departure the singer sent the following note to Appelbaum:

"I do not intend to hear you the a pacifist, and as I am very far from one I feel I can not appear and thereby permit the impression that I am in sympathy with your views, which I am not."

Mr. Appelbaum was indignant and made the following statement:

"I object strenuously to being placed in a false position by Mr. Hamlin's action," declared Mr. Appelbaum yesterday. "He either misinterpreted or misunderstood completely what I said, and I defy him rightly to construe my expressions at Carnegie as breathing pacifism in any sense of the term today."

PAULIST CHOIR

The Paulist Choristers, of Chicago, an organization of one hundred men and boys, trained in the choir schools of America and by Father Finn, conductor, will appear in concert at Carnegie Hall, New York, the evening of Monday, February 11, and the afternoon of Wednesday, February 13.

This choral organization, which appeared before Pope Pius X at the Vatican some years ago, is now touring the country for the benefit of the French Restoration Fund, with the indorsement of the Vatican, the American cardinals and a committee of well-known men and women.

THIRD RUSSIAN SYMPHONY

The third concert in the Russian Symphony Society's subscription series, announced for Saturday night, February 16, at Carnegie Hall, New York, promises another program made up entirely of novelties by modern Russian composers. The symphony will be the third in a group of four by Gliere, none of which has been heard in New York. The one to be played bears a title instead of a number, and is called Ilia Mouromets, after an ancient Russian hero at the Court of Prince Vladimir. The soloist at this concert will be George Baklanoff, the Russian baritone of the Chicago Opera Company, who was heard in Monna Vanna on the opening night of the company's local season.

rehearsals, on the street they had no their dressing rooms. Enrico Caruso, Geraldine Farrar and a dozen others put up the capital.

One day last week was inspection day. Mr. Caruso, representing the committee of donors, went to the chorus woman's restroom in the afternoon. He saw sixty sweaters, nine scarfs and 200 pairs of socks, all neatly packed ready to be sent to the Italian Red Cross.

OBER WINS RIGHT TO SUE

Enemy aliens are greatly relieved as a result of the ruling made by Supreme Court Justice Gavegan, of New York, last week in favor of Margarette Arndt-Ober's right to sue the Metropolitan Opera Company, even tho the United States is at war with Germany. The court refused to dismiss her complaint or stay the proceedings upon the ground that she is an alien enemy.

Mme. Arndt-Ober, prima donna contralto, sued the opera company for $50,000 damages, charging breach of the company's contract to employ her for five years. The company contended the contract provides for suspension of service of the employee in case of war. To sustain this contention it classified the opera star as an "enemy alien," prohibited from exercising civil rights here within the meaning of the Trading With the Enemy Act. Mme. Ober may now proceed with her suit.

AMELITA GALLI-CURCI

New famous prima donna soprano of the Chicago Opera Co., who made her first appearance in New York last week.

HEMPEL'S CONCERT TOUR

Frieda Hempel, soprano of the Metropolitan, will give her annual recital in Carnegie Hall, New York, on February 25, following her closing performance in opera the first week in February. On February 12 she begins a three months' concert tour at Worcester, Mass., singing later at Waterbury, Conn.; Wilkes-Barre and Lancaster, Pa.; Washington, Boston, New York, Bridgeport and New Haven. In March she will appear in Chicago on the way to the Pacific Coast.

ARTISTS GIVE YARN—CHORUS KNITS

Everyone knows that the Metropolitan chorus sings exceptionally well, but few know how well they knit. A chorus woman without a knitting might be as rare as an opera singer without a voice.

Not long ago several of the artists subscribed money for yarn, so that the chorus might knit between entrances and before performances, at

HADLEY'S AZORA IN NEW YORK

The Chicago Opera Company attracted a representative audience of New York musicians and society folks at the Lexington on Saturday night when it gave the first of its actual novelties, Azora, an American opera, conducted by Henry Hadley, its composer. This work was produced in Chicago on December 26 and also repeated there. It is due for at least a fourth hearing when the singers proceed next month to Boston, the home town of David Stevens, librettist of Azora. Both Mr. Hadley and Mr. Stevens appeared before the curtain with the 100 per cent American cast, and a large silken flag, a gift to Hadley, was held aloft by Anna Fitziu, while the orchestra's concert master led The Star-Spangled Banner, and many sang the air.

ANOTHER ORCHESTRA

The Institutional Synagogue, New York, has organized a Symphony Orchestra, which is under the leadership of Mr. S. Aranov. They respectfully invite all musicians, with at least the experience of two or three years, to join them.

Rehearsals are held regularly every Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at 113 West 116th street. All those interested are requested to write Abraham Fain at that address for further particulars.

THE SASHA VOTICHENKO CONCERTS

Sasha Votichenko, the Russian composer and tympanist, arranged an attractive program for the first of his concerts this season, which took place Sunday evening, January 27, in the auditorium of the Hotel des Artistes, New York.

No more beautiful and effective stage and lighting effects were ever arranged for any concert, but it can not be said the tympanum is an instrument to hold a large audience for very long at a time, dainty and pleasing tho it may be.

Mme. Caroline White furnished the third number for Mr. Votichenko, and the powerful impressions of Sarah Bernhardt, in French, by Beverly Sitgreaves and the highly dramatic Recitations to Music by ever artistic, old, reliable David Bispham were strong features of the program.

The legend from Barbarism to Civilization, an allegorical pantomime by Mrs. Christian Hemmick, given in a series of tableaux, was a most beautiful and effective piece of work. The staging was well done, the costumes could not have been improved upon, and the cast of characters was of high order, doing their parts with ease and grace of professionals, as many of them were. The participants as they appeared were, Mme. Marguerite Barry, Mr. Radcliff, Beatrice Wallger, Mrs. Walter M. Werner, Billy Williams, Richard Cowlie, Nikita Stepanoff, Count Tamburini, George W. Colby, Grafton Beall, Countess Cippico, Kitty Gordon, Flore Revalles, and children, Mme. Fontaine, Mme. Wright, Countess Cippico, Kitty Gordon, Flore Revalles, Madame Yorska, Yvonne Garrick, Vera Beresford, Lenore Harris, Beatrice Lovell, Leda, Helen Ware, Alex. Onslow, Jean Delyea.

DINORAH

Dinorah, the opera in which Mme. Galli-Curci made her brilliant debut in New York last week, is dated 1859 in Paris and and its American production in New York November 24, 1864, with Cordier, Brignoli and Amodio. It was sung by Ilma di Murska at Booth's Theater in 1867, repeated in 1878, with Marimon and Italo Campanini, and in 1880 with Patti. The Metropolitan revived it in 1892 for Marie Van Zandt, as Oscar Hammerstein did in 1907 for Tetrazzini.

The plot, it has been said, is "utterly absurd," a not unheard of thing on the lyric stage. It concerns a demented girl seeking a runaway lover, and the hero himself, who, contrary to operatic precedent, is a baritone, is supposed to spend a year hunting for imaginary treasure in "a haunted place." There is a weak-kneed bagpiper, the tenor, and a huntsman, the bass. These complete the principal characters. The action takes place in Brittany, where the heroine, a maid of the village of Ploermel, is about to be wedded to the goat tender, Hoel. A storm destroys her father's house, and, hoping to rebuild it, Hoel departs to seek the wherewithal. Dinorah, thinking herself deserted, goes mad and wanders over the country with her faithful goat.

IS IT POSSIBLE?

It is reported that the German government has offered to pay to the family of Enrique Granados, the Spanish composer, the sum of 600,000 pesetas ($119,880) as an indemnity for the loss of the father, who was drowned when the British steamer Sussex was torpedoed by a German submarine last March. It is stated that Senor Granados' family was poorly provided for at the time of his death, and altho he had received a considerable sum for the right to produce his opera he had been paid in gold and the money was in a belt about his waist when he was drowned.

SPANISH TENOR MAKES DEBUT

A young Spanish tenor, Hipolito Lazaro, made his North American debut at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, last Thursday evening as the Duke in Rigoletto. General Manager Giulio Gatti-Casazza made the occasion a sort of a Spanish evening, as it marked the reappearance of the Spanish coloratura soprano, Mme. Maria Barrientos, as Gilda, while the Spanish basso, Jose Mardones, was the Sparafucile. Mme. De Luca was seen and heard again as Rigoletto, and Miss Braslau was the Maddalena.

The DRAMATIC STAGE

EVEN THE STARS COULDN'T READ WHAT CRITICS SAID

Eulogistic Notices Were Worthless, for No One Could Purchase a Newspaper—Theatrical People Learn at Last That Publicity Is Not Necessarily Always Publicity

New York, Feb. 2.—"When is publicity not publicity?"

The question was answered once for all time this week. The New York newspapers were published as usual this week, but, as far as the average New Yorker was concerned, they might as well not have been. It was as hard to procure a New York newspaper on it is to get the proverbial "hen's teeth."

The trouble was caused by a general strike of newsboys and newsdealers when the New York papers raised their price to two cents and failed to give the dealers the percentage they figured they ought to have. Newsstands were shut up, most of them declining to sell magazines even. A boy or man who has the audacity to attempt to sell a newspaper on the street—outside of a Socialist organ, which seized the opportunity to thrust itself to the front—had it made so uncomfortable for him that he terminated his business career almost immediately.

One positively found himself up against it and absolutely unable to procure a newspaper. Therefore it is plain to be seen that the advertisers' returns from his advertising must have been curtailed somewhat.

This was an important theatrical week. It marked the opening of some of the season's biggest attractions. Columns of laudatory notices were written on these shows, but only a chosen few were permitted to read them. These criticisms written in the white-heat of inspiration, these eulogistic masterpieces, these poetic marvels from the critic's pen were born to waste their fragrance on the desert air. Nobody saw them but the critic, the editor, the linotype operator, the proofreader and a few others, who, by hook or by crook, stormed the trenches and obtained, at the risk of their lives, what ordinarily they were able to procure for one insignificant copper.

A great star arose from his feverish slumbers Tuesday morning, and prepared to read what the New York critics said about him. His faithful valet came in and dramatically announced that no papers could be procured for love or money. Acquainted with the full situation the star dressed and passed out into the cold, lightless streets of the great city.

The great star, accustomed to make almost every knee bow to him, found himself for the first time in his life doing a "single," as he paraded the uninviting streets, now abandoned except for the denizens of the underworld and the riff raff, who the night before has been unable to get even the price of a stopover in a 10-cent lodging house. From newspaper office to newspaper office the great star stalked, and, at last exhausted, he arrived home and sat down to read what the papers said about him. After all that effect it was a kind dispensation of providence that the critics has been nice to him. It would have been the irony of fate if he had arrived home and been obliged to read the roasts sometimes dashed from the pen of the critic.

But all that wonderful publicity of the week was worthless. Nobody saw it and, to all intents and purposes, it is today as the thing unborn. In a year or so collectors will be advertising something as follows:

"Wanted—Will pay $1,000 for a copy of The New York Thundercloud, dated January 29."

All of which goes to show that publicity is not always publicity, that a boost cannot always boost and that a murderous criticism does not always kill.

FOUR SKETCHES

Given by Hollywood Community Theater

Los Angeles, Feb. 1.—Four excellent sketches, by William C. deMille, were presented at the Hollywood Community Theater last week before the most critical audience in the world, made up very largely of professional people from the studio colony. The Martyrs was presented by Cecil Irish and Helenita Leiberg; The Man Higher Up was given with Theodore Roberts and Wilfred Lucas in the leading roles; In 1999 starred Louise Huff, Harrison Ford and Vivian Martin, while The Land of the Free was given with Bertram Grassby, Barbara Gurney, Buddy McQuoid, May Giraci and T. D. Crittenden in the cast. The last named of these has recently been made into a film under the title, One More American, produced by William C. deMille from his own original sketch, the film scenario of which was written by Olga Printzlau.

P. W. L. MEETS

New York, Feb. 4.—This afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, the Professional Women's League held its regular meeting at the league clubrooms, 140 West Sixty-eighth street. Amelia Bingham and Mrs. Helen Whitman Ritchie, president of the league, addressed the meeting, and Katharine Shary, soprano, furnished the music numbers.

HER COUNTRY

To Have Run at Punch and Judy Theater, New York

New York, Feb. 2.—By arrangement with Charles Hopkins Walter Knight will inaugurate a special season at the Punch and Judy Theater about February 20, presenting Her Country. This is the play by Rudolph Besier and Sybil Spottiswood that ran for two seasons in London, at the Strand Theater, under the title, Kultur at Home. Its patriotic appeal is of such timely quality that Mr. Hopkins has deferred his own new production, intended for the current season, a play by Gwen Davis, based upon The Arabian Nights, in order that Her Country may have an immediate presentation in New York.

Rudolph Besier is best known to American theatergoers for his delightful comedy, called Don, presented at the New Theater, while Mr. Knight is the well-known London manager, recently lessee of the Duke of York's and the Kingsway theaters, who last season presented Pierrot, the Prodigal, at the Little Theater in collaboration with Winthrop Ames.

CANARY COTTAGE STOPS

Los Angeles, Feb. 2.—Canary Cottage has closed for the season in Fresno, Charles Ruggles and Dorothy Webb going at once to San Francisco to begin a stock engagement, the other members of the cast returning to New York. Arthur Wenzel, who has been ahead of the show, returns to Los Angeles to take up Morosco duties here.

DRAMATIC NOTES

Selwyn & Co. are to present their first musical play since their entrance into the producing field. The piece bears the title of Rock-a-By, Baby, book by Margaret Mayo and Edgar Allan Woolf and music by Jerome Kern. It is planned by the Selwyns to place the play in rehearsal within the next week. An all-star cast will present it. Hugo Ballin is designing the scenes, while Joe Physioc will paint them.

Cyril Maude, who has been touring the antipodes for more than a year, is on his way from Australia to this country. Upon his arrival in San Francisco he will put in a three weeks' engagement at the Columbia Theater there, and then tour eastward. He will be represented by Melville Hammett as business manager.

Theatrical items from the libraries of the late Harris B. and William B. Dick brought $8,000 at a sale which closed January 25 in the galleries of the American Art Association, New York. George D. Smith paid $820 for three autograph letters of David Garrick relating to personal and stage affairs, and he got a first edition of William Robson's The Old Playgoer, London, 1846, extra illustrated with 316 portraits, playbills, autographs and views. A collection of views of American and English theaters of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, 218 pieces, was sold to Arthur Swann, agent, for $100. C. S. Holman paid $116 for a collection of about 900 theatrical photographs and engravings.

Richard Glanceton is at Camp Custer, Mich., and likes soldiering. He played juveniles with the Winninger Stock Company, Waller Bros. and Bishop Players.

Alan Dale's criticism of his own play is delicious. Nothing more impishly impudent, calmly complacent, cheerfully cheeky, smartly smug or shamelessly Shavian has seen print in New York this long while.

Mrs. George Creel (Blanche Bates) visited the Stage Women's War Relief in New York last week.

Stanley Ridges, late in the cast of Eileen, has gone to Canada, where he has enlisted in the Aviation Corps.

Stewart Robbins, who has appeared with William Gillette and other prominent players, and who is the husband of Mabel Carruthers, has been drafted for the national army.

The Love Mill reopened in New Haven, Conn., Monday night, January 28. It will reach New York February 7 for an engagement at the Forty-eighth Street Theater. The new cast consists of Percival Knight, Victor Morley, Sam Al Roberts, Harry Tighe, Jeannette Lowry, Emily Lee, Louise Kelly, Roberts and Bennett, Charles D. Brickson, George Sidney and Maude Gray.

The Willow Tree has not repeated in London the success it achieved in New York. The American company, headed by Fay Bainter, and with the able aid of Harold de Becker, George W. Wilson and other original members of the cast, is playing profitably thru the Canadian territory, after which another New York visit is scheduled.

Vlasta Maslova has sailed for Porto Rico to join the Anna Pavlowa Ballet Company.

John W. Cope has been loaned to the Charles Frohman Company by David Belasco, and will appear in Ethel Barrymore's production of The Off Chance. Edward Emery and E. Lyall Swete will also be in the play.

Over the Top concluded its engagement in New York last Saturday night.

Beverly West has replaced Violet Heming in the title role of The Naughty Wife, now at the Park Square Theater, Boston.

Frank Fay, in the cast of Girl o' Mine, has been placed under long-term contract by Elisabeth Marbury and the Shuberts.

Alice Gale has joined Otis Skinner to appear with him in Mister Antonio, which is headed toward the West.

Mimi Aguglia, noted Sicilian actress, who startled New York three years since by the fervor of her dramatic power, is to make her debut in English in New York this year.

Lester Lonergan and Amy Ricard, both of whom scored a pronounced artistic success in The Torches, will shortly be again on Broadway with a dramatic novelty.

Justine Johnstone, the star of Over the Top, at the Forty-fourth Street Theater Roof Theater, celebrated her 21st birthday last Thursday at a special supper in Justine Johnstone's Little Club, New York, after the performance. This was her farewell in New York for a while, as Miss Johnstone left on Monday to go on tour with Over the Top, opening in Washington at the Belasco Theater.

Charles Purcell, tenor in the Shuberts' production of Maytime at the Shubert Theater, is using his workless Tuesdays to brighten the lives of the soldiers at Camp Upton. Every Tuesday the musical comedy tenor will journey to Yaphank and sing his famous Sweetheart song, which he sings in Maytime with Miss Ward.

Hugh J. Ward staged the big war play success now running at the Park Theater, New York, entitled Seven Days' Leave.

(so saith the program)

All Important to the Plot—Misses Elisabeth Moffat, Charissa Otem, Cynthia Randolph, Virginia Cupps, Charlotte Wakefield, Carolyn Nunder.

Equally Important—Misses Charlotte Stevenson, Kathryn Hahn, Cathleen Quain, Ruth Rollins, Sylvia Cassell, Virginia Gunther.

Also—Messrs. Robert H. Casey, Irving Carter, Lee Howe, Joseph McCallion, Stanley Rayburn, Frank Ervin.

Girl o' Mine is a GAM (girl and music) show, "intimate" because it is given in a tiny house and referred to as a revue possibly because it is not one in any sense. It is good fun of a light, white-of-egg sort, or will be just as soon as it moves with greater precision, smoothness and certainty.

The music is tuneful, but fewer strains stick in the memory than usual, and the dancing numbers are not remarkable, but the costumes are beautiful and the scenery lovely.

Edna Wallace Hopper, everyone of her few inches an artist, has few opportunities. Dorothy Dickson is beautiful, has charm to sell, dances divinely and sings—well, better than Mrs. Castle, yes anyhow that. Marie Nordstrom has the fattest part and is equal to it. Helen Lee is captivating, and sings exceedingly well. David Quixano has a splendid voice, which he handles well. Carl Hyson dances very well indeed. Frank Fay furnishes comedy of a fresh and different sort, and the rest of the principals are capable in every respect.

The houses so far have given unmistakable evidence of approval and liking, and nothing else matters.

The Times—Broadway seemingly accepted Girl o' Mine.

The American—The audience was humming the airs of Girl o' Mine as it filed out of the Bijou last night. The music has "caught" and so apparently has the dancing and funmaking.

The World—In these days there seems to be a demand for entertainment of the silliest and most trivial sort. Girl o' Mine, which pleased a first-night audience last night, meets all of these requirements.

All the other notices were friendly, most of them markedly so.—WATCHE.

MARY'S WAY OUT

MARY'S WAY OUT—A play in three acts by Ashton Stevens and Charles Michelson. Produced at the Morosco Theater, Los Angeles, Sunday afternoon, January 27. Play staged under the direction of Fred J. Butler by Oliver Morosco Company. Stage manager, David Butler. Scenery designed for the production by John Collette.

Ashton Stevens has been a dramatic critic long enough to know a good play when he sees one. The one which he has written, a problem-

THE LEGITIMATE

CONDUCTED BY THEODORE A. LIEBLER JR.

The second of the Garfieldian Mondays has come and gone, and with its passing has left show business the same unsolvable mystery, the same uncertain gamble that it's always been. For the first of these enforced holidays the Shubert houses in New York, comprising about forty per cent of the total number of first-class theaters in that city, scheduled special matinees at short notice, and, to the surprise, delight and envy of all, did capacity business almost everywhere. Where there were attractions that had little drawing power of their own they were taken care of by the overflow from other houses. The evening receipts fell below the extravagant expectations evoked by these matinees, but Old Brother Alibi was on the job, pointing out that transportation facilities were bad that night, the weather and the short notice and consequent absence of advance sale—an item the more pronounced by the reason that until Saturday it had been supposed that there would be no evening performances at all—conspiring to satisfy the managers that the shortcomings in the evening receipts would be rectified when the next holiday Monday came around.

But the second Monday caused amazement. There were matinees everywhere; even those who feared offending the powers that be by inviting them yielding in their desire for "gravy." And instead of capacity houses the theaters thruout the city averaged about fifty per cent capacity. In other words the gross business was about the same the city over as it had been the week before, but instead of being concentrated in about half the houses it was spread out among them all. And the evening, despite the sale of the week preceding, seemed to fall below the first holiday Monday all over. The weather was not, of course, ideal; there had been car-blocks during the day, but on the whole there was little to be inferred but that this particular Monday was not to be regarded theatrically as anything more than an unusually good week day. As a holiday it was a frost.

Of course these Garfield Mondays are not out-and-out holidays. As far as New York is concerned, while the stores are closed, business offices are open, tho the use of heat and light therein is prohibited, and elevator service curtailed to a minimum. Still stock brokers, lawyers, bankers, and most of the professional, financial and business concerns, from which the drama draws most of its patrons, were all on the job, just as they are on days when fuel is not restricted. The fact that the stores were closed should have helped the matinees, but as far as the tired business man was concerned he was every bit as tired as he is on every normal Monday.

The people that were turned loose in the streets on Monday were for the most part small-salaried employees, wage-earners, shopkeepers and the like, people without much money to spend for amusements, and people who for the most part suffered financially by the loss of a day's work. The day was a big one for the picture houses, which, however, lose a day, for they are open now six instead of seven days, tho, of course, the closing means for them the saving of a day's rentals and much additional expense. The popular-priced houses, vaudeville and other cheaper forms of entertainment also reported a good day. But for the legitimate it was a day of bitter disappointment.

The third holiday may tell another story. The more extraordinary turns of events you witness in this crazy game of ours the less qualified you feel to predict the direction the next one of them will take.

The extraordinary success of Seven Days' Leave, playing at popular prices at the Park Theater, which is considered by many an out-of-the-way house, vindicates three of our pet theories—first, that a play working on the patriotic enthusiasm of its public not only performs a national service, but is a wonderful commercial proposition at the moment; second, that the times and conditions demand the popular price, and third, that the location of a playhouse counts for little if the goods that are in demand are placed within it.

The Park Theater is only a few blocks away from the Century, tho it is slightly better located so far as lines of transportation go. And the Century, after all its vicissitudes, is once again dedicated to the dramatic spectacle, such as those that brought crowds there when it first received its present name. A prominent real estate man has been quoted as saying that the Century could be made into a goldmine if only another Century could be built alongside it. And with two plays doing business around Columbus Circle we need not be surprised to hear that the heart of New York's theater district will soon be moved into that general direction, leaving Forty-second street to the movie men, just as Fourteenth street is now in the hands of cheap vaudeville and burlesque.

We are going to presume on the good nature of The Billboard to use a bit of its space in this department to extend our thanks to the many friends we have made thru this column who have been kind enough to send us congratulations by mail or wire on the generous reception accorded our recently produced play. In some cases their addresses are not at hand, and we are unable to express our gratitude in a more direct fashion.

And speaking of our play, if we may, for we are thinking of little else these days, it, too, vindicates a theory of ours. We were advised by dozens of well-wishers to change the title before we brought it to New York, for fear that the critics might use it as a weapon were they inclined to turn upon it in ruthless, Hunnish fashion. We obstinately clung to our belief that it was a good title, that it not only fitted the play, but could be used to advantage in advertising matter and in selling tickets. And, after all, we urged, what is a title but a handle? A title that is readable and pronounceable is a good title if the play succeeds, and the title that will make a play succeed if the stuff isn't in the play itself is yet to be discovered. And so we went along on the theory that nothing succeeds like (deleted by the press agent, who will not let us invade his province).

A SURE SIGN

A significant, and by many expert and knowing observers regarded as a certain sign of the returning prosperity of the spoken drama, is seen in the fact that the theaters in the metropolis and many other large cities are getting their balcony and gallery patronage back.

New York spent its second Garfield Monday largely in the theaters, afternoon and night.

The extra matinee performances in the Broadway theaters apparently brought back the persons who have given up the regular theaters in the last few years for vaudeville and pictures. For the first time in a long while every house "packed them in" upstairs. The cheaper seats sold swiftly, and this went to strengthen the impression, created last week, that the holiday matinee crowds are chiefly composed of small paid workers out for a good time.

Only a few Broadway theaters sold all their orchestra seats in the afternoon. Those that did were the Globe, where Jack o' Lantern is the attraction; the Lyceum, Tiger Rose; Shubert, Maytime, Astor, Why Marry, Maxine Elliott's, Eyes of Youth; Cort, Flo-Flo, Criterion, Happiness, Republic, Parlor, Bedroom and Bath, and Cohan & Harris, A Tailor-Made Man.

All theaters reported most of their sales were made at the box office. There was little advance sale. All burlesque, vaudeville and moving picture theaters and the Hippodrome, where two or more performances a day are customary, were packed.

The night crowds in theaters of all kinds were about the usual Monday night size.

There is a valuable hint for stock and repertoire people in the above.

The spoken drama is coming back.

David Garrick Letters Bring $200 at Sale

New York, Feb. 2.—The Shaw collection of drama, which is undoubtedly the greatest collection of drama in "reachable" shape, is about to be augmented with the greatest collection of drama ever placed under one roof. Evert Jansen Wendell, who died recently, left his entire collection, which takes up the whole loft of 16 West 28th street, and took many years to gather, to be shipped and sent to Harvard.

With Shaw's collection and this wonderful collection of Wendell's it is doubtful if another collection so extensive can ever be gathered. In Wendell's collection, by the way, the earliest known play bill of America is to be found. It is not generally known, but the first record of a theater in America is in South Carolina—Charlestown, in 1737.

Colonel Alston Brown discovered the fact, and John Daly, brother to A. Daly, refound the date. Col. Alston Brown, by the way, is in the Home of Incurables, in Philadelphia, the B. P. O. Elks taking care of him.

At the sale of Dick's collection of drama the highest item brought $320. Baker's extra illustrated books and David Garrick letters brought $200. The blackmailer, Stickerstaff, who tried to get money from Garrick, and had to leave England, was passed over, and his letter only brought $15. Howard Payne, writer of Home, Sweet Home, a letter inquiring about renting a theater, and a portrait of the writer of the undying song, were sold to Houdini for the nominal figure of $15.

This sale was the most important sale since the McKee sale, and many of the items were not sold, but simply slaughtered.

MARY'S WAY OUT

comedy, demonstrates the fact that he knows good problem plays and has known the sort of trite situations to eliminate. We have had a great many problem plays in the last decade, and when we term this a problem play, dealing with an intricate domestic situation, prejudice before seeing it is likely to be against it, just because it is a problem play. Mr. Stevens, however, has evolved a situation which is something new in problem plays.

Usually in a problem play of this general type some one of the persons involved is a decidedly unsympathetic character. The novelty of this is that each of the four is decidedly human, with the balance of sympathy well divided. Captain Lord John Durth is painted a bit different from most young Englishmen who have been seen in plays of this kind. He is a much more likable fellow, probably because poor young English noblemen are more highly considered in this country in wartime, especially if they have a wound in the arm. Strangely enough, we are allowed to forget all about the war element, which is, as a matter of fact, quite incidental to the play.

Altho the first act moved rather slowly, the building up of the situation to be revealed in the next was sufficient to keep the attention well centered. The second and the final act were indeed gripping—altho that is too trite an expression for a problem play with as new ideas as this.

Bertha Mann, in the role of Mary Heath, played the part with fine poise. Howard Hickman, as Ogden Heath, and Belle Bennett, as Nora Barrett, demonstrated the fact that their recent work for quite a while in films has not spoiled them for the speaking stage.

Richard Dix played the tipsy and ardent lover with as good a characterization as any in the show. Harland Tucker was especially well cast as Captain Lord John Durth, the Englishman. Altho Belle Bennett has little to do until the last act, her emotional work then grasped most of the situation. The big scene of the play—the meeting of Ogden and Mary Heath at the bedside of Nora Barrett—was probably unusually well written and acted.

When Manager Donald Bowles, after the second act, endeavored to bring forth the author in answer to repeated calls Mr. Stevens refused to come forth. Mr. Bowles later remarked, after having used forceful argument in securing a speech from Mr. Stevens, that the Chicago critic was the most genuinely modest author he had yet encountered.

Most of the story concerns the relations of Napoleon and Josephine.

Josephine is shown as a coquet, forever tantalizing Napoleon and arousing his jealousy. She is ambitious, and makes him vow to go into Italy and achieve conquests. The jealousy of the great warrior and his weakness for Josephine are brought out impressively.

Later Napoleon, swollen with pride and ambition, finds little time for his Josephine and it is now she who is unhappy. The vanity of the great leader is made his paramount trait by the author.

The scene in which Talma, the great actor endeavors to teach Napoleon how to strut and act in a heroic manner is very amusing.

Would the foibles and weaknesses common to human kind, as brought into the limelight in Josephine, be interesting if considered apart from the great Napoleon, or if represented as qualities of the condemned instead of the lauded?

It seems a pity that Josephine contains little or no plot, and that the capable work of

ORIGINAL WILLIAMS CO. FINISHES UP SEASON

Show Will Reopen Latter Part of March—Order Placed for New Tents and Equipment

The Original Williams Stock Company, managed by Elmer LaZone, disbanded in North Carolina following a season of thirty-five weeks. Manager LaZone is now busy making preparations to reopen the latter part of March. He has placed an order with the Baker & Lockwood people of Kansas City for new khaki tents, and has also ordered seats, scenery, etc. Mr. LaZone says when the show hits the trail it will have some flash. He and his wife (Marie DeGofferelly) are now comfortably located in their cozy little cottage at Starke, Fla.

For the forthcoming tour Mr. LaZone has engaged Al Williams and Walter Boggs as principal comedians and May Blossom Williams ingenue leads. Marie DeGofferelly will play heavy leads. The company will be a large one.

Altho Starke is a small town it is quite a stopping place for showfolk, there being people from three companies wintering there. Among these are Dick and Fanny Mason of the Mason-Williams show, Bob and Ona Demorest of the Demorest Stock Companies, Nos. 1 and 2, and Mr. and Mrs. LaZone themselves. Newton Ross is visiting there. Mr. LaZone was made a Shriner recently in Jacksonville, Fla., Morocco Temple.

The Dave Williams rep. show will reopen soon in Southern Idaho territory. The show closed during the "flood" period in the Northwest a few weeks ago, as transportation was out of the question at that time.

LETTER FROM BILLIE HYNDS

Billie Hynds, who is somewhere in France, writes as follows: "I have just spent my first Christmas in France, and it was a very interesting one for me. We were out on rest a few miles behind "the line," altho not out of the danger ones, and there we held our Christmas in an army hut. On Christmas Day we had a church parade, which everyone in the battalion attended. As we were singing the Christmas carols we could hear the rumbling of the big guns a couple of miles away. After church we had our Christmas dinner, which consisted of roast pig, potatoes, oranges, nuts, plum pudding and brandy, beer and rum, the latter issued to all British troops as a medicine, but which is looked forward to with as much enthusiasm as pay day. My first experience in the front line was a unique one. We were in reserve, making merry with song and music, when the word came, "All right, boys, pack up; we're going up the line tonight." You could have heard a pin drop. Some "packed up" and tested their gas masks and rifles, which are our best friends over here, and about sunset we made our way, single file, up a "communication trench" to our hotel (?) for a few days and nights. It's against all military laws to say anything about our "trip up," but we had very few casualties, and, naturally, were all happy. But my first night reminded me of lying in a cemetery with a big boiler factory next door. I had one narrow escape last November. While standing around a dressing station a large shell, 9.2, dropped about a hundred yards away, and before I could think a piece of shrapnel hit me on the steel helmet, which saved me from a serious wound, if not death. In one of the last fights the Canucks were in we had to plough thru mud up to the waist, and between machine guns, poison gas and the state of the ground it was a great victory. At the present time the shells are dropping with great regularity, and the sweep of the machine guns makes you keep your head buried. It's pretty cold now, as the trenches are full of snow, and it's hard to keep your feet warm, but the old days keep coming into my mind."

RAYMOND ZARLINGTON

Mr. Zarlington, formerly of the Zarlington Players, is at Camp Pike, Little Rock, Ark., as a member of the 346th Infantry Band.

BLAIR'S COMEDIANS

Will B. Morse, on Blair's Comedians, writes that they are packing them in every night, and turned them away for two nights at Grand Saline, Tex. Business promises to be good all winter down there. Several new bills are in preparation, and Mr. Blair will have a complete new repertoire by spring. The scenic artist is painting new scenery for each and every one.

M. & M. ENTERTAINERS

M. L. Mitchell, owner and manager of the M. & M. Entertainers, reports that the show enjoyed one of the best seasons financially in its history. The show carried high-class vaudeville and moving pictures. For next season Mr. Mitchell is planning on three-night repertoire, band and orchestra, a much larger show than he usually has. The show will be transported on auto trucks.

A PATRIOT

We, the girls of Wills' Musical Comedy Company, wish to say a good word for our manager, Wally Holston, in his loyalty toward us. He gave us our full salary for week of January 28, the management of the theater taking out a day for the fuelless Tuesday ordered by the government. It is impossible for a good, respectable girl to make ends meet if her salary is cut any, and especially here in the Southern country, where living is very high. We merely write this to show that the one that least can afford it is the one to do the right thing, whereas the houses do a S. R. O. business on Mondays to more than make up their loss on Tuesdays. Signed—Blanche D'Argee, Gail Rossiter, Ida DeFarris, Lottie Dovey, Billy Elkins and Jean MacVicar.

TROUBLE OVER THEATER LEASE

Tacoma, Wash., Feb. 2.—There seems to be a "nigger in the woodpile" in connection with the lease of the old Pantages Theater in this city, now called the Oak. The Monte Carter Musical Comedy Company came here from San Francisco just after the first of the year, and opened as soon as the regular Pan. shows moved into the new house January 7. The lease on the property was held by Alexander Pantages, according to authentic reports, and Carter brought his company to this city and entered into an agreement with Pantages to play the house on a percentage basis. It now develops that Edward James, former theater manager of Portland, Ore., has the lease in his possession. Legal action will probably bring out the facts in the case.

CAMP TRAVIS NOTES

Camp Travis, Tex., Feb. 2.—Roy (Possum Pie) Jones put on another minstrel here recently and it was a big success. Jack Bronson worked with Possum Pie along with the other available talent.

The Kelly Field Aero bunch also staged a big cabaret minstrel and it was some big affair. They played two nights at the Grand and were a riot.

Some time in February Jones will take the Camp Travis Minstrels in the Grand for a two nights' engagement.

Business downtown is good in all the houses, three tab., three vaudeville houses and the combination all doing good business.

The Interstate people have put up a vaudeville house at Camp Travis, calling it the Majestic. Five acts are used.

STERLING DRAMATIC CO.

Holding Its Own Thru Ohio

F. R. Gervers, in advance of the Sterling Dramatic Company, reports that he has his company booked up six weeks in advance, and has the managers asking for the show, even making some guarantee dates. The week of January 28 the company played Nelsonville, O., on a guarantee and percentage.

The company opened at Jackson, O., the week of January 21, to capacity business, despite the fact that the town had had a stock company in ahead of the Sterling Company just about two weeks previous. Not a stick of scenery is carried by the Sterling Dramatic Company, tho it uses three different styles of paper, a 20-sheet, 3-sheet and ½-sheet. Gervers sees to it that all the paper goes up, and nothing left uncovered.

The Sterling Company is featuring Louise Browning and Loren Sterling in The Girl From Home. Vaudeville specialties are introduced between the acts, and the popular prices of 15, 25 and 35 cents prevail, the company paying the war tax.

DRAMATIC STOCK

OTIS OLIVER OPENS AT SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

Chatterton Theater There Inaugurates a Policy of Permanent Stock for Balance of the Season

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 2.—Owing to the railroad tie-up, etc., the Chatterton Theater, this city, has decided to book permanent stock for the balance of the season. Springfield has never had a permanent dramatic stock organization outside of the Otis Oliver Company that played here for a spring run four years ago, so Managers Hickox and Gave have brought this popular organization for a return engagement.

A novelty advertising idea is that The Daily Journal offers a large cash prize for the best article on what should be the opening play. Vada Hellman has been engaged as ingenue leading lady. Other members are Esther Welty, E. A. Jamison, Theo. Lerch, Miss Bennett, George Dayton, Roy Van Fossen, Mary Flossome and Wm. McConnell.

NEW COMPANY

At the Empress, Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 2.—The Horace Murphy Stock Company opened at the Empress Theater here this week, offering as their opening number The Maid and the Minister. Nellie Waters, Johnnie Frank and Pearl Townsend have the leading parts in the production.

ORGANIZING MAY ROBERTS CO.

May Roberts' Stock Company is being organized in Kansas City, and will open in that territory soon, according to information furnished by her husband, Victor Gillard. The Gillards left their home in Seattle before the holidays for a trip covering the Eastern section of the country, including New York City. Kansas City was chosen for a season of stock productions. The Gillards were with the American Stock Company at the American Theater, Spokane, last season.

MILLER JOINS UNCLE SAM

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 2.—Newell Miller, treasurer of the Wilkes Theater, this city, has passed the necessary examination and will leave soon for the aviation camp at San Antonio, Tex., as an officer in the Reserved Corps of the aviation branch of the U. S. army. Miller will leave a host of friends behind him, as he is the most popular treasurer who has ever occupied the box office at the Wilkes Theater.

PAMPLIN'S LYCEUM PLAYERS

The roster follows: Harry J. Pamplin, owner and manager; Jund A. Newman, characters; Harry F. Belmour, heavies, Billy Dunn, light comedy; Joe Lee, characters; "Keystone" Bob Fagan, comedian; Lola M. Lee, heavies and second business, Hazel Dunn, piano; Lillian Mae Melville, ingenue, Lola S. Hayward, leads; Hayward Pamplin, child parts, and Si Belmour, the mascot. KANSAS CITY AMUSE. CO.

Acquires Grand Opera House, Kansas City

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 31.—Dubinsky Bros., who have operated a dramatic stock company at the Grand Opera House for the past fifteen weeks, have sold their interests to the Kansas City Amusement Company.

WICHITA HAPPENINGS

Wichita, Kan., Jan. 31.—The Oliver Players closed at the Crawford Theater last week, playing Crawford's Grand for a week at Topeka, en route to the new stand at Streator, Ill., for an indefinite run. Tom J. McElhany, juvenile man for Mr. Oliver for the past eleven weeks, returns to Wichita to be examined under the new draft law regulated by the questionnaire, this making the third time for him to be examined, passing as physically perfect on two former occasions without having been called, tho in the first draft.

The Edwin Strong Players, at the Liberty Theater, are presenting Down in Indiana, by Edwin Tabor, of Wichita, for the first time on any stage, giving this city its initial "first night" a la Broadway.

Plans are let for a new theater on East Douglas avenue, the cost to be $65,000.

John G. Rae and wife, Fern Wilson, closed with Otis Oliver at Topeka last week.

William E. Mallette closed with the Liberty Theater Stock to join the Guy Players at Anderson, Ind.

Harry Lauder played here to the biggest business in the history of the Grand—472 seats (chairs) sold on the stage in the wings at $2 each.

William McElhany and J. Monroe Johnson are producing a 60-people musical show for a charity benefit here, now in rehearsal.

STOCK FOR BROOKLYN HOUSE

Brooklyn, Feb. 2.—The Crescent Theater will open in stock next Monday with Broken Threads as the initial bill. Robert Hyman has been engaged to head the new company. The Crescent was the home of Keith stock offerings for five years.

STOCK FAVORITES ENTERTAINED

Two stock favorites of Hartford, Conn., received a royal welcome recently at Parsons' Theater. Patricia Collinge, star of Pollyanna, was the ingenue with the Hunter-Bradford Players in summer stock at Parsons'.

Edna Hibbard, who has a leading part in Fair and Warmer, was for a number of seasons the ingenue with the Poli Players. Both made good in their parts and were entertained by friends during their stay in Hartford.

THE PADENS

Close at Savoy Theater, Duluth, Minn.

Howard E. Paden and wife have just finished a twenty weeks' engagement in musical comedy stock at the Savoy Theater, Duluth, Minn., and after a week's visit at their home in Youngstown, O., they will again take to the road. Mr. Paden is a versatile performer, playing either straights or comedy, and his wife is a capable chorus girl. They have had several enticing offers for stock in the South, but have decided to accept an engagement in the East.

SOMERVILLE PLAYERS

Offer The Girl Who Came Back

Somerville, Mass., Feb. 2.—The Somerville Players presented this week The Girl Who Came Back, a pleasing play, capitally acted. Adelyn Bushnell, in the title role, was more than equal to the role. Arthur Howard, as Peter Crandall, is another who deserved special mention. Grace Fox, as Mrs. Crandall, looked motherly and acted with much charm, while John Kline, as Henry Olliey, and Brandon Evans, as Dr. Barlow, both gave creditable performances. The play also served to welcome Gertrude Shirley to the cast as Edith. John Gordon, as Adachi, and Jose Dugan, as James, pleased. The scenes were particularly well done by George Lord, a splendid artist. Next week, The New Henrietta.

PICKERT SISTERS' CO.

Playing Well-Known Plays Thru North Carolina

The Pickert Sisters' Stock Company has a route thru North Carolina during the month of February, and week of March 4 will be at Danville, Va. Business to date has been good at each date, with the following plays from the American Play Company featured: A Pair of Sixes, Kick In, Mother, Alma, Where Do You Live; The Only Son and Fine Feathers. With the Pickert Sisters (Blanche and Lillian) are Cliot Dodson, Brian Wilcox, Ralph Chambers, Bill Bubler, Karl Magee, Klara Barnes, Ernestine De Mello, Pearl Young, Mary Barnes, James Hamilton, Master Brian Wilcox, Baby Carol and Baby Betty.

STOCK NOTES

Charles Levan is now in stock in Chicago with his Candy Kids company. He has a company of seven girls and four men. Levan is doing his own straights and his wife is producing the chorus.

Ralph Clem and Lodema Corey are out in Utah with The Natural Law. Miss Corey is doing leads, Ruth Stanley playing opposite, Glenn Crawford playing Jack Rowlins, the athlete; Mr. Clem, Dr. Wainter. Roster: Glenn L. Crawford, Fred and Regina Lewis, Grace Bonwell, Billy Howard, Ralph Clem and Lodema Corey. Business is good.

Over the Phone, a comedy in three acts, by George Broadhurst, has been released for stock use in restricted territory. The American Play Company has the production.

Mary Burns, one of the young ladies of the Brundage Shows (carnival), is the prima donna with the Majestic Stock Company at Waco, Tex.

Mr. Mills has again opened the Palace Theater at Oklahoma City, Ok. He is running the Toby Stock Company, and is doing a nice business. The most needed thing in Oklahoma City was a good stock company.

Ben Payne, art director for Charles Frohman, Inc., is of the opinion that the present and the coming season will be notable for the resumption of repertoire or high-class stock companies in the United States. The cause will be found in the unsatisfactory transportation conditions, but this, Mr. Payne points out, is a blessing in disguise, because the logical keystone to the dramatic situation in any country so vast as this is the local institution represented by the repertoire company.

The American Play Company has released Rida Johnson Young's comedy, Captain Kidd, Jr., for stock production in all territory.

Jack Howard, trombone player and performer, several seasons with Wonderland Boat Show, is in Tucson, Ariz., for his health, and would like to hear from friends. Address, Russell Hotel.

Fred K. Lanham and wife paid the St. Louis offices of The Billboard a call. Lanham was on his way to St. Joseph, Mo., to join the Dubinsky Bros.' Stock Company.

The House of Glass, by Max Marcin; The Silent Witness, by Otto Hauerbach, and The Hawk, by F. DeCroisset, have just been released for stock production by Messrs. Sanger & Jordan.

Manager Edward F. Galligan, of the Grand Theater, Terre Haute, Ind., is considering installing a stock company at his theater for the balance of the season. This for the reason that good road attractions are scarce.

The Jack Barnes Stock Company is now in its seventh week at the Lois Theater, Terre Haute. The engagement is for an indefinite period.

LYCEUM & CHAUTAUQUA

CONDUCTED BY FRED HIGH

BLOOMINGTON, ILLINOIS,

An Ideal Convention City — Co-operation and Construction Have Achieved Marvels— The Chamber of Commerce

While attending the Young Men's Business Association's annual banquet at Bloomington, Ill., the Bloomington boost spirit was so contagious that it soon sent the writer's blood up to 104 and still rising, so we began to take note. We went out over the city in gaining a few facts for ourselves and here is what came in on from all sides:

Bloomington's really great feat was accomplished when four years ago the commercial interests, professional men and manufacturers joined hands and grabbed a local traveling salesman—J. H. Hudson—from the road and set him to work selling Bloomington. At that time the Chamber of Commerce was largely a name; it lacked life, pep and purpose. Today this association is one of the most active bodies to be found anywhere in this country.

COMMERCIAL CLUB

They have a membership of more than 650, which includes the great majority of the business and professional men of the city. These men are working together better than they ever have before, and the results of their labor and co-operation are plainly to be seen thruout city and State. They have never been a blue-sky, factory-grabbing association, but have devoted most of their time to the betterment of their own city.

The association has assisted many of the smaller factories, and, in fact, a few years ago, when the one big industry, the Chicago & Alton shops, which employ from 1,500 to 2,000 men, had gotten to the point where they had completely outgrown their quarters and were in need of additional ground on which to build their mammoth shops and extend their ever-increasing business, this organization raised funds of $175,000, purchased the land required, and secured this institution for Bloomington forever and a day.

The payroll of the Chicago & Alton Railroad Co. in Bloomington for 1917 amounted to about $3,000,000, the majority of which was, of course, spent in that city with its own merchants, and had it not been for the united action of the association a few years ago this plant undoubtedly would have moved elsewhere.

This association is devoting a great deal of time to war activities, and has completed a county organization with a good, live chairman and a committee of ten in each township and voting precinct in the city, and when there is work to do, such as the sale of Liberty Bonds or any work of that kind, it can start the machinery over the county right from the office.

BETTER FARMING

Three years ago it established the McLean County Better Farming Association, which now numbers 800 members. The County Farm Adviser occupies offices with the Association of Commerce, and by this means the farmers and business men are brought together in a closer relationship, and good feeling has been established between these two classes. The work of the Better Farming Association, thru the County Adviser, has increased the year's yields of the farmers many thousands of dollars; in fact, it would be hard to estimate the wonderful value of this work, for as the farmer prospers so does the business man. It realizes its biggest asset in the farming industry.

Did you know that McLean County is the richest strictly agricultural county in the United States? The value of its farms is over $150,000,000 and comprises 685,000 acres.

The Better Farming Association has a number of allied organizations under its wing, each of which is operating in the interest of advanced agriculture and stock raising, viz.: The McLean County Percheron Horse Breeders' Association, the McLean County Shorthorn Breeders' Association, the McLean County Pure-Bred Swine Breeders' Association.

A Colt Show was staged on the streets in October, which was well attended.

A number of stock sales have been held under the auspices of these societies, and much good has been accomplished for both friends and neighbors.

The Saturday afternoon agricultural meetings have grown to such an extent that larger quarters will soon be required.

It is believed that within a few weeks a Home Improvement Association will be formed and a Woman Home Adviser will be in the field.

CONVENTION BUREAU

The Convention Bureau has worked splendidly thruout the year, has been instrumental in bringing to the city many thousands of people, and has demonstrated to all visitors the hospitality of the citizens, and it is a well-known fact that Bloomington has made a name as a hospitable convention city. Among the important meetings of the year were: The Illinois Encampment of the G. A. R., Illinois State Medical Society, Illinois Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers' Association, Illinois Eagles' Convention, Illinois Highway Improvement Association, which was attended by Gov. Lowden and many State officials, the Retail Booksellers' Association, the Illinois School Teachers, and fifty other conventions.

Bloomington's new half million-dollar high school, said to be one of the most complete in the United States.

OUTDOOR AUTO SHOW

The Outdoor Auto Show, held in the public square October 5 and 6, proved the best drawing attraction that has been shown in Bloomington during 1917, merchants generally reporting the largest volume of business those two days of any two days during a similar period in preceding years. This show was an innovation and received very favorable mention in trade journals with creditable publicity of Bloomington.

CO-OPERATIVE DELIVERY

Bloomington is one of the first cities in the land to organize a co-operative delivery system. In October the matter was brought to the attention of the merchants. Inquiries were made and committees were sent to other cities to investigate the working and the general merits or objections to the system.

Some good, loyal grocers spent more time on the work of organizing and perfecting the plans than they spent on their own business. The result was that inside of three months a company was formed, a building was leased and remodeled, more than $15,000 was spent, and today Bloomington boasts of one of the most complete, most efficient and most satisfactory co-operative delivery systems known anywhere. Much better service is being given than under the old individual system, and at a great saving in men and equipment.

Under the co-operative plan twelve trucks or teams do the work which formerly required forty, and the work is done much better and more satisfactorily.

INDUSTRIAL CENSUS

One hundred industries, with an annual payroll of over $4,000,000, manufacturing freight cars, passenger coaches, canned goods, candies, brick, butter, flour, tile, cook stoves, ranges, heating stoves, furnaces, boilers, elevators, grain dumps, vacuum cleaners, awnings, carpets, rugs, store fixtures, ice, ice cream, carriages, wagons, soda water, bottled goods, blank books, mattresses, furniture, couches, chairs, window screens, clay screens, coffee, extracts, spices, medicines, plating, brass goods, corrugated culverts, pencils, silos, brooms, farm machinery, tanks, overalls, wood novelties, sash, doors and blinds, soaps, stationery, stock food, stock dip, monuments, iron work, concrete blocks, garbage cans, ornamental posts, trunks, harness, horse collars, sporting goods, paper boxes, electric display cases, wrenches, millinery, farm and garden seeds, packing house materials, cereals, cornices, printing, book binding, dental supplies, household specialties, furniture polish, sweeping compound, insect powder, bread, bakery goods, cigars, nursery stock, farm tractors and many other articles.

As a jobbing center Bloomington is known thruout a large territory. HEARD IN THE HOTEL LOBBY

Bloomington is the headquarters of one of the largest independent chautauqua booking agencies in this country, the managers being Messrs. James Shaw and James Loar.

The High School conducts one of the really great lyceum courses, and is planning to increase its activities along this line.

Its Y. M. C. A. is one of the best to be found in the State. In fact, it was the Y. M. C. A. work which developed many of the best workers now in the Chamber of Commerce. There is $185,000 invested in the Y. M. C. A. building alone.

Bloomington has been farsighted in the matter of building parks and providing public playgrounds. Two artificial lakes offer boating, fishing, swimming and all forms of water sport.

There is a beautiful new animal house and a splendid conservatory in one of its parks.

Its Public Library contains 80,000 books. Three splendid hospitals take care of sick and injured.

It says it has the best band in the State, but as 700 other towns say the same thing there may be some argument on that score.

It has ample theaters, which play the big city productions.

It has splendid educational facilities and is adding to them. Its new $400,000 High School is a marvel of effectiveness. The Illinois State Normal is located there. So is the Wesleyan University.

Its Amateur Musical Society is one of the great organizations of the Middle West. Besides giving local talent an outlet to be heard and developed this society annually brings many of the world's greatest artists to its cultured city.

It has a coliseum which seats 5,000 people.

Last year it was estimated that 200,000 people attended the tractor demonstration meet, and these are only a few of the many startling things which we picked up at Bloomington while attending a banquet and unloading a few remarks of our own.

MISS MAYER STILL LECTURING

Miss Maria Mayer was refused permission to lecture in Iowa by order of the State Committee on Public Safety. The Redpath-Vawter Bureau canceled her engagements and sent a substitute lecturer in her stead. The reason for objecting to Miss Mayer is that she is a German subject and that her father is an officer in the German army. Her plea is "Abolish war and establish universal brotherhood under the banner of the King of Kings." The place for Sister Mayer with that talk right now is over in Germany. It seems mighty impertinent, at least, for a German subject, even if she is hired by a lyceum bureau, to tell us to quit fighting and devote our patriotism to the Prince of Peace. Miss Mayer simply moved her activities over to Illinois, and kept right on spreading her pleas for peace. She recently lectured at Galesburg, where she was given a great reception. She lectured at Lake Placid, N. Y., on the Lyceum Course recently, which shows that as long as there is money in her gab some bureau or local committee can be found willing to aid in the work of spreading peace talk. That Miss Mayer is in touch with her folks in Germany is shown by her interview setting straight the story about the death of some of those who have taken parts in the Oberammergau production, as she is in possession of facts not known to American newspaperdom. It should be safety first at this time. We will thank our friends if they will keep us posted on this kind of work. Address this department, care our Chicago office.

Are you "doing your bit" in saving food for the allies and our soldiers and sailors?

IN THE BOOBY HATCH

The following attractions have been reported UNSATISFACTORY by the lyceum committeemen in the towns indicated. These attractions will be kept in The Booby Hatch until five committeemen report them 90 or 100:

Irish Players; Brookfield, Mo., 60.
Rollo McBride; Kelso, Wash., 60.

PICKED UP FROM COMMITTEEMEN

The Irish Players, who head the Booby Hatch this week, is a coached-up company of players, who are sent out by the Redpath-Horner Bureau. Committeeman H. B. Stone, of Brookfield, Mo., wrote. "The company is good in their parts, but the audience didn't seem to appreciate it. The Redpath Bureau gives us an extra number to make good."

C. J. Shipley, of Kelso, Wash., writes and gives his reason for placing Rollo McBride in the unsatisfactory list for his town: "This is a very poor attraction for a small town." Rollo lectures on the Public Defender idea, and we can readily see that he is far better suited for a larger town than for the smaller ones.

"Harry J. Loese has good material and the audience gave splendid attention. His delivery was rather monotonous," writes Mrs. Ella Righter, of Saunemin, Ill. Mr. Loese was a substitute for Harold W. Kramer.

"We have a lyceum course here every year and consider it the best kind of an investment. This year it was harder than ever to sell tickets, but the people are certainly getting their money's worth," writes H. B. Stone, of Brookfield, Mo.

Floyd Featherstone Co.—Music A-1, execution good, the appearance of the individual members good, so the company gave splendid satisfaction at Edgewood, Ia.

W. S. Battis is a good attraction and the audience was very appreciative at St. Albans, Vermont.

Danville, Ill.—"This was the fourth number on the Masonic course and it was the very best of the season. The audience of 1,500 were delighted with The Smith-Spring-Holmes Orchestral Quintet." This is what Committeeman Geo. W. Tilling had to say.

At Battle Creek, Mich., Rev. Wm. Chapman wrote: "Every member is an independent artist, either when playing alone or with the other members of the Smith-Spring-Holmes Orchestral Quintet."

The Samaloff Concert Company was late in getting to Fayetteville, Ark., and had to go right from the train to the platform.

The St. Clair Sisters (4) gave a most delightful entertainment at Brookfield, Mo.

Metropolitan Glee Club was a substitute at Brinkhaven, O., for the National Glee Club. "The house was very cold, there had been a big fire in town the night before, but they did well under these difficulties," wrote P. J. Coggins.

Adrian W. Newens was two hours late in getting started at Brookville, Pa., but scored one hundred.

"Means-Anderson Concert Co. proved to be one of the best concerts we ever had at Kelso," wrote C. J. Shipley.

This was the third time the Howard Quintet has appeared before Amery (Wis.) audience, and each time they have made good. Fourth time. "Delighted."

CHARLES CITY'S (IA.) LUCK

One of the greatest Forums west of the Mississippi River is, undoubtedly, the great Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon meetings at Charles City, Ia. The writer was billed for an address Sunday afternoon, January 20, but the big Chicago blizzard caused the railroads to cancel their outgoing trains Saturday afternoon and evening, so that it was impossible to reach the city in Iowa, where an expectant public would be waiting. A telegram was rushed off to the secretary notifying him of the conditions, and here is his reply. This is a part of the letter received from Secretary Dave E. Darrah, and it speaks for itself:

Dear Mr. High—Sorry, indeed, that the antics of Old King Boreas kept you in Chicago. We needed you out here. Your telegram came at exactly noon, too late to call off the afternoon Forum. However, the Forum is too big to curl up and die simply because a speaker does not come, and in less than a half hour we had a full program arranged, with six local men from the shops and business houses as speakers.

At three o'clock our gym was packed with some 500 men. We spent thirty minutes singing our national songs, as the enclosed folder will show. Then our local speakers hopped to it and the sparks sure did fly. In the middle of the program in walked the Gray-Lhevinne Company, a Redpath Lyceum attraction, which we had booked for yesterday and canceled in your favor. However, the snow blockade had prevented them getting their mail and they were ignorant of the fact that their date had been canceled. When I explained the situation to them they saw the joke, which was on me, and pulling off their wraps they put on an hour's program which was a wonder. These folks have just come from a tour of the Naval Training Stations, where they have been playing to our sailor boys. Mr. and Mrs. Lhevinne have caught the spirit of the year. Every one of their wonderful numbers is woven in with personal stories from the sailor boys. They won our big Forum crowd of men heart and soul. We hope they come this way again.

Do you know, Mr. High, there is something wonderful about the spirit of a real lyceum company? No snobbishness, no spirit of selfishness, but only the true spirit of service. All that is best in lyceum was typified by the Gray-Lhevinne Company yesterday. I am telling you this because I think it is worthy of mention.

I am sorry you could not come yesterday, and hope we may get together for some date in the future.

Respectfully,
DAVE E. DARRAH,
Gen'l Secy. Y. M. C. A., Charles City, Ia.

LYCEUM AND CHAUTAUQUA NOTES

The lure of the Middle West has called many lyceum folk to Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska, and there seems to be something, also, in the big spirit of those carefree inhabitants that has been instrumental in the making of talent out there. In Oklahoma City the ubiquitous Alton Packard has extensive holdings, the taxes on his property amounting to a thousand dollars annually. Nels Darling, the big, jovial community booster, is president of a prominent sash and door manufacturing concern in the same city, and for years Norman L. Baker, the original Quaker Quartet man, was an Oklahoma Cityan.

Milton W. Brown, who has been in the service of the Red Triangle programs for some months, stationed at Camp Pike, Ark., is still busy promoting his bureau activities from Cincinnati. He says the outlook for the coming year is good. While some are pessimistic over the war conditions others are delighted with the fine thrill of President Wilson's recognition of the lyceum movement.

Lincoln McConnell returns to the lyceum the coming season. His patriotic lecture, The Devil and the Kaiser, has been scoring strong, both at the cantonments and in cities he has visited.

"What do you think of the invasion of the vaudeville field by lyceum entertainers—or, rather, the idea of lyceum folk playing vaudeville dates?" was asked Arthur Porter Oakes, late publicity manager for the Lincoln chautauquas, now editor of Trench and Camp, at Camp Travis. "It is doing much to elevate and dignify vaudeville," he answered promptly. And I mentally decided that all this has and cry that "they won't mix" is the tommiest sort of rot. More especially when I see the standing ad of a vaudeville producer in the oldest lyceum magazine—and the word "Keith" misspelled every month the ad appears.

Chaplain K. F. Nance filled dates in the Southwest recently. He is planning for some service at the front in France soon.

A standard lyceum entertainer opens his program like this: "My friends, while it may be a pardonable ambition on the part of an entertainer to plant two smiles where only one grew before, I shall be greatly disappointed at the close of my work this evening if any one shall leave here saying: 'Well, I had a good time tonight, but I was merely entertained.' The world is too busy with a big, grim and vital job to fritter our time away in diversions only." And yet there are some programmists who whine: "How can I do any patriotic work? It is up to the lecturer to do the talking."

The ladies of the Red Cross gave a public demonstration of the real practical work of the front on a public sales day at Walters, Ok., recently, and in the absence of the regular speaker for the day, who was detained on account of the blizzard, The Billboard representative talked to the people about the value of buying War Savings Stamps, and, after his talk, suited the action to the word by investing $4.12 with Uncle Sam at the local post office. A little green sticker a week will follow.

With all her faults the lyceum profession seems to have it on that branch of the "show game" that has to do with purveying so-called service to the rural exhibitor in general intelligence. I met a manager the other day who was furnishing feature films and could scarcely pronounce the name of Henry Walthall, while his knowledge of things literary was positively nil. Imagine a bureau representative attempting to sell a standard lecture or a monolog play who can not speak respectable English!

CHAUTAUQUA NOTES

The Colt-Alber Chautauqua Company of Chicago has been incorporated for $30,000, under the laws of Illinois, the incorporators being O. R. Stevenson, George Bicknell and Miss Mildred Wood. This is to handle the business of booking the independent chautauquas and to consolidate the business formerly conducted by the C. M. A. and the Dunbar Bureau, both of which the Colt-Alber people have since taken over.

Edward A. Wiggam was recently engaged to give the Eugenics lecture before the regular monthly Teachers' Institute at the High School at Meadville, Pa., delivering the address at 9 o'clock in the morning.

One of the busy returned-from-the-war lecturers seems to be J. Henry Scattergood. The other day he spoke in Philadelphia in the afternoon, and at Trenton, N. J., at night. Oh, no, being in a hurry he used an automobile.

Edmund Vance Cooke addressed the Cleveland Single Tax Club Sunday afternoon, January 24, at the annual election of officers. Mr. Cooke is a former president of the club.

James O. Fagan, of Waverly, Mass., is one of the alert lecturers who is doing missionary service. He is representing the American Manufacturers' Association. His subject is America in Industry and War.

Major Chas. W. Gordon, known to American readers as Ralph Connor, author of The Sky Pilot, Black Rock, The Man From Glengarry, is now busy lecturing on The Conflict of Ideals. The gifted writer, speaker and soldier was formerly a missionary to the Canadian Northwest.

Lyceum and chautauqua performers who are booked down in Texas ought to make a strenuous effort to visit Caldwell. C. A. Bain, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, is always glad to arrange for attractions whenever he can make room for one. Write him.

From Silverton to South Park is the title of a lecture being delivered through the backing of The National Cash Register Co., of Dayton, O. It is illustrated, showing the redemption of a community. It shows what transformation a little community activity can bring to pass.

Miss Doris Langley, who the past five years has been on The Tippecanoe (O.) Herald staff, has been engaged by the Colt-Alber Chautauqua and Lyceum Bureau as a representative, the human offering her the pick of territory anywhere in Canada, or as far south as Florida.

Milton A. Work, as a result of lectures and private instructions on bridge given in Louisville, Ky., for one week, raised $1,470, which he turned over to the Red Cross. All of which shows that there is some interest in the war or cards, or both, in Louisville.

Dr. A. B. Bestor attended a War Conference at Topeka and delivered an address before the Kansas State body. He is in charge of the speakers' bureau in connection with the Committee on Public Information.

TABLOIDS

Mrs. Carrie Martin, wife of Percy Martin, who recently had a musical comedy show on the road, was operated on January 22 in a Cleveland (O.) hospital for appendicitis. Mrs. Martin was on the operating table for two hours. However, she passed thru it successfully, and has a splendid chance of recovery. Mr. Martin has been general agent for George Reynolds' Shows, Sol & Rubin's United Shows, and last season was general agent for the Superior United Shows. Mrs. Martin was with her husband on all these companies.

The Buffalo branch of the Gus Sun Circuit is taking care of a few of the better class tabs., and it is reported that this particular office has a route of several well-paying spots in Canada.

June Alfred's Pan-American Girls Company is now in its second season, and its second successful season, also. In all that time the show has not lost a week, and, altho some changes have been made in the cast, the majority of the original bunch is still on hand. Some record? Yes, but The roster: Jack and June Alfred, Bert and Geneva Cushman, Henry Jenkins, Earl Harley, Harry Pryce, Angy Lopez, Fanny Clark, Josephine Hill and a chorus of six. Script bills are presented under the direction of Bert Cushman. Jas. Holman is musical director.

VISIONS FROM VIN

It is reported that Dad Hall of the Dixie Theater, Uniontown, Pa., paid the full salary of all his employees on the first "Fuelless" Tuesday. So henceforth address him thus: "Dad Hall, American."

Patriotism is the slogan of today. But when a manager gives extra performances on Monday and then refuses to pay his employees for Tuesday it doesn't show the proper spirit.

The Academy of Music, Pittsburg, playing burlesque stock, is another of the theaters that paid its employees for the theatrical workless Tuesday. And they gave no performances on Monday either.

Why will a chap advertise himself "At Liberty," accept an offer, and at the eleventh hour fail to show up and blame it on the draft? Of course, they don't state what draft. "How long, oh, Lord, how long?"

Vin Richmond and Eugene J. Murphy are requested to communicate with M. J. Pincey, 334 Diamond street, S. E., Grand Rapids, Mich., at the earliest possible moment.

Favorable press comment is recognized as a thing of ultraimportance to all shows. The type of praise expressed in the following quotation from a Fairmont (W. Va.) newspaper is one of the reasons, no doubt, for the continued success of The Lonesome Island Girls Company thru that territory, for the verdict of the other papers has been along the same lines, viz.: "It deserves the highest commendation for its sparkling cleanliness and is not to be classed with the slapstick sort of entertainment. In its own way it offers a splendid diversion from the average form of tabloid shows." Paul Ryan and Charles West, in the leading male parts, and Claire Walker and Roberta Courtice, in the leading female parts, were adjudged the most pleasing entertainers that Fairmont had seen in the tabloid line in some seasons. "The pleasing prima donna" and "the prancing Miss Courtice" was the Fairmont press' way of commenting on Claire Walker and Roberta Courtice. The Lonesome Island Company has been strengthened by the addition of two more chorus girls—the Misses Louise Smith and Daisy Finch—and a pianist—Wallace Tate, until recently connected with Waterson, Berlin & Snyder's Pittsburg office—giving the company a high-class roster in every respect. Miss Flo Rockwood, who has been doing dancing specialties with the company, is at present resting at Mansfield, O., but will shortly rejoin the show. An injury to her toe necessitated a short layoff.

The Al Shafer Boys and Girls' Company is still in Texas. While in Electra, Tex., this company played day and date with The Top Notch Girls (Eddie Martin's show). Mr. Shafer went to his home in New Castle, Pa., from Wichita Falls, and also took in St. Louis, Pittsburg, Chicago and Cleveland on his way back to the show. The company numbers sixteen people and is going back to Amarillo for an indefinite run, having played that town last summer for nine weeks.

The Rosebud Girls Tabloid Show, with J. J. Rose as manager, is touring the Southwest and making good in all stands. Making up the roster are: J. L. Rose, manager; Herb Smith, comedian; Joe Garnett, straight; Ollie Castle, leads, Catherine Murdock, soubrette. Chorus—Peggy Starr, Inez Lace, Trix Lee, Edna Smith, Florence Stevenson, Betty Cox and May Lewis. C. H. Nims is musical director. Week of January 24 found the company at Amarillo, Tex.

Jack Lord, of the Lord and Vernon musical comedy company, now in its twenty-first week at the Gem Theater, Little Rock, Ark., has engaged Billy Malone and wife the principal comedy and prima donna on his No. 2 show, now in its eighth week at the Kempner Theater, Little Rock.

Charles LaFord, the eccentric comedian, formerly of LaFord and Walters, a vaudeville team, who has been in Louisville, Ky., in musical comedy stock, is now going on his twentieth week and still putting his stuff over. His former partner, Clarence Walters, is at present playing an indefinite engagement for Uncle Sam, being stationed at Camp Taylor, Louisville, Ky. LaFord will probably be with Uncle Sam's show this spring.

George M. Smith, the popular little nut comedian, who was with the Bon Ton Follies last season, is expected to star in a big girl act, opening in New York very shortly. He was formerly with the Smith-Lamounte-Main Trio, and later doing a single over the Loew Time.

The Orpheum Theater, Fairfield, Ia., is an A-1 house playing pictures and vaudeville. The management has been putting on musical tabloids every week, and last week Alex Saunders and his company played to crowded houses two nights. The Orpheum has an excellent orchestra under the leadership of Miss Gertrude Mason, who plays the piano. The music is a "feature" of the show and far above the average music heard in picture houses.

Cliff Lancaster, with the Robert Athon Players in tabs. for the past several seasons, is spending a few weeks' vacation in Portland, Ore., with friends and relatives.

Miss Bessie Nitram, in private life Mrs. Joe J. Smith, died January 26 in St. Louis at the Mullanphy Hospital. She was a member of the team of Smith and Nitram and in former years member of the team of Milton and Nitram. She was a protege of the late Tony Pastor and at one time was the winner of the Richard K. Fox medal as a dancer. She had appeared in the principal vaudeville theaters thruout the country meeting all comers in dancing contests. Following an operation for tumor three years ago the

MAGIC & MAGICIANS

BY WILLIAM J. HILLIAR

Address all communications for this column to WILLIAM J. HILLIAR, care of The Billboard, Subway Central Building, New York.

New York, Jan. 25, 1918.

My Dear Mr. Hilliar:

Your page in The Billboard has wonderfully increased the magic audience, especially among outsiders, as The Billboard is read more by outsiders than any theatrical publication.

I have enlarged my Advertisement, and will continue to enlarge it, as I find it very profitable.

The series of letters in regard to Dice Box was very interesting and instructive, as it brought credit to the party who invented it.

I would like to know who is the inventor of the growth of flowers, cataloged under the name of Kellar's Growth of Flowers. Of course dealers always associate some well-known magician who makes the trick popular and give him credit, as it makes the sale easier, and as the magician travels around the country demonstrating the trick he is really an agent helping to sell the trick. That is why they give him credit in the catalogs, but he may not be the inventor.

Debate thru your column brings out the truth.

Thanking you we remain yours truly,

HORNMAN MAGIC COMPANY.

All right. Now let us hear from some one who knows who invented the Growth of Flowers.

Joseffy's Balsamo, the Living Skull, created a sensation recently with the members of the Chicago Conjurers' Club. This wonderful skull opens and closes its jaws, answering all questions, such as from us a borrowed watch, spots on playing cards, etc., and there is absolutely no outside connection with the skull.

From The New York Evening Mail, January 29: "Enrico Berlino was entertaining a friend at his house, Giuseppe Diorardo, when the latter, who is a barber, told him that Svengali had nothing on him when it came to hypnotism. He said he had to have more practice, and hoped soon to be able to hypnotize customers while shaving them. He said there was big possibilities in it, as people didn't know what was happening to them when hypnotized. Enrico told him he could practice on him, and he wiggled his hands in front of his face, his eyes popped out like marbles and soon poor Enrico knew no more, but when he awoke Giuseppe and $80 had gone. Giuseppe is at police headquarters."

The Magic World, published by Dr. J. E. Pierce in Philadelphia, is a very clever little magazine, and is increasing in interest each month.

Houdini says he is next going to vanish the moon. It will evidently be a black art effect.

In the March number of the Sphinx will begin a department of beginners' tricks that any amateur can do, so here is a fine opportunity for those who are slightly interested in magic to improve their knowledge.

The Magical Bulletin for January contains an excellent picture of Thayer's new Magical Palace in Los Angeles. The first ladies' night of the Los Angeles Magicians' Club will long be remembered in the history of magic on the Coast. Thayer's little theater, decorated in true Egyptian style, was crowded. Among the performers who entertained were Konnor, Fewala, S. M. Robinson, Marion, the ventriloquist, Alexander, who was the feature of the show; Marco, G. W. Robinson and Prof. Harry Cooke, the oldest magician in the country. Roland Travers, playing at the Orpheum Theater, made a speech, and Mrs. Thayer provided a feast of good things to eat. James M. Foley is the president of the society, and acted as stage manager and announcer of the entertainment. For the Los Angeles Magicians' Club we predict unbounded success.

FRED C. EBERTS

The only picture extant of the late Mr. Eberts, who for the past two years managed the Majestic Theater, Chicago. He died suddenly at his home in Chicago Thursday evening, January 24, of pneumonia.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

Neil Stuart, Adair, Ia.—I have turned your letter over to Hornman & Co., 470 Eighth avenue, New York, who can supply you with what you ask for.

Fred Jenkins, Perry, Ia.—The Sphinx, published in Kansas City by Dr. A. M. Wilson, is the oldest magic paper in the world. It was founded by the writer of this column, in conjunction with the late E. M. Vernelle, in Chicago, in March 1901.

R. V. Klein, Spokane, Wash.—So glad to know that you are devoting your entertaining abilities for the benefit of the soldiers and sailors.

W. H. Domzalski, Detroit, Mich.—What is the address of the new club rooms.

Charles Niel Smith, Cincinnati, O.—Why is a Magician?

J. Allan Troke of Lincoln, Neb., is creating much talk among the magic fraternity with his material for lightning crayon artists. He uses it successfully in conjunction with his magic and music entertainment. He supplies all the equipment necessary. Mr. Troke writes: "I am enjoying the interesting and helpful comments of yours in The Billboard, and subscribed for it for that reason."

Some magicians make fortunes and of old tricks, and others starve while trying to invent new ones. (Eagle Magician.) But Kellar starved, Houdini starved, Downs starved, Van Hoven starved, Shakespeare starved, Dickens starved. But, ah, there's the rub!

The Minneapolis Local No. 2, of the National Conjurer's Association, is now established in its new club rooms in the Arlington Apartments, which are owned by Rodile, who in private life is known as R. D. Lewis. So that the boys would have a meeting place he rented them one of his lower floor apartments for the use of the club. They have three rooms, three large closets, a big kitchenette, and a bath. They have a miniature theater with a regular stage, decorated with magicians' photos and lithographs. Some class to the Minneapolis Wizards. Here's wishing them all sorts of success and good luck.

The Eagle Magician, a very bright magazine published in Minneapolis, recently had a very complimentary article about this column. Many thanks. All interested in magic should read this entertaining little monthly.

The Mysterious Smith, assisted by Miss Olga, is playing the small towns thru the Middle West with his own show with much success. He has quite a pretentious outfit. Managers and the press speak very highly of his performances.

Kit Clarke, just recovering from a serious illness, was at one time manager for famous magicians, among them Hartz and Robert Heller. Mr. Clarke writes as follows: "I am amazed at the vast amount of interesting news printed in The Billboard, which now comes to me regularly, and am especially interested in Magic and Magicians. You are certainly deserving of praise for giving so much interest to your magic department, and I am beginning to yearn for it regularly." Many thanks, Friend Clarke, and here's hoping for your speedy convalescence.

The January number of The Sphinx is about the best issue that Dr. Wilson has yet produced. It is overflowing with good things for the magician. In addition to news of hundreds of exponents of the mystic art it contains so many features of interest that it is not difficult to realize why it is the world's leading magical magazine. Uncle Felix's Correspondence Column, conducted by Charles Niel Smith, has a laugh in every line, and The Necromantic Notes, by Schulte, contain a whole lot of philosophy served up in humorous form. For those interested in the higher branches of occultism is a brilliant article entitled The Mystic Oracle of the Swinging Pendulums, or Mind Over Matter, by David P. Abbott of Omaha. It also contains explanations of more half dozen new tricks. Among the contributors are A. B. Barrington, Clarence T. Hubbard, Robert W. Test, Van Tome, Roy C. Haydon, W. H. Domzalski, Hans C. Kleeman, Charles J. Hagen, Paul R. Semple, W. Dornfeld, Homer H. Woulffe, Charles Niel Smith, John H. Percival, G. F. Schulte, Russell, David P. Abbott, T. C. Bonney, etc. Dr. Wilson's editorial effusions bristle with original and characteristic eloquence.

S. S. Henry and Company are playing under the direction of the National War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A.

The Demons' Club of Baltimore recently opened its new club house with great success. It has its own club building—in all probability the only building owned and occupied by a magical society in this or any other country. The club is giving shows at Camp Meade.

The first monthly meeting of the Aladdin Magic Society of Philadelphia was held Sunday evening, January 27, at 689 North 16th street. Charles Van Tome is president, Dr. J. E. Pierce is vice-president and C. Blass is secretary and treasurer.

Among the candidates for election to the Conjurers' Club of Boston is John Ellerton Lodge, Nahant, Mass., son of Henry Cabot Lodge, Senator from Massachusetts.

The Society of Detroit Magicians is moving to new club rooms. President William Shellington and Correspondent W. H. Domzalski are the leading lights of this prosperous organization.

P. R. Semple, Martins Ferry, O.—What have you to say about a magicians' society in Wheeling, W. Va.?

DO YOU KNOW THAT

IN ENGLAND the variety of handcuffs is very limited—7 or 8 at the utmost—while in America the number reaches about 125 or more?

HORACE GOLDIN was the first "silent" magician, and the first to produce a two-hour magical performance in thirty minutes?

T. NELSON DOWNS is the original "King of Koins"?

JOHN HENRY ANDERSON (The Wizard of the North) was the greatest advertiser in the history of magic?

HOWARD THURSTON was educated to become a preacher of the gospel?

CARL HERTZ was the first "King of Cards"?

THE TELEPHONE was invented by Dr. Alexander Graham Bell from watching Professor Faber's talking machine exhibited by Barnum in 1873?

ELBERT CLINTON ADAMS was known as the "King of Vestees"? He used to disappear a glass full of beer, or a stack of coins, or a deck of cards under his vest with such rapidity that it was several years before even magicians discovered his modus operandi.

WILLIAM SELIG, the moving picture magnate, used to be a magician? The writer of this column had the pleasure of posing for some of his first pictures after he had invented the Selig Polyscope.

HERM ALEXANDER did the production of large bowls of water in New York many years before Ching Ling Foo was ever heard of?

JACK BENSON of and Benson-Berger Shows used to be a magician?

ADOLPH SEEMAN'S father, Hartwig Seeman, invented the suspension and first patented it in this country?

A MAGICIAN in 1879 used advertising posters, showing him swallowing a man alive?

THE ZANCIGS completely fooled the late W. T. Stead, the English editor and scientist, who was lost on the Titanic, and whose daughter has since published "spirit" letters she claims to have received from her father? Mr. Stead gave out several interviews, in which he stated emphatically that The Zancigs were possessed of supernatural power. Credulity, scientists are thy saviors!

To the many who write asking particulars of America's Home of Mystery on Broadway will say that all details are being carefully planned, but of necessity are kept secret for the present.

For all contributions from magicians, ventriloquists, magic societies to this column

I THANK YOU.

retired and made her home at the Alamo Hotel. She had been a professional dancer since she was nine years old, and died at the age of 47. She is survived by her husband, Joe J. Smith, who is known to the musical comedy and burlesque world as The Crazy Irishman.

The Belles of Broadway Musical Comedy Company is successfully touring the V. C. M. A. Circuit, this being its fourteenth week on that time. There are twelve people in the troupe consisting of Joe Carr, manager and straight man; Tim Lester, eccentric Dutch comedian; Charles Gulden, Hebrew comedian, Ethel Carr, soubret; Daisy Morgan, soprano. In the chorus are Madge Ross, May Walker, Etta Smith, Bessie Watson, Jessie Morgan. Orrie Gardiner is musical director.

The Majestic Theater, El Paso, Tex., "home" of the U. S. Border Girls, is drawing wonderfully well. Phil Berg, the principal comedian and producer, is putting on more very elaborate shows, which account for the big patronage. He is surrounded by one of the best casts El Pasoans have seen in a long time, including James Burtis, second comedian; Ted Mulford, light comedy; Bob Williams, straight; Olyvette Paul, prima donna; Hazel Deggins, soubret; Millie Stiles, characters. The chorus consists of Junita Snooks, Wanda Bowskee, Agnes Snyder, Bebe Hawlison, Mabel Smithe and Daisy Connell. Frank Williams, the manager, carries a smile that won't come off.

Ray Grenwalt, owner and manager of the Moonlight Maids Company, and Ed M. Moore, his business manager, who is also credited with having written the opening medleys, songs and dances for the company, and who does the second comedy and straights during spare moments, were callers at the home office of The Billboard on Friday of last week. The Moonlight Maids Company closed its engagement at Birmingham, Ala., and the Cincinnati visit was occasioned while en route to Portsmouth, O., at which town it will open on the Gus Sun Time.

Headed by Ray Walzer, the Ohio High Stepper and His Fan Tan Girls are touring Ohio with success.

Bert Williams, who has gained quite a reputation as producing comedian, composer of lyrics and writer of tabloid musical comedy productions, has just completed an entirely new tabloid production, with special lyrics, for Ray Grenwalt's Moonlight Maids. The piece is called The Musical Shop. The special music was written by Ed Moore, whose melodies are a big feature of the show. Mr. Williams was formerly with The Fascinating Widow, Twentieth Century Maids, Starland Girls, Girls From Broadway, American Maids, Aviation Girls and Harmony Trio. Among his compositions are The Widow in Red, Captain Dane, Stung and The Marriage Mix Up. The members of the Moonlight Maids include Ray Grenwalt, Musical (Hav-a-laf) Walker, Ed Moore, Bert Williams, Carrie Lowrey, Julia Mills, Cozy Lewis, Betty Ward, Georgia Jasmer and Eva Lawrence.

"Billy" Wehle, "The Kentucky Chocolate Drop," and originator of the saying, "Says which?", has resigned his position as manager of the Army and Navy Girls, a Barbour attraction, and is taking out his own show, to be called the Blue Grass Belles. Mr. Wehle, however, declares that he is thoroly satisfied with the Barbour Circuit and will continue booking thru the Barbour Booking Agency at Muskogee, Ok. Several of the Army and Navy Girls' members will go with Mr. Wehle's company, including Walter Deering, straights; Bob Chambers, musical director and xylophone specialties; Evelyn Burke, Emma Jenks, Babe LaTour, chorus. Other members joining The Blue Grass Belles will be Jack Harrison, second comedy; J. D. Seymour, Mix; Lazy Hanley, characters, and Lucille Dupree, prima donna and leading lady; also Nora Harrison and the Sutton Sisters, making seven girls in the chorus, including Marion Wehle. Specialties on the show will be the Blue Grass Quartet, Cunningham and Howard, acrobats, Sutton Sisters, singers and buck dancers; Bob Chambers, xylophone specialties, and Deering and Burke, in a novelty singing and dancing act. The Army and Navy Girls are playing the Folly Theater at Oklahoma City week of February 3, and both this company and The Blue Grass Belles will rehearse this week and open without a day layoff.

Bert and Geneva Cushman are in their twenty-first week with Jean Alfred's American Girls. They are featuring novelty numbers, with special scenic and electrical effects.

Editorial Comment

The Billboard, which once had all the motion picture advertising that was to be had, and therefore felt duty bound to fight evil tendencies, combat insidious, invading influences, attack ruthless and wasteful speculators and profiteers, and battle for the best interests of the game, has been rewarded for its efforts with a slow, steady, constant loss of business.

Smallminded men, one after another, withdrew their advertising in order to punish us for our outspoken and vigorous denunciation of practices which we knew, if not eradicated, would prove very harmful and injurious to the business.

We could have winked at these infections and retained our business.

We were told so repeatedly.

Wellwishers came to us and urged and pleaded with us to "go easy," to "soft pedal," to "salve" and to connive at, but we turned a deaf ear to them.

The pioneers had given us their confidence and trust, and we refused to prove recreant.

Our duty, as we saw it, was to foster and develop the industry, to watch its growth and health closely and to guard and protect it against ignorant, inimical and iniquitous hands.

We never shirked or shrank from our duty.

On the contrary as the evils multiplied we redoubled our efforts and summoned every last ounce of strength we had to us.

But in vain.

The money to be made was so much—the reward so great—that men went mad.

Frenzied with the prospect of vast gains, they stormed our position and brushed past us in a wild stampede.

We followed shouting, exhorting, warning—pleading—but to no purpose. Our cries fell upon the ears of money maniacs, deaf to argument, deaf to reason, deaf to everything save the jingle of coin.

A gold rush was a tame and uninteresting scramble in comparison.

The result is tragic.

No parallel for wanton, wicked wastefulness exists in American history, unless it is the extinction of the buffalo or the exhaustion of the Ohio-Indiana gas field.

Motion picture business is beginning to find its way back into the advertising columns of The Billboard.

We touched bottom in November, since when there has been a slow, but steady, rise in volume.

We have never doubted that if the motion picture was to remain a showmen's proposition that soon or later this business would have to be placed in the showmen's paper.

It is significant that coincident with the disposition of the producer to run after strange advertising gods the decline of his prosperity set in.

As the representation in The Billboard dwindled the motion picture sun sank lower and lower in the heavens.

It may be that now that the producer is abandoning his false gods and showing an inclination to return to the altar of his fathers fate may gradually put off her frown and once more condescend to smile upon him.

Who knows?

As an industry the motion picture game is as effectually shot to pieces as is Belgium, and it will take even longer to rebuild and re-establish it.

In a way we ought to be glad that the big money is gone forever, because that eliminates the wild men and gamblers.

A new class of men will now make their way in—gleaners and builders.

This new class will in all likelihood spring from the ranks of the exhibitors who now are all, or nearly all, showmen.

They are in touch with the public. They have studied their audiences and understand them. They know what is in demand and what is not.

Probably the jitney house will come back. The few that are still in existence are thriving, and, despite the famine in the single-reel market, new houses are opening in goodly numbers.

There will be feature films, too, but they will be real ones. Rest assured, furthermore, that they will be produced, not manufactured.

There will always be a demand for illustrated travelogs, news weeklies (and perhaps dailies), and pictures are likely to prove part of a vaudeville entertainment for years and years to come.

Mayhap the pictures, in combination with a symphony orchestra and concert artists, will endure in large cities. They will if the grade of the pictures is constantly improved, but improved they must be, for the patrons of these houses are a discriminating and exacting class.

But the old order is dead.

The industry will have to be completely made over and rebuilt.

Enter now—the showman.

OUR READERS ARE ALL ASSISTANT EDITORS

The interest and value of any publication to its readers in general depends largely upon the interest the readers manifest in the periodical.

If we were to go over a file of The Billboard with any one of you readers we would discover that a large proportion of the interesting articles and items published originated thru contact with the readers—thru personal suggestion or letter, or contribution in the way of a letter for publication, a report of an interesting incident or news matter, or an article treating upon some phase or experience of advertising.

The intimate relation with readers has grown with us to a volume altogether unusual in the case of a trade or class publication, but we are as greedy for more as was Oliver Twist.

The publication of any trade paper is a matter of mutual interest and importance, and this is to notify every reader of The Billboard that its editors and publisher thoroly appreciate cooperation on their part, and to invite them always to have us in mind whenever anything of interest comes to their knowledge or occurs to them.

J. J. J.—Including the Hippodrome, Madison Square Garden, Carnegie Hall, Grand Central Palace and the Carnegie-Lyceum, there are 153 theaters in New York City. Also included in this total are the Strand, Rivoli, Rialto, Broadway, Lyric and the Forty-fourth Street, but no other picture house. The Garden and The Little are also excluded, because they are closed. An authentic list of picture houses in the metropolis has never been compiled, but a careful estimate of the number operating in the Metropolitan District (which includes the Jersey suburbs, Newark, Paterson, Passaic, Yonkers, Mt. Vernon and New Rochelle) in 1916 placed the figure at 1,400, but it is a safe bet that not over half of that number are now open. Figure on a total of 800 and you will not be far away.

J. R. G.—The highest tenor in the world is an Irishman—genial John O'Malley. He not only reaches high C, but goes two notes higher, and his voice, at the end, has the real masculine rattle in it, with not a trace of falsetto.

Terrell—You are wrong. Anne Russell did not appear in the leading role of The Thirteenth Chair when the play was first produced by Wm. Harris at the Forty-eighth Street Theater, New York City, November 20, 1916. Margaret Wycherly played the part of the old Irish medium.

Mrs. V. B. Hall (Hazel Elliott)—Please let me hear from you. I am in the 18th U. S. Coast Artillery, station at Richmond, Va., and expect to sail for France at an early date. I want to take up with you the matter of my insurance papers.—V. B. Hall.

TEA WITH THE LADIES

New York, Feb. 2.—Sergeant Mary McAllister, said to be the only regularly appointed noncommissioned child officer in the United States Army, arrived in New York Wednesday night with her mother on a train that was three hours late from Chicago.

"I thought it would be fun to be snowbound," she said next day at the Hotel Astor, where she is staying, "but being three hours late isn't fun at all. If you're snowbound you can get out and shovel, but if you're late you can't do anything at all—you're just late."

The seven-year-old Essanay star is a remarkably self-possessed young person. She greets her visitor with a slight courtesy that is delightfully quaint and, without a trace of self-consciousness, immediately begins to converse—really converse and not chatter. She began by telling how delighted she was to be in New York again.

"We used to live here, you know; I love New York. And the subways. In Chicago there is only the L trains. They have even taken off the buses and the L trains are so tiresome. But, of course, I want to get back to Chicago because father's business is there, and the studio is there"—as an afterthought—"Bo-Bo is there."

Bo-Bo is her toy Boston bull terrier which has appeared with his mistress in Essanay pictures, which helps her build snow houses and which impersonates famous stars, with the assistance of its young director.

"For Douglas Fairbanks I pull his lips way back and make him smile. I make him tilt his nose way up for Alice Brady. She has a pug nose, you know. So have I, but her's is more so than mine. Then for Clara Kimball Young I make his eyes big and for Petrova I pull his head around—so, and make him look—that way—you know the way Petrova looks.

"Bo-Bo is in my last picture, Sadie Went to Heaven. It's a comedy, you know. My name is Sadie, and I'm sweeping the sidewalks when a Sunday-school teacher tells me what a beautiful place heaven is, and says you can't go to heaven unless you go to Sunday-school. So I go into a laundry and get into a clothes basket and am taken up to the house of a rich woman, who has lots of dogs. The servants think I'm one of her new fads, and they give me a bath. I don't like the bath at all. (I do really.) And then the woman comes home and she decides I'd be a good companion for one of her pet dogs." The onetime Sadie laughed delightedly at the recollection.

"But then a wire terrier comes in and the director decided I wouldn't do. We had such lots of trouble getting that terrier. The director hunted all over Chicago, and at last got an ugly dog from a pound. I didn't like that dog. He looked sick, and I told the director I wouldn't have him. But the director said it was the best he could do, and he'd been to lots of trouble to get him.

"That was Saturday. The next day we were driving, when we saw just the dog I wanted. He was in the front seat of a Ford car, and we started to overtake the car. And the faster we went the faster the Ford driver went. I guess he thought we were police following him. But we overtook him, and said it was about the dog, and mother asked him if we could use the dog in pictures.

"He didn't know; he'd have to ask his wife. So the next day we telephoned to his house, and the woman said we might come over. We took her and the dog down to the studio, and the director said that was the dog we wanted. And how much do you think she wanted? Twenty dollars a week. For a dog. After that was arranged she said she couldn't leave him without a bond of one hundred dollars in the event that he might be injured or become sick. She said he was worth two hundred dollars to them.

"So father took her and the dog back to her home in Evanston. Afterwards the director-general sent for the dog and gave the bond, and we took the dog over to our house to keep while we were doing the picture. Well, do you know, that dog had fleas? We were afraid Bo-Bo would get them. We gave him a bath, and there were two hundred fleas in the tub when we had finished and fifty more in the brush we scrubbed him with. Two hundred and fifty fleas on one dog! But he was a darling dog. At first he wouldn't associate with Bo-Bo. Bo-Bo would run around him and bark, and he would just look superior."

Sergeant Mary has five weeks' vacation.

"I've been working rather hard, and I'm ahead of my schedule," she explained in her grown-up, matter-of-fact way. "And now I've five whole weeks to rest. I must be back in Chicago in ten days, tho, because of personal appearances."

Her appointment as a noncommissioned officer was made as a result of her work for the Red Cross drive. Besides selling subscriptions for the Red Cross and securing a large number of members she contributed a calf from which $51,000 was realized. A calf of gold indeed! The first time it was sold the little Essanay star was the auctioneer, and the sum of $750 was realized. Each time it was sold it was returned to the Red Cross and sold again until the amazing sum recorded above had been paid into the Red Cross coffers for it. The star's appointment as sergeant was then made in the regular manner by a captain of the United States Infantry, and Mary has a uniform with chevrons, which she wears on state occasions.

Bertha Craig McAllister is Sergeant McAllister's mother. She was an actress before her marriage. She has some sane theories about the bringing up of children, and Mary's individuality is never suppressed.

"I don't want her to be like me or her father," she says. "I want her to develop her own personality. So I let her flutter as she will. Sometimes she tells all her family secrets, but I think children should be allowed to be themselves."

The wonderful self-possession of her brown-eyed, golden-haired daughter is the best endorsement of the successful working out of her theories.

Hilda Spong has started a canteen at the workrooms of the Stage Women's War Relief at 366 Fifth avenue and the workers are no longer taking time to go out for luncheon. Donations of tea, coffee, bouillon cubes and biscuits are being asked from the shops, and the workers pay a nominal sum, which is turned into a canteen fund. A small corner of the workroom near the entrance has been curtained and the walls covered with oilcloth. Small shelves have been built and a sterno alcohol stove is used. Miss Christine Blessing has offered to come to the workrooms every day to superintend the preparation and serving of luncheon.

This is one of many new things that are under way. A New York branch of the S. W. W. R. has been organized with Crystal Herne, chairman, Katherine Emmett, vice-chairman, and Bijou Fernandez, treasurer. Daisy Humphreys and Lucille Watson are members of an advisory committee.

They will take charge of all the New York activities of the organization, and are planning to open rooms where sailors and soldiers may come and be entertained. Dancing will be arranged, and there will be eats, and men in the service will be invited to make themselves at home. The Dramatists' Club has offered its rooms in the Candler Building for meetings of the committee.

Ethel Clayton is entertaining her mother and brother from the Middle West at the Hotel Ansonia. They expect to remain here until Miss Clayton and her husband, Joseph Kaufman, go to Japan, early in March, for a few weeks before the star begins work with Paramount. They had planned to leave for Japan some time ago, but had difficulty in getting passports. Now Mr. Kaufman is in a hospital, where he was taken last Sunday.

Mary Pickford has secured the picture rights to Rich Man, Poor Man, to be adapted by George Broadhurst from Maximilian Foster's story. Miss Pickford has mastered the dances of the great god, Jazz, for some of the scenes of her new Artcraft picture, Amarilly of Clothes-line Alley. When she began work on the picture she was in doubt about whether or not she could act tough enough, but Marshall Neilan, her director, assured her she could do anything, and Mary succeeded in translating the seductive, undulating, wildly barbarous strains of the Jazz orchestra into rhythmic motion so admirably that she says she has a lot to unlearn before trying to dance in polite society.

A French officer visited the workrooms of the Stage Women's War Relief Monday—altho it was workless day a number of the women of the stage were at the rooms working on sweaters and coats—and asked if he might get some sweaters for sailors of his ship, which convoys American troop ships, and which was due to sail at once. The stage women emptied the cupboards, and gave him twelve complete outfits of knitted garments, much to his delight.

PRESS & ADVANCE AGENTS

Punch Wheeler, the dean of press agents, blew into Cincinnati last week from his old home town, Evansville, Ind. Punch was on his way to Chicago to attend to some business matters. He will again be with the Yankee Robinson Circus.

Boys, the division of advertising of the Government Committee on Public Information is asking the support of newspapers for a "Smileage" campaign for American soldiers in camp.

As all press agents know "Smileage" books are the crux in a plan of entertainment in all cantonments and training camps in the United States. The leading chautauqua theaters and amusement interests have banded together to co-operate with the Government to furnish clean, wholesome entertainment in each training camp at absolute cost, ranging from five to twenty-five cents. Admission is gained by Smileage coupons, which are issued in booklets of twenty for $1 and 100 for $5. The proceeds go to maintain the entertainments. The entire proposition is without cost to anyone.

Newspapers are asked to co-operate by donating space to advertise the sale of Smileage books, which can thus be sent to the soldiers free of cost to them, or else plans are offered by which the space can be sold to advertisers, like it was in the Liberty Loan, War Stamps and Red Cross campaigns.

Do your bit by helping push the "Smileage" book campaign along with the papers you call on.

The natives of Columbus, O., did not know they had such an illustrious citizen in their midst until they viewed the smiling countenance of Stanley "Grief" Dawson in a recent issue of The Billboard. Some of the boys of the Ringling Circus, who are wintering in Chicago, were unkind enough to mention the fact that Stanley must have been looking over one of Ollie Webb's famous steaks when the picture was snapped.

Mike Coyne is covering Florida ahead of The Birth of a Nation. Dannie Shea is back.

Among the out-of-town managers visiting the Seattle theatrical mart recently were: Joe St. Peter, of the Rose Theater, Everett; Wm. Southern, Grand, Bellingham; Fred Mercy, Empire, Yakima, and other houses, North Yakima; Phil Levy, Anaconda Amusement Company, Butte, and Mose Oppenheimer, of Spokane.

Eddie Cort, Northwestern representative of John Cort, with offices in the Wilkes Theater Building, Seattle, has gone to Denver to manage Cort's Johnnie, Get Your Gun Company. Jim Cooke, Wilkes Theater publicist, will handle the business of the Northwestern Theatrical Association for the present, according to Mr. Cort.

James "Ernest" Winfield is rehearsing his famous song, The Five-Fifteen, so that he may render same at the dinner which Stanley Dawson is to give at the Jackson Apartments on his arrival in Chicago.

Eddie Boone has left the West and is now manager of the Marcella Company which is playing an engagement at the Featherston Theater, Third avenue, New York.

Charlie McClintock recently declared himself in London, Ont., as "the world's greatest agent" during an argument with the "genial" (?) manager of a local theater. Good work. Keep it up, Charles.

SCRAPS FROM NOO ORLEANS

Amusementless day, difficulties in railroading, indifferent business and all other aches or pains that a theatrical agent or manager is heir to is forgotten when New Orleans is reached and they can go to the races, taste real cooking and have a gin fizz or two.

A glance in the grand stand at the race track recently revealed the presence of Howard Gale, Oscar Hodge, Eddie Arlington, H. Wayne Pierson, Hess Superior and almost the entire cast of the Neil O'Brien Minstrels.

Eddie Arlington is here with his stable. St. Leandore, one of his most consistent winners, is entered in the big Memorial Handicap. Another of his horses, Kilmer, suffered a few days ago when the jockey allowed the barrier to interfere with his start. Kilmer, by the way, was the favorite among the theatrical bettors.

The Neil O'Brien Minstrels is making the sixth tour of the country and from reports is making theatrical history. One of the banner weeks has just been completed at the Tulane.

Howard Gale is representing Jimmie Grainger in this territory, handling The Warrior and Mother. Both have been booked for a run at one of the leading picture theaters.

Somehow or another the lobby of the Gruenwald does not look the same without Punch Wheeler. The regulars are all wondering why New Orleans has been neglected this winter, especially as "beatless days" have not been in order.

Dan Webster, rated A-1 by all agents when he was advertising agent of the Atlanta Theater, has, until recently, been managing two Montgomery theaters. He has transferred his activities to Cincinnati, and no doubt by this time is safely installed into membership in the Cuvier Press Club.

Everywoman, with Frank Cruickshank ahead, ably assisted by Hess Superior, is being billed almost as strong as the Liberty Loan, and the answer is, enormous business. Arthur Phinney is watching the front door, practicing up for his trip thru a certain part of Texas where they don't exactly use a gun, but get it anyway if the company manager doesn't sit a "horse."

Watch out, agents! Be careful how rough you talk to a plant owner when you are arranging for your billposting. During the meeting of the association in New Orleans several of the members staged an impromptu boxing

J. H. ESCHMAN CIRCUS SOLD UNDER HAMMER

Lively Bidding Marks Sale in Kansas City — About 500 People Present Despite Cold Weather

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 2.—Viewed from every angle the sale of the J. H. Eschman Railway Circus was the biggest event ever held in Kansas City, in point of attendance, enthusiasm, bidding and successful results. In the first two items it was second only in importance to the annual Chicago banquet of the showmen. It was a bitter cold day, and it is estimated there were 500 people on the lot not seeming to mind the cold if they got what they came for—some fine stuff at a bargain. There were showmen from all branches of the profession and from all sections of the country, as well as local men.

The sale took place Wednesday at the winter quarters of the show, located at 1600 Kelmette avenue. It started at ten o'clock in the morning, and it was almost six o'clock before entirely completed. Doc Sayre was the auctioneer, and his voice was good and clear during the entire time. Everything "went big."

The sale was in capable charge of Frank A. Robbins, who put in a busy day the 30th and Twenty-five years ago Mr. Wisner was associated with Mr. Castello in the circus business.

SELLS-FLOTO CIRCUS

Denver, Col., Feb. 2.—When the Sells-Floto Circus takes to the road this season Prof. C. L. Brown, who has the contract for the band again this year, writes The Billboard correspondent that he will have one of the very best musical organizations that has ever traveled under the white tops. Prof. Brown is now en route at the head of Brown's Saxophone Six, doing vaudeville and the organization is "taking" on big time.

"Shanty" (G. W. Embleton), the superintendent of lights, has at last been located. He is spending the winter in Chicago, and wants his friends to know that he is still on earth and enjoying perfect health, and that he expects to be under the big tops again this season with a bigger and brighter light than ever. Edward Elliott, who was on the shows a part of last season, has landed a good position at the Okiah Theater, the largest playhouse in Bartlesville, Ok. He is the only one-handed trap drummer seen in the States and writes that he has a real line of instruments weighing almost 2,300 pounds.

The Loretta Twins, who were a feature with the circus last season, are now in vaudeville, and are headliners at the Empress Theater this week. Their home is in Denver.

Joseph (Happy) Brandon has returned to Denver after spending several weeks in Kansas City, Chicago and other cities of the Midwest. "Happy" is getting his forces of "butchers" together again, and if he does not go out with Uncle Sam's troops he will again superintend the sales of the big goobers, red lemonade and popcorn.

Myer Schlom has developed into a real up-to-date purchaser of canines since coming into winter quarters and scarcely a week has passed this year but that he has added two or three new dogs to the bunch to be taken out with the shows, and he has made some good buys. But the boys at winter quarters who are all friends of Schlom have just happened to name each "hound" Jervis, and this has caused considerable fun for some of the spectators at training quarters. Every time the trainer wants one of them to go thru an act he calls "Jervis" and at least half a dozen of the canine performers immediately rush to him. He is some busy in an attempt to make them respond to other names.

A little bit of circus gossip brings the information that George Roddy, S-F. advance car manager last season, may not be with the Sells-Floto people this season. It is said he may go with the No. 2 B. & B. car. Fred E. Morrison, auditor of tickets on the main entrance of the big top for several seasons, says he is busy shoveling snow at his home in Kansas City, and that he is all O. K., with the exception of his annual winter cold. He says he had as his guest a few days ago "Homie" McElroy, one of the 24-hour men last season. He reports Mr. McElroy as enjoying his winter's vacation immensely.—EDDIE BECK.

"DOC" FOSTER'S NEW JOB

Chicago, Feb. 2.—"Doc" Foster, lecturer and side-showman, who was assistant manager of the Sells-Floto side-shows the past season, is now filling a position in a similar capacity in Chicago, only in a somewhat different line of business. "Doc" is assistant to Manager Dan Reed, of the St. Francis Hotel, at Twenty-second and Wabash. "Doc" and Reed are both showmen with a wide acquaintance in the show world, Reed having been associated with the legit. for many seasons and "Doc" an old-timer in the outdoor show business. "Doc" will be glad to hear from any and all of his old friends.

FRANK ROBBINS WRITES

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 24, 1918.

Editor The Billboard,
Cincinnati, O.

Dear Sir—I do not know whether or not anything new can be said in relation to the railroad situation, but one or two facts may have escaped notice.

One of the larger railroad systems in the East received more than one hundred thousand dollars from out-of-door shows for transportation in 1916, and the dining car service cost them about the same sum. As this railroad mentioned is one of the best it is safe to assume that all railroads fare the same. It requires more motive power to haul dining cars than all of the outdoor shows combined (and if anything is a nonessential the dining car service is), and no one would suffer in the least if they were discontinued for the period of the war. The employees would be needed for additional service at the dining stations.

Why would it not be better to omit service that COSTS the railroads millions of dollars annually in preference to one that PAYS them millions of dollars annually, and, in addition, pays in war tax to the Government millions of dollars each year?

In 1917 there were seventeen shows outside of carnivals that required special movies. Five of those have gone out of business. The carnivals move only once a week and require very little motive power. In fact, the amount of motive power required to haul all shows bears about the same ratio to the total amount as the food for canary birds does to all of the grain raised.

Sincerely yours,
FRANK A. ROBBINS.

50 CENTS FOR MEALS

George C. Moyer, general agent of the John Robinson Circus, announces that the advertising men of the Robinson Ten Big the coming season will be allowed 50c for meals. The international president of the Billposters and Billers of the United States and Canada has been notified accordingly.

PARTELLO AT SHREVEPORT

Dr. E. Partello, physician of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus, is in Shreveport, La., this winter. He is at the Charity Hospital, where he has charge of four wards and is doing all the emergency surgery that comes in. Partello will be in Shreveport till the H.-W. Show opens, and will gladly give attention to any showfolk on the sick list, either in Shreveport or passing thru.

B. & B. SHOW DOGS DIE

According to a report from Bridgeport, Conn., eighteen or more valuable performing dogs, which have been featured with the Barnum & Bailey Show for the past three seasons, died at the quarters the early part of last week. The animals were owned jointly by Elmer S. Wells, Ella Bradna, Fred Derrick and Bruce Hines. Joseph J. Pfau, hostler, employed at the quarters, was placed under arrest, and is held in heavy bail pending an inquiry. Pfau, it is charged, acted on his own initiative and went in what is known as the Pet Stock Department, looked the dogs over and decided they were acting sluggishly. Without consulting the trainers he is said to have taken from his own quarters a strong medicine usually given to horses and administered it to the dogs. Ten of the dogs died within an hour, and eight or more during the night.

TAYLOR SIGNS UP

Robert Taylor has signed up as general agent of the Mighty Haag Shows, and will be in Shreveport, La., the winter quarters of the circus, in a few days to begin his duties.

UNDER THE MARQUEE

By CIRCUS SOLLY

The Showmen's League of America is in hopes that John Ringling will occupy a seat at the speakers' table on the occasion of its banquet and ball at Chicago, February 20. A special invitation is on its way to Elysian Palms, Mr. Ringling's beautiful winter residence at Sarasota, Fla., and great pressure is being brought to bear upon him thru other sources.

William (Bill) Todd got his first railroad move for nothing the other day, but he doesn't want another one like it, we are sure. It seems "Bill's" car was on a side track "somewhere in North Carolina," and suddenly a terrific windstorm made its appearance. The wind was of such strength that it set the car in motion. "Bill" was sitting in his stateroom at the time, and was surprised as he was never surprised before. After realizing what had happened he and a number of his boys got busy and brought the car to a stop a short distance from an open draw bridge.

Governor and Mrs. John F. Robinson gave a Dutch lunch at their home in Ft. Dallas Park, Miami, Fla., one recent Monday night in honor of Calvin Van Hamm, who is connected with The New York American, and his wife and daughter. Among those at the dinner besides the host and hostess and the Van Hamms were Mr. and Mrs. John R. Havlin, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Stevens and Gil Robinson.

Lala Coolah has gone to Los Angeles, where he says coal is not a necessity and overcoats can be kept in hock all the time. "I have started a new industry," says Lala, "one that comes nearest to solving the labor problem of circuses. I am buying up all the orang-outangs that come in on the ships to San Francisco. I have a standing offer to purchase the animals direct from Robinson Bros., the importers and dealers at Frisco. The real value of these animals does not lie in the fact that they are rare, but from the fact that they are all round workers on canvas, can drive stakes, tie half hitches and give pointers on putting up jacks and stringers. So you see in my orang-outang show which I am putting out this season I will not need any roughnecks. My only fear is that they will be drafted."

H. Miesner, 1022 Michigan avenue, Bay City, Mich., would appreciate circus pictures of any kind with which to decorate his office. He is a great lover of the circus.

J. S. Robertson will have the management of the side-show with LaTena's Three-Ring Circus.

Fred Egner, clown of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus, is spending the winter at his home in Brazil, Ind.

Joe Ringling will be first assistant to Harry Sells on the canvas of the John Robinson Shows.

It is said that Captain John Hoffman, "the Animal King," will soon be connected with the Selig Motion Picture Company. He is managing several picture theaters in Baltimore, Md., this winter.

Howard S. Mayes enlisted as a cook in the U. S. Army October 5, and is now being made first-class mess sergeant in the Quartermaster Corps. His present address is care Cooks & Bakers, Camp Custer, Mich.

Billy Wallett, we hear, is working in a shoe store as sales clerk in Baltimore, Md., and doing fine. James Carroll and Charlie Burton are also said to be working in Baltimore.

Dode Fisk, the late circus owner, has a traveling dance orchestra on the road in Wisconsin. His home is at Wonewoc, Wis.

Joe Skerbeck, of the famous Skerbeck Family of acrobats, is at Dorchester, Wis., for the winter.

Dr. Ben Tanner, another old kinker, is at Colby, Wis.

L. E. McDonald, the oldtime billposter, has opened a first-class cafe at Batesville, Ark., known as Mack's Cafe. He invites all the show folk going thru the big town to make the cafe their stopping place. He has private dining rooms, and Old Billyboy can always be found on file.

George Buskirk, of the ticket department of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus, is acting in the capacity of day clerk at Terre Haute (Ind.) House.

Joe Spissell, a clown with the Barnum Show last season, did not enter vaudeville after the circus closed, but is working at his trade of machinist in a big munition factory in Hartford, Conn., his home town. Joe says it is great to be back with the family, but that show fever is still evident.

Frank S. Lewis will be in charge of the side-show with Hulburd's Shows.

Charles Eckel, circus trouper, was seriously cut when in a dispute at Litchfield, Ill., last week. His father, Adam Eckel, of Newport, Ky., was sent for.

"Bill" Snyder, keeper of the wild and other animals at Central Park, New York, since 1888, has applied to the city for retirement. Snyder got the animal habit when he joined the Barnum & Bailey Show at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., in 1880. He is said to have been with Jumbo when the monster elephant was billed to Canada.

Joe Greer, known as Silver Joe, rough rider, last season with the Coop & Lent, is at Bloomington, Wis., his home.

The belated news of the death of Edward Pettingill has just reached us. Mr. Pettingill passed away about four months ago at Rockford, Ill. He started out with Burr Robbins' Wagon Show when a boy as a cornet player, and he followed the white tops all of his life, generally holding responsible positions, being agent or 24-hour man most of the time. His last engagement was with the Campbell Circus out of Drummond, Ok.

THE BROOKE PLAN

Chicago, Feb. 2.—How to move outdoor amusement companies this season in view of the freight embargoes and general congestion has become a question of vital importance to show owners. A few have turned to the automobile truck with fair promise of satisfactory results.

A proposal that will revolutionize transportation problems of showmen and at the same time effect a marked economy is now brought forward in the Brooke Motor Equipment.

This plan will enable owners to meet the initial outlay thru the sale of work horses, wagons and railroad rolling stock and the savings of fares for one season. The consequent saving of salaries, feed and transportation of these items will be a considerable sum.

Another decided advantage is the saving of time in the haul to and from the yards and loading and unloading. An outfit can be far on the way to the next stand in the time thus saved. As a natural result of this saving it will not be necessary to miss a show or "flunk" on a parade because of faulty railroad connection.

Equally important perhaps will be the saving of nerve force and energy consumed by worry and uncertainty on the part of owners and managers. The show moving with the Brooke plan of equipment is independent and responsible only to commonwealths and communities thru which they move for the use of the public highways.

The highway commissions welcome the idea as contributory to the good roads movement.

The Brooke Sales and Service station, of Chicago, developed the idea to a point where it has met the enthusiastic endorsement of showmen.

Frank E. Flinn, a familiar figure to many people in amusement circles, is associated with the firm, and has contributed his knowledge of showmen's problems in adopting the idea.

It has been suggested that instead of keeping a lot of stock in winter quarters at a great expense a part of this motor equipment can be put to work hauling during the winter season and thus earn a comfortable dividend on the investment.

The Brooke plan is equally adaptable to the problems of all shows, big or little, and in this time of high prices of feed and wages the saving suggested will merit investigation by any widewake and progressive showman.

SANTOS & ARTIGAS' CIRCUS

Both of the Santos & Artigas circuses in Cuba are doing a big business, according to a letter just received from Minnie Fisher, the original, who is with the No. 1 show. She speaks in great praise of the treatment received at the hands of these two Cuban showmen. Her letter follows.

"I am in Cuba on tour with Gran Circo Santos & Artigas, truly the Barnum & Bailey of Cuba. Messrs. Santos & Artigas are fine men, great managers and have two of the largest shows on the island. They know how to treat performers who do not misrepresent themselves, and make things just as pleasant for them as the condition of the island will allow. The Loretts and I are with the No. 1 show, managed by Mr. Artigas. No. 2 is managed by Mr. Santos, ably assisted by Frank Longbottom. Both shows are doing big business, and have some of the finest talent obtainable. The Hanneford Family of riders are alone well worth the price of admission. That is just one act of the many star acts from the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, not forgetting Mr. and Mrs. George Lorett and myself, from the John Robinson Show. Our acts are a big success, and are never taken from the program, and that is quite a compliment down here, as there are so many acts and the program is changed almost every night.

"This show closed its season in Havana January 6. We have now been on the road three weeks, traveling in twenty cars—a real American show, four stateroom sleeping cars—and we American performers are allowed the privilege of keeping house in our staterooms, as the most of us don't like the Cuban cooking. We all consider this a great favor from the management.

"Every contract will be up the last of February, but Mr. Artigas has asked me to remain until the last moment possible before opening the coming season with the Robinson Show, which, of course, I will do. I wish to state that performers could do no better than make a contract with these people, as your money is sure, accommodations the best on the island, and they are just and good men to work for. If you have the ability there is no limit to your salary. We had a most pleasant Christmas and New Year. The entire company was banqueted by the Hanneford Family, and to say we had a good time would be putting it mildly. We are having quite a bit of cold weather down here, and tho we are in the midst of sunshine and flowers we sleep under heavy blankets at night.

"We are now touring thru the sugar cane and tobacco districts, and the sugar and tobacco factories are running day and night. Labor is paid big prices. Cuba is advancing fast. I have been coming to this island for the past twenty years, and I realize the great improvements."

CUBA CRUTCHFIELD, OKLAHOMA COWBOY

FRED STONE
SAYS:

I consider Cuba Crutchfield the fastest rope spinner in the world. He has more tricks than any other cowboy and I have seen them all.

THOS. HEALY
SAYS:

I knew a good thing wnea I saw it, so I grabbed Cuba Crutchfield quick, as I think he is the greatest roper I ever saw, and so do the aadiences.

THE RUMOR has reached me that "Tex" McLeod, who is roping at one of the New York Cafes, takes exception to the above opinions as to my fancy roping ability. I know Mr. McLeod very well and have always considered him a good roper. BUT IF HE THINKS I AM NOT THE FASTEST FANCY ROPE SPINNER IN THE WORLD, and doubts Mr. Stone's and Mr. Healy's assertions that I have more tricks than one of them, I'll right here go on record and challenge "Tex" McLeod to MEET ME in OPEN COMPETITION in Fancy Roping. Contest to be held at any Charity Benefit in New York City and we will let the audience decide who is the real Fancy Roper.

CUBA CRUTCHFIELD at Thomas Healy's, New York, NOW.

Wild West Wisdom & Frontier Frivolity

THE CORRAL

By ROWDY WADDY

Mrs. Charles H. Tompkins (Mabel Hackney) writes from El Reno, Ok., where she and Colonel Tompkins are spending the winter: "Seeing the inquiry in The Billboard for the names of the Wild West performers with the Luella Forepaugh-Fish Shows, will say the names are as follows, as well as I remember them: Charles H. Tompkins, arena director; James Gabriel, assistant arena director; William Gabriel, Harry Knight, Billy Custer, Miles Walker, Oscar Thompson, Johnny Blocker, Billy Cameron, Shake Gillman, Frank Gillman, George Moss, Milton Dowker, William Cahoun, Mexican Joe Briones, Rocky Mountain Hank Walker, May Stewart, Linda Foster, Molly Halliday, Nola Satterfield, Helen Hobson, Lone Star May, Cortie Davis and Mabel Hackney."

Montana Jack Ray writes that he is working in an ammunition plant. He lit the fuse on the end of his pen and proceeded to blow things up as follows: "I see by your issue of January 12 where all of the boys want to know where I am and what I am doing. I am making ammunition for the U. S. Government. Don't you birds worry about me. Look me for next spring. Tell all the fancy ropers all about me. They all know I am the real world's champion cowboy fancy roper, having won my title at the Cowboys' Reunion held at Las Vegas, N. M., July 3-6, 1917. I can use more ropes at one time than four men. I can shake a rope with my back better than most of those ropers rope with their hands. Now, if any of you think I am kidding when I write this I will say that all mail addressed to me care Aetna Chemical Co., Oakdale, Pa., will reach me promptly. I'll have my picture in the Wild West Department of The Billboard about April 1, 1918, so all you fellows can see what I look like. Good luck to all."

V. R. writes from New York City: "I read your paper every week and like it very much. I would appreciate very much if you would publish in your next issue the following: Ken Maynard, Lillian Knight, Dixie Devere and Leslie Walters—Where are you all, and what are you doing? Is Leslie Walters married? Also is he known as Strawberry Red, or is that a different party? If so, is he married? Thanking you in advance." (We do not know whether Leslie Walters is married or not. Strawberry Red is another party altogether. His real name, according to the show pay roll, where he has been working, is Elmer Wall. Do not know whether he is married or not. Heard some rumors last summer to the effect that he was, but doubt it, according to the source of our knowledge.—Rowdy Waddy.)

From Holyoke, Mass., comes the following: "My Paleface Friend: I am a reader of The Billboard, and The Corral is my favorite column, but I notice in your paper where an unknown Indian claimed to be the original Joe Davis. He is mistaken. I am the real Indian Joe, known as the Boy Bandit. My real name is Na-bera-a-ta and for further information I refer anybody to Mr. E. B. Merritt, Office of Indian Affairs, at Washington, D. C. I have been on a few trips and know some of the real Western boys who have been on the range. I send my best regards to Tommy and Mildred Douglass, Benny Pete and all the rest of the bunch. I was discharged from the army thru the Office of Indian Affairs. Would like to hear from Pete White Cloud and all friends. Mail addressed to Indian Joe care the New York office of The Billboard, will reach me."

Two Bar 70 W. E. Hawks, Jr.—Drop a line with the news.

Jack McKay, trick and fancy rider and roper, and Slim Collins, bronk rider and roper, were visitors at The Billboard, Cincinnati, last week. McKay has been working for the Pere Marquette Railroad at Grand Rapids this winter, and was on his way to Dayton, O., where he will switch box cars for the B. & O. Collins expects to be in Cincinnati for a while. Both were with Harry Hill's Wild West during the season of 1916.

The mail from the St. Louis Stock Yards brings the following: "The boys who are wintering here are Ray Quick, Freddie Burns, Benny Pete, Tommie Peek, Will Morris, Johnny Roberts, Hudson Mason, Whitey Robbins, Joe Pickett, Eddie Lawler and Buck Yarbough. The inspections are not working very steady, as the weather is so bad they can't ship the horses in here. Quite a number of hands have been going thru with Government horses, among them Bloody Georges, Montana Earl and a few others. Benny Pete is able to go to work again. Buck Yarbough has been figuring with the Red Cross people to put on a big Wild West show at the Coliseum here as soon as the weather permits. Henry Boggs and Jimmy Hogue are riding for the British in Des Moines. Nearly all the boys here have got their questionnaires, but we don't know as yet just when we will have to go. We would like to hear, thru The Billboard, from all the cowpunchers who are in the service of Uncle Sam. Wild Horse Charley is farming at Amarillo, Tex. Ike Lewis—You had better get your clown suit washed up for spring, for competition is going to be very strong against you. We hear that Joe Lewis has been rehearsing all winter. Freddie Burns wants to know if Leonard Stroud will be with Pawnee Bill's Wild West again next season. Bertha Deballa of Boyd, Mont.—Are you going with any show next spring? Fred Jones—Have you tried to ride any more of those Texas Wild Bill horses? Shorty Kelso—We see you quite often on the screen. Wish you and all the boys down there the best of luck. Pat Long—We would like to hear from you. Jack VanVreo—Why did you leave so suddenly? We would all like to hear from you. Ray Quick would appreciate a few lines from Frankie Willis and wife. The original California Frank Sebram has a couple of real bucking horses for sale. He and Mexican Charlie are still hopping around the yards. They are going to build a barn larger than ever to replace the one which burned. We would like to hear from all the boys. Rowdy Waddy and the Wild West news is quite popular around the yards. Best wishes to all the bunch." (Signed) The Mavericks.

In a recent conversation regarding the high cost of living in Chicago Will Rogers, the roper, remarked: "Why they tell me that back in New York now you find a lariat rope in your coffee at most any of the restaurants." Bill made no mention of the present market price of gum.

A letter to hand, signed Bill Miller, horse thief with Pawnee Bill's show at Coney Island,

CRUTCHFIELD'S CHALLENGE

Would Meet Tex McLeod for Fancy Roping Supremacy

New York, Feb. 2.—Cuba Crutchfield, the fancy roper, endorsed by Fred Stone as the greatest of all fancy rope spinners, who has made such a success in Thomas Healy's Golden Glades and who has received much publicity therefrom, feels that there are a few other ropers, Tex McLeod for one, who seem to doubt his (Crutchfield's) standing as the world's greatest fancy roper. He therefore has issued a challenge to meet him for roping supremacy in New York for any charitable benefit.

Mr. Crutchfield, who is a cousin of Will Rogers, is a very unassuming, studiously sort of a chap, with the open hail fellow well met personality of the Oklahoma plains, and has made a host of friends during his engagement at Healy's Golden Glades in New York, and a contest between him and any other roper would undoubtedly meet something new for the blase New Yorkers.

FRONTIER DAYS CONTEST

Staged by Tex Austin at Wichita, Kan., a Success

With excellent weather prevailing until the last day and while the mercury dropped so far on the last evening that few people ventured out, yet Tex Austin's Midwinter Championship Frontier Days Contest went over in great shape at Wichita, Kan., January 23, 24, 25 and 26. There were only about thirty-five contestants, but these were of the all-round variety and put on a great show. Powder Face, Tom Eckerd and Jack Garrett were on hand from Camp Funston, and did good work, while Cliff King came up from Ft. Sill, and there were several other hands who were wearing the khaki.

Leonard Stroud instantly became a favorite with the audiences. He was entered in nearly every event, and handled everything that he took hold of in a very classy way. It is the opinion of many that Stroud is probably the best all round cowboy in the world. Tommy Douglas did excellent clown work, and kept the audience in a good humor all the time. Fog Horn Clancy did the announcing, while Sam J. Garrett assisted Mr. Austin in handling the arena. Mr. Austin finally decided on a few lady exhibition rides.

Col. B. B. Pearson (Idaho Bill) furnished the bucking horses for the contest, while many of the saddle horses and the steers, which were used for riding and bulldogging, were shipped in from the Keen Ranch at Estancia. Clay Keen, as he is familiarly known by the boys, has some of the best bucking and bulldogging steers that have been seen around the contests.

Many of the contestants, in fact, nearly all of them, deserve great credit for the manner in which they took hold of the work of helping with the show.

Following are the results of the finals: Goat roping, Allen Holder, first. Bulldogging, Tom Henderson, first; Guy Schultz, second; Curly Griffith, third. Broncho riding, Bryan Roach, first; Montana Earl, second; Tommy Douglas, third. Steer riding, Curly Griffith, first; Jack Garrett, second. Trick and fancy roping, Sam J. Garrett, first; Leonard Stroud, second; Hank Linton, third. Trick and fancy riding, Leonard Stroud, first; Sam J. Garrett, second; Tommy Douglas, third.

Among other contestants either entered or attending the show were: B. L. Keener, Floyd Schultz, Rufus Rollen, Hank Linton, Fred Beeson, Montana Earl, Claude Sawyer, Walter Schultz, Mayme Stroud, Maude Tarr, Mildred Douglas, Tootie Griffith, Bert Singer, C. J. Fuller, Bill Gillispie, George Weir, Henry Grammer, Frank Robbins, W. H. Pace, Dora Kane, Ben Preston, Aubrey Merriman, Bob Boyer and R. R. Doubleday, contest photographer, of Miles City, Mont.

Fog Horn Clancy, who had charge of the publicity, made a whirlwind finish of the press thruout the State.

Mr. Austin accomplished some surprising results with the railroads in the matter of handling the shipment of stock—results which would make a few of the big circus men anxious for his services if the details were made known.

ZELNICKER'S NEW OFFICES

St. Louis, Feb. 2.—The Walter A. Zelnicker Supply Company of this city has just established permanent offices at Minneapolis, Minn., 607 Plymouth Building, to serve the North Central and Canadian trade. Richard K. Paul, formerly St. Louis and Southwestern representative of the Davenport Locomotive Works and for two years manager of the Zelnicker Company's Equipment Department, is in charge. He is especially qualified to handle inquiries on rails, locomotives, cars, machinery, piling, tanks, etc., in his district. Incidentally the Zelnicker Company has just issued Bulletin No. 234, which is free to the trade.

Do you own "stock" in the Government? No? Buy a thrift stamp. Buy another one. Buy several of them. Five Dollars for Four Dollars and Twelve Cents (if bought in January 1918).

Skating News

McLEAN AGAIN WINS

Associated Press dispatches from St. Paul, Minn., under date of January 27, were to the effect that Bobby McLean, world's champion skater, defeated Oscar Mathiesen on that date in the 220-yard dash and the two-mile race, dropping the mile race. His time in the two-mile race, 5:38 1-5, was 18 2-5 seconds faster than his mark in Chicago recently, and his time in the 220-yard dash, 20 seconds, was 1-5 second better than his Chicago record. Mathiesen won the mile event, finishing fifteen yards ahead of McLean. His time was 2:40, 8 3-5 seconds slower than McLean's time in Chicago.

On January 28 the races between McLean and Mathiesen at St. Paul ended in a tie, McLean winning the 440-yard dash in 0:38 and Mathiesen the half mile in 1:17, when McLean fell, wrenching his knee. McLean was unable to enter the three-mile race, which was forfeited to Mathiesen.

MISS CARLISLE ILL

Lora Jean Carlisle, popular exhibition ice skater, who has been teaming with Bill Winslow for several months and who has been taking the honors at Healy's Golden Glades, New York City, was unfortunate in getting a slight attack of blood poisoning, necessitating her being confined to her bed for a few days.

During Miss Carlisle's forced layoff the Naceses, who have been working during the daylight sessions at the Hotel Biltmore, New York, have been filling in at Healy's during the evening, their double taking the place of Winslow and Carlisle's act and a single in place of Miss Carlisle's single. Bill Winslow is still doing the comedy with Fan Steele.

Hain Kostoff is no longer connected with the exhibition staff at Healy's.

BERKHIMER WANTS RACES

The Billboard is in receipt of the following letter from Rollie Berkhimer, professional speed roller skater, whose permanent address is 2090 Tuller street, Columbus, O.: "Will you please publish in your columns that I am open to meet any skater in the world at any distance, provided suitable purses can be arranged. During the past five years I have raced every professional skater of note at the Smith Rink, this city, and we are still in the market for professional racers of reputation, whose terms are reasonable—the main point being that I don't feel much like booking races in here and not getting return engagements at the rink which these skaters represent. My terms are reasonable and I will race anybody or anything that goes on wheels. Can furnish all kinds of clippings and photos of previous advertising. I will be very much pleased to hear from any rink manager who is desirous of booking races, and for the benefit of the smaller towns whose racers are not of the highest caliber I will give any kind of a reasonable handicap that the manager sees fit, my guarantee specifically being at all times a good race."

FLETCHER DEFEATS GEREW

News from Rochester concerning the races held at the Stratford Roller Rink, January 24, is to the effect that Charles Fletcher, the Cincinnati speeder, was far faster than anticipated in his race against Chester Gerew. Taking the lead Fletcher soon distanced his opponent and lapped him. It was a great exhibition on the part of the Ohioan, and something which no other skater in Rochester has done to his opponent, Chester Gerew. The previous week Fletcher lost to Sombke, who was defeated by Gerew. Sombke will be rematched with Gerew and possibly will be given another opportunity to regain his lost laurels from Fletcher. The time for the race was 5:28.

RINK INSURANCE

During the past week the skating editor of The Billboard has received two inquiries relative to insurance of skating rinks—both as to liability and fire.

One of the queries is relative to liability insurance, the proprietor stating that he is anxious to take out some form of insurance which will protect him in case of and accident happening to rink employees or patrons. With regard to the latter all tickets of admission bear the following inscription on the reverse side: "The purchaser of this ticket agrees not to hold the owners responsible for accidents." Does any rink manager know of an insurance company writing liability insurance for skating rinks?

Another manager, who operates a portable rink, writes in to ask if there is any company writing insurance on portables. We presume he means fire insurance.

The expressions of rink managers on this question will be given space in the skating section if sent in to the skating editor.

D'VORAK AT OSWEGO

Adelaide D'Vorak played a return date at Oswego, N. Y., week of January 21, and the large crowd attending proved that she is a prime favorite there. Her new "futurist" costume created quite a sensation. As an innovation on Friday night Miss D'Vorak gave a special team exhibition with Manager Shellie Charles, which thoroly pleased the large crowd of fans. While in Oswego Miss D'Vorak was presented with flowers on two different occasions. Last week she was filling her third engagement at Watertown, N. Y.

YOUNG CAREY WINS

Malcolm Carey, the fourteen-year-old son of veteran Jesse Carey, took first place in a juvenile race at the Music Hall Rink, Cincinnati, last week and has since been proudly displaying his first medal.

KALTEUX VISITS ST. PAUL

While on a business trip thru the Northwest recently Frank Kalteux, secretary of the Western Skating Association, visited the Hippodrome Rink in St. Paul, Minn., and while there was royally treated by Dale Brooks, part owner and manager of the rink. Secretary Kalteux says: "Preparations were being made to hold the professional races between Norval Baptie and Oscar Mathiesen and from speaking to members of the Hippodrome Skating Club I found that interest was running high in the coming races, which at this writing terminated somewhat abruptly in a disappointment to many followers of the game. At the Hipp. there is in existence one of the finest and best conducted skating clubs I ever had the pleasure of coming in contact with; comfortably furnished rooms, athletic equipment, private lockers for members, private wardrobe, easy chairs and everything to make the place homelike."

McWHIRTER JOINS ARMY

Roy McWhirter, for the last six years one of Chicago's best ice racers, left last week for California to join the aviation corps of the regular army. McWhirter this year, in his three weeks' racing, was looked upon as the coming international champion, for in number of points scored for the first month's racing he was in the lead.

SILVER SKATES DERBY

Ice skaters are being offered an unusual opportunity to compete for a prize valued in the neighborhood of $100 Sunday, February 10, when The Chicago Tribune holds its second annual Silver Skates Derby. This event last year, the first event of its kind in this country, drew over one hundred entries and this year's event promises to set a new mark for competition.

Every amateur skater from any part of the country is eligible to compete in these races, which will be held in qualifying heats, semifinal, and eight skaters in the final. With such a field it will be necessary to run about ten heats with two therein to qualify for the semi-final and finally eight of the skaters to try for the silver skates for first place, with bronze and nickel skates to second and third winners.

Skaters desiring to compete can send in their entry to Walter Eckersall, Tribune Building, Chicago—the only requirement being that they must be registered with the Western Skating Association.

AMATEUR OR PROFESSIONAL

Le Roy A. Drake and John L. Vogler, of Rochester, N. Y., both beginners in the racing game, seemed to have made a mistake so often made by many amateurs just coming to the front in the skating game. Drake and his partner, thru their letters to the secretary of W. S. A., competed against Art Launey and Jack Woodworth, both professionals, in a handicap race and now are seeking information from the association asking what their status is. Ordinarily an act of this kind puts the stamp of professionalism on a skater, but it seems that these youngsters were asked to compete in an event for the purpose of stirring a little interest to an evening's performance. Neither appear to have ever won a prize and evidence is now being collected by the W. S. A. to determine how the matter may be settled.

AMATEUR SKATER DIES

Jack McCulloch, twenty years ago one of the most famous of the amateur speed skaters and amateur champion of his day, died at his home in St. Paul, Minn., January 26. In addition to his exploits on skates he was at one time champion bicycle rider of Canada. He was a prominent member of the Hippodrome Skating Club. He had been a resident of St. Paul for the last fifteen years.

RINK NOTES

Bonnie Lewis (Cincinnati's talented exhibition skater) is visiting Mrs. Billy Rohlman at Piqua, O. Miss Lewis and Mrs. Rohlman were formerly members of the Roy Harrah Troupe of skaters. Rumor has it that Mrs. Rohlman will shortly take out something new in the way of a skating act. The dopester says E. M. Mooar is framing the act.

Jonas Riggin continues to do a good business at his rink in Vandergrift, Pa., and also is packing them in at his portable in Grafton, W. Va. Baby Margaret Chapman was the feature attraction for a three-night engagement at the Vandergrift rink recently.

After twelve weeks' good business at Douglas, Kan., William Kinkaid has opened his portable rink at Eureka, Kan. Manager Kinkaid has been on the road with a portable for the past nine years and is still going strong.

Harry Smith, who is managing a roller skating rink at Richwood, W. Va., and whose address is P. O. Box 585, that city, is anxious to get in touch with Baby Margaret Chapman and Adelaide D'Vorak.

The skating bees around Healy's, New York, let up a howl when Fuel Director Garfield's closing order went into effect—not because they disliked a vacation, but because of the deduction of one day's pay.

Billy Carpenter has become quite proficient in the handling of a rifle at Camp Devens, Ayer, Mass., and is only waiting for a chance to get a bead on the Kaiser.

James Dupree, exhibition skater, writes from New Orleans, La., that he has fully recovered from his recent accident and is now filling engagements.

PENNSYLVANIA SECRETARIES HOLD MEETING AT PITTSBURG

Racing Game One of Chief Subjects Taken Up—A. P. Sandles, of Ohio, Makes Interesting Address—Will Reconvene This Month in Philadelphia

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 2.—Declaring that fakers should be eliminated, and that breeders of trotters should be given more encouragement proved to be salient points discussed at a meeting of the Pennsylvania Association of County Fairs, which was held here in the parlors of the Seventh Avenue Hotel all day January 29.

Unless the breeders of trotters and pacers are given more encouragement by the owners of State fairs and racing men the turf game will be given a great setback was the opinion of the representatives of the different associations represented here. The session here was the fifth annual meeting of the association, which is composed of associations in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia.

A plan that is now being discussed by many members of the association is that the breeder of a race horse, after he has sold his horse to a racer, and the horse has been entered or listed as a trotter or pacer, be given a small per cent of the gross earnings of the horse he bred during the time the horse is entered as a purse entry. This plan, according to the members of the association, would not encourage the breeder in keeping to the racing game, but would get others to go into horse breeding and keep the turf game very much alive and promote additional interest among breeders and others who may not be at the moment classed as breeders. The number of matured horses turned out during the last two or three years has fallen off to an alarming degree, and unless a remedy is found to check this remarkable decrease the fair business will be going backward instead of marching along the paths of progress.

After several sharp discussions between the members of the different associations as to the amalgamation of the American Trotting Association, the National Trotting Association and the American Trotting Register Association the following resolution was offered:

"Resolved, That the members of the Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs, after hearing from harness horse owners, breeders and all interested parties in attendance at this association meeting, and after discussing the matter thoroly in executive session, are unanimously of the opinion that the interest of the harness horse breeder, owner, driver and racing association, would be best served by having but one governing body. We earnestly advocate an amalgamation along such lines of the American Trotting Association, The National Association and the American Trotting Register Association, and hereby pledge our support in carrying out this plan."

The question of curtailing the racing game this year, due solely on account of the war, was another issue that was discussed at considerable length. The point was decided favorably however, when W. N. Eagleston, of Washington, Pa., offered a resolution urging the different members of the association to continue holding the annual fairs and races which form a part of the county fairs. This resolution was adopted unanimously, and this means that the different fairs aligned with the association meeting here will continue racing this year on a larger and more improved scale than ever before.

A. P. Sandles, of the Ohio State Fair Association, of Columbus, O., pointed out that both France and England had made a great mistake in curtailing the fair and racing business during 1916 and 1917, and that unless a committee is appointed soon and sent to Washington to have a conference with Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo the same fate may befall the fairs of the United States this year. Mr. Sandles urged the association to guard against mistakes, and to act with haste, but with absolute reason.

Indiana County Agricultural Society, Beaver County Agricultural Association, Clearfield County Agricultural Society, Clarion County Fair Association, Dawson Fair Association, Imperial Fair Association, Greene County Agricultural and Manufacturing Society, Kiski Agricultural and Driving Association, Meyersdale Fair and Racing Association, Punxsutawney Land and Fair Association, West Virginia State Fair Association, Waynesburg Fair and Agricultural Association, Union Agricultural Association of Burgettstown, Pa.; Butler (Pa.) Driving Park Association, Columbus (O.) Agricultural Association, Mercer County Agricultural Association, Warren Agricultural Association, Washington (Pa.) Fair Association.

The following dates for the fall fairs and races were worked out and agreed upon: Apollo, Pa., the week beginning August 7; Kittanning, Pa., week August 13; Butler, Pa., week August 20; Brookville, Pa., week August 27; Indiana, Pa., week September 3; Altoona and Punxsutawney, both towns beginning the week of September 10; Meyersdale, Pa., week September 17; Clarion, Pa., week September 24.

Races will be made a feature at all of these Western Pennsylvania fairs. Special attractions are also to be arranged for. The latter part of the Wednesday afternoon session was exclusively executive.

Following the executive session, announcement was made that the Coal, Oil & Iron Racing Circuit has adopted a resolution similar to

JOE CURTIS

On Saturday morning, January 12, Joe Curtis sat before the camera for the first time in twelve years, and the above is the result. This is Mr. Curtis' fourth year as secretary of the Chattanooga District Fair. Previous to that time he was a newspaper reporter and press agent, serving one year with the Georgia State Fair under Harry C. Robert (this was in 1911), and in 1907 he was press agent for the Jamestown Exposition at Norfolk. He also worked for Harry Tammen on The Denver Post for some time. Mr. Curtis last year was elected secretary-treasurer of the Association of Southern Fairs and Expositions, and this year he was re-elected.

COLORADO FAIR SECRETARIES

Hold Special Meeting in Denver

Denver, Col., Feb. 2.—The Colorado State Fair Commission addressed a communication to all county fair secretaries in the State to meet with them in Denver on Wednesday of last week at the Gentlemen's Riding and Driving Club.

This meeting was well attended by representatives of county fairs from almost all parts of the State, where a general discussion of fair matters was participated in by all present. Those present were very enthusiastic about holding similar meetings every year and doing everything possible to get an attendance of all fairs in the State.

A permanent organization was perfected by those present of the Mountain States Fairs Association, and the membership will include all fairs in Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico. The officers elected were N. B. McCreery, president, Loveland; P. T. Shelton, treasurer, Hayden; H. A. Wallis, vice-president, Sterling, and J. L. Beaman, secretary, Pueblo.

Martin Walter, Jr., president of the Colorado State Fair Commission, in calling the meeting to order, explained to all there present that the Colorado State Fair was now as the basis of all State fairs, as it was to be operated and managed by a commission appointed by the Governor, and is maintained by a direct tax levy, thus assuring the Commission money for all premiums.

All those present were very enthusiastic about the various county fairs doing everything possible to assist the Commission in making the State Fair, to be held at Pueblo September 23 to 28, the banner fair of all. They all volunteered that they would see to it that the prize-winning articles from their county fairs would be gathered and sent to Pueblo to the State Fair, there to compete against each other for the State prizes.

The meeting adjourned to the Albany Hotel, where luncheon was served to all as the guests of the State Fair Commission. After luncheon resolutions were passed thanking the Commission for the interest it has shown in the fair work, by calling them together and thus giving them an opportunity to get acquainted and exchange ideas, and with a firm determination to meet again in January, 1919, and each one to bring a member from the neighboring fair.

VIRGINIA ASSOCIATION

Reorganizes Into Four Separate Circuits Under One Management

Staunton, Va., Feb. 2.—Because the Virginia Fair Circuit has grown to such an extent that it has become too large to operate as a single circuit the Virginia Fair Circuit, at its annual meeting here Monday, reorganized into the Virginia Assn. of Fairs, which will have for its purpose the extension of the work of an association of fairs, the dissemination of knowledge and promotion of the study of improved methods on conducting fairs.

C. B. Ralston, secretary of the Staunton Fair, was elected to the important position of secretary of the new organization, which is composed of four circuits of Virginia fairs, as follows: The Western Circuit of Virginia Association of Fairs, composed of all fairs west of Roanoke, the Southern Circuit of Virginia Association of Fairs, composed of fairs west of Roanoke and south of Richmond, the Eastern Circuit of Virginia Association of Fairs, composed of the fairs east and north of Richmond, and the Valley Circuit of Virginia Association of Fairs of the Shenandoah Valley and west of Staunton. These four circuits and all of the circuit business are to be conducted by the following named officials: President, H. R. Watkins, secretary of the Danville Fair, Danville; vice-president, S. C. Snead, secretary of the Radford Fair, Radford; vice-president, R. W. Eanes, secretary and manager of the Petersburg Fair, Petersburg; vice-president, D. W. Lupton, secretary of the Winchester (Va.) Fair; vice-president, W. Conway Saunders, general manager and secretary of the Virginian State Fair, Richmond; secretary, C. B. Ralston, secretary Staunton Fair. These men constitute the Board of Directors also.

The principal office of the association will be in Staunton, and will only be changed as the address of the secretary is changed.

One of the most important resolutions adopted was that positively prohibiting any fair in the Virginia Association of Fairs to permit the operation of percentage wheels, buy backs or immoral shows of any character. This is in line with the work which the Virginia Fair Circuit has been doing for the past several years, with the result that the fairs in Virginia have been practically free from vicious exhibitions.

Reports submitted by the officers of the various fairs show that despite the unfavorable weather in some sections of the State during the fair season just past 1917 was one of the best in the eleven years of the circuit.

In the absence of President J. L. Vaughan H. R. Watkins, of Danville, called the meeting to order, and Secretary Ralston introduced W. R. Campbell, district demonstration agent, who spoke on Co-Operation Among Fairs. He sounded the keynote of cleaner fairs, shows of a more educational nature, and more attention to be paid to agricultural exhibits.

W. H. Gocher, secretary of the National Trotting Association, Hartford, Conn., also spoke on the need of co-operation, discussed the value of educational features, and especially commended and urged the boys and girls' club work. He also urged the elimination of passes, stating that the person who gets in on a pass is not only not an asset, but is usually a "knocker."

Prof. M. G. Cooper, of Blacksburg, discussed Improving the Premium List of Live Stock Entries. He pointed out the many defects of the present lists, and offered to submit an approved premium list, giving proper classifications in the live stock department. His offer was unanimously accepted.

H. R. Watkins, of Danville, pointed out the many difficulties confronting a fair secretary and urged co-operation on the part of all fair officials.

The meeting Monday was the eleventh annual meeting of the Virginia fair secretaries, and it was the first time such a wide-open discussion of business affairs was indulged in, and the innovation on the part of Secretary Ralston proved very gratifying to the members. On Monday night the Shenandoah Valley Association had the visitors as its guests at the Virginia Hotel, where an elaborate supper was served, and many table jokes and stories were told between courses. In addition to the speakers above mentioned there were present: W. W. Wilkins, South Boston; D. W. Lupton, Winchester; H. O. Bradshaw, Covington; S. C. Snead, Radford; Messrs. Mathews and Carrico, of Galax; A. T. Lincoln, Marion; R. W. Eanes, Petersburg; Arthur Bell, Staunton; J. C. Simpson, Pittsburg, Pa., representing Polack Bros.' Shows; Harry Copping, Reynoldsville, Pa., representing the Copping Shows; Harry Dunkel, Pittsburg, Pa., representing the Arena Shows; Jack Villiers, Boston, representing the Panama Exposition Shows; Benny Krause, Philadelphia, representing the Krause Shows; Frank Melville, New York, free acts representative; W. R. Bretnitz, Newport, Ky., representing the Donaldson Lithographing Co., makers of the greater portion of fair advertising posters, and F. D. Fuller, Ithaca, N. Y., representing the Stanford-Crowell Co., manufacturer of fair novelty advertising.

CONEY ISLAND CO. LOSES STR. PRINCESS

Big Boat Operated by Cincinnati Park Owners Cut Down by Ice—Island Queen Also Endangered

The Coney Island Company, Cincinnati, suffered quite a monetary loss last Wednesday, January 30, when the ice gorge in the Kentucky River broke, causing the sinking of its steamer Princess at Carrollton, Ky., and a probable further loss when the steamer Island Queen was forced out into the Ohio River Thursday when the ice commenced to run out.

The mass of ice joined the Ohio River gorge and the Princess and Island Queen were caught in the jam, the latter ramming the Princess and sinking her. The Island Queen sailed to some midstream after ramming the Princess, and word was received late last Thursday that she was in a perilous position with ice jammed high about her and her wheel completely ice-bound, making her helpless against the ice gorge. On board last Thursday was the crew of the ill-fated Princess, whose members were rescued by the crew of the Queen. Last reports before going to press were that there was little hope of saving her.

The Queen was built about twenty-one years ago at the Cincinnati Marine Ways for the Coney Island Company, costing at that time around $65,000. She is the largest excursion steamer on the Ohio. The Princess was built in Pittsburg and used up river as an excursion steamer for a number of years, then sold to the Coney Island Company. Both boats were laid up for the winter in the Kentucky River near Carrollton, Ky.

Charles G. Brooks and R. Price Conner, president and general manager, respectively, of the Coney Island Company, have no hopes of salvaging the steamer Princess, and do not believe the vessel can survive the great pressure of running ice that has been encompassing her.

Government officials rushed to the rescue of the Island Queen last Wednesday and dynamite was employed in an effort to clear her wheel. Captain James Dupuy, master of all the Coney Island Company's fleet, who is known from Pittsburg to New Orleans for his ability in handling river craft, also hurried to the aid of the vessel.

Coney Island, the resort operated by the Coney Island Company about ten miles up river from Cincinnati, at present lies under about five feet of water. Little damage is expected however, as it is no unusual thing for the park to be submerged each year when high water prevails during the winter months.

HEARING ON DANCE HALLS

At a Public Amusement Park

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 2.—The Court of Appeals last week heard arguments on an appeal for a final determination of the question whether or not a dance hall at a public amusement park is a public place within the meaning of the Civil Rights law, so that negroes may be barred from them. The case was that of Carroll E. Johnson, a negro, against the Auburn and Syracuse Electric Railroad Company, owner of Lakeside Park, near Auburn, N. Y. He was refused a button at the dancing hall, which was evidence of his right to participate in the dances, on the ground that negroes were not allowed to dance. He obtained a judgment for a penalty of $250 under the Civil Rights law, which prohibits discrimination against any person on account of race or color at any theater or music hall. The Appellate Division, fourth department, reversed the judgment, holding that such a dance hall is not a "public place of accommodation within the meaning of the law," from which the appeal is taken to the highest court.

Justice Foote, in his opinion, said: "If a public exhibition of dancing was furnished by the owner for the entertainment of those admitted to witness it then I think the statute entitled the plaintiff to be admitted as one of the audience. He did not seek admission to witness any public exhibition of dancing, but for the purpose of himself participating in the dancing." The attorneys for the railroad company contended that altho the park is a public place the dancing pavilion was conducted as a private place with the right of selection of patrons, but if the law is broad enough to include it it is unconstitutional as an interference with private rights.

SAPULPA (OK.) CITIZEN

Believes Time Ripe for Establishing Amusement Park

The Billboard is in receipt of the following letter from R. L. Lawrence, of 11 S. Main street, Sapulpa, Ok., who believes that his city should prove an ideal place for establishing a summer amusement park:

"This city affords the best opportunity to anyone wishing to take up the amusement park proposition, or a first-class theater. The population is 16,000 and the only means of amusement at present are three moving picture shows, which have small tabs, and run a good picture once in a while. In fact they play most anything and the people have to eat it or go without.

"To my way of thinking and quite a few more there is a crying need of a first-class theater, seating about 1,800 and having a stage large enough to handle any show that should happen to be booked, as well as ably managed by someone who has had previous experience in this line.

"As to the amusement park, at present there are no means of amusement in the summer at all. There is an interurban railway being built that will connect this city with other cities for twenty-five miles and bring about 75,000 people within an hour's riding distance of such a park. The park would not have to be an elaborate affair—one could start off on a small scale and build as business increased.

"Sapulpa is the county seat, and, being one of the richest counties in the State, one should not be afraid the people would have no money to spend, for they are well known as liberal spenders.

"If you know anyone who would be interested along these lines would be very grateful if you will put them in touch with me. Please do not think that I am writing this as a money-making scheme, for I am not, but feel that it is an opportunity that should not be overlooked."

FORMER ZOO MANAGER

Recuperating From Illness in France

W. P. Whitlock, former business manager of the Cincinnati Zoological Gardens, but now Captain W. P. Whitlock, traveling superintendent of canteens and exchanges "somewhere" in France, has been seriously ill, according to a letter received by his wife last week. In the letter to Mrs. Whitlock the Captain told of an amusing incident of a visit of General Pershing to a regimental headquarters, as follows:

"The other day I was sitting on the edge of a table in a big drafting room where the men who are operating the railroad for the A. E. F. were working out the plans for further improvements. I was waiting for a chance to see the Colonel commanding. The door opened and in walked the Commander-in-Chief, General Jack Pershing. Such a scramble as there was as every man piled off his high stool and came to attention. The only officers in the room were Reserve Corps officers, who came to attention themselves, but were so flustered that they did not think to call 'Attention.' The Commander-in-Chief went into another room. They were not to be caught the next time, however, and the minute the door of that room opened several of them called the magic word. The whole room jumped to its feet again, and an orderly, smiling broadly, walked in. The room subsided again with much tittering."

ciation be urged to bend every effort toward the encouragement of hog breeding and hog raising, and that the most liberal prizes be awarded by fair associations for the encouragement of such a project.

"Whereas, There is a tremendous need for immediate conservation of all cereal and animal foods, so as to bridge over the time between the present and the coming harvest, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That is the opinion of this association the time is past when the conservation of these so badly needed products can safely be left to the individual, but that legislative action should be taken to place all of the people of both the United States and Canada on a ration allowance of those products where the shortage is the greatest.

"In view of the fact that greater and better production is of such momentous importance to all countries of the allied nations engaged in the world struggle to free themselves of the dangers of military domination by one or two nations, this association approves of the holding of exhibitions and fairs during war time, seeing that the objects of these organizations are for the encouragement and promotion of those industries upon which the success of the allied nations must rely, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That this association is of the opinion that the refusal of the State, provincial or other authorities to make the usual appropriations or grants in aid of exhibitions and fairs would be a shortsighted policy, for the reason that now, more than ever, is the desired help and encouragement necessary for greater and better production.

"Resolved, That this convention is of the opinion that the railway concessions in the way of reduced fare and freight rates for the exhibitions and fairs in British Columbia and Washington are not as liberal and helpful as those in the East or in other portions of the West. That the various railway companies be urged to give this question their careful consideration and to deal equitably between all portions of the country, in the belief that, if any preference is to be given, it should in all reason be accorded to the struggling communities that are endeavoring to build up the Western country for the ultimate benefit and advantage of the railway companies.

"Resolved, That as an educational feature and a wartime economy we urge as far as possible the making use of and encouragement of local or home talent for the entertainment at fairs and exhibitions represented in this association."

The committee on dates presented a majority and a minority report, the majority report being adopted by a vote of four to three as follows: Vancouver Exhibition, Vancouver, B. C., August 19-24; Southwest Washington Fair, Centralia-Chehalis, Wash., August 26-31; Grays Harbor County Fair, Elma, Wash., September 2-7; Spokane Interstate Fair, Spokane, Wash., September 9-14 (this probably will be changed to September 2-7); Washington State Fair, Yakima, September 16-21; Oregon State Fair, Salem, September 23-28; Idaho State Fair, Boise, September 30-October 5, and the Provincial Exhibition, New Westminster, B. C., September 30-October 5.

Officers for 1918 were elected as follows: George H. Walker, president, and W. C. Brown, vice-president. (Secretary Pace mentioned above.)

It was ordered that a copy of the following resolutions adopted by the Oregon Poland China Breeders' Association at Corvallis, Ore., January 3, be sent to The Billboard with a view that a crystallized sentiment of various fair associations in the United States and Canada be obtained:

"Whereas, The general practice of fitting swine that are over one year old for show purposes is an economic waste of the nation's food supply, we adopt the following resolutions:

"Resolved, That to conserve the nation's food supply we recommend the elimination of all breeding classes of swine over one year of age at all the international, national, State and county fairs in the United States during the period of the present war.

"Resolved, That all premium money heretofore appropriated for the over one year classes be apportioned proportionately in the under one year and under six months breeding classes and all barrow classes. Premiums for each of the above mentioned classes to be divided into not less than ten moneys.

"Resolved, That barrow classes for each breed be made as follows: Under one year and under six months, and that classes be instituted open to all breeds and grade barrows under one year and under six months.

"Resolved, That pig club members be allowed to compete in all classifications and these limitations do not in any way apply to the pig club sow and litter contest.

"Resolved, That special copies of these resolutions be sent to President Woodrow Wilson, Food Administrator H. C. Hoover, all swine record associations, all swine publications, all the State fair secretaries, and that a copy be sent to the North Pacific Fair Boards meeting."

B. K. HANAFOURDE

Proving Himself To Be a Hustler

Jacksonville, Fla., Feb. 2.—While the army of outside showmen of this country have been resting up for the past three months one of the noncommissioned officers has been most actively engaged in building up fortifications that will for many years prove to be a harbor of light to all outdoor showmen traveling South.

One year ago some few "go-a-head, let's-boom-the-town" sort of business men of Jacksonville, Fla., decided to hold an exposition. Done. Who'll we get as manager? Aha, who? There are not over half a dozen men in all America who thoroly understand all the intricacies of the managerial end of an exposition. Dr. B. K. Hanafourde was sought and accepted the charge, and altho the exposition was organized and erected in a very short space of time the phenomenal success it scored not only made Florida and Jacksonville sit up and take notice, but the entire country started in to make inquiries as to just who Dr. B. K. Hanafourde is. Peoria lassoed him for the big events (International Farm Congress, Soil Products Exposition, Dry Farming Congress, Peoria District Fair and National Implement and Vehicle Show) held there last summer under the guidance of the United States Government, and the success was so instantaneous that Uncle Sam tried to then and there adopt Dr. Hanafourde as one of his own army of expositionists.

In the meantime Jacksonville had awakened to the fact that it was logical to hold the State Fair within the borders of that fair town, but they had no grounds. None in view. Again somebody said, "See Dr. Hanafourde." This was done, the United States Government would not be thru with the doctor's services until October 10, 1917. "Well," said the Jacksonville delegation, "we can not locate fair grounds, build, secure exhibits, get publicity and open February 28."

"I'll guarantee all of the above," spoke up Dr. Hanafourde, "but I must have the hiring, buying, guiding of everything that is done. Agreeable, gentlemen? Ah, cigar. Pardon me now, please vacate my office and I do not wish to see any of you gentlemen here except every Wednesday from 2 to 5 p.m."

The above conversation took place September 15 at Peoria, Ill., and the balance of this story is like a fairy tale to showmen. Dr. Hanafourde and his chief engineer, C. Roy, arrived in Jacksonville October 31. They immediately looked over the three sites proposed, decided on one and started in to work. This site was a farm. Roads and sidewalks had to be built, city water and sewerage constructed from city limits a half mile away, also street railway must be induced to build double-track road from city limits to exposition grounds, with station, etc., and with all kinds of building material at a premium, labor almost impossible to obtain. But a thing daunted this miracle maker—Dr. Hanafourde—for lo and behold this first day of February, only three months from the first day of procedure and from fertile field of an ordinary farm, there has arisen a miniature city, containing forty-one acres of land, with city water and sewerage, brick roads, cement sidewalks, shaded with magnificent palms, fourteen immense completely constructed buildings for exhibition purpose, all ready for occupancy, with every sound device necessary to show to advantage the goods exhibited. Forty-two counties have already agreed to make exhibits. The live stock will be the best that has ever been paraded at a Southern State fair. The publicity has been mightily well handled and even the amusements will be attended to by Johnny J. Jones. When the portal gates of the mammoth entrance swing outward at 9 a.m. on the opening day of the Florida State Fair and Exposition, February 28, I am going to take Dr. B. K. Hanafourde by the arm, salaam to him and say: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." And, believe me, you will say there is not another Hanafourde in the whole country after you witness what he accomplished in the allotted time. Hats off.—ED R. SALTER.

AMERICAN AIRPLANES

Coming Forward in Large Numbers

Discouraging rumors in great numbers have been circulated anent our progress in the manufacture of airplanes and questioning our ability to make good our promises of a great airplane service in reason for effective work this year. There has been talk of injurious boasting that merely stimulated Germany to greater effort. A well-known Canadian officer has been quoted to this effect. Americans, presumed to have special knowledge, have been equally pessimistic. Mr. Coffin of the Aircraft Production Board, has been more reassuring, tho vague. The definiteness his assurances lacked is supplied by information he not allowed to come out. American airplanes are in the way of coming forward in large numbers. We shall not contribute a hundred thousand machines, a favorite round figure that has never had the slightest official sanction. But we shall make a great many for use in 1918, and if the war lasts longer our output promises to be adequate.

Every problem of mechanics or materials has been solved satisfactorily with the possible exception of one. That has to do with the worldwide shortage of linen, the best covering for plane wings. In England and

CARNIVALS

S. W. BRUNDAGE SHOWS WILL HAVE COMPLETE NEW LINE-UP

Eighteenth Annual Season Will Be Inaugurated in Austin, Texas, First Week of March—Route Will Be Thru Central States Again—Cliff Wilson To Offer Circus Hippodrome

Austin, Tex., Feb. 2.—With that progressive spirit that characterizes the successful showman, S. W. Brundage has arranged a complete new line of offerings for the amusement loving public, which are in strict keeping with the shows' slogan, "We Comply With the Pure Show Laws," and the coming season will see the Brundage Shows embark on their eighteenth annual tour "bigger and better than ever." The shows will open at Austin the first week in March and head North toward their regular territory thru the Central States. At this writing the winter quarters' slogan is "Activity," and one can see the result on every hand, as carpenters and painters are busily engaged on all of the railroad equipment and wagon fronts, as well as on other show properties, and all will be in readiness for the opening week. The train is now receiving its last touch of varnish and when completed will stand out as one of the niftiest show trains on route.

Good music and plenty of it is a hobby of Manager Brundage, and as a result this year will see a bigger and better band than has ever been carried with this organization. American music will be featured, but martial music will make the Brundage Midway a lively spot at all times. A lady singer will be featured in the street concerts, and the good old American songs will predominate.

Cliff Wilson, that season manager of the Monkey Speedway, will this year offer a Circus Hippodrome, which will be a novelty on the show world, not in name, but in the building and acts employed. J. A. Scott is not only a good concession agent, but his skill as a stenographer and bookkeeper always comes in handy during the winter months. He is now employed at the State Capitol at Austin, where he is doing Government work for the Exemption Board.

The past week has furnished the members of the shows in winter quarters a most interesting sight. Due to a leak in the million-dollar dam that stands within one hundred yards of the quarters, the gates were opened and the dam drained for an examination as to cause, and never before and probably never again will the folks see as many fish and other inhabitants of the water as they did in the waters of the silvery Colorado.

Treasurer Len Crouch and wife have returned from a visit with friends in San Antonio. They report that Denny Howard and Mort Stice are sure taking Government money and that it doesn't even hurt their conscience. H. A. Lane, one of Cliff Wilson's righthand men, was recently compelled to undergo an operation for appendicitis. The operation proved successful, and he is now on his way to a complete recovery. Jack Crouch, a rival of Mort Stice for the Beau Brummel honors, is opening a concession at Waco, Tex. He will be back for the spring opening. General Agent Clark is expected back in a few days from his home in Madison, Ind.—ED F. FEIST.

E. A. WARREN GOES WEST

New York, Feb. 1.—E. A. Warren, well-known publicity director with the big attractions, was in The Billboard office last week with some interesting items. Since December 1 Mr. Warren has been doing special work for Chas. H. Waldron, the well known burlesque magnate, who has added to his already long list of theaters three of the most important in the city of Fitchburg, Mass., including the leading theater there, the Cummings, in which he has placed the Auditorium Players in stock, playing only high-class royalty attractions, and giving two bills a week. From the start the venture was a big success, and Manager Waldron can be said to have added another laurel to his already long list of successes. Mr. Waldron is entitled to success, for he gives the people nothing but the best and spares no expense in order that the public shall be taken care of in the best possible manner.

Mr. Waldron is also the owner of the famous Bostonian Burlesquers, one of the most successful and best known shows on the Columbia Circuit. Warren says that Mr. Waldron will be heard from again in the near future with another big surprise in the theatrical world. It will surely be a big one.

Mr. Warren left Fitchburg on Monday last, stopping over in Boston to visit old friends (Boston, by the way, is Warren's old home). He left Boston Wednesday via the Colonial Line Boat for New York, and the trip proved one of the most exciting and most hazardous that he has ever experienced.

Mr. Warren is on his way West, going to Pittsburg and other points to close a deal for the coming carnival season. He says he does not know which offer to accept (he has so many), but it will be "one of the biggest and best," and The Billboard readers will hear from him again often.

SHEESLEY'S ZOO & HIPPODROME

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 1.—During the past week no less than a dozen well-known outdoor showmen have dropped in to renew old acquaintances and cut up old money. All have had some comment as to how remarkable it is the way business keeps improving at the Zoo here, with storeroom shows thruout the country closing. The writer wishes to go on record as saying that Mr. Sheesley hasn't a storeroom show, but a Zoological Promenade, with the addition of circus and vaudeville acts, trained wild animals, illusions and strange freaks of nature (no cigaret fiends or snake eaters). So actually there is nothing strange about the business being done. The reasons are apparent. Good shows and the low price of admission (20 cents) are largely responsible, the that is not all. Human nature requires diversion, and diversion is just what John M. Sheesley is at present furnishing the amusement seekers of Norfolk.

J. F. MURPHY SHOWS

Augusta, Ga., Feb. 1.—General Manager J. F. Murphy and General Agent Felix Blei have returned from Atlanta, Ga., where they attended the meeting of the Association of Southern Fairs and Expositions. Work at winter quarters continued uninterrupted. Murphy Fredell has turned out two beautiful fronts and they will be a great addition to the Gilt Edge Attractions. Mr. Fredell is now working on the Happy Jack front and promises to outdo all former efforts. Jack Cullen is at last satisfied with a set of plans for his minstrel front, submitted to him by a local studio, and work is now being rushed on this, the feature show of the caravan. Prof. D. M. Bristol purchased four ponies at a recent stock sale and has begun to break them in. Pete Thompson, in charge of Cullen's South Before the War Minstrels, has left to fill five weeks of vaudeville dates. M. P. Tole has four candy stores going and is doing well. Jim Sullivan, as a side line, has a jitney bus, making trips to and from the camp, and is cleaning up. James Connelly has a restaurant. Mr. and Mrs. Beamer are running a hotel. H. V. Rodgers has probably the best paying shooting gallery in Augusta. Mr. and Mrs. Jirden have arrived at winter quarters from Harriman, Tenn. Mr. Jirden (Red) started in by helping Jim Sullivan repair the Busy City. Jim Jackson is now chief cook at the quarters, and the boys are well satisfied. Margaret Quiney, the high diver, has returned from a trip to New York. Capt. Jack Norton, the animal trainer, is doing some wonderful work with the bears and monkeys, and will have "some" show this season. Mrs. Latham and little Billy have returned from a visit to New Orleans. Dare Devil Zeke is breaking in a new act. Instead of his motordrome he will use a tank. Two new baggage cars arrived last week and everything is about ready for the coming season.—LATHAM.

EYLWARD THANKS FRIENDS

The following letter has been received by The Billboard from James J. Eylward: "I wish to thank all my friends and acquaintances, both those connected with the Josselyn Gigantic Shows and those who are living in the towns of Tchula and Natchez, Miss., who showed me so many kindnesses during my recent serious illness while in these two towns. Also to give this word of appreciation to the Catholic priest of Greenwood, who, tho a sick man himself, came from Greenwood to Tchula to my bedside."

WINTERING IN HOT SPRINGS

Mrs. Irene Miller, formerly with the Leggette Shows, is in Hot Springs, Ark., resting and incidentally suing her husband, Frank Miller, wrestler, who was also with the Leggette Shows, for a divorce. Mrs. Miller says she is going out with a company this spring, but hasn't decided on which one as yet. She will leave Hot Springs shortly for Belen, N. M.

Among other troupers wintering in Hot Springs are Mr. and Mrs. Sody Selnor, who were also with the Leggette Shows last season.

SHIPS STUFF TO DETROIT

G. Burkhart, who purchased Harry Copping's entire illusion show and two band organs while running his museum in Baltimore, Md., has shipped the stuff to Detroit, Mich., to be used with his attractions the coming season, when he will be found with the Northwestern Shows. All of the attractions managed by Burkhart will be elaborately equipped with new panel fronts, brand new tents, new banners, etc.

BUSINESS GENERALLY GOOD

At the Home of Big Eli

Roodhouse, Ill., Feb. 2.—Business at the home of the Big Eli is generally good. Wheel production is well advanced and the outlook is good for a prosperous year, despite the "don't know about moving" feeling of many ride men. Eli Bridge Company again began operations January 23, after a five days' shutdown in compliance with Fuel Administrator Garfield's orders. President W. E. Sullivan is indignant at the protests of many manufacturers against the Government's orders. The management of this company is heartily in favor of any movement that will hasten the ending of the war.

Messrs. Eddie Fine, of the J. F. Murphy Shows, and M. Brown, of Chicago, Ill., visited the home of Big Eli and placed their order for a No. 5 1918 model Big Eli for early delivery.

W. K. Davison and wife, of Streator, Ill., arrived in Roodhouse January 18. Mr. Davison left January 22 for the East on business for Eli Bridge Company. W. K. and Mrs. will probably make their home in Roodhouse until the bluebirds sing in the spring.

President W. E. Sullivan is in St. Louis, Mo., with his brother-in-law, John C. Martin, who has been under treatment in St. John's Hospital for two weeks, and underwent an operation January 28.

Joseph Horp, cost clerk, resigned January 21 and immediately left for Jacksonville and Peoria, Ill., where he expected to submit to examination prior to his entrance into the Ordnance Department of Military Service.

The ride men's magazine, the Optimist, was late in getting into the mails for January due to the lack of enough hours in the day to suit the editor.

A Big Eli No. 12 1918 model has been shipped to C. H. Steffens, Portland, Ore. Mr. Steffens is proprietor of American Slide Range, 1110 First Avenue, Seattle, Washington. This wheel, which has double power equipment, is a Christmas present to Mrs. Steffens. 1918 season will see this Big Eli in operation at The Oaks Park, Portland. It will be operated by the United Amusement Company, of which John F. Cordray is president and D. R. Ladd secretary and treasurer. Steffens' public amusements are well known thruout California and the Northwest, and this will add another to the already long list of attractions at this popular resort.

"BILLY" BEACH ILL

William M. (Billy) Beach, who has been confined to his bed in his apartments at the Berkley-Gresham, Columbia, S. C., since December 4 with pleuro-pneumonia, is reported out of danger by his physicians. This is the second time Mr. Beach has been stricken with pneumonia, but it will be some time before he will be able to be out.

Mr. Beach at one time was in partnership with the late William D. Baker, the well known theatrical booker of Chicago. After abandoning the brokerage business he made a spring tour with the Ideal Stock Co. He then accepted a position as publicity promoter and published a weekly paper called The Lake Michigan Sunset for French & Mulholland, proprietors of Lake Michigan Park, Muskegon. At the close of the park season he returned to Chicago, and upon advice of his physician went South, playing with the Myrtle Comedy Co., Princess Stock Co., Savannah, Ga., and lecturing on the Alaska-Siberian Pictures. The winter of 1913-'14 he was with the Edison Co. in Jacksonville, Fla., appearing in the movies. Later he worked as talker, lecturer and official announcer with various carnivals. During the spring and summer seasons of the past three years he was engaged by the Columbia Baseball Club (of the South Atlantic League) as publicity agent and official announcer. At the termination of the past baseball season he became general sales manager of the Columbia Scenic Studio at Columbia, S. C.

Mr. Beach does not need financial aid, as his firm is looking after his every want, but a letter or card of cheer from his trouping friends would do no harm.

RUBIN & CHERRY SHOWS

Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 1.—The people of Montgomery were treated to the most thrilling act ever witnessed when Harry Gardner, known thruout the country as the "human fly," made a daring climb up the front of the Bell Building, a twelve-story skyscraper. Using nothing but his hands and feet, he went up the stone pillars, over the projecting cornices, and inside of 20 minutes he was "over the top," safe and sound. The exhibition was given under the auspices of The Montgomery Journal and the streets were packed for blocks. Following his phenomenal climb Gardner appeared upon the stage at the Empire Theater, in connection with his own films. Rubin Gruberg, always on the lookout for a new face act with a drawing power, and recognizing the worth of this act as a carnival attraction, got into communication with Gardner's manager, Barney Bergen, but as Gardner was already booked for others it was found impossible to secure it, but it sure would have made some free act.

The work is progressing very rapidly now that the weather is improved and everything in the show paraphernalia is getting its spring color, and before the second of March arrives, which is our opening day, the word "okay" will be stamped on every part of the work.

Mr. Cherry is out corralling the good spots to follow Montgomery, and our promoters are on their way here to start in, and with good weather our opening here should be even bigger than one closing date in the fall.—FRANK S. REED.

PRUDEN BUILDINGS

Have Helped Revolutionize the Concession Business

New York, Feb. 2.—It may well be said that the C. D. Pruden Company, whose factory is in Baltimore, and which has a New York office at 50 Pine street, has helped revolutionize the concession business by its portable steel concession buildings. These buildings have many points in their favor, and just now they have a particular appeal in view of the fact that they can be easily and economically transported.

The Pruden concession building is built both with plain or ornamental fronts. They are adapted to parks, fairs, private concessions, skee-ball, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, etc. They are fire-proof and can be easily and quickly erected. The company is a consistent Billboard advertiser and many a concession man has learned of the Pruden concession buildings thru this medium. The big Spring Special Number will carry an important advertising announcement from the company.

ARBOGASTS GO SOUTH

C. H. Arbogast, accompanied by his wife, visited The Billboard office, Cincinnati, Thursday evening, January 24, en route from Columbus, Ohio, to Orlando, Fla. He will have several concessions with the Johnny J. Jones Exposition the coming season, and will be assisted by his wife, as usual. Arbogast has a nice farm in Columbus, where he has been making his home, but the weather and he couldn't agree, and he decided to hit the trail for the Sunny (?) South.

Another visitor at The Billboard office the same evening was H. W. Weaver, manager of the Washburn-Weaver Shows. Mr. Weaver was called to his home in Springfield, O., by the illness of his young son, who had scarlet fever. He stayed in Springfield for two weeks until his boy recovered, and was returning to his Irish in the South when he gave Old Billyboy a call.

Harry K. Main, manager of the Harry K. Main Shows, was a caller last week on his way East to inspect his new Herschell-Spillman carousel.

POLACK BROS.' 20 BIG SHOWS

Salisbury, N. C., Feb. 2.—The activities at Polackville, the title by which the fair grounds are known to the Salisbury people, are humming with action. Happy Holden, formerly of Luna Park, Coney Island, is in charge of the work, and the outfit is nearing completion for the opening which will take place March 23 on the streets of Salisbury. Several of the oldtimers have arrived to get ready for the coming season. George Petrie has started to work on his new shooting gallery, while Joe Daley, the lot superintendent, is taking charge of the repairs. The Whip will be presented in a new manner this year. Word has just been received here that a fourth ride will be carried with the 20 Big this season. This ride will be something entirely new. Work is now started on a new 70-foot front, which will have an organ 22 feet long and 17 feet high in the center. This front will be used for the big electric spectacular production, which will be the feature. I. J. Polack, general manager, is expected at Salisbury most any day.

HOWARD SEEMAN DEAD

Howard M. Seeman, one of the best known general agents in the carnival business, died of heart trouble at Winona, Minn., Friday, January 25, according to a telegram received from the Moss Bros.' Greater Shows February 1. The last engagement of the deceased was with the Moss caravan.

Mr. Seeman had been in the show business the major portion of his life, and established quite a reputation as a pilot. He was connected with the big carnival companies as well as the small ones, and made hundreds of friends, who will regret to learn of his death. During the past few years he was connected with such carnivals as Ben H. Klein's Shows, Kopp & Harrington's Great Southern Shows, Hampton's Great Empire Shows, Mighty Doris Shows, A. B. Miller's Greater Shows, J. Stanley Roberts' United Shows, Rogers' Greater Shows and the Moss Bros.' Shows. During the past season he gave up the duties of general agent for a while and operated some concessions with carnival companies.

NORTHWESTERN SHOWS

Will Open at Detroit April 20th

Yes, we open on the Ball Park at "Delray"—same place we opened last year, same place we opened in 1916. Directly across from this lot are the Solvay Process Works, employing thousands of men and working 24 hours a day. Numerous other big industrial plants are nearby, and the Paige, Studebaker, Timken Axle and Liberty Airplane Motor works are within drawing distance. After Delray comes some more good Detroit spots, including the far-famed Ferry and Chene lot. We will be the first Company to show on these locations this season. (Why not? This is our home and we have been on the job all winter.) After playing a number of week stands on the best show lots of Detroit we will offer an unusually choice route of the best Celebrations and Fairs in Michigan, with a season lasting well into October. No doubt some shows will have trouble getting the railroads to move them, but the Northwestern is in a class by itself, having an exclusive contract with the largest motor trucking concern in Michigan and with exceptionally high standing with the steam and electric lines. Nothing can stop us, we will get you there.

Now listen, folks, the opening spot at Delray is not as large as it used to be, which means that some of you that wait too long before booking with us won't be able to get placed. Spots in the heart of the busiest industrial city in the world are not like small-town lots, they have their limits. We can place a number of legitimate Concessions. Our terms are very reasonable. Write what you have at once. Address

MANSFIELD WANTS AID

James F. Mansfield, trouper, who is in the Davison County Jail at Nashville, Tenn., writes that he is suffering from bronchitis and pneumonia, and would appreciate any help from his friends. Mansfield, as already mentioned in these columns, was arrested June 14 last at Greenfield, O., on a warrant sworn out by Mrs. Lottie Isaac's husband, charging white slavery. Mansfield alleges he did not pay the lady's way, nor did he know she was married. He says she hired him to manage her act. His time will expire March 9, when he will be at liberty to join some pit or circus side-show. His acts are human pincushion, fire eater and cigaret fiend. Among those whom Mansfield says will vouch for him are Mr. and Mrs. George Reynolds, Fred Klass, Bob Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Doc Turner, Bill Rice, Walter Stanley, P. R. Russell, Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Person, Johnnie Wales, Clarence Wortham, Tom Allen, Max Klass, Rodney Craft, Bob Carroll, Ted Metz, Mrs. Elizabeth Hampton and Mrs. George Carson.

CONSERVING LEATHER

In adjusting itself to war conditions the novelty goods trade has depended to a very large extent upon artificial leather to replace leather for many purposes for which the latter has become too scarce and costly.

It is safe to say that the use of artificial leather has lately increased a thousand per cent in the manufacture of advertising novelties for pocket use, such as wallets, billfolds, memo. books, pennants, etc. An even greater increase has been made in case work where the material is glued or pasted on some novelty made of cardboard, fiber, wood or metal. For this type of work a material like fabrikoid, manufactured by the Du Pont Fabrikoid Company, Wilmington, Del., is said to be just as handsome and durable as the finest leather and quite as convincing to sight and touch. Grease and stains do not affect it. It does not fade; insects do not attack it. It can always be quickly restored to its original beauty with a little soap and water.

The best selling trench mirror for many months was one in which the case was made of fabrikoid, having a capped back, the outside being waterproof and the inside having just the soft fleecy surface necessary to keep the steel mirror bright and polished.

The facility with which fabrikoid can be stamped and printed with gold, silver and the various inks in common use has been one of its most attractive features to the novelty manufacturer.

CONCESSIONAIRES—Cut out all the Salami wheels.

AGNES FOSTER (Mrs. Wm. F. Rogers), last season with the C. A. Wortham organization, is now in burlesque. She has been playing around New York the past few weeks, and has been present at most all of the show women's gatherings and social functions.

OSCAR JORDAN, of the Flying Jordans, has sniffed the breezes of many oceans while touring the world with that great aerial act. He is playing around New York at present. Sends his regards to all the show people that he met in foreign climes.

TALK ABOUT acrobats and aerialists, how about the Todd Judge Family, The Hanlons, Siegrist-Silbon Troupe, the Clarkonians and Ryan and Zorella?

PIT SHOWMEN—Who will be the first to exhibit one of those Electric Eels that are found in the Orinoco River, British Guiana, South America? Sounds like that "eel" would make a strong card for someone that has a big tank that is not working. Well, who are you going to get that will get that electric eel for you? Don't fake it by putting a battery in the water. No, don't do it that way. Get the original electric eel.

MRS. L. B. HOGAN

Mrs. Lottie Bogert Hogan, one of the most widely known women in the show business, will again manage the Cabaret and Vaudeville Show with the Nat Reiss Shows, making her second season there. Previous to her connection with the Reiss caravan she held a similar position for five years with the Clifton Kelley Shows. She has also been with the World's Fair Shows.

C. W. PARKER started a lot of people talking if he did nothing more when he let out that story about buying railroad engines to haul his trains. Well, what railroad is going to be the first to let an outdoor amusement exposition own its own engines? It is a good trick even if he doesn't do it.

RAYMOND E. ELDEN has not been heard from in a long time. What show this season and how do you like the moving picture business in New Orleans, Elder, old boy?

J. FRANK HATCH said at the last meeting of the Showmen's League of America that if he could get away from the moving picture business that he would dive right back into the outdoor show business, as his heart was right with the outdoor showmen. He seemed to enjoy the gathering just like a college boy turned loose on the green after a hard session. He was seen in very close conversation with A. A. Powers and J. Goldie, so if you hear of these men being signed up by Hatch be not so surprised.

BERT B. PERKINS says in replying to an inquiry that he wishes to state that the Osman Twins, when last seen, were traveling in a bottle with the Sibley Superb Shows, 'way down South in the land of cotton and cold days.

MOTHER, MAY we go with a carnival? No, my darling daughters, mother would rather you would be a conductorette on a Broadway surface car.

GOOD SHIP RAMBLER—Never will we forget the morning of June 28, when George Alabama Florida was commander of the Good Steamboat Rambler that was used by the advance forces of the Rice & Dore River Exposition to herald the kings and queens of the deep blue out a la Annette Kellermann. The captain was standing on the landing on this eventful morning, where thousands of other craft and landed before to Belle Vernon, Pa. The old tar was arguing with a chauffeur of one of the Standard Oil Company's portable distributors and insisted on telling him how to put 300 gallons of the propelling fluid into the tank in the hole of the Starch advance ship. The weather was hot and the "gasoline juice" flowed freely. The chauffeur was industrious and very happy until the time came for the "captain" to settle for the said driving fluid; finally the tank was filled and Alabama said "Pretty fine. 'Good work, wasn't it, old boy?'" Kind of jolly like, then handing him a Pittsburg stogie of the Pollock brand. The captain then said: "Now, if you will step to the cabin I will fix you up all right." In they went and the captain sat down at his desk made of three inch boards and started to write the chauffeur an old-time circus treasurer's check. The chauffeur looked at him and said: "Young man, I am not dishing out gasoline for any cigar coupons." He refused to accept the check, and old Alabama said "Then take back your gasoline." The chauffeur said, "How can I take it back without an ax and cutting a hole in

IT IS A PROVEN FACT

That the OPTIMIST is growing more popular with the Ride and Carnival men each month. F. L. Flack, President and Manager of the Northwestern Shows, says: "The OPTIMIST is today the classiest little trade paper that I know of, may it always continue as such." Henry V. Gehm, President of the Venice Transportation Company, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "The OPTIMIST is a very newsy and neat issue and is everything its name implies. I sincerely hope it may continue to bring optimistic thoughts to its readers." The Amusement World knows F. L. Flack and Henry V. Gehm as men of prominence among amusement men. Rest assured that both of these gentlemen have read copies of the OPTIMIST and know whereof they speak. Ask us for a copy of the January and February, 1919, numbers and see what others say of it. After you have read these copies thoroughly, if you wish it, we will place your name on the regular mailing list. Remember, the OPTIMIST will be mailed you free each month, if you are interested. "the bottom?" After some deliberation and about half of the stogie consumed he said he guessed it would be all right and as he was too nice to go and look for an ax he would take the check, but he did not know if the manager for Mr. Gillelline would or not. After all the good ship Rambler sailed away with the three hundred gallons of gasoline and sailed until it got stuck on a sand bar in the Ohio River near Owensboro, Ky. Thus ends the story of the good ship Rambler and Alabam.

LET'S HAVE the coming season's plans of the following representative independent outdoor showmen: George W. Fairley and Filipino Midgets, C. H. Armstrong and Circus Side-Show, Major Gordon W. Lillie (Pawnee Bill) and Pioneer Days, C. F. Hatley (Col. California Frank) and California Pioneer Days, Sam W. Gumpertz and Dreamland Circus Side-Show, Omar Sami and House of Thousand Wonders, Capt. Louis Sorcho and Submarine Show, Harry Jansen and Mystery Maids, Carl La Dare and Panama Canal, and W. J. Coghlan and the "Tankerdrome." All others kick in. It's your year. Good luck.

C. A. WORTHAM is given credit even by his opposition for being one of the quickest thinkers in the outdoor show business. It will be noticed that he is one of the fastest doers in that line, too.

WELL, WHO is going to be the first in this country to put a "front" in front of a carousel? Well, why not? It would be a little different and so different that the public will notice it and the press will notice it and the attraction will in consequence get noticeable publicity. Never mind the floors for the present. Save that for another season. Put a big organ in the entrance on a wagon, use the wagon in the parade. You get the idea.

HOMER V. SIBLEY and Floyd F. Elliott are now connected with the M. V. All Weather Train Controller Company demonstration on Broadway, New York. They say: "If nothing doing in show business just now why not for something else." Some others should take the cue and not be wearing out shoe leather by walking up and down the streets this winter. There is plenty of work for all if they want it.

WILD RUMORS are certainly going the rounds about the circuses. Some are built on the Barnum & Baily Circus coming from Bridgeport by motor trucks, playing New York, then Brooklyn, Newark, Trenton, Philadelphia and so on. At that it does not sound bad.

ONE STORY IS traveling the rounds that a lot of the small carnivals will travel by motor truck. A so-called show paper prints a story that Clyde's World at Home Shows and the Levitt-Taxier Shows will travel that way. As there is an arab "shows" on the latter we cut that part of it off. What step are you figuring on?

EASTERN OUTDOOR Showmen—Get next to yourself. Join the Showmen's League of America, New York Branch. A. A. Powers says you will eventually. Why not now? It is to your best interests. Become at once a charter member. Write Edward C. White, secretary Showmen's League of America, New York Branch, 1607 Times Building, New York.

SHOWMEN'S LEAGUE of America, New York Branch. That is the way to say it.

MILTON MORRIS, on his most recent visit to New York, got out in a part of the city early one morning where there were no taxicabs. He saw a milk wagon coming by. He hired the milk wagon and arrived safely at his hotel. Thereby hangs a tale.

HOW MANY men do you know who have nothing to sell but their services?

WILLIAM F. ROGERS likes New York, but says that it is no place for a poultry farm. He plans to go to San Antonio soon, and if everything is all right he will return to New York and enter a commercial line. Rogers is of the staunch opinion that the "big" city is the place to make "big" money in.

IVAN SNAPP and John R. Castle—What about that show in New Orleans? Are you two going to take it out this season? We make a bet right here.

CHARLES FEINBERG, when last heard from, was in Grand Junction, Col., in the automobile junk business. You may hear of him from New Orleans soon.

HUNDRED AND eighty-foot round tops are not seen blowing up and down Broadway these days. Say all.

IF YOU are bent on disaster it will surely hit you and hit you hard. Be optimistic.

SAM McCRACKEN is said to have accepted the general management of the United States Circus that Frank P. Spellman is launching on auto trucks and trailers from Toledo, O. This was generally accepted as a fact on Broadway.

PARKS, PARKS, yes, parks, then more parks. That is a business for outdoor showmen this season.

GEORGE W. TOOMBS was in New York recently. He thinks well of the park business for the coming summer season. You may hear later something of interest.

COL. WILLIAM WESTLAKE, Harold Cox, Alfred T. Holstein, Adolph Seeman and other notables assembled in New York in the early eighties will recall the launching of the machine to make two pounds of butter out of one. Holstein drew out of the company later to put out a rat poison. He killed all the rats in a man's barn and at the same time spoiled all his grain. The things that have passed are indeed amusing now.

RALPH FINNEY was among those who attended the fair managers meeting in Waterville, Me.

SHOWMAN OR POLITICIAN? If any man in the outdoor show business has any political ambitions let him satisfy his desires in that direction with his own money and not try to do it with the aid of "O. P. M.," meaning other people's money, "the showman's money." The outdoor showman has a most peculiar sense when it comes to the point where someone is trying to put something over on him at his expense. Now will you be good? If you are for the good of the outdoor show business as you say you are just prove it in all your actions. Have you tried one new brand of horse-radish?

ARTHUR B. CAMPFIELD and George Rosenbaum, of the Rosnie Greater Shows, were visitors in New York. Campfield is one of the agents and Rosenbaum a concession man. The latter is stopping in Newark. Both displayed with pride their S. L. of A. buttons, and said that they would attend the next meeting in New York.

LEO A. KESNER, a furrier, 61 W. Fifteenth street, wants to know where John W. Randolph is going to give that picture a New York showing. The one that was advertised from Deming, N. M., recently. J. W., you tell him.

J. M. MARKS is going to open a school in New York to teach African polo. He is lining up some notables of the outdoor show world as teams for early contests. 'Tis a great life.

J. H. JOHNSON—How is the Wyandotte Hotel in Kansas City and how much is coal per ton?

JOHN W. MOORE is quite sick at his apartments in New York. Mrs. Moore is seeing to it that John W. is properly looked after.

J. M. SULLIVAN and Moxie Hanley recently purchased Bert's Photo Shop in Kansas City, which makes two places they have in that city. They expect to shortly open a photo studio in Leavenworth. This firm is a progressive one and well known to all outdoor showfolk. When in K. C. many make "Sully & Moxie's" place their headquarters. C. W. Parker was a recent visitor there seeking ideas. Is that so? Yes.

W. DAVID COHN is a live one. Cohn, how is the tombstone business? We hear that down in Brownsville, Texas, you are among the real live ones. Make that proposed Midget City the best in the business, W. David, and you will make a lot of money.

THE ANTLERS Hotel, Kansas City, is one of the most popular places in that town with outdoor showmen and women.

TALK ABOUT good work. Herbert A. Kline is certainly doing some for the Great Patterson Shows, both in booking the organization and booking attractions and shows. It might be well to watch carefully the lineup of the Patterson Shows for season 1918. You will see a real mold! when it is ready to take the road. We know what is what. Never mind what anybody says. We cordially welcome all "knockers."

WHEN YOU strike oil. T. J. Cannon, at one time one of the best known general agents, has "struck oil" in Kansas City. At last. A hustler like Cannon is bound to win eventually.

WALTER F. STANLEY—Who, what and when this season?

J. M. SULLIVAN—We bet that you "go back" in the outdoor show business every Thursday in Kansas City when The Billboard is put on sale. Oh, you will be in again some day, "Sully."

I. S. HORN—Give us a new show this season of the independent kind. Why not let the world know that you are still in the wild animal business? Many want to know. Keeping so quiet is not like you. Say it.

WALTER L. WILSON—What is new in the tent line for outdoor showmen this season? Why not a few remarks regarding the Baker & Lockwood Manufacturing Company, Kansas City?

TOM W. ALLEN is due for a big announcement soon. That is it is fully expected by his friends in the East.

WHAT IS eleven worth, C. W. Parker?

WHEN YOU know you are not forgotten. Walter F. Stanley, Mrs. Walter F. Stanley, H. S. Tyler, Homer V. Jones, Will G. Jones, Mrs. Will G. Jones, Etta Louise Blake, W. J. Richards, J. M. Sullivan, Mrs. J. M. Sullivan, Mrs. Marie Holmes, J. L. Murray, Mrs. J. L. Murray, A. U. Eslick, Mrs. A. U. Eslick, Charles Jameson, Mrs. Charles Jameson, J. H. Johnson, Mrs. J. H. Johnson, William Badger, Mrs. William Badger and others in Kansas City, how are you? Where do you go this coming season and when do you start?

ED A. EVANS—What is this new camouflage show that we hear is going to be one of the big attractions with Ed A. Evans' Shows season 1918? How is that unit?

GEORGE ELSER is in Kansas City. Does that Parker carry-us-all go back again with the Yankee Robinson Circus? It did and does get money with a circus if all reports are true. We believe they are true, George.

W. T. TURNER—Back again with the Con T. Kennedy Shows? Yes.

DAN LEON, of dog and pony fame, in the days of the Leon and Van Amberg circuses, was a recent visitor in Kansas City, according to Moxie Hanley. You all know that one time Leon was some equestrian director, and could he make them laugh as a clown, too? Yes.

EVERYBODY IS going to Chicago to attend the Showmen's League of America's big doings this month. It will be a wonderful gathering.

CARNIE & GOUDIE, the tent manufacturers of Kansas City, are said to have a wonderful new plant and that they are doing great on large Government contracts.

CON T. KENNEDY has struck a new idea. The Athletic Animal Circus, we are told by reliable authority. Boxing kangaroos, boxing roosters, wrestling lions, skating and wrestling bears all sounds good.

TOTO SEIGRIST and Alfred T. Holstein will be the owners of a big, brand new Big Eli wheel purchased direct from the factory, Roodhouse, Ill., when the season opens.

CLIFFORD HANLEY has joined the aviation corps. He is all ready to let her go.

HERBERT L. MESSMORE, now of "Say Uncle" fame, received so many answers from his recent advertisement of the "Say Uncle" statuette that he had to put on extra help in all departments of his show on Forty-second street, New York. "Say Uncle" has indeed caught on. Concessionaires and demonstrators, get to the "Say Uncle" while it is alive.

MRS. MARIE HOLMES left Kansas City recently for a short vacation among friends in Hot Springs, Ark.

SOME SHOW train that had Barnum & Bailey, Ringling Brothers, Coop & Lent, 101 Ranch, Van Amberg, Howe's Great London and a lot of other unpainted cars on tour. Now, who claims this? A couple could speak up and be immediately heard.

LEW HOFFMAN, W. A. Kelly, Frank D. Corey and Samuel Ginskin—It is about time for some news of what may be expected from Minneapolis and St. Paul the coming season.

C. I. CASS AND W. L. HEIN—Are you wintering in Aberdeen, S. D., or where? How is the Northwest going to be this season? Good? Good. Fully expect it.

MOXIE HANLEY says while in Bunkie, La., some moons ago he discovered a snake that can ride a bicycle and blow glass that he intends to feature in a pit or side-show this season. That snake is a high-salaried artist. Who wants him? Write Hanley.

J. MERRIL KINSEL says that the reason he likes New York is because he can get the morning paper before going to bed and the afternoon paper before getting up. He knows. Some time he is having on his vacation. It will soon be with him, "Boys, let's unload that machine."

MOXIE HANLEY arrived in New York recently from Kansas City. En route he visited Chicago, Washington and his home town, Baltimore. Business and pleasure combined. Looking fine and talking optimistically.

GEORGE ALABAMA FLORIDA announces a "new idea" outdoor organization that combines the features of the carnival, circus, chautauqua, concert, theatrical, burlesque and operatic fields. He is known from Coast to Coast as a real hustler and there is no reason why he should not be successful in his proposed "new idea."

CAPTAIN H. PERRY and Albert Gorman are announcing what they call "the first call of the new year." It relates to a museum in New York that they plan to open at an early date.

HENRY L. HARRINGTON, whose letterhead reads with Johnny J. Jones Exposition, "best in amusements," seasons 1916-1917, writes from Hamlet, N. C., as follows: "Being a loyal booster of The Billboard I thought perhaps that a letter from the 'Sunny South' would possibly be appreciated. Have spent part of the winter here, and, believe me, it has been cold. Sleet yesterday and a snowstorm raging today. There is no alternative for me but a trip to Fitzgerald, Ga. Am enclosing a clipping from The Charlotte Observer of last Sunday, headed, 'Doom of Carnivals.' The clipping reads: 'Columbia, S. C., January 19.—The doom of carnivals and side-shows was sounded in a bill passed on the third reading by the Senate. Proprietors of these enterprises will now have to emulate the lowly Arab by folding their tents and fading away. Fat Annie, the cigaret fiend, the Hula Hula girls and Bogo, who 'eats 'em alive,' all must seek other climes in which to disport themselves to the edification of South Carolina rustics. Senator Allen Johnston's bill prohibiting the presentation of such shows within five miles of any agricultural fair in the State was passed without the shedding of a tear or the raising of a finger. Senator Aiken had an amendment inserted which will permit the giving of such exhibitions where the executive officer of the fair signs a request with the sheriff of the county. This may help some, in view of the fact that managers of fairs may consider such shows worth while in increasing their own patronage.'"

FRANK J. LANE, of buckley-buck fame, and Frank Allen, the flyer, are at present in Miami, Fla. The writer is in receipt of a cocoanut in its original hull. The inscription on it reads "Picked by 'Buckley Lane' in Frank Allen's cocoanut grove." The photograph pasted on shows Lane and Allen standing by a car, and in the distance is seen a high fence of the incline variety that would indicate that Dare-Devil Schreyer was somewhere nearby or had been there.

W. S. TAYLOR—Where are you? It has been a long time since.

IF FRED MILLIGAN would get busy now with his Noah's Ark he would have no trouble in putting it over to successful completion. It was a wonderful idea. Where is Fred Milligan?

LEON W. MARSHALL—A new plantation minstrel show this season, please.

ENCLOSURES are right in line with the "new idea" amusement exposition. Sideshow enclosures aid you in handling your organization. Just think.

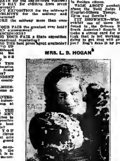
MRS. L. B. HOGAN



Mrs. Lottie Bogert Hogan, one of the most widely known women in the show business, will again manage the Cabaret and Vaudeville Show with the Nat Reiss Shows, making her second season there. Previous to her connection with the Reiss caravan she held a similar position for the years with the Clifton Kelley Shows. She has also been with the World's Fair Shows.

CONCESSIONAIRES—Cut out all the Salami wheels.

AGNES FOSTER (Mrs. Wm. F. Rogers), last season with the C. A. Wortham organization, is now in burlesque. She has been playing around New York the past few weeks, and has been present at most all of the show women's gatherings and social functions.

OSCAR JORDAN, of the Flying Jordans, has sniffed the breezes of many oceans while touring the world with that great aerial act. He is playing around New York at present. Sends his regards to all the show people that he met in foreign climes.

TALK ABOUT acrobats and aerialists, how about the Todd Judge Family, The Hanlons, Siegrist-Silbon Troupe, the Clarkonians and Ryan and Zorella?

FIT SHOWMEN—Who will be the first to exhibit one of those Electric Eels that are found in the Orinoco River, British Guiana, South America? Sounds like that "eel" would make a strong card for someone that has a big tank that is not working. Well, who are you going to get that will get that electric eel for you? Don't fake it by putting a battery in the water. No, don't do it that way. Get the original electric eel.

C. W. PARKER started a lot of people talking if he did nothing more when he let out that story about buying railroad engines to pull his trains. Well, what railroad is going to be the first to let an outdoor amusement exposition use its own engines? It is a good trick even if he doesn't do it.

RAYMOND E. ELDER has not been heard from in a long time. What show this season and how do you like the moving picture business in New Orleans, Elder, old boy?

J. FRANK HATCH said at the last meeting of the Showmen's League of America that if he could get away from the moving picture business that he would dive right back into the outdoor show business, as his heart was right with the outdoor showmen. He seemed to enjoy the gathering just like a college boy turned loose on the green after a hard session. He was seen in very close conversation with A. A. Powers and J. Goldie, so if you hear of these men being signed up by Hatch do not be surprised.

BERT E. PERKINS says in replying to an inquiry that he wishes to state that the Osmana Twins, when last seen, were traveling in a bottle with the Sibley Superb Shows, 'way down South to the land of cotton and cold days.

MOTHER, MAY we go with a carnival? No, my darling daughters, mother would rather you would be a conductorette on a Broadway surface car.

GOOD SHIP RAMBLER—Never will we forget the morning of June 25, when George Alabama Florida was commander of the Good Steamboat Rambler that was used by the advance forces of the Rice & Dore River Expedition to herald the kings and queens of the deep blue sea a la Annette Kellermann. The captain was standing on the landing on this eventful morning, where thousands of other craft had landed before in Belle Vernon, Pa. The old tar was arguing with a chauffeur of one of the Standard Oil Company's portable distributors and insisted on telling him how to put 300 gallons of the propelling fluid into the tank in the hole of the staunch advance ship. The weather was hot and the "gasoline juice" flowed freely. The chauffeur was industrious and very happy until the time came for the "captain" to settle for the said driving fluid; finally the tank was filled and Alabama said "not like this. "Good work, wasn't it, old boy?" Kind of jolly like, then handing him a Pittsburg stogie of the Pollock brand. The captain then said: "Now, if you will step in the cabin I will fix you up all right." In they went and the captain sat down at his desk made of three inch boards and started to write the chauffeur an old-time circus treasurer's check. The chauffeur looked at him and said: "Young man, I am not dishing out gasoline for any cigar coupons." He refused to accept the check, and old Alabama said: "Then take back your gasoline." The chauffeur said: "How can I take it back without an ax and cutting a hole in

IT IS A PROVEN FACT

That the OPTIMIST is growing more popular with the Ride and Carnival men each month. F. L. Flack, President and Manager of the Northwestern Shows, says: "The OPTIMIST is today the classiest little trade paper that I know of; may it always continue as such." Henry T. Gehm, President of the Venice Transportation Company, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "The OPTIMIST is a very newsy one neat issue and is everything its name implies. I sincerely hope it may continue to bring optimistic thoughts to its readers." The Amusement World knows F. L. Flack and Henry T. Gehm as men of prominence among amusement men. Rest assured that both of these gentlemen have read copies of the OPTIMIST and know whereof they speak. Ask us for a copy of the January and February, 1918, numbers and see what others say of it. After you have read these copies thoroughly, if you wish it, we will place your name on the regular mailing list. Remember, the OPTIMIST will be mailed you free each month, if you are interested. the bottom?" After some deliberation and about half of the stogie consumed he said he guessed it would be all right and as he was too sick to go and look for an ax he would take the check, but he did not know if the manager for Mr. Gitfellow would or not. After all the good ship Rambler sailed away with the three hundred gallons of gasoline and sailed until it got stuck on a sand bar in the Ohio River near Owensboro, Ky. Thus ends the story of the good ship Rambler and Alabam.

LET'S HAVE the coming season's plans of the following representative independent outdoor showmen: George W. Fairley and Filipino Midgets, C. H. Armstrong and Circus Side-Show, Major Gordon W. Lillie (Pawnee Bill) and Pioneer Days, C. F. Hafley (Col. California Frank) and California Pioneer Days, Sam W. Gumpertz and Dreamland Circus Side-Show, Omar Sami and House of Thousand Wonders, Capt. Louis Sorcho and Submarine Show, Harry Jansen and Mystery Maids, Carl La Dure and Panama Canal, and W. J. Coghlan and the "Tankerdrome." All others kick in. It's your your Good luck.

C. A. WORTHAM is given credit even by his opposition for being one of the quickest thinkers in the outdoor show business. It will be noticed that he is one of the fastest doers in that line, too.

WELL, WHO is going to be the first in this country to put a "front" in front of a carousel? Well, why not? It would be a little different and so different that the public will notice it and the press will notice it and the attraction will in consequence get noticeable publicity. Never mind the floor for the present. Save that for another season. Put a big organ in the entrance on a wagon, use the wagon in the parade. You get the idea.

HOMER V. SIBLEY and Floyd F. Elliott are now connected with the M. V. All Weather Train Controller Company demonstration on Broadway, New York. They say: "If nothing doing in show business just now why go for something else." Some others should take the hint and not be wearing out shoe leather by walking up and down the streets this winter. There is plenty of work for all if they want it.

WILD RUMORS are certainly going the rounds about the circuses. Some are bent on the Barnum & Bailey Circus coming from Bridgeport by motor trucks, playing New York, then Brooklyn, Newark, Trenton, Philadelphia and so on. At that it does not sound bad.

ONE STORY IS traveling the rounds that a lot of the small carnivals will travel by motor truck. A so-called show paper prints a story that Clyde's World at Home Shows and the Levitt-Taxier Shows will travel that way. As there is no such "shows" on the latter we call that part of it off. What step are you figuring on?

EASTERN OUTDOOR Showmen—Get next to yourself. Join the Showmen's League of America, New York Branch. A. A. Powers says you will eventually. Why not now? It is to your best interests. Become at once a charter member. Write Edward C. White, secretary Showmen's League of America, New York Branch, 1497 Times Building, New York.

SHOWMEN'S LEAGUE of America, New York Branch. That is the way to say it.

MILTON MORRIS, on his most recent visit to New York, got out in a part of the city early one morning where there were no taxicabs. He saw a milk wagon coming by. He hired the milk wagon and arrived safely at his hotel. Thereby hangs a tale.

HOW MANY men do you know who have nothing to sell but their services?

WILLIAM F. ROGERS liked New York, but says that it is no place for a poultry farm. He plans to go to San Antonio soon, and if everything is all right he will return to New York and enter a commercial line. Rogers is of the staunch opinion that the "big" city is the place to make "big" money in.

IVAN SNAPP and John R. Castle—What about that show in New Orleans? Are you two going to take it out this season? We make a bet right here.

CHARLES FEINBERG, when last heard from was in Grand Junction, Col., in the automobile junk business. You may hear of him from New Orleans soon.

HUNDRED AND eighty-foot round tops are not seen blowing up and down Broadway these days. Say all.

IF YOU are sold on disaster it will surely hit you and hit you hard. Be optimistic.

SAM McCRACKEN is said to have accepted the general management of the United States Circus that Frank P. Spellman is launching on motor trucks and trailers from Toledo, O. This was generally accepted as a fact on Broadway.

PARKS, PARKS, yes, parks, and more parks. That is a business for outdoor showmen this season.

GEORGE W. TOOMBS was in New York recently. He thinks well of the park business for the coming summer season. You may hear later something of interest.

COL. WILLIAM WESTLAKE, Harold Cox, Alfred T. Holstein, Adolph Seeman and other notables assembled in New York in the early eighties will recall the launching of the machine to make two pounds of butter out of one. Holstein drew out of the company later to [illegible] a rat poison. He killed all the rats in a man's barn and at the same time spoiled all his grain. The things that have passed are indeed amusing now.

RALPH FINNEY was among those who attended the fair managers meeting in Waterville, Me.

SHOWMAN OR POLITICIAN? If any showman in the outdoor show business has any political ambitions let him satisfy his desires in that direction with his own money and not try to do it with the aid of "O. P. M." meaning other people's money, "the showman's money." The outdoor showman is a most peculiar snare when it comes to the point where someone is trying to put something over on him at his expense. Now will you be good? If you are for the good of the outdoor show business as you say you are just prove it in all your actions. Have you tried our new brand of horse-radish?

ARTHUR B. CAMPFIELD and George Rosenbaum, of the Krause Greater Shows, were visitors in New York. Campfield is one of the agents and Rosenbaum a concession man. The latter is stopping in Newark. Both displayed with pride their S. L. of A. buttons, and said that they would attend the next meeting in New York.

LEO A. KESNER, a furrier, 61 W. Fifteenth street, wants to know when John W. Randolph is going to place that picture a New York showing. The one that was advertised from Deming, N. M., recently. J. W., you tell him.

J. M. MARKS is going to open a school in New York to teach African polo. He is lining up some notables of the outdoor show world as teams for early contests. 'Tis a great life.

J. H. JOHNSON—How is the Wyandotte Hotel in Kansas City and how much is coal per ton?

JOHN W. MOORE is quite sick at his apartments in New York. Mrs. Moore is seeing to it that John W. is properly looked after.

J. M. SULLIVAN and Moxie Hanley recently purchased Bert's Photo Shop in Kansas City, which makes two places they have in that city. They expect to shortly open a photo studio in Leavenworth. This firm is a progressive one and well known to all outdoor showfolk. When in K. C. many make "Sully & Moxie's" place their headquarters. C. W. Parker was a recent visitor there seeking ideas. Is that so? Yes.

W. DAVID COHN is a live one. Cohn, how is the tombstone business? We hear that down in Brownsville, Texas, you are among the real live ones. Make that proposed Midget City the best in the business, W. David, and you will make a lot of money.

THE ANTLERS Hotel, Kansas City, is one of the most popular places in that town with outdoor showmen and women.

TALK ABOUT good work, Herbert A. Kline is certainly doing some for the Great Patterson Shows, both in booking the organization and booking attractions and shows. It might be well to watch carefully the lineup of the Patterson Shows for season 1919. You will see a real outfit when it is ready to take the road. We know what is what. Never mind what anyone says. We cordially welcome all "knockers."

WHEN YOU strike oil. T. J. Cannon, at one time one of the best known general agents, has "struck oil" in Kansas City. At last. A hustler like Cannon is bound to win eventually.

WALTER F. STANLEY—Who, what and when this season?

J. M. SULLIVAN—We hear that you "go back" in the outdoor show business every Thursday in Kansas City and want The Billboard to put on sale. Oh, you will be in again some day, "Sully."

I. S. HORN—Give us a new show this season of the independent kind. Why not let the world know that you are still in the wild animal business? Many want to know. Keeping so quiet is not like you. Say it.

WALTER L. WILSON—What is new in the tent line for outdoor showmen this season? Why not a few remarks regarding the Baker & Lockwood Manufacturing Company, Kansas City?

TOM W. ALLEN is due for a big announcement soon. That is it is fully expected by his friends in the East.

WHAT IS eleven worth, C. W. Parker?

WHEN YOU know you are not forgotten. Walter F. Stanley, Mrs. Walter F. Stanley, H. S. Tyler, Homer V. Jones, Will G. Jones, Mrs. Will G. Jones, Etta Louise Blake, W. J. Richards, J. M. Sullivan, Mrs. J. M. Sullivan, Mrs. Marie Holmes, J. L. Murray, Mrs. J. L. Murray, A. U. Eslick, Mrs. A. U. Eslick, Charles Jameson, Mrs. Charles Jameson, J. H. Johnson, Mrs. J. H. Johnson, William Badger, Mrs. William Badger and others in Kansas City, how are you? Where do you go this coming season and when do you start?

ED A. EVANS—What is this new camouflage show that we hear is going to be one of the big attractions with Ed A. Evans' Shows season 1919? How is that out?

GEORGE ELSER is in Kansas City. Does the Parker carry-us-all go back again with the Yankee Robinson Circus? It did and does get money with a circus if all reports are true. We believe they are true, George.

W. Y. TURNER—Back again with the Con T. Kennedy Shows? Yes.

DAN LEON, of dog and pony fame, in the days of the Leon and Van Amburg circuses, was a recent visitor in Kansas City, according to Moxie Hanley. You all know that one time Leon was some equestrian director, and could he make them laugh as a clown, too? Yes.

EVERYBODY IS going to Chicago to attend the Showmen's League of America's big doings this month. It will be a wonderful gathering.

CARNIE & GOUDIE, the tent manufacturers of Kansas City, are said to have a wonderful new plant and that they are doing great on large Government contracts.

CON T. KENNEDY has struck a new idea. The Athletic Animal Circus, we are told by reliable authority. Boxing kangaroos, boxing roosters, wrestling lions, skating and wrestling bears all sounds good.

TOTO SEIGRIST and Alfred T. Holstein will be the owners of a big, brand new Big Eli wheel purchased direct from the factory, Roodhouse, Ill., when the season opens.

CLIFFORD HANLEY has joined the aviation corps. He is all ready to let her go.

HERBERT L. MESSMORE, now of "Say Uncle" fame, received so many answers from his recent advertisement of the "Say Uncle" statuette that he had to put on extra help in all departments of his show on Forty-second street, New York. "Say Uncle" has indeed caught on. Concessionaires and demonstrators, get to the "Say Uncle" while it is alive.

MRS. MARIE HOLMES left Kansas City recently for a short vacation among friends in Hot Springs, Ark.

SOME SHOW train that and Barnum & Bailey, Ringling Brothers, Coop & Lent, 101 Ranch, Van Bieberg, Howe's Great London and a lot of other unpainted cars on Mow. Now, who claims this? A couple could speak up and be immediately heard.

LEW HOFFMAN, W. A. Kelly, Frank D. Corey and Samuel Gluskin—It is about time for some news of what may be expected from Minneapolis and St. Paul the coming season.

C. I. CASS AND W. L. HEIN—Are you wintering in Aberdeen, S. D., or where? How is the Northwest going to be this season? Good? Good. Fully expect it.

MOXIE HANLEY says while in Houma, La., some moons ago he discovered a snake that can ride a bicycle and blow glass that he intends to feature in a pit or side-show this season. That snake is a high-salaried artist. Who wants him? Write Hanley.

J. MERRIL KINSEL says that the reason he likes New York is because he can get the morning paper before going to bed and the afternoon paper before getting up. He knows. Some time he is leaving on his vacation. It will soon be with him. "Boys, let's unload that machine."

MOXIE HANLEY arrived in New York recently from Kansas City. En route he visited Chicago, Washington and his home town, Baltimore. Business and pleasure combined. Looking fine and talking optimistically.

GEORGE ALABAMA FLORIDA announces a "new idea" outdoor organization that combines the features of the carnival, circus, chautauqua, concert, theatrical, burlesque and operatic fields. He is known from Coast to Coast as a real hustler and there is no reason why he should not be successful in his proposed "new idea."

CAPTAIN H. PERRY and Albert German are announcing what they call "the first call of the new year." It relates to a something in New York that they plan to open at an early date.

HENRY L. HARRINGTON, whose letterhead reads with Johnny J. Jones Exposition, "best in amusements," seasons 1916-1917, writes from Hamlet, N. C., as follows: "Being a loyal booster of The Billboard I thought perhaps that a letter from the 'Sunny South' would possibly be appreciated. Have spent part of the winter here, and, believe me, it has been cold. Sleet yesterday and a snowstorm raging today. There is no alternative for me but a trip to Fitzgerald, Ga. Am enclosing a clipping from The Charlotte Observer of last Sunday, headed, 'Doom of Carnivals.' The clipping reads, 'Columbia, S. C., January 10.—The doom of carnivals and side-shows was sounded in a bill passed on the third reading by the Senate. Proprietors of these enterprises will now have to emulate the lowly Arab by folding their tents and fading away. Fat Annie, the cigaret fiend, the Hula Hula girls and Bozo, who 'eats 'em alive,' all must seek other climes in which to disport themselves to the edification of South Carolina rustics. Senator Allen Johnston's bill prohibiting the presentation of such shows within five miles of any agricultural fair in the State was passed without the shedding of a tear or the raising of a finger. Senator Allen had an amendment inserted which will permit the giving of such exhibitions where the executive officer of the fair signs a request with the sheriff of the county. This may help some, in view of the fact that managers of fairs may consider such shows worth while in increasing their own patronage.'"

FRANK J. LANE, of huckley buck fame, and Frank Allen, the flyer, are at present in Miami, Fla. The writer is in receipt of a coconut in its original hull. The inscription on it reads: "Picked by 'Huckley Lane' in Frank Allen's coconut grove." The photograph pasted on shows Lane and Allen standing by a car and in the distance is seen a high tower of the incline variety that would indicate that Dare-Devil Schreyer was somewhere nearby or had been there.

W. O. TAYLOR—Where are you? It has been a long time since.

IF FRED MILLIGAN would get busy now with his Noah's Ark he would have no trouble in putting it over to successful completion. It was a wonderful idea. Where is Fred Milligan?

LEON W. MARSHALL—A new plantation minstrel show this season, please.

ENCLOSURES are right in line with the "new idea" amusement exposition. Somehow enclosures aid you in handling your organization. Just think.

WONDERLAND SHOWS, LTD.

Practically All Arrangements Completed for the Coming Season

Bistany Brothers, proprietors of The Wonderland Shows, Ltd., are most optimistic regarding the outlook for the coming season, at least as far as their interests are concerned. They will open their season in New Bedford April 27, and for the following five weeks movements will be made by motor truck. All spots booked in that vicinity are very promising and are termed "live ones." The Wonderland Shows will then move by sail from Newport, R. I., to meet the Boston & Maine Railroad, from which point freight hauls will be made thru Northern New England and Eastern Canada.

The lineup of attractions booked have proven the excellent judgment of George and Leo Bistany to give the public and their auspices a novel, well-worth-while carnival organization, and which is bound to set a fast pace to competitors in their territory. Three rides will be carried, two of which are owned by the management. A Whip will soon complete that end of the outfit. Among the shows already booked are a mammoth Ten-in-One, Athletic Show, Musical Comedy, Monkey Speedway, Platform Show, etc. The Bistanys are considering several feature shows and expect to make their selection the coming week. All concessions will be up to the standard of the attractions and will be conducted by recognized showmen. That assures The Wonderland Shows, Ltd., of an outdoor amusement exposition of which their sponsors can be proud. Messrs. Geo. H. Hamilton and A. A. Powers will have entire charge of all routing and booking, and this well-known duo can and bet help to assure real success to this organization.

CAPT. LATLIP SHOWS

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 1.—All the show paraphernalia that was shipped from Captain Latlip's Eastern winter quarters has arrived here. If the Captain buys or sends any more stuff a much larger building will be needed, as some of the painters are now compelled to do some of their work outside. The finishing touches are now being put on the three-abreast jumping horse carry-us-all. Boats will be used for transporting the Latlip Shows to ease the railroad conditions do not get any better.

According to present plans the show will open the season at Cedar Grove, W. Va., the week of April 15, and play the first ten weeks right in the coal mining district. Hamilton's 10-in-1 and Joe Forest's new Over the Falls Show are late additions to the lineup. An order the eight new 10x12 frame concession tents, with red, white and blue stripes, has been placed. With a new lighting plant everybody on the midway will have plenty of light. Four arc lights will be placed in the center of the midway.—PAT FINN.

FRANK G. WALLICK SHOWS

Natchez, Miss., Feb. 1.—The Frank G. Wallick Shows are nicely stored away in winter quarters here, having leased a large building, 60x140, with good track facilities. The painters, carpenters and sail makers are busy getting things into shape for the big opening here the first week in April. Manager Wallick will carry nine attractions, which include two rides and two bands (one colored band for the minstrel show and a white band for the shows).

Mr. Wallick has sent his minstrel show out under the management of W. E. Johnson, with E. A. McLane in advance. It is playing one and two-day stands, and is now in Louisiana. Dick Wyatt has placed his glass stand on Franklin street and is doing good business. There are several shows in and around this part of the country, and all are experiencing very sad weather.

C. A. Braden, an oldtimer in the amusement business, has signed up with Manager Wallick to take the advance this season.—BENNIE STOKES.

LENTINI & SHERLOW'S MUSEUM

Francesco Lentini and Paul Sherlow opened the Lentini & Sherlow Museum in Norfolk, Va., at 603-5 Church street, Saturday, January 26, with very good crowds in attendance. The opening week's attractions consisted of Francesco Lentini, the three-legged wonder, who has been with Ringling Bros.' Circus the past eight years, Prof. Larrair, sleight-of-hand tricks; Cleo. Smith, "The Man That Can Tell You All", two-headed baby; Frank Linton, tattoo artist; Martha, the Girl With the Thousand Eyes. Manager Sherlow will change the program weekly. The concessions consist of a shooting gallery and ball games. The building in which the museum is located was formerly a department store.

SMITH GREATER SHOWS

Sumter, S. C., Feb. 1.—Business is picking up around winter quarters of the Smith Greater Shows here. Everyone is on the jump for the date of the opening and been announced. Mangel has painted a new front for the Old Kentucky Minstrels and is now working on a complete new set of banners for the Animal Show. The front will be on the circus side-show style, 120 feet long. One of the greatest additions to the troupe the the coming season is Consul and Betty, probably the highest salaried "chimps" in the country, but the management feels sure that the outlay for this act will be amply repaid. A great many showfolks have visited the quarters this winter, and they all say the the show is somewhat crowded, it is quite comfortably fixed. There is a reading room for the boys at the quarters, and all the current magazines, including four copies of The Billboard, are on file. Sumter is the smallest town the show has ever wintered in.—A. L. W.

JOHNNY J. JONES' EXPOSITION

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 2.—Ten days will intervene and then the band will inaugurate the new season of 1918 for the Johnny J. Jones Exposition. Preparations are so well under way that there is no possible chance of any mishaps for the opening of the Sun-Tropical Midwinter Exposition at Orlando February 11, the opening stand. The Jones "Steel Flyer," train of all steel flat cars, and the nine Pullman palace sleepers, have all been overhauled and repainted at the local shops of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad. Six of the Pullman sleepers will be devoted entirely to model, up-to-date stateroom compartment ones. The cafe car is modeled after the style of the regulation Pullman dining cars, and all are electrically illumined by the Delco electric light system. There are numerous new wagons, half a dozen new and very elaborate wood-carved fronts, four new large khaki tents, and every wagon and front is either entirely new or has been newly painted. The cages for Johnny J. Jones' Trained Wild Animal Show have all been replaced by new and larger dens. Much of the old fronts, cages, smaller wagons, seats, etc., were disposed of last week to a new carnival company organizing in Ocala, Fla.

The Sun-Tropical Midwinter Orlando Fair this year promises to outdo all previous efforts in points of attendance and exhibits, and during the fair week there will be four big conventions held at the Exposition Hall on the fair grounds. The country and and a most there billing for a radius of 100 miles, and the exhibit space now contracted for is double the amount used last year.

Kissimmee County Fair follows the Orlando date, then comes Jacksonville for two weeks and Jacksonville is going to be some fair. Everything there is now ready for the opening of the State Fair February 26. Twelve new and commodious buildings, fine grounds, twelve-minute street car service to the grounds. Thirty-five county exhibits and 30,000 soldiers at the Quartermasters' Camp Joseph Johnson.—ED R. SALTER.

ROBERTS' UNITED SHOWS

Albany, Ga., Feb. 2.—Only a month now until "the doors will be thrown open for the first performance of the season," and into that month must be crowded two months' work. The show will open in Albany Saturday, March 2, located on the streets, something that has not been allowed for many years.

A telegram from R. E. Ferguson, in Ludlow, Ky., tells of the addition of an eight-pound boy to the family and everybody happy. "Doc" Coleman, typical Southern gentleman and scholar, claims to be the youngest old showman in America. He has passed his 85th mile post in years, and puts as much pep in his business as a man half that age. E. R. Braden is visiting home folks in Lexington, Ky. Lester Barry left for Dothan, Ala., last week.

Mr. Roberts is fretting over the delay in getting his new car repaired, as he has had only four days' use of it. On December 8, in Sycamore, Ga., the negro chauffeur was held up by five drunks with guns and requested to turn over the car, which the said "cullud" didn't hesitate to do. When the car was found the next morning it bore little resemblance to the nifty little roadster of the day before. Fortunately the car was insured. A letter from Capt. Worley, who made the sensational high dive as the free attraction for this show last year until he was called to arms, says that he has been honorably discharged from the army on account of the broken ribs he received from diving, and that he will be back in the show game again this season.—W. T. SWAIN.

DELAPORTE ON '49 CAMPS

Milan, Ga., January 25, 1918.

Dear Billyboy:

If you can spare the room, would you kindly insert the following at your earliest convenience:

'49 Camps are going thru Georgia like General Sherman did years ago, leaving the citizens to hate everything that looks like a show and scorn show people. Is a '49 Camp classed as a show? If so, what class is it in? I have been playing the State of Georgia for over ten years behind large and small shows, which were trying to give clean shows and find the people ready to receive them when they came back. But at present, I am sorry to say, the '49s have poisoned every town in Georgia and have caused more towns to boost the license to $1,000 per day, regardless of size, and if they continue it will mean a complete sendout for all shows.

Yours respectfully, WM. DELAPORTE, Owner Dell's Comedy Co.

Gooding will again have the merry-go-round and ferris wheel, as well as the Art Mystery Show, with the company. Several of last season's folk will be numbered among the concessioners. Mr. Stock will be in Bronson until March, when he will get his rides in shape for another tour with Barkoot.

TEXAS BUD'S SHOWS

Waco, Tex., Jan. 31.—The Texas Bud Shows are in Waco indefinitely appearing at the big Aviation Camp, and doing a nice business when the weather permits. Texas Bud is having erected a building 100x200 feet, just across the street from Division F, where there are many thousands of soldiers. The building will be occupied by concessioners and free acts of all kinds. There will be no charge for admission. With the Wild West show, high school horses, plant. show, illusion show and silodrome to draw them, the big concession building should do a good business all winter. D. H. (Skeet) Jarrard, secretary and concession manager, has already sold twenty concessions. Texas Bud and Jarrard are having installed a 50-foot lunch counter, and all kinds of eats will be disposed of at popular prices.

Milt Holland, the veteran concession man, has signed contracts to place several concessions with the Polack Bros.' 20 Big Shows for the coming season. He will go to Salisbury, N. C., the winter quarters of the Polack Shows, March 1, to build his concessions on a more elaborate scale than ever before.

PIONEER CONCESSIONER

Harry Lasker Prospering in Detroit

Conclusive proof that a seasoned concessioner can tackle anything big or little and make a success of it is borne out in the case of Harry Lasker, who embarked upon a new venture last October and is now safely on the road of building up a business of which the city of Detroit will be justly proud. Harry needs no introduction, but for the benefit of those who are not intimate with him we might say that he has been in the concession business for the past seventeen years. He never had a concession that didn't pay, including all frameups which he ever owned on the caravans or in the parks. He opened all the concessions at the new Detroit park last season, and all of them were money makers. Some of the frameups were novel creations and a big surprise to all concession folk who had an opportunity to see them. Harry did so well during the summer that when the season closed he immediately got busy on an idea which he had under his bonnet for the past three years. The auto transfer and taxi business had always held alluring possibilities to Harry, and on October 20 the Yellow Service Express was in operation under the direction of Lasker, who is sole owner of the new enterprise. With four big auto trucks in his possession he began to scurry around for transfer and cartage business, and by the aid of a few novel advertising ideas the business soon grew to profitable proportions until it became necessary to put on night and day shifts, with the result that Harry is now making money while he sleeps. He will continue with the Jefferson Concession Company, which will have twenty-five or more concessions along the Detroit Boardwalk, but as the express and taxi business will require more of his attention he plans on putting a capable manager in charge of all of the concessions so that he will be better enabled to devote the bigger part of his time to the building up of a business which holds for him unlimited possibilities.

When your stomach goes a-pinnkin'

Claude Lawes is back in Detroit from the South and reports big business all along the front. While in Detroit he bought a swell roadster from E. Kotlicka and H. Harris, proprietors of the Michigan Leather Goods Company. Claude says he will use the car to carry the boys to and from the shops this summer. How's the print shop, Claude?

Harry Woodward—I forgive you for everything except the night you hid my teeth and I had to do straight in the old jawbone act and my admiring lady friend was in the audience with her mother, who had invited me to lunch after the show. Well, I lunched, but without any masticators.—Billy Archer.

Doc Edwards is hibernating in Oklahoma City, and Enshenberry is waiting for the bluebirds to sing.

L. H. Cooper, the oldtimer from up in Wisconsin, spins a couple interesting yarns, the first he puts like this: "A man came to my home recently and asked me if I would come to his town and show for one week. I asked him the usual questions as to seating capacity, piano, etc., so I arranged a date. When we arrived I asked him where the stage was. He pointed to a large pool table. The piano proved to be 'my son'll play the fiddle for the show,' and he had three oil lanterns for lights, no seats, but a few boxes." Doc got busy and located an organ, worked on the floor, got some lights, and, in spite of the handicap, played to nice business. Doc winds up by saying "These experiences all go to make up a very strenuous life for a show manager."

COL. C. BIGELOW

The late Col. C. Bigelow was the founder of the Healy & Bigelow Kickapoo companies that were so numerous in the halcyon days. He was a leader in everything, and died recently while making a vigorous Red Cross drive. A tribute to his memory appears in this issue.

We would like to hear from Dr. Lew Cummings.

G. W. Bockwell is looking for a store room in the vicinity of Chicago.

Very Quiet B. H. Hogan didn't think that Pittsburg could keep anybody quiet. How's the big joint?

Doc Heber Becker says Doc Moore is a fine man and a credit to the business.

Mrs. Swann, the entertainer, is now Mrs. J. T. Hartman. She and the estimable J. T. admitting they were willing to stick together for life at Commerce, Tex., January 14.

Frankhouse, the Inhaler Man—Shoot in a few pipes.

Elmer Snyder is still on the job in Detroit. He is getting his flivver ready for that big spring drive.

Gay Billings, the oldtimer, has opened a No. 2 show and both of his outfits he reports are doing nicely. The No. 1 show includes The Merriam Trio, Darnes and Montague, Max Melvin, Baby Melvin and Mr. and Mrs. Billings. No. 2 show, headed by Captain C. W. Smith, numbers in its company Fred and Ethel Stock, Hal and Tiny Butler, Jack Wallace and The Musical Clarks.

Dr. J. T. Cummings—Remember the trip mine thru the Northwest in Vancouver, B. C.? Doc Moran does, and he said it was the most pleasant trip he ever had, for in those days the little bewhiskered Doc was a tourist. Ask Eddie Parker.

It is said that the medical forces have drawn swords in Oklahoma City. The winter isn't over, boys, go easy.

One of the boys working belts tells me of his sad [illegible]: "It was Monday night and free show in a county seat town. Soon after the doors were opened, forty old men came in on crutches, canes, limping and otherwise on the bummer. They seemed deeply interested in the doctor's talk on the belts and nodded their heads in approval. The Doc whispered to his brother to get out more belts, as he was going to have a big sale. When he sprung the sale not a touch was made. After the show a swell dressed man came to the front and thanked the doctor for the nice free entertainment that he had furnished his men. He stated that he was the superintendent of the poor farm and he could only afford to bring his 'boys' on that night."

George Copenhagen, the badge king, is around and still telling the boys about that wonderful big day down in Dallas.

Dr. J. K. Hunter says: "I have been hibernating since December 6. My pipes went on the blink and I am spending the winter at my mother's, as she has a nice furnace heated home, papered with buckwheat cakes and inlaid with roast beef and ham sandwiches. I guess I will have to put on a show in public unless my throat hasn't got better by spring. But I'm too fat to work in a window. I note in the Pipes where Dwight Wilcox has deserted Hamlet's camp. I'm not surprised. Ask him if he remembers when he and I tried to heat our room with a Baker burner in Taylor, Tex., smoked everything up and nearly burned the hotel down."

When are the Meyers boys coming back to Detroit? Since the soldiers pulled into those parts there is a big demand for razor paste.

Seventeen degrees below zero in Winneconne, Wis., the hangout of Dr. L. H. Cooper, so the old boy says that he will be out again in spring and put the boat on the river, spending his time fishing and exploring the different streams until fall and then he is going to take the show out for a long season. Doc says: "I was with the first Kickapoo med. company that ever played Ohio and I sold medicine before medicine companies were known on the street when I was twenty-one years old and am now fifty-six, so I think I am surely one of the veterans in the medicine business. I have always left towns good for the next fellow and I wish the boys in the business would do likewise, and the game would always be good."

Matt Burhun stopped into Detroit the other day from Chicago. He was on his way to New York, and, judging by his Michigan B. R., he will load up while there for the big drive this spring. Stock up, Jimmy Kelley, Matt's coming your way.

Blinker Ryan, the oldtimer, is still cheering up the natives of Texas.

Ernie Carlton has been down in the wilds of Texas since the middle of November and is doing fine with the old farm sheet. Ernie says there's a good bit of difference between the times this year and last. Remember H. Howard Walder? Ernie is working with Al Nation and wife. He would like to hear from Scotty Castle and Johnny Cuthbert, care The Billboard, Cincinnati.

Wanted—Somebody to shoot a little pep into Pete DeVall. Pete is stalling around in St. Louis trying to kid winter into taking a little spring tonic, and says that the more he lays around the lazier he gets. Pete says he can't wait until he gets back into harness.

Did you ever notice how you can scare a lung out of some folks if you act like you are going to accept their invitation?

Doc Paul Berry, known in private life as Charles Charters, who has been working the sticks of Michigan, Indiana and Ohio for the past thirty years with Kelonka remedies, was married to Mary Tolhorst at Kalamazoo, Mich., recently. Doc is a lucky devil, for the Missus is a wealthy native of Kalamazoo.

Funny thing about those Western boys. Now here's Ernie Proctor, who has strayed East as far as Kansas City and hobbed around in that country for a couple years, finally deciding there is no place like home and it's Westward ho for him. Ernie even went so far as to open up a big concern up in the K. C. country. Seattle is his address again. But Ernie is a fine boy in spite of it all.

Bill Case, one of the old boys, was seen working oil in St. Louis, but says it is too cold to make a pitch. Bill is peddling films now and doing good.

The motor show at Cleveland last week had very few of the boys in attendance. Sib Shakelford with wrenches copped the swell spot and sure got the jack. Sid tipped his route off to the bunch, and if he connects with the circuit of motor shows that he has lined up he and go back to El Paso and buy a ranch around the City Hall and entertain his little pal, Walter Shaw, for years and years and years. Joe Baker made the show with motor mechanics and wore out four pencils writing them up. John Collins received a wire from Boston saying his wife was very ill, after a serious operation, and he left immediately for the East, carrying the best wishes of the boys for her speedy recovery.

In memory of Col. Charles Bigelow, noted lecturer and traveler, who died while urging preparedness and flaying Germany for its atrocities, Murdock Brothers speak a few words of tribute.

"Col. Charles Bigelow of New Haven, who is known over the world as traveler-lecturer, is the famous Charles Bigelow of the oldtime Healey & Bigelow Kickapoo Indian Medicine Company, one of the pioneers in the medicine game, who at one time had over a hundred medicine companies on the road and to whom hundreds of noted vaudeville acts owe their start in the game, and we, the Murdock Brothers, managers of the last Kickapoo Indian Medicine Company to close after the Colonel retired and went to England, would like all the oldtimers who knew the Colonel to pause a minute and reflect on the memory of one of the greatest old men who was ever in the game. To us he was friend, brother and the boss. His advice was golden and his company was a joy. He got his wish to die with his boots on and in the game. He was a trouper in every sense of the word and term. He retired a few years ago wealthy with money made in the medicine game, but like many troupers he could not stay out and went to England. After touring the country he again started the medicine game as a pastime, putting out the Kimee Indian Medicine Company until the big war closed his ten companies he had running.

"Colonel Bigelow dropped dead on the lecture platform in front of 2,000 people at Houston, Tex. The Colonel was 82 years old and he had been talking more than an hour when death came on December 28, 1917.

"Farewell, old friend, farewell!
We have done one bit for you.
"MURDOCK BROTHERS & CO."

(Editor's Note—Dr. J. H. Berry of South Bend, Ind., who traveled with the oldtimer, Colonel Bigelow, has written a very interesting article of the life of Bigelow, which we will include in the Spring Special edition of The Billboard.)

Doc Charles Chester, the Oriental herb man, has been confined to his room in St. Louis for several weeks following an operation which he underwent on one of his eyes. He is doing very nicely.

Mrs. Lloyd Short, wife of the old razor paste worker, is sojourning in Cincinnati.

Mike Goldsmith, one of Dr. McLean's proteges, is now a big light in the carnival game and is at present in the Queen City.

Gentlemen:

Enclosed please find my check for $5.00 to cover renewal of Trades Directory advertisement for the first six months. I also wish to express my indebtedness, to give my view in regard to the EXCELLENT RESULTS I have received from Trades Directory advertising in The Billboard during the past several years. I have been using classified advertising for nearly twenty years in many publications, but to my surprise I have found that your Trades Directory Department has brought me better results than any other publication I have ever used. Respectfully yours,

L. S. KALLAJIAN.

THEATRICAL NOTES

Dave Davidson, property man at the Orpheum and old Grand theaters, Seattle, left recently for Los Angeles to accept a position in one of the motion picture studios in that city. Morris Carberry, "props" at the Pan. house until quite recently, has succeeded him. Stage Manager Tommy Thomas and Electrician Albert McKee are still on the job.

Seattle's city ordinance which prohibits the use of the American flag in theaters and other places of public amusement merely for the purpose of getting applause, has been violated in several instances in the past month by vaudeville acts playing there. So far, tho, nothing has been done to call the acts in question to time.

Robert Hinckman, treasurer of the Empire Hippodrome, Quincy, Ill., has resigned to accept a position on The Quincy Herald.

ROUTES IN ADVANCE

Managers and performers are respectfully requested to contribute their dates to this department. Routes must reach The Billboard not later than Friday of each week to insure publication.

The Billboard forwards all mail for professionals free of charge. Members of the profession are invited, while on the road, to have their mail addressed in care of The Billboard, and it will be forwarded promptly.

"FOLLOW DIRECTIONS" AND YOU HELP WIN THE WAR

You would give your life for your country. You would scorn an American whose patriotism ended with waving flags, cheering the troops and standing up when the band plays. You want to serve your country.

Are you willing to do what your Government asks? Are you willing to follow directions?

Are you so comfortably fixed that you can afford to eat what you please? Ah, but you can't afford to eat what your country needs. FOLLOW DIRECTIONS.

Are you saving now of your slender means all you possibly can? Still as far as your circumstances permit, FOLLOW DIRECTIONS.

Have you servants who can't be made to understand? It is your chore to see that they do. FOLLOW DIRECTIONS.

Follow directions. Today the direction is to save two slices of bread, an ounce of meat, an ounce of sugar, a smitch of butter. Tomorrow, as conditions change, there will be new directions. FOLLOW DIRECTIONS.

Follow directions. If Germany wins you will be obeying orders given by someone you will not care to obey. Your Government asks you to prove that free people can follow directions.

Follow directions. If we fail in this the war will drag on. As we succeed we shall sooner have peace. FOLLOW DIRECTIONS.—

About This Season's New York Successful Productions

OVER THE TOP

We presume that we shall have to concede success to Over the Top.

This GAM (girl and music) show, which featured Justine Johnstone, Craig Campbell, T. Roy Barnes and half a dozen additional headliners, and which was staged by J. C. Huffman, under the personal direction of Lee and J. J. Shubert, was slow in starting. It had to be tinkered with considerably in the beginning.

It had all of the accessories and needful things that a GAM show requires in plenty.

There were pretty girls, tuneful numbers, beautiful costumes and handsome scenic effects galore.

An aeroplane effect, specially invented by Lincoln J. Carter, alone seemed enough to secure instant favor for the attraction, but in spite of this it got away to a poor start, and was only saved by the indomitable determination of the Messrs. Shubert.

It ran 81 performances, and therefore must be cataloged among the successes of the season.

Just what ailed the attraction in the beginning is hard to tell.

No one seemed able to pick it out.

It simply did not pull people to the Roof of the Forty-fourth Street Theater.

In the end it did, but even then it was conceded that another show might do better.—WATCHER.

About This Season's New York Successful Productions

ETHEL BARRYMORE IN THE LADY OF THE CAMELLIAS

Much has been written about this production. It was made over and modernized and then given a splendid production by Iden Payne.

The addition of a prolog and an epilog did not seem to add much to the strength of the play, but as it ran out the full time allotted to it at the Empire it must be credited with scoring a success.

Miss Barrymore has at last had her chance at the role of The Lady of the Camellias, and her handling of it has added new luster to her fame.

The version, however, is not likely to see the road, and, therefore, out-of-town theater managers will not be greatly interested in an expanded analysis and description of it.

The cast was huge and capable.

The costumes were designed by Rollo Peters.

The scenery was also designed by Mr. Peters and executed by Homer Emens.

Miss Barrymore's costumes were designed by O'Kane Conwill—WATCHE.

This delightful comedy by F. Tennyson Jesse and H. M. Harwood is an English importation.

It furnished an excellent evening's entertainment at The Playhouse.

KNIGHT NOT A CANDIDATE

Dallas, Tex., Feb. 1.—E. St. L. Knight, president of the Texas State Fair, mentioned in last week's Billboard as a probable candidate for the Lone Star State's next Governor, stated a few days ago in this city that until the war has been won he has consecrated his time and whatever talent he may possess to the well being of the world has could and let personal ambition swerve him from the line of manifest duty and that he positively would not be a candidate for Governor of Texas.

FAIR BUREAU SUGGESTED

Now that it is necessary for the National Government to keep in touch with the farmers it has been suggested that a Bureau of Fairs be established at Washington. Both the American Association of Fairs and Expositions and the Food Administration believe that such a bureau would be of inestimable value to the Government and the farmers.—Farm and Family Magazine.

France a thollar deficiency has compelled the use of other material, has certainly Germany has been obliged to get along without it. In sea island cotton we have found a pretty good substitute. With regard to the all important driving power there is no longer any doubt. Our Liberty motor is a pronounced success. It works admirably, has in respect of weight his power it has no superior, if any equal. All of its parts, nearly 3,000, are standardized and can be made in many factories, thereby insuring abundance and facility of repair. In the vital matters of suitable lumber properly seasoned and lubricating oil we have done almost as well.

There remains only the question of men. On that point ignorance outside official circles still predominates. We need ten men to each machine. Fliers we are not likely to lack. What is mainly sought is an army of mechanics trained for the peculiar work of keeping our machines going. But America is not the land to suffer long in this particular. Our men have not been backward in mechanical proficiency, and if there are shops enough to make the motors there will be plenty of opportunity for apprentices to learn how to keep them in order.

All this is cause for special rejoicing. What airplanes can do in war is still fully to be demonstrated. They have done much, but no one that has followed their achievements can doubt that their real fighting abilities have still to be tested. While our country was in doubt last spring regarding the fields wherein it would be most effective The Billboard was [illegible] to direct special attention to aviation as holding the biggest promise. The seed then sown fell and no stony ground, and the the harvest has been seen thru a dark glass, has often presented in fantastic form and quantity, so that to some simple souls the garnering may be disproportionate to their hopes, those who have watched silently, patiently and intelligently will suffer no disappointment.

Disclosures now made are unofficial, a fact which warrants satisfaction with them of the most substantial sort. America may not go so far as to win the war by flanking operations in the air. It is likely to do more overhead than Germany has done underseas.

IDEA FOR FAIR SECRETARIES

What appears on the surface as a most excellent suggestion emanates from a well-known Floridian, who is always interesting himself in the welfare of the education of children. The gentleman mentioned was a guest at the Seminole recently, and had just finished reading an account in The Metropolis pertaining to the Red Cross Day at the public schools. "Now that suggests something to me that I've contemplated for some time," said he. "Why not have School Children Instruction Day at our coming State Fair? I would suggest," he continued, "making arrangements for every scholar attending your city schools being compelled to attend the exposition on one special day, being called for attendance at the same hour that their school hour commences, reporting to their teacher at a certain building at the ground bringing their noonday lunch with them and spend the entire day in the company of their teacher, whose duty it would be to show and illustrate to them as far as consistently can be done every sort of an exhibit to be seen. I know it would prove a most novel feature to the children and would give them a practical knowledge of matters pertaining to education that could never be obtained in a school room. The entire day to be consumed in this worthy task with the understanding that the children could utilize the following day for recreation in visiting the shows, the big giant ferris wheel, the flying jinny, the whip, etc.

"I am firmly convinced that the State Fair officials would heartily co-operate with the schools or Board of Education whereby some special features of originality would be installed for the Children's Day."

When the idea was called to the attention of General Manager B. K. Hanafourde, of the State Fair and Exposition, he enthused at the suggestion and stated that he believed the idea a most excellent one and would heartily indorse the same to the Board of Directors.—Jacksonville (Fla.) Times-Union.

The second annual Glenn County Fair, Orland, Cal., will be held September 16-18. Last year the first fair was a big success, enough money being made to purchase fair grounds. All stock corrals, dancing pavilions and other buildings will be built at once. Tents will be used for all general displays. The officers are John J. Flaherty, president and director general; Edward J. Falk, general manager, and E. A. Kirk, secretary.

PICTURES AND EVERYTHING THAT APPERTAINS THERETO

The Billboard was the only paper with courage enough to criticise, prod, sting and burn exhibitors for bad showmanship in the early days when they were so lax. The Billboard led the fight against the filthy film. The Billboard was first to point out the peril of the star system. The Billboard denounced extravagance and waste long before any of its contemporaries even saw them. The Billboard pilloried the advance deposit system alone and unaided while all the other trade papers were busily and discreetly sidestepping the issue. The Billboard has always stood fearlessly for the best interests of the motion picture game. Its criticism has always been constructive, its motives honest and itself disinterested.

Its warnings and advice have gone unheeded.

True—quite true—but—

The game has gone to hell—clean plumb to the dogs.

And that is also true, bo, just as true.

What's the answer?

It is so obvious, so plain, so palpable, so manifest that anyone who can not see, who can not perceive it instantly, is hopelessly skull-bound.

But a truce to what-might-have-been.

What has passed is past. It is dead. Bury it. Bury it deep.

We are facing the future.

We are facing rebuilding.

Let us lay down a solid foundation.

Let us recognize that the exhibitor's welfare is fundamental—that his interests come first and that this must be carefully considered and fully safe-guarded or we will rebuild to no purpose.

Gentlemen, a toast. The Billboard gives you "The Exhibitor First."

METRO HAS NEW COMPANY TO PRODUCE BIG FEATURES

Will Be Known as Screen Classics, Inc., and Will Handle All the Big Productions—New Departure Made Necessary by Metro's Great and Uninterrupted Success

New York, Feb. 2.—Verifying its announcement of several weeks ago that Metro intends to go after the leadership of the motion picture field on the merit of its productions the Metro group has organized, and, within the week, will incorporate a new company, to be known as Screen Classics, Inc., which will acquire, produce and present big feature productions which will be distributed thru the Metro Pictures Corporation.

Screen Classics, Inc., will be composed of some of the men prominently identified with the present Metro organization, together with others who have now associated themselves with them for the larger activities of the new company. The stock of Screen Classics, Inc., will not be offered to the public.

The new concern will handle all of the big special productions up to the point of distribution, and will control all of the superpictures which Metro has already demonstrated its ability to produce.

Screen Classics, Inc., is the natural outgrowth of Metro's entrance into the field of first, second and third-run productions, as well as theater runs of a longer period. Beginning with The Slacker and Draft 258, Metro's line of big production successes has been unbroken. Blue Jeans, with Viola Dana; The Legion of Death, with Edith Storey; Lest We Forget, with Rita Jolivet, and now Revelation, with Nazimova, and the Drews in the big five-act feature novelty, Pay Day, made a special company necessary because of the new, big productions already in preparation. The big-run picture requires time and care in manufacture and a hand-picked organization which will devote its exclusive attention to these greater works.

President Richard A. Rowland, of Metro, in speaking of the new company, said: "Metro's larger requirements made a big feature producing and handling company necessary, as Metro has only begun on its great schedule, carefully outlined and prepared during the last eight months. Proceeding on the Metro policy of being sure of our ground before entering upon any enlargement of our activities, we have made haste slowly but surely. The new company will make great pictures, some with big stars and some without. The essential dramatic necessity, the play, will in each case be the guide and aim.

"The public demand for really great productions led us to make The Slacker. Its success corresponded to our idea of its possibilities, and the other big productions have followed. These have succeeded even beyond our hopes, and they have proved to us that care, time and skill can satisfy the most critical market. Big theme subjects, great dramas, unusual spectacles and the larger comedies require the utmost care in preparation as well as in the actual production. We have found that this care and attention is so much worth while that the productions are to have even more of it.

"Metro is building permanently, and the new, big organization will insure the continuance of great productions for Metro to market to the exhibitor. Metro would never have called on first, second and third run exhibitors to break the shackles and run their own theaters if Metro did not intend to supply the productions enabling the exhibitor to make money and maintain his business independence."

CLUNE'S ATTRACTIONS

To Tour Canada as Road Shows

New York, Feb. 2.—W. H. Clune's two big features, The Eyes of the World and Ramona will have one of the most elaborate presentations thruout Canada of any pictures that have been sent into the dominion, according to Chas. H. Haystead, representative of the A. J. Small Circuit of Canadian theaters, who is in New York completing plans for the exploitation of the pictures. Both features are to be shown with special scenic, musical and lighting effects in all the principal theaters.

The plans for the exploitation of the Clune successes were arranged by the Arrow Film Corporation. For the past few weeks conferences have been going on between the Arrow officials and a group of Canadian capitalists, who have entered the motion picture field of the dominion with an unusually fine equipment to do big things. It was decided at these conferences to start activities with the two big Clune pictures, and to give them the most elaborate presentation possible in all the principal theaters. To accomplish this the resources of Clune and the Arrow Film Corporation were placed at the disposal of Haystead and the Canadian organization.

WARREN PRODUCTIONS

To Be Sold Thru Arrow Film Corp.

New York, Feb. 2.—Edward Warren, who recently signed a long term contract with the Arrow Film Corporation, will shortly begin work on his first superfeature under the new arrangement.

Mr. Warren said in discussing plans for the future: "First of all the Warren productions of the future will be the result of the co-operation of some of the most intelligent brains in the motion picture business; in fact you might say co-operation is our slogan, for we are co-operating in everything from the selection of the story to the filming and marketing of the finished picture. We shall decide within the next few days on the first picture. This will be selected from several big stories that we have options on, and production will commence immediately afterwards."

Souls Redeemed and Weavers of Life, the last two Warren productions, have been taken over by Arrow Film for distribution.

HEADS NEW CONCERN

Chicago, Feb. 2.—The Better Films Clearing House, an enterprise aiming at supplying quality films for schools and churches, has been opened in conjunction with the Atlas Educational Film Company. Mrs. Frederick Michael, chief sponsor for the better films movement, which has earned the hearty support of most of the influential film exchanges, is in charge. Her work, extending over four seasons, in conjunction with a committee of women interested in the Chicago Women's Clubs, has culminated in lists of semi-educational features so arranged that the best works of the various manufacturers are embraced. No picture has been included that was not passed upon personally by Mrs. Michaels or members of her committee.

The work has already resulted in the adoption of motion picture courses as part of the daily scholastic curriculum in several high schools. The connection with the Atlas concern, which for many years supplied all maps for Chicago public schools, was entered into January 1.

SELLING CAMPAIGN

Inaugurated for Public Defender Film Shows Quick Results

New York, Feb. 2.—The selling power of Harry Raver's production of Mayer Gohlman's book, The Public Defender, with Frank Keenan, Robert Edeson and Alma Hanlon in stellar roles, has been proven by the number of territorial sales already consummated, altho Renowned Pictures Corp. has just recently started its exploitation campaign.

Walter E. Greene bought New York State for his Modern Feature Film Co., Hiram Abrams secured the New England territory for the Boston Photoplay Co., Turner & Dahnken, franchise holders in the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, take over California, Arizona and Nevada, the Doll-Van Co. has secured Illinois and Indiana, Thomas Hamlin, the Minnesota theater owner, gets Minnesota, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota; Independent Film & Theatre Supply Co. of Montreal has Canada. Other contracts, embracing a number of additional territories, are out awaiting signatures.

Renowned Pictures Corp. predicts a complete sale of the United States territory in record breaking time.

NEW FILM COMPANY

Starts Operations in Denver, Col.

Denver, Col., Feb. 2.—The National Film Company, a new million-dollar corporation backed by G. D. Woodward and associates, opened its doors last week with a gigantic benefit dance and reception to the Denver public. This is the first film company of any size to begin operations in Colorado. Woodward, who is well known in the theatrical world as a director of stock companies, and who, for several years, has been the moving spirit and manager of the Denham Stock Company, is directing the affairs of the new company.

The old Tuileries Park, at one time one of the leading amusement parks of Denver and Colorado, located in Englewood, a suburb of Denver, has been taken over and an enormous building has been erected to house the new company. The large and spacious grounds of the old park form a most desirable place for the staging of various kinds of film dramas.

A number of prominent Denver business men are stockholders in the new corporation and are pushing its activities with vigor.

MANITOBA BANS COMEDY FILMS

Winnipeg, Can., Feb. 2.—Comedy films have been banned by Manitoba's Censor Board. The board maintains that the films of a lighter vein are liable to make the public frivolous.

AS THE EXHIBITOR SEES IT

Under this caption we propose to publish the views and expressions of opinion of exhibitors from all parts of the country. We confidently believe that the personal and candid opinions of representative exhibitors as to the present status of the motion picture industry, and especially suggestions for the betterment of present conditions affecting them, will be read and appreciated by exhibitors everywhere.

Will YOU do your part by sending us a brief right-to-the-point expression of your views, together with a short summary of conditions as they obtain in your locality? Your co-operation in this connection will result to the mutual advantage of all exhibitors reading this column.

Your letter will be published in the order in which it is received as space in this department permits.

Address all communications to MOVING PICTURE EDITOR, care Billboard, Cincinnati, O.

Virginia exhibitors have good grounds on which to raise a howl about the proposed Board of Censors. The censors of Manitoba, Can., have ruled that no comedy films are to be shown in that province from now on, as it might have a tendency to make the people frivolous. Squid essence of squid!

A novel method of stimulating attendance and interest in pictures generally has been adopted by Manager Joseph Gross of the Standard Theater in Cleveland. Gross offered three cash prizes for the best speeches Hart is supposed to have made in the fifth reel of his Two Gun Man. The contest lasted until Monday.

George Moore, manager of the Orpheum Theater, Chicago, gives some hints on effective lobby display: "For a theater located like the Orpheum the front of the house display is the most important factor from a box office standpoint next to the reputation of the star. If you don't spread the star's name so that people can see it from across the street you are going to miss fifty per cent of the transients. After you get the people to cross the street it is the photographic stills that will pull them into the house. If the photographs show something original or daring in the picture, and the star, if a girl, is seen in fetching costume or romantic situation, you can count on a good house. The name of the star will bring them to the lobby, but stills pull them in."

Madam Who, the first Bessie Barriscale-Paralta feature, was held over at Clune's Auditorium, Los Angeles, for the second week.

Picture theaters in Canton, O., are being liberally patronized in spite of the weather and war tax. Some of the features played there recently are Geraldine Farrar, in The Woman God Forgot, to immense business; Mary Garden, in Thais, was well received, and also Intolerance, but the Farrar picture proved to be the big success thus far.

All theaters and picture houses at Macomb, Ill., have been closed for fifteen days, owing to an epidemic of smallpox. The theaters affected are the Chandler, Tokyo and Grand.

The Knickerbocker Theater, Philadelphia, formerly running dramatic stock, went into pictures last week, with a [illegible] Concert Organ and Orchestra accompaniment to all photoplays.

Two popular motion picture playhouses in East Liberty, Pittsburg, Pa., have announced new policies. The Regent Theater of the Rowland & Clark chain will limit engagements to two days, with an occasional four-day attraction, instead of twice weekly, as at the present time. The Alhambra will establish a policy of showing a series of superfeatures of seven and eight reels in length. Each of these productions will be shown three days instead of two as heretofore.

The Huntington Avenue Theater, Boston, started a new policy last week in the form of a three-hour program of feature films, taking the place of the former policy of vaudeville and pictures. There are now two full programs daily, starting at 2 and 7 o'clock, with changes Wednesday and Sunday.

Mrs. Harold F. Moore and her daughter, Janet, are in San Francisco, from Calgary, Can., where Moore is manager for the Famous Players. Mrs. Moore is the daughter of Meyer J. Cohen, branch manager of the George Kleine System.

The Grauman Theater, which is the latest photoplay palace in Los Angeles, was opened on February 1 with William S. Hart's production, The Silent Man. Following this attraction the house has booked the features of Douglas Fairbanks, Marguerite Clark, Sessue Hayakawa, Charles Ray, Pauline Frederick, Jack Pickford, Enid Bennett, Dorothy Dalton, Julian Eltinge, George Beban and Billie Burke.

Picture houses at Hartford, Conn., are doing a big business. Manager True of the Strand donated his house, ran a film program headed by William Farnum in Fox's feature, The Conqueror, for a benefit for the Social Settlement Fund, and over $2,000 was realized, as tickets were $1. Manager Ascough ran Olive Thomas in Indiscreet Corrinne and Carmel Myers in The Wife He Bought. Both films went big at Poli's Palace.

The Cincinnati-Columbus Amusement Company was incorporated in Columbus, O., last Tuesday, for $10,000, to operate a picture theater in Columbus. The Company was incorporated by I. Libson, manager of the Strand Theater, Cincinnati, and others.

The Wichita Film and Supply Co. reports that show business in Kansas is very bad, some of the houses being compelled to close up two and three nights a week. It must be bad, as Kansas generally is a good State for shows.

E. S. Leland has bought a new motor-driven picture machine for his theater in Troy, Kan.

Frank Thompson says: "If you use flour paste in pasting paper in winter, to keep it from freezing throw a handful of salt into the pail. In summer the paste will not spoil if you put a piece of blue vitriol in it about the size of the end of your thumb; pulverize it. Rye flour makes a good paste, but half rye and half corn starch makes the best. Lye paste eats the printing from the paper and should never be used."

The Empress Theater, Geary, Ok., is doing a big business under the management of R. F. Bono, who also has a picture house in Shattuck, Ok.

Abe Frankenstein, formerly director of the Empire Hippodrome Orchestra, Quincy, Ill., is now a native of Los Angeles, Cal., where he is director of the Orpheum Orchestra, and also a Fire Commissioner for the city.

Guiding the destinies of the Isis Theater, Lynchburg, Va., is a genuine showman—Guy E. Barrett, formerly prominent in Washington, D. C., film circles. Since Mr. Barrett took over the reins of the Isis the theater has known unprecedented prosperity. He came on the job and looked the theater over with the eye of a showman, saw what was lacking and immediately supplied it. His first step was to rearrange the stage setting; this, when completed, will be the same as the one painted by the Lee Lash Studios for the Rivoli in New York. He is having an organ installed, and the best music will be supplied. Ralph Ewery, an organist of recognized ability, has been secured. Ewery until recently was one of the premier organists of the Queen City.

Mary Pickford, in her latest Artcraft picture, Stella Maris, drew big houses at the Stanley Theater, Philadelphia, last week.

Tom Soriero, the popular exhibitor at the Park Theater, Boston, is having his troubles with his light bills, as are several other exhibitors here. Tom says: "We have curtailed our light one-third lately, but our bill from the electric light company is just as large. That's something that I'd like to have explained."

Pathe has opened a branch office in Oklahoma City, Ok., and is doing nicely. Pathe has a fine trade in Oklahoma and needed a branch badly.

William Hart, in Wolves of the Rail, first time showing at the Arcadia Theater, Philadelphia, did immense business. This house is one of the most beautiful photoplay theaters in the country.

Miss Pemberton White, owner of the Strand Theater property, Spokane, which was recently damaged by fire, will have the structure razed and a business block will be erected in its stead. As a theater the house has been a losing proposition for some time.

Tom Soriero, the popular exhibitor at the Park Theater, Boston, one of the finest picture houses there, must lie awake nights devising schemes for the advertising of his house, which probably is the cause of the fine business Soriero is enjoying. Last week he came across with a new one in the form of a puzzle, called the T-Zer, which he presented to all of his patrons. The puzzle is made up of four pieces of cardboard, and the thing is to place the four pieces together so they will form a perfect T. If any of the readers would like to try a real brain teaser just write to Mr. Soriero and he will send the puzzle.

Shipping conditions are certainly in a bad condition in Eastern Pennsylvania, films are constantly being held up. Were it not for the parcel post system many exhibitors would be without shows entirely.

American Films have come in for severe criticism at the hands of the editor of The Lourenco Marques Guardian, of East Africa. Thru the Commerce Report the text of the complaint is: "The Lourenco Marques Guardian in two recent issues has severely criticised some American motion picture films which were shown here. One was condemned on the ground that it would lead foreign audiences to believe that in the United States it is a common thing for ex-convicts to become chiefs of police. There has been reason in many instances for an erroneous impression to be created in the minds of those who have been schooled under different systems of thought and government, and an American, even with a saving sense of humor, would not hesitate to condemn films of this kind as a misrepresentation of his country. Many persons abroad criticise an American film when it attempts to give a representation of court scenes without the proper surroundings, or causes the police to be represented without dignity or discipline and as instruments to defeat justice. Another picture was characterized as a 'rank and evil smelling' illustration of American justice and 'either a blot or a libel.' The film feature to which the paper referred misrepresented the uniformly high sense of justice which is characteristic of the American people, the bar and judiciary . . . ."

Convicted of violating one of the clauses of the cinematograph act by permitting advertising matter to be displayed above the main entrance to his theater John Mishinick, manager of the Grand Opera House, London, Ont., was fined $20 and costs by Magistrate Graydon in Police Court. E. W. M. Flock, who defended Mishinick, intimated that an appeal would immediately be entered against the magistrate's decision. This case was heard in court a week ago, when the magistrate reserved judgment in order to consult certain authorities. The first information laid contained the words, "advertising streamer." The defense maintained that as the advertising had been painted on canvas and the canvas tacked in a frame it was not a "streamer." The magistrate permitted the information to be amended to read "advertising matter."

In the campaign for a greater sale of Thrift Stamps in Cleveland the exhibitors will pull off a strong advertising drive by using plenty of slides, and later they will sell the little Liberty planters. A committee of the Motion Picture League of Cleveland has been formed to work out the details. On the committee are: Chairman, B. W. Rueben; Emory Downs, Knickerbocker Theater; Henry Lustig, president of the league; M. A. Malaney, Ohio Moving Picture Bulletin.

The Royal Theater at Medford, Ok., has closed again. Quite a few live-wire managers have tried to make a go of this house, but they all fail in a very short time. The house used to be a paying one, but since the war it does not get the business. However, the Avon, managed by Mr. King, seating 250, does a nice business.

At Peterboro, Can., the Royal Theater was completely destroyed by fire January 26.

As an example of the farsighted policy which some of the big lumbering concerns in the North west are showing in the matter of providing for the comfort and well being of the thousands engaged in the forests and mill camps in this State, the Clear Lake Lumber Company, Clear Lake, Washington, has just built a splendid modern theater and clubhouse costing $25,000. The two buildings and the grounds were donated without cost to the 800 employees of the company. The theater proper is used once a week for dancing parties, which are held under the direction of the Skagit Club, an organization formed by the employees of the lumber company. The furniture and furnishings of both theater and clubhouse are right up to the minute. Dues and receipts from the shows held in the theater pay for the upkeep of the two buildings. Every member of the mill belongs to the Loyal Legion of Loggers. Due to the humane manner in which these employees are treated, it may be said in passing, this was the only mill in the State that was able to operate 100 per cent efficient during the I. W. W. trouble last summer.

D. W. Griffith's Birth of a Nation had its first presentation at popular prices at the Palace Theater, Philadelphia, and drew large attendance.

J. H. Cooper of Topeka, Kan., has completed plans for the erection of a three-story building in Wichita, Kan., housing a theater. The building will cost about $85,000.

Conditions are keeping Paul D. Hollen, manager of the Grand Theater at Philippi, W. Va., on the jump, and he says he hasn't even got time to talk about his troubles. He's one of those boys who are with it and for it.

C. C. Viles, of Vinton, Ia., is arranging his outfit, intending to again take out his auto truck picture tent show, making one and two-night stands in Iowa, Minnesota and Illinois.

The new opera house at Parker, Kan., was destroyed by fire recently, incurring a severe loss, as no insurance was carried.

Harry D. Weydt, the picture operator, is now located at River Falls, Wis., with his family. This winter he is training some dogs, a pony and a monkey. It might be a circus, or something, you never can tell.

Week of January 28 the films shown at the leading Toronto, Can., houses were: Massey Hall, Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea; Royal Alexandra, Cleopatra, with Theda Bara; The Allen, Douglas Fairbanks in A Modern Musketeer; Shea's Hippodrome, Mrs. Vernon Castle in Sylvia of the Secret Service; Loew's, The Mousman, and Mary Garden in Thais, Edward Earle and Betty Howe in Blind Adventure at the Madison.

FILMS REVIEWED

THE OTHER MAN

Five-reel Blue Ribbon Vitagraph feature. Released February 4.

THE CAST:

John Stedman	Harry Morey
Dorothy Harmon	Grace Darmond
Lucia	Florence Deshon
The Political Boss	Frank Norcross
Mrs. Ralston	Jessie Stevens
Canfield	Stanley Walpole
Aunt Isabel	Mrs. Chaplin
Author	Rex Taylor
Director	Paul Scardon

A beard is a great camouflage. It disguised John Stedman so completely that even the girl who loved him failed to recognize him during weeks of intimate association.

The Other Man has a theme that is at times highly improbable, but it is usually entertaining nevertheless.

The hero is a famous surgeon, whose wife has the execrable taste to permit her husband's friend to take her to a masked ball, and then to his own apartments, when her husband is suddenly called to Boston on a surgical case. But the doctor returns unexpectedly.

A few years later, ragged and dissolute, he is made the protege of a political boss, who fears assassination and who learns by chance that the tramp is a surgeon. Stedman, now known as Martin West, becomes personal bodyguard to the boss and takes up his abode in a cheap lodging house, in which Dorothy Harmon, an heiress, on a wager of $10,000 that she can live independently a month in the slums, comes as slavey. When she wins the $10,000 she has the money secretly transferred to the surgeon, who goes to another city, and, under his real name, builds anew a reputation. When he operates on Dorothy's aunt the girl doesn't recognize him, and when he woos her she informs him there is another man for whom she is going back to the slums to wait.

It is conventional movie entertainment, but it does entertain because of the human interest touches, good direction and sympathetic characterization.—M. D.

BROKEN TIES

Five-reel World feature, Brady-Made. For release week of February 2.

THE CAST:

Marcia Fleming	June Elvidge
John Fleming	Montagu Love
Arnold Curtis	Arthur Ashley
Corinne La Force	Pinna Nesbit
Mrs. Fleming	Kate Lester
Henry Hasbrook	Alec B. Francis
Mr. La Force	Arthur Matthews
Mammy Liza	Frances Miller
Author	Wooldridge Clapp
Director	Arthur Ashley
Photographer	Jacques Monteran

Art has not been sacrificed to sentiment in this new World picture play, which has been constructed with an unusual degree of realism. It is not a happy play, but it is an absorbing one, finely acted.

Montagu Love appears as an idealistic lawyer, whose theories that the relations between lawyer and client are so sacred that no personal interest should temper them are put to a severe test when his friend is arrested for murder, and investigation of a taxi clue leads him to the knowledge that his wife and friend were dining together in a roadside inn at the time the murder was committed and that his mother was seen in the room with the dead man, the mark of a bloody hand on her coat.

June Elvidge plays with her usual skill the role of the lawyer's wife and Montagu Love, Arthur Ashley and Pinna Nesbit do splendid work. Broken Ties should be a success, because of its strong dramatic theme and fine characterizations. Photography, settings and backgrounds are up to the standard of Brady-Mades.—M. D.

HELENE CHADWICK

Pathe star, featured in The Naulahka.

THE FIGHTING GRIN

Five-reel Bluebird photoplay. Written by R. B. Bradbury and F. H. Clark. Scenario by Charles Kenyon.

THE CAST:

Margie Meredith	Edith Johnson
Billy Kennedy	Franklyn Farnum
Harold De Vandeveer	J. Morris Foster
Otis Kennedy	Charles Mailes
Amos Meredith	Fred Montague
Director	Joseph De Grasse

The Fighting Grin is farce of the merriest kind.

Billy Kennedy's father and Margie Meredith's father are bitter enemies, but Billy's father has a sense of humor and Meredith hasn't. Whenever Billy plans to elope with Margie one of the parents interferes. Eventually he makes a wager with Kennedy, pere, that he will have married Margie within a week.

If the father had played fairly there wouldn't have been anything to it. But he didn't. He listened. So when Billy and Margie board a train bound for Silverton, where both families had ranches, Billy is lured away to look after their baggage, is bound and gagged and dumped into a freight car. He makes his escape, is held up by a Mexican bandit, who has just robbed the Silverton saloon and is made to give up his clothes as a disguise for the Mexican who later appropriates the garb of a clergyman and officiates at the wedding of Margie and the bridegroom of her father's choosing.

Meanwhile Billy, in the bandit's discarded clothing, is creating consternation wherever he appears.

Franklyn Farnum's fighting grin is given character by the determined chin beneath it, and he plays the role of the happy and persistent Billy so well that, amusing as are the situations in which he finds himself, they always have a certain dignity and plausibility. A good supporting cast, clever direction and happily selected backgrounds help to make The Fighting Grin vastly entertaining.—M. D.

Scene in W. H. Clune's big production, The Eyes of the World. Released by Arrow Film Corporation on State Rights basis.

NEW LOVE FOR OLD

Five-reel Universal feature. For release Feb. 11.

THE CAST:

Kenneth Scott	Emory Johnson
Marie Beauchamp	Gretchen Lederer
Ben Sawyer	Winter Hall
Daphne Sawyer	Ella Hall
Doc Podden	Harry Holden
Louis Bracchi	E. A. Warren
Author	Waldemar Young
Director	Elsie Jane Wilson

Kenneth Scott, spending the summer in the mountains, fancied he loved Marie Beauchamp, whom he had just met and of whom he knew nothing. That day he woke up, for he learned that beautiful Marie was already married and that she was opening a roadhouse. So he accepted the invitation of a mountain poet, Doc Podden, to spend some time in the hills. There he meets innocent Daphne Sawyer, 17, and cruelly suppressed by her severe, self righteous father. There is a country dance, and there are comedy touches in the disapproving interest of the country people in the roadhouse, and there is a realistic fight in Doc Podden's cabin between Scott and Bracchi, the brutal servant of Daphne's father.

Gretchen Lederer is beautiful as the old love, and Ella Hall makes Daphne, the quickly-acquired new love, a winsome nymph of the woods. Emory Johnson makes Scott convincing as the lover quick to change his heart, and the work of Harry Holden, as Doc Podden, and Winter Hall, as the father, is particularly good. The photography is fine.—M. D.

TARZAN OF THE APES

National Film superfeature. Released at the Broadway Theater, New York, week of January 27. From the novel by Edgar Rice Burroughs.

THE CAST:

Tarzan, the Boy	Gordon Griffith
His Father	True Boardman
His Mother	Kathleen Kirkham
Jane Porter	Enid Markey
Professor Porter, her father	Thomas Jefferson
The Bar Maid	Bessie Toner
Binns	George French
Captain of the Fuwalda	Jack Wilson
Greystoke's Brother	Colin Kenny
Greystoke's Father	Colin Kenny
and
Tarzan, the Man	Elmo Lincoln
Director	Scott Sidney

Edgar Rice Burroughs' fascinating story of the nobleman's son, who, nursed by a giant ape, grew up in the African jungle to noble manhood, unharmed by wild beasts, has been given a wonderful presentation by the National Film Corporation. We use the word wonderful advisedly. The jungle, with lions and leopards stalking their prey, the apes making in different fashion from the safety of the tree tops, jumping from tree to tree, the tropical storm, the primitive fights between Tarzan and the lion and Tarzan and the cannibals are some of the features that thrill. In addition there is a story of engrossing interest, superbly acted.

The work of Gordon Griffith, the youngster who plays Tarzan, the Boy, of ten, is incredibly clever. There is never a trace of self-consciousness in his acting, and, whether seeking adventures on his own account and glorying in his triumphs over his less cunning enemies, or creeping back to the comforting arms of Kala, the ape mother, when he is wounded, he plays with wholesouled abandon. Indeed, one of the wonders of the picture is Gordon Griffith.

Elmo Lincoln's work is as delightful as Tarzan, the Man. The producers used the good judgment to select for the boy and the man types that were identical, so that Tarzan at 20 looks out from his tree tops with the same kind of eyes and the same kind of hair and the same type of features as the boy.

The story, which was first published in a magazine, then in book form, and afterwards syndicated for publication in newspapers thruout the country, relates the history of the son of the Earl of Greystoke, whose father and mother, and in the African jungle, died when he was not then a year old. The infant was adopted by Kala, an ape, whose dead baby was substituted for the living Earl, while in England the former Earl's brother has married a barmaid, who is determined that her son shall be Earl of Greystoke.

When a sailor brings word to England that the real Earl of Greystoke is living with the apes and is 10 years old she has the sailor placed in a sanitarium, where he remains for 10 years, until a vengeful maid helps him to escape. The story is closely followed in the search for Tarzan, and his curiosity regarding the first white girl he has ever seen, and for whom he fights fiercely.

All of the characterizations are good. Kathleen Kirkham immediately won the liking of the Broadway audience. The costumes and customs of the time in which the story is laid have been faithfully reproduced. The animal stuff is great. An elephant friend of Tarzan's shows how easy it is to get fuel by uprooting a tree just for the fun of it. Tarzan of the Apes is easily worth the dollar admission charged.—M. D.

COUNTERFEIT CLUES

Second two-reel feature in The Price of Folly Series. Released by Pathe.

THE CAST:

Cynthia Stanton	Ruth Roland
George Ryder	Frank Mayo
Oliver Kent	Robyn Adair
Perry De Long	Neal Hardin
Mrs. Stanton	Ruth Lackaye

Everybody pays for the folly of a flirt in this second of Pathe's new two-reel features.

Cynthia Stanton, engaged to a Secret Service man, flirts with a wealthy young idler, transfers her attentions to a counterfeiter who is rescued by her fiance when his boat is blown up by a bomb placed in his camera by a confederate with whom he has quarreled, and breaks her engagement when the Secret Service man goes after the counterfeiter.

She warns the counterfeiter, who hurries to his cave and blows it up at the moment the Secret Service man is entering it. The counterfeiter is captured, nevertheless, and when the girl goes to the jail to reassure the man who had killed her former fiance of her faith his wife arrives.

The picture is presented in a way that holds suspense. Characterizations are excellent.—M. D.

HIS HIDDEN PURPOSE

Two-reel Paramount-Mack Sennett comedy.

THE CAST:

The Girl	Marie Prevost
The Villain	Chester Conklin
The Father	Gene Rogers
The Sweetheart	Neal Burns
The Boarding House Keeper	Frank Cooper

Automobile races in a furious windstorm and thru a raging river that is deep enough to cover the cars and their occupants furnish one of the amazing episodes of this liveliest of Sennett comedies. The fun is so fast that the laughs tumble over each other from start to finish.

Words can not describe this picture. At least a few words can't. The educated cat returns for a moment, and a wickedly educated sheep has the center of the screen for a time. There are elopements and kidnapings; the girl's sweetheart, disguised as a vamp, with father and the boarding house keeper rivals for his favor and there is a pool of matchless beauty, where the heroine goes for her daily plunge, and the sheep eats her clothes and she steals the villain's togs, and the villain is left with only a barrel to wear, and the sheep butts in.

The comedy ends in a big climax, with the villain foiled at the moment when he thinks he had triumphed.—M. D.

FLARE-UP SAL

Five-reel Ince-Paramount picture. Story by J. G. Hawks. Released at the Rialto Theater New York, week of January 27.

THE CAST:

Flare-Up Sal	Dorothy Dalton
The Red Rider	Thurston Hall
Dandy Dave Hammond	William Conklin
Tin Cup Casey	J. P. Lockney
Lige Higbee	Milton Ross
Director	Roy William Neill

When the Red Rider, discarding his borrowed clerical garb for his picturesque togs as a highwayman, said, "I'm coming for you, Flare-Up Sal," a man in the audience at the Rialto Monday afternoon exclaimed emphatically, "I don't blame him." That is how Dorothy Dalton's newest character study pleased the Rialto crowd.

As Flare-Up Sal she has an altogether different type of character from any she had previously played. She first appears in cotton frock singing joyously as she rides ahead of the prairie wagon in which the family by which she had been adopted was driving from the South to the California gold fields in the days of '49. In the little frontier town where they camp for the night the man gambles away the outfit, which is returned to him when Sal gambles with the saloon proprietor to decide whether she shall remain at the saloon as a dancer so as to win Pa and Maw. She stays, has the violent temper that brooks no familiarities win her the nickname of Flare-Up and the respect of the rough habitues of the house.

The Red Rider holds up a coach. Anxious to see Flare-Up Sal, of whose beauty he has heard, he takes a preacher who tried to run away when the coach was held up back to his cabin in the mountains, and, with the parson's clothes and papers, goes to the little town, ostensibly to assume charge of a church, but really to see Flare-Up. The quarrel between the church and saloon factions and its culmination make up a story not new in theme, but exciting. Thurston Hall is a jaunty Red Rider, and the entire cast is capable.—M. D.

MADAME JEALOUSY

Five-reel Paramount picture. Released week of February 3.

THE CAST:

Madame Jealousy	Pauline Frederick
Valor	Thomas Meighan
Finance	Frank Losee
Commerce	Charles Wellesley
Pride	Isabelle O'Madigan
Charm	Elsie McCloud
Display	Ina Rourke
Mischief	Frances Cappelano
Sorrow	Grace Barton
Treachery	Edwin Sturgis
Rumor	Marcia Harris
Good Nature	J. K. Murray
Director	Robert Vignola

George V. Hobart, author of Experience, has written another allegorical drama, this time for the screen. Human passions are shown at their work of spoiling human lives, all the while they are welcomed by their victims. Paramount has given the play a magnificent production. From the moment when Jealousy, sister of Satan, is born and takes up her dwelling place in the House of the Heavy Hours to the final scene, when she is roused to life again by the promises of "foolish lovers," the picture is artistic, dramatic, weird.

Jealousy in her exotic palace hears the vows of Charm and Valor, and has her handmaiden, Mischief, bring her a mirror, in which she sees the lovers, by some clever trick of the photographer's art. At their wedding she follows the wedding party down the aisle of the church, and lingers always near, trying to get a foothold in their lives. When the husband lover finds in his effects the picture of an old sweetheart, whose name was Forgotten, he regards it reminiscently, and, when Charm appears by his side, places it in the drawer of his desk.

It is Jealousy's opportunity, and she seeks the most of it. She leads Charm to the desk, where the picture is hidden, and she finds in the loving inscription of other days proof of present disloyalty. And when Charm has gone the Valor finds with the lilies on his table a card inscribed, "To Little Sweetheart," he is ready to believe Jealousy's suggestion that the real excuse for Charm's departure was another man.

And so Jealousy sends her sister, Sorrow, to be Charm's daily companion, and leads Valor to depths of degradation, until Treachery tries to persuade him he may find peace in the waters of the river. Even the parents are willing victims of Jealousy, and both Commerce, father of Charm, and Finance, father of Valor, use Treachery to ruin each other.

The bedroom scene preceding the birth of happiness might have been eliminated with good effect, but that is a detail. The wonderful photography, exquisite settings and superb characterizations with the unusual and absorbing story make up a feature of extraordinary beauty.

Seven years installing Projection Machines. Fees reasonable. EXPERT ADVICE as to Projection and Equipment. Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

A patriotic appeal to mothers is made in this play of the Southland, which has caught the atmosphere of the South so accurately that it makes a Southerner homesick.

Helen Morrison is a slacker mother. Having devoted her wealth and care to the bringing up and educating of her son in the best traditions of their fine old family she then tries to kill all his nobility of spirit. On his twenty-first birthday war is declared and a flame of patriotism sweeps thru the little Southern town. But the slacker mother's boy is not allowed to enlist. His mother's death would be upon his shoulders if he did. So he stays at home while the others go. Then comes conscription and the boy is one of the first to be drafted, but the mother, determined to save him for herself, changes the date of his birth certificate, and declares he is under age. Other mothers' sons may go, but not hers. The contempt of her neighbors is nothing to this proud woman compared to the safety of her son. But she doesn't keep him. He leaves home and enlists under another name, and the mother has an unhappy time trying to make reparation.

Effie Shannon, in manner and dress, is a perfect type of Southern woman and Niles Welch is a prepossessing hero. All the characterizations are excellent, that of Pauline Curley, as the Southern girl, being particularly pleasing. The picture will be liked for its timely theme, its tensely dramatic situations and for colorful atmosphere.—M. D.

A MOTHER'S SIN

Five-reel Blue Ribbon Vitagraph feature. Released January 28.

THE CAST:

Patrick Yardley	Earle Williams
Celia Graham	Miriam Miles
Mr Yardley	Ernest Maupain
Vincent Tessler	Denton Vane
Rev. Francis Vivian	Fred Peters
Maxton	Charles Horton
Rosa	Louise Du Pre
Mrs. Hyde	Eleanor Lawson
Author	Hilda Sharpe
Director	Tom Mills

Indirectly A Mother's Sin is an incentive to patriotism. One feels, after seeing the play, a new detestation of an enemy that would destroy a land of such charming customs, such interesting people and such beautiful homes. The picture has but one jarring note that we recall at the moment—the title.

All of the scenes are laid in England. Patrick Yardley, son of a rich land owner, acquires a lot of debts and then goes home to Malden Hall to ask his father to pay them. But the old man's wife had deserted him when Patrick was an infant, and he explains the revenge he has planned for years—to purposely allow Patrick to ruin himself in the complacent belief that his father's wealth was his, then to cast him off. But Patrick has his mother's pride and he proceeds to sell his personal effects to settle his debts.

Yardley learns of the disgraceful conduct of his nephew, to whom he has willed his estate, and, in a revulsion of feeling, makes a new will, which he hides in a book just before his death. The nephew gets the estate, but is constantly blackmailed by a former valet of Patrick's.

Earle Williams, as Patrick Yardley, is a magnetic hero, and he is supported by a cast of excellent players, with pretty Miriam Miles as the fiancee. Familiar scenes in London are effectively used in the early part of the picture, and an exciting fox hunt helps out the atmosphere of English country life.

A Mother's Sin—except for the title—is a picture play that will please.—M. D.

PHANTOM RIDERS

Five-reel Jewell picture. Released at Broadway Theater, New York, week of January 20.

THE CAST:

Dave Bland	Bill Gettinger
Pebble Grant	Buck Connor
Molly	Molly Malone
Cheyenne Harry	Harry Carey
The Unknown	Vester Pegg
Anthat	Henry McRae
Scenario by	George Hively
Director	Jack Ford

Cheyenne Harry is just as game and picturesquely daring as ever, but in Phantom Riders he commits the supreme folly of judgment in driving his herd of cattle into Paradise Valley without arranging for reinforcements to be within S. O. S. calling distance. His folly costs him his entire herd, but it compensates by providing a picture of the Wild West that will delight lovers of hard fighting and hard riding.

Paradise Valley is Government land, a place of great natural beauty, that, according to the statutes, provides free grazing. According to the laws of the cattlemen in the vicinity trespassing is punishable by death. When Cheyenne Harry, knowing the customs of the place, arrives with his cattle, the cattlemen, masked and looking much like Ku Klux Klan riders, gather from many miles, and, at the command of their leader, drive Cheyenne's cattle away—to death. Cheyenne is warned of his danger, and the man who warns him is left hanging from a tree. Subsequently, when Cheyenne and his one employee are battling for their lives the daughter of the man who was hanged rounds up the rangers, who ride to the rescue.

THE CAPTAIN OF HIS SOUL

Five-reel Triangle feature. Story by Eleanor Talbot Kinkaid, scenario by Lillian Ducey. For release February 10.

THE CAST:

Ebenezer Boyce	Walt Whitman
Rollion	Jules Friquet
Horace Boyce	William Desmond
Henry Boyce	Charles Gunn
Martin	Jack Richardson
Myra	Mitzi Gould
Reggie Van Fleet	Eugene Corey
Annette De Searcy	Claire McDowell
Annette's Husband	Percy Challenger
Mammy	Lucretia Harris
Director	G. P. Hamilton
Photographer	Tom Buckingham

William Desmond can always be depended upon to lend distinction to any play in which he appears. In The Captain of His Soul he portrays the son of a manufacturer who believes his brother guilty of murder, while the brother has the same notion about him, and he invests the character with a dignity and strength that makes it stand out with cameo clearness.

Martin, valet to a Wall Street corporation, is recommended by his firm as general manager for the Boyce Automatic Pistol Works when its founder is forced to give up active control. He is instructed to deliver the plant to his Wall Street employers, and has nearly completed his work when Ebenezer Boyce, examining his papers, discovers proof of his treachery. Boyce summons his sons to the plant, but they find the old man dead.

Each of the brothers is determined to kill Martin, and shortly after they leave the factory Martin's body is found by a roadside, a revolver in his hand, a bullet in his temple. Each brother believes the other guilty, and their mutual revulsion causes the younger brother to leave home. Horace Boyce finds in the mountains the mastery of his soul and compassion for his brother.

Later both love Myra Van Fleet, the daughter of Martin, whose husband, purchased by her father for his old family name, serves his wife, when her money is gone, and is killed in a train wreck.

The story fails to arouse any special interest until the second reel. From then on the plot is developed with nice regard for dramatic suspense.—M. D.

LIMOUSINE LIFE

Five-reel Triangle feature from the story appearing in The Red Book by Ida M. Evans. Scenario by Jack Cunningham. For release February 10.

THE CAST:

Minnie Wills	Olive Thomas
Moncure Heitz	Lee Phelps
Jef Brennan	Joe Bennett
Gertrude Muldane	Lillian West
Miss Wilkins	Virginia Foltz
Mrs. Clara Malvin	Lottie Du Vaile
Mr. Wills	Harry Rattenberry
Mrs. Wills	Alberta Lee
Jasper Bronson	Jules Friquet
Mrs. Keitz	Lillian Langdon

Limousine Life is a mildly entertaining little story that is neither very good nor very bad. Its principal charm is the winsomeness of Olive Thomas, and its most glaring faults are artificiality and a plot that is sadly drawn out.

Olive Thomas has the role of an innocent country belle, who runs away to Chicago, gets a position in a modiste's shop, and exploits her innocence as a protection from the wiles of a rich youth, while she accepts tribute in the form of pearls, which she calls beads to keep from seeming to know their value; dinners, a diamond ring, and at last, when she has nearly succeeded in marrying the youth with his mother's consent, she allows him to give her a limousine in which to depart.—M. THE OTHER MAN

THE CAST:

John Stedman	Harry Morey
Dorothy Harmon	Grace Darmond
Lucia	Florence Deshon
The Political Boss	Frank Norcross
Mrs. Holohan	Jessie Stevens
Candoli	Stanley Walpole
Aunt Isabel	Mrs. Chapin
Author	Rex Taylor
Director	Paul Boardman

A beard is a great camouflage. It disguised John Stedman so completely that even the girl who loved him failed to recognize him during weeks of intimate association.

The Other Man has a theme that is at times highly improbable, but it is usually entertaining nevertheless.

The hero is a famous surgeon, whose wife has the execrable taste to permit her husband's friend to take her to a masked ball, and then to his own apartments, when her husband is suddenly called to Boston on a surgical case. But the doctor returns unexpectedly.

A few years later, ragged and dissolute, he is made the protege of a political boss, who fears assassination and who learns by chance that the tramp is a surgeon. Stedman, now known as Martin West, becomes personal bodyguard to the boss and takes up his abode in a cheap lodging house, in which Dorothy Harmon, an heiress, on a wager of $10,000 that she can live independently a month in the slums, comes as slavey. When she wins the $10,000 she has the money secretly transferred to the surgeon, who goes to another city, and, under his real name, builds anew a reputation. When he operates on Dorothy's aunt the girl doesn't recognize him, and when he woos her she informs him there is another man for whom she is going back to the slums to wait.

It is conventional movie entertainment, but it does entertain because of the human interest touches, good direction and sympathetic characterization.—M. D.

BROKEN TIES

Five-reel World feature, Brady-Made. For release week of February 3.

THE CAST:

Marcia Fleming	June Elvidge
John Fleming	Montagu Love
Arnold Curtis	Arthur Ashley
Corinne La Force	Pinna Nesbit
Mrs. Fleming	Kate Lester
Henry Hashbrook	Alec B. Francis
Mr. La Force	Arthur Matthews
Mammy Liza	Frances Miller
Author	Wooldridge Clason
Director	Arthur Ashley
Photographer	Jacques Monteran

Art has not been sacrificed to sentiment in this new World picture play, which has been constructed with an unusual degree of realism. It is not a happy play, but it is an absorbing one, finely acted.

Montagu Love appears as an idealistic lawyer, whose theories that the relations between lawyer and client are so sacred that no personal interest should temper them are put to a severe test when his friend is arrested for murder, and investigation of a taxi clue leads him to the knowledge that his wife and friend were dining together in a roadside bar at the time the murder was committed and that his mother was seen in the room with the dead man, the mark of a bloody hand on her coat.

June Elvidge plays with her usual skill the role of the lawyer's wife and Montagu Love, Arthur Ashley and Pinna Nesbit do splendid work. Broken Ties should be a [illegible] because of its strong dramatic theme and fine characterizations. Photography, settings and backgrounds are up to the standard of Brady-Mades.—M. D.

HELENE CHADWICK

Pathe star, featured in The Naulahka.

THE FIGHTING GRIN

Five-reel Bluebird photoplay. Written by R. E. Bradbury and F. H. Clark. Scenario by Charles Kenyon.

THE CAST:

Margie Meredith	Edith Johnson
Billy Kennedy	Franklyn Farnum
Harold De Vandeveer	J. Morris Foster
Otis Kennedy	Charles Mailes
Amos Meredith	Fred Montague
Director	Joseph De Grasse

The Fighting Grin is farce of the merriest kind.

Billy Kennedy's father and Margie Meredith's father are bitter enemies, but Billy's father has a sense of humor and Meredith hasn't. Whenever Billy plans to elope with Margie one of the parents interferes. Eventually he makes a wager with Kennedy, pere, that he will have married Margie within a week.

If the father had played fairly there wouldn't have been anything in it. But he didn't. He listened. So when Billy and Margie board a train bound for Silverton, where both families had ranches, Billy is lured away to look after their baggage, is bound and gagged and dumped into a freight car. He makes his escape, is held up by a Mexican bandit, who has just robbed the Silverton saloon, and is made to give up his clothes as a disguise for the Mexican, who later appropriates the garb of a clergyman and officiates at the wedding of Margie and the bridegroom of her father's choosing.

Scene in W. H. Clune's big production, The Eyes of the World. Released by Arrow Film Corporation on State Rights basis.

Meanwhile Billy, in the bandit's discarded clothing, is creating consternation wherever he appears.

Franklyn Farnum's fighting grin is given character by the determined chin beneath it, and he plays the role of the happy but persistent Billy so well that, amusing as are the situations in which he finds himself, they always have a certain dignity and plausibility. A good supporting cast, clever direction and happily selected backgrounds help to make The Fighting Grin vastly entertaining.—M. D.

NEW LOVE FOR OLD

Five-reel Universal feature. For release Feb. 11.

THE CAST:

Kenneth Scott	Emory Johnson
Marie Beauchamp	Gretchen Lederer
Ben Sawyer	Winter Hall
Daphne Sawyer	Ella Hall
Doc Podden	Harry Holden
Louis Brecchi	E. A. Warren
Author	Waldemar Young
Director	Elsie Jane Wilson

A story of innocence in a White Mountain setting, with the music of brooks competing with the lure of the jazz, is presented in this Bluebird photoplay. The principal charm of the picture is its mountain backgrounds and its atmosphere of the heights.

Kenneth Scott, spending the summer in the mountains, fancied he loved Marie Beauchamp, whom he had just met and of whom he knew nothing. Next day he woke up, for he learned that beautiful Marie was already married and that she was opening a roadhouse. So he accepted the invitation of a mountain poet, Doc Podden, to spend some time in the hills. There he meets innocent Daphne Sawyer, 17, and cruelly suppressed by her severe, self righteous father. There is a country dance, and there the comedy touches in the disapproving interest of the country people in the roadhouse, and there is a realistic fight in Doc Podden's cabin between Scott and Brecchi, the brutal servant of Daphne's father.

Gretchen Lederer is beautiful as the old love, and Ella Hall makes Daphne, the quickly-acquired new love, a winsome nymph of the woods. Emory Johnson makes Scott convincing as the lover quick to change his heart, and the work of Harry Holden, as Doc Podden, and Winter Hall, as the father, is particularly good. The photography is fine.—M. D.

TARZAN OF THE APES

THE CAST:

Tarzan, the Boy	Gordon Griffith
His Father	True Boardman
His Mother	Kathleen Kirkham
Jane Porter	Enid Markey
Professor Porter, her father	Thomas Jefferson
The Bar Maid	Bessie Toner
Binns	George French
Captain of the Fuwalda	Jack Wilson
Greystoke's Brother	Colin Kenny
Greystoke's Father	Colin Kenny

and

Tarzan, the Man	Elmo Lincoln
Director	Scott Sidney

Edgar Rice Burroughs' fascinating story of the nobleman's son, who, nursed by a giant ape, grew up in the African jungle to noble manhood, unharmed by wild beasts, has been given a wonderful presentation by the National Film Corporation. We use the word wonderful advisedly. The jungle, with lions and leopards stalking their prey, the tribe hurling in different fashion from the safety of the tree tops, jumping from tree to tree, the tropical storm, the primitive fights between Tarzan and the lion and Tarzan and the cannibals are some of the features that thrill. In addition there is a story of engrossing interest, superbly acted.

The work of Gordon Griffith, the youngster who plays Tarzan, the Boy, of ten, is incredibly clever. There is never a trace of self-consciousness in his acting, and, whether seeking adventures on his own account and glorying in his triumphs over his less cunning enemies, or creeping back to the comforting arms of Kala, the ape mother, when he is wounded, he plays with wholesouled abandon. Indeed, one of the wonders of the picture is Gordon Griffith.

Elmo Lincoln's work is no less delightful as Tarzan, the Man. The producers had the good judgment to select for the boy and the man types that were identical, so that Tarzan at 20 looks out from his tree tops with the same kind of eyes and the same kind of hair and the same type of features as the boy.

The story, which was first published in a magazine, then in book form, and afterwards syndicated for publication in newspapers thruout the country, relates the history of the son of the Earl of Greystoke, whose father and mother, lost in the African jungle, died when he was less than a year old. The infant was adopted by Kala, an ape, whose dead baby was substituted for the living Earl, while in England the former Earl's brother has married a barmaid, who is determined that her son shall be Earl of Greystoke.

When a sailor brings word to England that the real Earl of Greystoke is living with the apes and is 10 years old she has the sailor placed in a sanitarium, where he remains for 10 years, until a vengeful maid helps him to escape. The story is closely followed in the search for Tarzan, and his curiosity regarding the first white girl he has ever seen, and for whom he fights fiercely.

All of the characterizations are good. Kathleen Kirkham immediately won the liking of the Broadway audience. The costumes and customs of the time in which the story is laid have been faithfully reproduced. The animal stuff is great. An elephant friend of Tarzan's shows how easy it is to get fuel by uprooting a tree just for the fun of it. Tarzan of the Apes is easily worth the dollar admission charged.—M. D.

COUNTERFEIT CLUES

Second two-reel feature in The Price of Folly Series. Released by Pathe.

THE CAST:

Cynthia Stanton	Ruth Roland
George Ryder	Frank Mayo
Oliver Kent	Robyn Adair
Perry De Long	Neal Hardin
Mrs. Stanton	Ruth Lachare

Everybody pays for the folly of a flirt in this second of Pathe's new two-reel features.

Cynthia Stanton, engaged to a Secret Service man, flirts with a wealthy young idler, transfers her attentions to a counterfeiter who is rescued by her fiance when his boat is blown up by a bomb placed in his camera by a confederate with whom he has quarreled, and breaks her engagement when the Secret Service man goes after the counterfeiter.

Eva warns the counterfeiter, who hurries to his cave and blows it up at the moment the Secret Service man is entering it. The counterfeiter is captured, nevertheless, and when she goes to the jail to assure the man who had killed her former fiance of her faith his wife arrives.

The picture is presented in a way that holds suspense. Characterizations are excellent.—M. D.

HIS HIDDEN PURPOSE

Two-reel Paramount-Mack Sennett comedy.

THE CAST:

The Girl	Marie Prevost
The Villain	Chester Conklin
The Father	Gene Rogers
The Sweetheart	Neal Burns
The Boarding House Keeper	Frank Cooper

Automobile races in a furious windstorm and then a raging river that is deep enough to cover the cars and their occupants furnish one of the amazing episodes of this liveliest of Sennett comedies. The fun is so fast that the laughs tumble over each other from start to finish.

Words can not describe this picture. At least a few words can't. The educated cat returns for a moment, and a wickedly educated sheep has the center of the screen for a time. There are elopements and kidnapings; the girl's sweetheart, disguised as a vamp., with father and the boarding house keeper rivals for his favor and there is a pool of matchless beauty, where the heroine goes for her daily plunge, and the sheep eats her clothes and she steals the villain's togs and the villain is left with only a barrel to wear, and the sheep butts in.

The comedy ends in a big climax, with the villain foiled at the moment when he thinks he has triumphed.—M. D.

FLARE-UP SAL

Five-reel Ince-Paramount picture. Story by J. G. Hawks. Released at the Rialto Theater New York, week of January 27.

THE CAST:

Flare-Up Sal	Dorothy Dalton
The Red Rider	Thurston Hall
Dandy Dave Hammond	William Conklin
Tin Cup Casey	J. P. Lockney
Lige Higbee	Milton Ross
Director	Roy William Neill

When the Red Rider, discarding his borrowed clerical garb for his picturesque togs as a highwayman, said, "I'm coming for you, Flare-Up Sal," a man in the audience at the Rialto Monday afternoon exclaimed emphatically, "I don't blame him." That is how Dorothy Dalton's newest character study pleased the Rialto crowd.

As Flare-Up Sal she has an altogether different type of character from any she has previously played. She first appears in cotton frock singing joyously as she rides ahead of the prairie wagon in which the family by which she had been adopted was driving from the South to the California gold fields in the days of '49. In the little frontier town where they camp for the night the man gambles away his outfit, which is returned to him when Sal gambles with the saloon proprietor to decide whether she shall remain at the saloon as a dancer or go on with Paw and Maw. She stays, has the violent temper that brooks no familiarities win her the nickname of Flare-Up and the respect of the rough habitues of the saloon.

The Red Rider holds up a coach. Anxious to see Flare-Up Sal, of whose beauty he has heard, he takes a preacher who tried to run away when the coach was held up back to his cabin in the mountains, and, with the parson's clothes and papers, goes to the little town, ostensibly to assume charge of a church, but really to see Flare-Up. The quarrel between the church and saloon factions and its culmination makes up a story not new in theme, but exciting. Thurston Hall is a jaunty Red Rider, and the entire cast is capable.—M. D.

MADAME JEALOUSY

Five-reel Paramount picture. Released week of February 3.

THE CAST:

Madame Jealousy	Pauline Frederick
Valor	Thomas Meighan
Finance	Frank Losee
Commerce	Charles Wellesley
Pride	Isabelle O'Madigan
Charm	Elsie MacLeod
Display	Ina Bourke
Mischief	Frances Cappelane
Sorrow	Grace Barton
Treachery	Edwin Sturgis
Rumor	Marcia Harris
Good Nature	J. K. Murray
Director	Robert Vignola

George V. Hobart, author of Experience, has written another allegorical drama, this time for the screen. Human passions are shown at their work of spoiling human lives, all the while they are welcomed by their victims. Paramount has given the play a magnificent production. From the moment when Jealousy, sister of Satan, is born and takes up her dwelling place in the House of the Heavy Hearts to the final scene, when she is roused to life again by the promises of "foolish lovers," the picture is artistic, dramatic, weird.

Jealousy in her exotic palace hears the vows of Charm and Valor, and has her handmaiden, Mischief, bring her a mirror, in which she sees the lovers, by some clever trick of the photographer's art. At their wedding she follows the wedding party down the aisle of the church, and lingers always near, trying to get a foothold in their lives. When the husband lover finds in his effects the picture of an old sweetheart, whose name was Forgotten, he regards it reminiscently, and, when Charm appears by his side, places it in the drawer of his desk.

It is Jealousy's opportunity, and she makes the most of it. She leads Charm to the desk, where the picture is hidden, and she finds in the loving inscription of other days proof of present disloyalty. And when Charm has gone and Valor finds with the lilies on her table a card inscribed, "To Little Sweetheart," he is ready to believe Jealousy's suggestion that the real reason for Charm's departure was another man.

And so Jealousy sends her sister, Sorrow, to be Charm's daily companion, and leads Valor to depths of degradation, until Treachery tries to persuade him he may find peace in the waters of the river. Even the parents are willing victims of Jealousy, and both Commerce, father of Charm, and Finance, father of Valor, use Treachery to ruin each other.

The bedroom scene preceding the birth of Happiness might have been eliminated with good effect, but that is a detail. The wonderful photography, exquisite settings and superb characterizations with the unusual and absorbing story make up a feature of extraordinary beauty.

HER BOY

Five-reel Metro picture, from the story by H. Carey Wonderly. Adapted by Albert Shelby Le Vino, and produced under the personal supervision of Maxwell Karger. Released January 27.

THE CAST:

Helen Morrison, the mother	Effie Shannon
David Morrison, her boy	Niles Welch
Virginia Gordon	Pauline Curley
Charlie Turner	Pat O'Malley
Colonel Danby Gordon	Jacob T. Galloway
Rev. Mr. Kimberly	Charles Riegel
Dr. Swift	Charles W. Sutton
Oscar Schultz	William A. Bechtel
Gretchen	Baby Violet Axell
Director	George Irving
Photographer	Harry B. Harris

A patriotic appeal to mothers is made in this play of the Southland, which has caught the atmosphere of the South so accurately that it makes a Southerner homesick.

Helen Morrison is a slacker mother. Having devoted her wealth and care to the bringing up and educating of her son in the best traditions of their fine old family she then tries to kill all his nobility of spirit. On his twenty-first birthday war is declared and a flame of patriotism sweeps thru the little Southern town. But the slacker mother's boy is not allowed to enlist. His mother's death would be upon his shoulders if he did. So he stays at home while the others go. Then comes conscription and the boy is one of the first to be drafted, but the mother, determined to save him for herself, changes the date of her son's birth certificate, and declares he is under age. Other mothers' sons may go, but not hers. The contempt of her neighbors is nothing to this proud woman compared to the safety of her son. But she doesn't keep him. He leaves home and enlists under another name, and the mother has an unhappy time trying to make reparation.

Effie Shannon, in manner and dress, is a perfect type of Southern woman and Niles Welch is a prepossessing boy. All the characterizations are excellent, that of Pauline Curley, as the Southern girl, being particularly pleasing. The picture will be liked for its timely theme, its tensely dramatic situations and its colorful atmosphere.—M. D.

A MOTHER'S SIN

Five-reel Blue Ribbon Vitagraph feature. Released January 28.

THE CAST:

Patrick Yardley	Earle Williams
Celia Graham	Miriam Miles
Mr. Yardley	Ernest Maupain
Vincent Tessier	Denton Vane
Rev. Francis Vivian	Fred Peters
Maxton	Charles Hertog
Rose	Louise Du Pre
Mrs. Hyde	Eleanor Lawson
Author	Hilda Sharpe
Director	Tom Mills

Indirectly A Mother's Sin is an incentive to patriotism. One feels, after seeing the play, a new detestation of an enemy that would destroy a land of such charming customs, such interesting people and such beautiful homes. The picture has but one jarring note that we recall at the moment—the title.

All of the scenes are laid in England. Patrick Yardley, son of a rich land owner, acquires a lot of debts and then goes home to Melden Hall to ask his father to pay them. But the old man's wife had deserted him when Patrick was an infant, and he explains the revenge he has planned for years—to purposely allow Patrick to ruin himself in the complacent belief that his father's wealth was his, then to cast him off. But Patrick has his mother's pride and he proceeds to sell his personal effects to settle his debts.

Yardley learns of the disgraceful conduct of his nephew, to whom he has willed his estate, and, in a revulsion of feeling, makes a new will, which he hides in a bank just before his death. The nephew gets the estate, but is constantly blackmailed by a former valet of Patrick's.

Earle Williams, as Patrick Yardley, is a magnetic hero, and he is supported by a cast of excellent players, with pretty Miriam Miles as the fiancee. Familiar scenes in London are effectively used in the early part of the picture, and an exciting fox hunt helps out the atmosphere of English country life.

A Mother's Sin—except for the title—is a picture play that will please.—M. D.

PHANTOM RIDERS

Five-reel Jewell picture. Released at Broadway Theater, New York, week of January 20.

THE CAST:

Dave Bland	Bill Gettinger
Pebble Grant	Buck Connor
Molly	Molly Malone
Cheyenne Harry	Harry Carey
The Unknown	Vester Pegg
Author	Henry McRae
Scenario by	George Hively
Director	Jack Ford

Cheyenne Harry is just as game and picturesquely daring as ever, but in Phantom Riders he commits the supreme folly of judgment in driving his herd of cattle into Paradise Valley without arranging for reinforcements to be within S. O. S. calling distance. His folly costs him his entire herd, but it compensates by providing a picture of the Wild West that will delight lovers of hard fighting and hard riding.

Paradise Valley is Government land, a place of great natural beauty, that, according to the statutes, provides free grazing. According to the laws of the cattlemen in the vicinity trespassing is punishable by death. When Cheyenne Harry, knowing the customs of the place, arrives with his cattle, the cattlemen, masked and looking much like Ku Klux Klan riders, gather from many miles, and, at the command of their leader, drive Cheyenne's cattle away—to death. Cheyenne is warned of the danger, and the man who warns him is left hanging from a tree. Subsequently, when Cheyenne and his one employee are battling for their lives the daughter of the man who was hanged rounds up the rangers, who ride to the rescue.

THE CAPTAIN OF HIS SOUL

Five-reel Triangle feature. Story by Eleanor Talbot Kinkaid; scenario by Lillian Ducey. For release February 10.

THE CAST:

Ebenezer Boyce	Walt Whitman
Rollins	Jules Friquet
Horace Boyce	William Desmond
Henry Boyce	Charles Gunn
Martin	Jack Richardson
Myra	Mitzi Gould
Reggie Van Fleet	Eugene Corey
Annette Da Searcy	Claire McDowell
Annette's Husband	Percy Challenger
Mammy	Lucretia Harris
Director	G. P. Hamilton
Photographer	Tom Buckingham

William Desmond can always be depended upon to lend distinction to any play in which he appears. In The Captain of His Soul he portrays the son of a manufacturer who believes his brother guilty of murder, while the brother has the same notion about him, and he invests the character with a dignity and strength that makes it stand out with cameo clearness.

Martin, valet to a Wall Street corporation, is recommended by his firm as general manager for the Boyce Automatic Pistol Works when its founder is forced to give up active control. He is instructed to deliver the plant to his Wall Street employers, and has nearly completed his work when Ebenezer Boyce, examining his papers, discovers proof of his treachery. Boyce summons his sons to the plant, but they find the old man dead.

Each of the brothers is determined to kill Martin, and shortly after they leave the factory Martin's body is found by a roadside, a revolver in his hand, a bullet in his temple. Each brother believes the other guilty, and their mutual revulsion causes the younger brother to leave home. Horace Boyce finds in the mountains the mastery of his soul and companion for his brother.

Later both love Myra Van Fleet, the daughter of Martin, whose husband, purchased by her father for his old family name, leaves his wife, when her money is gone, and is killed in a train wreck.

The story fails to arouse any special interest until the second reel. From then on the plot is developed with nice regard for dramatic suspense.—M. D.

TRI-STATE EXHIBITORS' ASSOCIATION BEING FORMED

Will Be Composed of Picture Theater Owners in Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia—A. J. Barthell Is Organizer

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 4.—A movement has been launched here to form the Tri-State Exhibitors' Association, which will be composed of picture theater owners in Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia. The object of this association is to bring the exhibitors into a distributing organization, which they will control themselves, and thereby cause a considerable reduction in their overhead expenses, with particular reference to rentals. When the formation of the new association is completed a fixed circuit for reels will then be worked out and established. It is pointed out that when the exhibitor is interested in a reel he will use greater care both in handling and shipping, as it will be his personal interest to see that such care is at all times exercised.

A. J. Barthell, former president of the Exhibitors' League of Western Pennsylvania, has retired from that office and is looking after the details of organization of the new association, which is receiving hearty support. Temporary offices have already been established at 804 Penn avenue, this city. This new organization will work in harmony with similar organizations in other large distributing centers.

CENSORSHIP IN VIRGINIA

Exhibitors Wrought Up Over Jones Bill

Richmond, Va., Feb. 2.—The new Jones State censorship bill, which was rushed thru the Committee on Public Morals and Welfare of the General Assembly of Virginia Tuesday, and is now on its way to the House of Delegates, where its passage seems assured, is claimed to be a menace to the interests of the motion picture art and industry in the entire South.

The Jones bill is a drastic measure, and was introduced in the Legislature just a week ago by J. P. Jones, a new member from Richmond, "by request." The movement was hatched out by women of a local social uplift society and Methodist and Baptist pastors, who have been conspicuous as anti-vice crusaders.

The Virginia Exhibitors' Association, headed by Jake Wells, immediately held a meeting and discussed the situation, and it was decided to file a protest against the impending legislation. A report was received on the progress made in the effort to defeat or modify the terms of the proposed law, but it was not encouraging. Samuel P. Kelley, former member of the Legislature, has been employed as counsel by the exhibitors, and made an earnest but vain argument at the hearing granted by the Legislative Committee.

The exhibitors object especially to the provision of the bill which imposes on them, thru the fee system, the total cost of maintaining the proposed censorship. The board is to consist of three members, to be appointed by the Governor, their salaries being fixed at $2,400 a year, and will sit at Richmond. In localities thruout the State deputies will serve as regulators and supervisors of the picture houses, receiving a per diem compensation. Should the bill become a law it can not be repealed for two years, when the next General Assembly convenes.

DIRECT SALES PLAN

Adopted at Meeting of N. Y. M. P. E. L.

New York, Feb. 2.—At a meeting of the New York Local No. 1, of the M. P. E. L., held Tuesday afternoon, January 29, at its headquarters in New York City, the manufacturer-to-exhibitor direct plan, which was approved by the Allied Exhibitors' Convention in Washington in December, was presented. I. M. Chadwick, Joseph A. Golden, Harry Rapf, Louis L. Levine and Charles C. Pettijohn presented the details of the plan for the consideration of the approximately seventy-five exhibitors present.

A motion was made and unanimously carried to put this Direct Sales Plan into immediate effect in New York City and a committee was appointed by President Manheimer to secure signatures necessary to guarantee New York City a minimum quota. Quotas have now been guaranteed under this plan for sixteen States and quotas are now organizing to adopt the plan for sixteen other States, New York City and Brooklyn.

Exhibitors booking units are springing up in all parts of the United States for the purpose of marketing film under this Direct Sales Plan. The seven independent producers engaged in this enterprise are receiving many inquiries and great encouragement from exhibitors in every unit.

MARY MacLAREN

Signs New Contract With Universal

New York, Feb. 4.—On the eve of a court decision which has been waited for with interest by the picture trade Mary MacLaren, former Bluebird star, has signed a new contract, which gives the Universal Film Manufacturing Company the exclusive use of her services for a period of years. Miss MacLaren left the Universal about a year ago. When the actress endeavored to sell her services under the name Mary MacLaren the Universal raised the issue that she had no right to the name. Until her employment by the Universal she had been known as Mary Macdonald. The Universal manufactured the name Mary MacLaren and claimed that her success was due to the publicity and advertising given her under that name. In view of the amicable settlement of the matter it is doubtful if any court decision will be rendered in the case.

KELLARD RETURNS TO SCREEN

New York, Feb. 2.—Ralph Kellard, who recently resigned from the leading role in Eyes of Youth, at the Maxine Elliott Theater, has returned to the screen, and will make his reappearance in pictures under the Paine banner in a forthcoming five-reel Pathe. Before his return to the stage this season Kellard was a Pathe star for two years, having been starred in The Shielding Shadow, The Precious Packet and Pearl of the Army.

AGAIN AFTER FUNKHOUSER

Determined Effort Being Made To Curtail Powers

Chicago, Feb. 2.—A determined effort to rid film interests of the menacing powers of Second Deputy of Police Funkhouser is being made before Alderman Steffin's subcommittee of the City Council. No less a personage than Ex-Governor Dunne (of Illinois) testified that the deputy's wings should be clipped to an extent that the power to restrict films should be vested in a board instead of with one man. The veracity of Funkhouser was questioned by several who testified at a meeting held early in the week.

Efforts to oust Funkhouser have been made so frequently that they have become a common occurrence. At times it seemed that his powers were curbed, but, by summoning representatives of reform movements to back him, Funkhouser has managed to hold his peculiar position. At present prominent film manufacturers look upon him as a stumbling block in the way of their legitimate business success, and it is because these manufacturers (notably Fox) have exhausted every legal means of fighting him—sometimes with notable success, as in the case of The Little Americans—that the City Council action is now being taken.

THE HANDWRITING ON THE WALL

The theaters are getting their galleries back.

Maybe the speculators and gamblers who have refused to see significance in other warning indications will interpret this aright.

When people will give up fifty cents for a bum seat in the gallery for a spoken word show it can mean only one thing, i. e., the offerings at the movie houses are rotten.

And so they are—for the most part.

The time has passed when anyone can take a poor story, tell it jerkily and disjointedly before the camera, give it an alluring title, label it with the name of a great star and make the public accept it.

It can be done no longer.

The art of screening plays will have to be consulted in the future.

Artists and not gamblers will produce henceforth.

PICTURE SHOW DATES

Exposition Will Be Held From October 5 to 13

New York, Feb. 2.—The National Motion Picture Exposition, which was scheduled for February 2 to 10 in Grand Central Palace, has been postponed until fall. October 5 to 13 are the dates decided upon by the management representing the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry and the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America under whose auspices the exposition will be held.

The postponement was determined upon after a series of conferences and meetings participated in by nearly all of the parties concerned, during which it became apparent that the confusion brought about by the temporary closing of many industries and the movement to conserve heat and light made this an opportune time for carrying out the plans for the show in the fall.

To promote the exposition in the manner the organizations desire means a concentrated drive in all branches of the industry. President Wm. A. Brady and Executive Secretary Frederick H. Elliott, as well as the directors of the two great national bodies concerned, believe that this could be done more advantageously in the fall when it is to be hoped that many, if not all, of the problems confronting the nation at the present moment will have been effectively solved.

Thru the courtesy of R. P. V. Ritter, president of the company which operates the Grand Central Palace, arrangements have been perfected providing for the holding of the exposition on October 5-13, and a vote of thanks has been tendered to President Ritter for his liberal attitude in spite of the fact that the contract for rental of the building had been made.

WHILE THE GETTING OUT IS GOOD

W. A. Brady resigned as president of World Film last week. From what he said about the sound and splendid condition of World Film and its rosy future one would think he was getting out because he was ashamed to take the money. What is that new French word? Camouflage?

CONSERVATION

Is a byword at this time, and he is truly a wise man who heeds the command to conserve, and thereby help himself and serve his country.

But conservation, like many habits, can grow to excess, and the man who cuts off, indiscriminately, expenses here and there, cuts off resources and thereby impairs efficiency.

Intelligently eliminating duplication is a wise method of conservation. You cannot afford to impair your efficiency by doing without an effective source of information, but you can concentrate your reading upon the magazine which covers the entire field of which your business is a part.

The magazine for you is The Billboard.

Three dollars invested in a year's subscription will pay bigger dividends, proportionately, than any investment which you make during 1918.

CHAPLIN AND LAUDER CO-STAR

Make Film for Benefit of War Relief Fund

New York, Feb. 2.—Combining two distinct brands of comedy for the purpose of raising a million dollars or more, Charlie Chaplin and Harry Lauder, the world's greatest laugh producers, have been filmed together in a 500-foot subject, which will shortly be exploited thruout this country and the other allied nations, and the net proceeds will be added to Lauder's $5,000,000 War Relief Fund.

The idea was conceived by the noted screen star when he was entertaining Lauder at his new motion picture plant in Hollywood, Cal. The plan so strongly appealed to the Scotch humorist that two hours later the camera had filmed a most unique comedy.

Chaplin and Lauder comprise the entire cast, and the story is a collaboration of these two world-crowned performers. There is only one scene in the picture, and during a large part of the pantomime Lauder has adopted the Chaplin style and the screen star takes a fling at the characteristics for which the Scotchman is widely known.

When the story was completed the two comedians, with their business managers, Tom Vallance and Sydney Chaplin, took up the subject of turning the film into money, and it was decided that the Chaplin organization would be used to further the success of the venture.

Much depends upon the action of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, the corporation holding the contract for Chaplin's exclusive services. It will be the one to determine whether it will be a violation of contract to exploit Chaplin in the manner suggested.

Efforts will also be made to raise an additional sum of money thru the sales of 50,000 photographs of the two comedians. A dozen different poses were taken, and plans for the sale and distribution of these will be arranged by the two business managers.

NO HANDOUTS WANTED

World Film is out with an offer of one day's service free to exhibitors.

The exhibitor does not want charity.

He wants the film at a price that will enable him to exhibit at a profit, and he wants the producer and distributor to absorb their own tax (footage tax) as he does his.

LESS THAN HALF

Carefully made estimates place the number of motion picture houses open on January 1 in the United States and Canada at 8,150. If there ever were 17,000 houses (and it is very doubtful) less than half have survived, but they are still closing at a most alarming rate, and even tho the maximum number was never higher than 16,000, by spring, if the present rate of closing is maintained, less than half of that number will remain open.

IS YOUR PRODUCT MENTIONED IN THE LIST?

GEORGE K. SPOOR'S NAME

Substituted for Essanay in Releases

Chicago, Feb. 4.—One of the biggest endeavors in motion picture history to substitute the name of an individual for a standard firm name is being made by George K. Spoor, head of the Essanay Film Mfg. Co. The firm's publicity department has been instructed to insert Spoor's name in each of the thousands of items sent forth regarding the activities of the concern. The advertising department has accommodated itself to this regulation to the extent of according minor space—if any—to the word Essanay. The billboard announcements of new releases in neighborhood localities simply read, "Geo. K. Spoor presents," making no mention whatever of Essanay.

When Spoor and Anderson were at the high tide of their business association every effort was made to emphasize the firm name—made up of the alliterative combination of the first initials in each firm member's name—and nothing was said of the individuals. In the days when Indian features were marketable this firm achieved a reputation for this kind of output. When Anderson withdrew from the firm the good will of the concern was still considered of great value—melodramatic releases having succeeded the Indian type—and for a while there was a tendency to add to the studio forces and stimulate the business generally.

But last summer conditions necessitated dispensing with the services of many performers and employees theretofore deemed invaluable, and the big studio soon assumed a deserted appearance. George K. Spoor then seemed to decide to substitute his own name gradually for the firm imprint. The subtle, now general, change has aroused considerable interest in motion picture circles—and many of Spoor's well-wishers wonder if this stunt of "choosing" himself instead of the firm presages a return to former long lists of stars embraced in a competent stock company, reinforced by a full payroll of employees.

FRANCE FILMS, INC., MOVE

To Larger Quarters in Candler Bldg.

New York, Feb. 2.—In order to accommodate its augmented sales force and increased activities incident to its selling campaign on the six-reel superpicture, The Natural Law, France Films, Inc., have moved the offices from 607 Candler Building to larger quarters on the twentieth floor of the same building, Suite 2200.

Altho this company started its selling campaign on The Natural Law less than two weeks ago, several important territories have been sold, and there are deals pending for practically every available territory in the United States.

In commenting on the rapidity with which sales are being made both Chas. H. France and M. G. Watkins, president and secretary of the company, respectively, appeared highly elated with the situation and stated: "The picture has 'gone over' wonderfully well. We could have sold the New York and Northern New Jersey territory to at least a half dozen different exchanges."

GIBSON WITH NATIONAL

Comedy Writer Leaves Universal for Denver Concern

New York, Feb. 3.—Making the excuse that he had tired of the Far West Tom Gibson, the comedy writer, severs his connections with the Universal and Screen Art Film companies, and has jumped to Denver to take charge of the comedy scripts for the National Film Corporation there. For his first production, which is about ready, he has cast Dorothy Farley, Bud Duncan and Kewpie Morgan in the principal roles, with Allen Curtis to direct them.

MOTION PICTURE NOTES

Join the A. E. A.

The jitney house is coming back.

Better close than remain open at a loss.

He who closes while he may saves coin to open some future day.

A famine of films! It is to laugh. The only famine existing is one of films worth the price asked for them.

The foresight and intelligence of producers is forcibly exemplified by the fact that single-reel production has fallen off, while five-reelers are still on the increase.

Figures made public last week by the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures indicate a marked falling off in the number of films released. During the past year 3,496 pictures were passed upon by the board, as compared with 4,180 the year before.

Walter K. Hill is at liberty owing to measures of retrenchment instituted by The Universal. Hill is a well trained, thoroly experienced and fully-seasoned press agent. His services will not go begging long.

John Wylie is out of The World. Evidently things are not so very rosy with some trade papers either.

If his resignation is due to the necessity for retrenchment it looks like a case of poor judgment on the part of somebody.

The captain and navigator is a mighty valuable man and should never be the first one dispensed with.

The World will miss Wylie.

Harry Revier's film, The Public Defender, tells a strong story vividly. It holds the spectator spellbound from start to finish. There never was a film that had greater grip and more thrills.

It has stars, too. Keenan, at least, is one of great magnitude, but in this film the story is the thing, and it is a great—a very great story.

Paramount filmed the Stage Women's War Relief again last week and put the institution on the fritz. One whole, perfectly good day wasted. The ladies have declared themselves. "Never again," they say.

Webb's Singing Pictures is a new stab at the old talking picture thing. It is not creating any very great sensation.

Harry M. Crandall of Washington was in New York last week.

CIRCUS AND CARNIVAL

NEW YORK BRANCH OF S. L. OF A.

Will Hold Next Meeting Feb. 9 at New Clubrooms

New York, Feb. 4.—Showmen's League of America, New York Branch, held a business meeting Friday night at 625 Sixth avenue. Governor Harry Bever occupied the chair, with First Lieutenant Victor D. Levitt, Secretary Ed C. White and Councillor James Tinney at hand. Nearly every one in the large, notable and enthusiastic assemblage said or did something for the good of the organization. Applications were received for membership, and several donations were recorded by the secretary. They met for the last time at Edward F. Hayes' place, as the next meeting will take place at 817 Sixth avenue, in the club rooms on Saturday night, February 9. Every man in the outdoor show business is earnestly requested to be present, as it is then the exact date for the official opening of the Showmen's League of America, New York Branch, will be set. A full report of last Friday's meeting will appear in The Billboard, issue February 16.

The affairs of the branch are being handled in a good business and showmanlike manner, and many of the biggest men in the game have expressed their desire to join or have already made application for membership. Those present, in addition to the executives, were: Joseph G. Ferari, Tobias A. Keppler, A. A. Powers, David Epstein, Charles Medock, Harry Witt, Sydney Wire, Jerry Barnett, George L. Dobbyns, George H. Hamilton, Bert B. Perkins, John J. Stock, Edw. F. Hayes, John E. Wallace, W. J. Foster, W. E. Kusmaelle, Philip Kiser, Milton Morris, D. J. Allento, Julius Tolens, W. Wonderlich, Geo. L. MacFarlane, J. M. Marks, Peter Brody, J. J. Kelly, Thomas Fallon, Robert Lesley, Matthew J. Riley, Samuel Morlelsky, Alfredo Schwartz, Karl Guggenheim, Louis Hirsch, J. M. Kinsel, Adolph Seeman, Owen A. Brady, Joseph A. McFields, Howard O'Connor, Robert McPherson, Joe G. Kaempfer, Hamda Ben, Jerry Lewis, Joseph Herman, F. S. Sorian and William Judkins Hewitt.

SHOWMEN'S LEAGUE ELECTION

Chicago, Feb. 2.—The Showmen's League of America will hold its annual meeting and election of officers for the year of 1918 at the club rooms Tuesday afternoon, February 19. All members are earnestly requested to be present, as this is the most important meeting of the entire year.

J. C. O'BRIEN GIVES VIEWS

Of Railroad Situation in South

Here's the railroad situation as viewed by J. C. O'Brien, proprietor J. C. O'Brien's Famous Georgia Minstrels:

"The situation looks very dark for show people owning private equipment, especially in the jurisdiction of the Southeastern Passenger Association. The railroads of Georgia have filed a petition with the Georgia Interstate Commission for the discontinuance of transporting show equipment in passenger service on special service.

"I attended the meeting of Railroad Commission January 24 in Atlanta, Ga. The following few were present: Al Lange of Dandy Dixie Minstrels; C. Smith, of Smith's Greater Shows; J. K. Vetter, who represented Lew Aronson, of No. 2 Famous Georgia Minstrels, and myself, J. C. O'Brien, of J. C. O'Brien's Famous Georgia Minstrels. There were several petitions and wires from various showmen, especially one from F. G. Wolcott, of the Rabbit Foot Company, which was very strong and did a lot of good. We were fortunate enough to get a continuance of this hearing until February 21 in order to marshal our forces so that we can make a good, strong fight before the Georgia Railroad Commission. If we win it will have a great weight with other States, as Georgia is the key to the entire Southern situation.

"I hope that all showmen will look at this matter in the same light as I do, as I consider the cause a vital one. It will take the co-operation of all showmen, presidents of fair associations, secretaries of fairs and all show printers that are furnishing paper for shows and fairs, who are deeply interested in the welfare of shows and fairs. I would like to attend the showmen's meeting in Chicago February 18, but it will be impossible, owing to the railroad case coming up in Atlanta, Ga., February 21. I want to be a member of their association and I am heartily in sympathy with the cause. Any donation that they may ask of me to promote the cause I am ready.

"I earnestly hope that there will be a good representation of shows at Atlanta, Ga., February 21."

METROPOLITAN SHOWS

Plan To Open at Macon, Ga., Middle of March

Macon, Ga., Feb. 2.—Work at the winter quarters of the Metropolitan Shows on the State fair grounds here has been started in earnest, and the troupers are drifting in daily and buckling down to hard labor with every indication that they believe the coming season will equal, if not surpass, the record year they put in under the Metropolitan banner in 1917. Not the slightest doubt seems to be entertained that the big show will not move on scheduled time, and things are moving with a celerity that assures readiness for an early opening. The present intention of the management, however, is to start the season here about the middle of March, and an earlier opening is improbable unless conditions change.

Assistant Manager Hugh C. Hill has arrived from his home in Carrollton, Ky., and the "Three Hills" are now complete, Fleming Hill, auto mechanic, and L. F. Hill having preceded him. George McGrath came in shortly after a sojourn at his home in Milwaukee. He has booked his string of concessions, and has put several agents to work building new stores and renovating the old ones. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Benson are hibernating at their home in Chicago and are expected shortly. Mr. Benson will again manage the Georgia Minstrels for Mr. Barfield, making his eighth season in this capacity. This show is to be entirely rebuilt, and a new seating arrangement installed. Benson's closest rival last season for top money honors was Fred De Ivey, who managed the monkey speedway, and De Ivey promises to make things intensely interesting for Benson again this year. An eighty-foot panel front is under construction for the speedway, and De Ivey has been busily engaged all winter breaking and training a troupe of seventeen monkeys to perform some marvelous stunts. The show will be known as the Monkey Hippodrome, and the races will be a side issue.

Professor Antonio Passafume will furnish the white band of twenty pieces, making his fourth consecutive season, while Silas Elliott begins his fifth year with the caravan with twelve musicians for the colored minstrels. Two free attractions will again be carried.

Mr. and Mrs. Barfield have again taken up their residence on the handsome and luxurious private car, Rosetta, after taking a well earned vacation in the North, and Manager Barfield has settled down to the hard routine incident to the opening.—WILLETT L. ROE.

"PAPERS WERE STOLEN," SAYS MOUNTFORD AT INVESTIGATION

"No," declared Mountford. "I mean the Vaudeville Managers' Protective Association his real clients in this action. The vouchers for this expense were among the many things stolen from the rooms of the White Rats' Union, and Mr. Sapinsky is unwittingly the receiver of stolen property."

Mr. Sapinsky declared this to be an unfair charge, and Mountford went on to say that if the vouchers were not there they were undoubtedly in the possession of Mr. Sapinsky's client.

"The pleading," he said, "shows a record of stolen property had that someone is a receiver of stolen property."

Mr. Sapinsky flared up at this and warned Mountford to be very careful what he said.

"Get on the stand, then, and I'll prove it," challenged Mountford.

Mr. Sapinsky then started to continue his questioning regarding the Oklahoma strike expenditures and Judge Myers, counsel for the Rats, objected. The referee allowed the line of questioning and Mr. Sapinsky asked:

"Will you describe the papers which showed how this money was spent?"

"There were several hundred vouchers audited and approved. The auditors were Ernest & Ernst."

"Were the various items ever recorded?"

"I am not sure. Some were paid by check and some by cash."

"Have you the check stubs?"

"They were voucher checks."

"Have you the check stubs?"

"I tell you they were voucher checks."

Here the referee intervened to ask Mr. Mountford if he knew the difference between voucher checks and stub checks. He replied that he did but the attorney didn't. After he had explained that the voucher check showed on the face of it what it was Mr. Sapinsky asked where the return checks were.

"They were stolen," said Mountford.

"While in your possession?"

"Yes."

"When did this theft occur?"

"During the months of July or August."

"When did you last see them?"

"During the first week of July."

Mountford was next asked if the cash disbursement book would not show a record of the expenses paid in cash. "I presume so," he said.

"Where is the cash disbursement book which would show these payments?"

"All the cash disbursement books which have not been produced here were stolen."

"How do you know they were stolen?"

"They were stolen, unless they walked off of their own volition."

"Then you have produced everything you have here?"

"Practically."

"What have you still in your possession?"

"I think some old membership books are all."

"And the books which were at Waterbury, have they been stolen?"

Here Judge Myers interposed an objection and the referee assumed the reins of the interrogation.

"But didn't you testify at a former hearing regarding the books and documents you had at Waterbury?"

"I do not know."

"Mr. Mountford, are you trying to equivocate?"

"No."

"Did you not testify that some of the records were at Waterbury?"

"I said that the membership book and levy book were sent to Waterbury."

Mr. Sapinsky resumed the questioning.

"About a year ago you went to St. Louis on a strike, did you not?"

"No."

Another objection by Judge Myers was overruled and Mr. Sapinsky went on.

"When were you there last?"

"Around January or February, 1917."

"While there you sent a wire to headquarters, did you not, in which you stated that $700 was stolen from you and requesting that that much more be sent you?"

"No."

"Didn't you wire for additional funds?"

"I may have."

"Didn't you send a telegram saying you had had money stolen?"

"I may have done so."

"How much was taken from you?"

"None."

J. H. ESCHMAN CIRCUS SOLD UNDER HAMMER

for several days previous preparing for the event, getting out the catalog, etc. He was assisted in this work by his clever daughter, Winnie.

Mr. and Mrs. Robbins and Miss Robbins are spending the winter between Kansas City and Leavenworth. They are connected with the Parker Shows. Mr. Robbins expressed himself as highly pleased with the results of the sale, stating that his lowest estimate of what the stuff ought to bring had been $17,000, and that the sale easily went to three thousand dollars above this figure. At the time this was written the exact figures were not available, but the above is Mr. Robbins' estimate and he is experienced and accurate. He said: "This is the best sale I have ever had and am highly gratified."

The feature of the day was the sale of Little Nemo, Mr. Eschman's bigboned Indian elephant. The animal, after much bidding, was finally sold to Charles LaMont, of the LaMont Bros.' Show, for $2,750. Mr. LaMont also bought the trained llamas for $375.

There were twenty fine baggage horses, four ring horses, groups of eight and six dandy little trained Shetland ponies, with their trappings, two dwarf sacred zebus, goats, lions, leopards, etc., all sold at low prices. Cages, harness, blankets, bedding, etc., etc., all were disposed of in quick order. In fact, the rapidity with which each article was auctioned off was a noticeable feature of the sale.

Another noteworthy special of the sale was the railway cars. There were ten of these and collectively they brought a little less than $6,000, each one selling at $500, or about that figure, with the exception of the stateroom car, which brought $1,000 and was purchased by J. Augustus Jones. Some thought that these cars went at a rather high price, but all those who know and realize the difficulty of obtaining railroad cars, new, old, second hand, fid or otherwise, feel that the successful buyers got bargains.

Some of the personages of the show world coming from the farthest distances for the sale were Andrew Downie, of the La Tena Shows, who made a flying trip here from Baltimore, Maryland, and bought up the harness, blankets, padding, etc., and who would have purchased some of the horses and ponies except for the shipping of them East. R. W. Buller came all the way from Victoria, B. C., with his lovely daughter, Truth. From Kansas City Mr. Buller intends to make a short trip to Paola to visit the Patterson Shows, and then return to Victoria. He purchased some of the pony show cages, trappings, etc. Then there was Ernest Haag, of the Mighty Haag Shows, who left the warm sunshine of Shreveport, La., to attend the sale in the wintry blasts of Kansas City, and his horse trainer and breaker, Ab Johnson, and Bill Dugan. Major Gordon W. Lillie of the Pawnee Bill Show, came from Pawnee, Ok., just to "look in" on the big sale. W. M. Newton, of the Honest Bill and Lucky Bill Shows, of Quenemo, Kan., was up for the occasion. Frank Lemon, oldtime showman, was seen passing the glad hand around to his many friends. Fred Buchanan was seeing what he could see. H. W. Campbell, of Campbell's United Shows, looked warm and comfortable in his big fur cap, and even if he did complain of "cold feet" he didn't have them on the bidding. Lewis Cameron, not an actual showman, and a "reader of The Billboard," bought a Shetland pony for "his own personal use," so he said, but we don't suppose he will use it for a watch charm.

A gentleman who thinks he jumped into the fire from the frying pan figuratively speaking, inasmuch as he left San Antonio for reason of its being cold to come to Kansas City about a week ago, is J. W. Coghlan, the famous motordrome expert with the Wortham Shows. Mr. Coghlan and his wife will spend the balance of the winter here. H. V. Gehm, of the Venice Transportation Company, a St. Louis concern, came up to buy some of the cars and got a flat, paying $500 for it. Genial Ed A. Evans was there and bought a flat car. He was accompanied by C. E. Sorris, his lot superintendent. One of the finest little ladies there was Mrs. Frank Walden, whose husband is trainmaster with the Evans Shows.

These are a few of the names taken from the purchase tickets: D. E. Loffer, Mr. Isler of Isler Shows, Hanson Schneck, J. Lyle, Mr. Allerbury, Sahaude, Bowenck, Bennett, Jim Johnson, Mr Sunday (not Billy), Hunt, Tompan, Wiseman, Ed Carter, Elstein, Feltz, Buben, Dew, Shipley M. Studna, H. Pierce, Doc Allman, Dietrick, Walser Paulson, R. K. Jones, Gartman, Corey, Galloway, J. Wood, Dodson and "Fish" Jones of the Minneapolis Zoo, Minneapolis, Minn., who came for some "zoo supplies."

Among the local people well known in show folk present were S. M. Beggs, president of the Beggs Wagon Company, maker of show wagons, cages, etc., and mine host, J. H. [illegible] of the Wyandotte Hotel, that paradise of showfolk in Kansas City.—WILLIAM W. SHELLEY.

CARNIVAL CARAVANS

By Ali Baba

Phunkywoo, Miss.

Dear Ali—Hurrah! The Nutt Exposition Shows (you see I had to use Exposition, but I lacked shows enough for it, and it doesn't look so bad) is on the road again. We had our opening at Tailholt last week in spite of losing my angel. We might have been there yet if the angel had stuck, but as it was we had to get busy. I hope you got the write-up of the opening in this week's issue. The one I sent you two or three weeks ago. The real opening was not just exactly like that, but near enough. As I said before, I fixed for free license and lot. It snowed Monday, was cold Tuesday, warmed up a little Wednesday, and some of the joints got a little play. Thursday it was warm enough to open. Sandstorm Lizzie's Cabaret got a good play, so did the merry-go-round. Flash and Zero's long string show did not get much of a play, but they will do better when they get a new shipment of snakes. Live stuff is what you need in one of those shows. The plant. show got some money and the joints did pretty well. Friday and Saturday stayed warm, and I paid up all the bills and only had to borrow $35 from the merry-go-round man to get out of town. Of course I have only got three shows and the Jinny, but I will have some more shows and a band soon. I sure was tired of that town of Tailholt, and I guess they were glad to see the back of our heads, too. Well, here's hoping the next one is a big one, as the Col. sure needs some dough.

Your never down-and-out friend,
COL. HOOZA NUTT.

A vote of thanks was tendered Harry Potter for his efforts in securing the permit for the New York branch of the Showmen's League.

Two prominent showmen, one a spidora owner and the other a cat rack owner, were standing on a corner of the main stem discussing the problem "will we move?" No decision could be reached until the traffic cop settled the question. He said, "Move!" And, fully satisfied, they pushed their way to the nearest place and proceeded to celebrate.

If you want to find out what kind of a chap C. J. Burkhart, owner of the Southwestern Shows is, ask Dad Straley. When it comes to superlatives about the dues in the land Dad has them all learned off by heart, and if you'll listen, he'll convince you that C. J. is all to the good. Dad has been laid up with a bad cold at the Rand, Cincinnati, for the past week.

Lucky Moore is now general foreman of that construction plant and has some few hundred men under his jurisdiction and says, even tho he puts in nine hours a day and some Sundays, it beats trouping and he is more than satisfied. And that goes for Alberta Claire, too.

George Tarbox is the true, unadulterated essence of optimism in this stage of zero weather. George says: "Cheer up. It's only a few more weeks and then the blue birds." When last heard from George was in Oklahoma City.

When the band plays again Doc Angel says that he will serve beef stew to spongers on account of H. C. of L., thus eliminating the necessity of carrying dishes and a dish washer.

Did you ever put on a shill's matinee with Topsy, the trained lion, on the Anderson (Ind.) fair ground, Texas Bill Aiken?

Ferris Wheel Bill Garner—Remember the ride you gave the "culled pusson" in the automobile on the Oakland (Md.) fair ground?

Get O. M. Nigro to tell you the story of his feature show, The Great Divide.

There are those who think that if Col. Hooza Nutt had hired a first-class river pilot like Eddie LaMay his river show would not now be resting in Davy Jones' Locker. Eddie, did you ever travel with the Cree Amusement Company?

J. George Loos is running a couple of shows out at Camp McArthur, Tex., in conjunction with his fifteen concessions. He claims that he is doing nicely.

Capt. Jack Payne, who furnished the [illegible] act for Harry C. Hunter last season, checked all his baggage at Minneapolis and is hibernating there for the time being. Jack says "no plans so far."

A great party was pulled off in Waco, Tex., the other day, a surprise in honor of the psychic wonders, Harry Freeman and the Missus. Lem Crouch, wife, and the new addition stopped off in Waco en route to Austin, where he takes up his duties as treasurer of the Brundage Shows, and invited the Freemans up to their room at the Terminal Hotel, where about fifteen people from the Brundage Shows, Loos Attractions and local performers had congregated for the good time. And it was in the wee hours when festivities ceased.

Joe Stone, of Billy Basall's NoNepes Show, has decided to settle down and has taken a license as rooming house keeper in Waco, Tex.

Frank Angel—Do you remember, while talking on the Jolly Alma Show, you took her home one night, the tripping over the little wire and the result?

Neil H. Austin had a store show to Springfield, O., during the holidays. The line-up was Jolly Alma, fat girl, Bilaby Wink, unexplained, and Prof. Koontz, flea circus. Neil did the lecturing and worked to good business until the 2d of January, when he left for the East.

Bobby Hunsella, since the closing of the Rice & Wortham outfit, has been with the Finlay Dick & Co. drug concern, of New Orleans, and making good. Doc Hall and his cane pulled in those recently along with Bill Streeter and before the conclave of troopers wound up there were Capt. C. D. Tiller, A. W. Red Crosby and wife, Jack McCormick and Margaret Cohen, all doing the side sights of N. O. The grand bunch started to frame a boat carnival, but realizing that their old friend and former associate of the Great Hutchison Shows, Col. Hosea Nutt (George Matthews), is a boat showman of better experience, they decided to wait to see what became of the Nutt Exposition.

Frank J. Jackson, who is comfortably located at 2012 Jefferson street, Nashville, Tenn., has been getting mail for another Frank Jackson, which he would like to forward, and asks for his address.

It was erroneously stated recently that G. W. Johnston had been with the Superior United Shows in the past season, whereas it was the Peerless Amusement Co. he organized, the latter part of the season being with C. W. Parker's, then with Mysterious McDaniel in the South, which tour has been abandoned owing to the cold weather. Next season will in all probability find Johnston with Col. Parker again. He is now at Hot Springs, where he will stay for several weeks, and then come North to make preparations for the coming season.

Mike Zeigler—Where to this season? Mike had a good season with the B. H. Patrick Shows.

It's going to be a tough year for suitcases. Tim said it.

From St. Louis Artie Shields writes that he is comfortably located for the winter there, and that he has no worries until the bluebirds sing again, thanks to his success on the Hopp & Harrington Shows the past season. Mail addressed to 2022 Washington avenue, St. Louis, will reach him.

John T. Backman has his Backman Animal Shows in quarters at Nogalitos and Powell streets, San Antonio, Tex. His office is at 116 E. Houston street, while he resides at 1022 Nogalitos street, same city. He expects to keep his show in San Antonio until next April.

JAMES T. CLYDE GETS CONTRACT FOR CANADIAN NAT. EXHIBITION

by leaps and bounds. The second and last week of last year's exhibition the midway receipts were declared a world's record for carnivals and circuses. On Labor Day alone the receipts were $20,000, the turnstiles registering 151,300 paid admissions. It can be justly said that the midway at the Canadian National Exhibition is to the carnival showman what Broadway is to the actor and actress.

Another important event in fair circles last week was the annual meeting of the Western Canada Fairs' Association held at Calgary, Alberta, January 28 and 29. Contracts for all free acts for the circuit were awarded to Henry Meyerhoff. These dates include the Class A fairs at Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Brandon and Regina and the Class B fairs at Moose Jaw, Swift Current, Medicine Hat, Lethbridge, Red Deer, Camrose, North Battleford, Prince Albert, Yorkton and Weyburn. Mr. Meyerhoff was also given the contract for the riding devices and side-shows at the Class B fairs with the exception of Yorktown and Weyburn.

The Johnny J. Jones Exposition was contracted to furnish the midway for the Class A fairs, as well as two of the Class B fairs, Yorktown and Weyburn.

Bert Earle secured the contract for concessions at the Class A fairs.

This circuit is considered the most important one in Canada, and the show franchises are eagerly sought. Last year the World at Home Shows got the plum.

The cities and towns comprising the circuit and the dates of the summer fairs, are as follows: Class A, Calgary, June 28-July 6; Edmonton, July 8-13; Saskatoon, July 15-20; Brandon, July 22-27; Regina, July 29-August 3. Class B, Moose Jaw, July 10-12; Swift Current, July 15-17; Medicine Hat, July 18-20; Lethbridge, July 22-26; Red Deer, July 29-31; Camrose, August 1-3; North Battleford, August 5-7; Prince Albert, August 8-10; Yorktown, August 5-7; Weyburn, August 7-10.

A stampede (roping, riding, etc.) will be put on at Lethbridge during the fair by A. P. Day, of Medicine Hat, who is widely known thruout the Wild West world as a contest promoter.

UNIVERSAL TO LAUNCH NOTABLE SAFETY FIRST FILM AT ONCE

manifested in this remarkable film, which is to spread the gospel of Safety First. It will reproduce on the screen many of the serious and fatal accidents of the past year, and will show in a convincing manner that many, if not nearly all of these casualties could easily have been avoided if the auto driver and pedestrian had strictly observed the traffic regulations embodied in the law which the State Bureau of Municipal Information has so unqualifiedly endorsed.

The conference report showed that while the new traffic law has worked efficiently and that outside of Greater New York accidents have been, as the result of observance thereof, materially reduced, that there is still room for greater effort to make the highways safe.

This will be the basic aim of the Universal's campaign for auto safety, and the film that has been prepared, it is predicted by those who have seen it, will contribute a world of influence in reducing this year the appalling toll of lives that has paid the penalty of carelessness and neglect during the last twelve months. It is proposed by those interested in the Safety First movement with the aid of the motion picture as a medium of illustration and the new traffic regulations as a descriptive guide, to show conclusively just how easy is the conservation of life and limb.

The Universal will furnish the film absolutely free, and a plan is now being worked out for even paying the express charges. This free distribution is in thoro harmony with the spirit of the times, when everyone is doing all in his power for "the cause."

T. M. A. NEWS

Owing to the recent illness of President-Elect Edward A. Green, Chicago Lodge No. 4, T. M. A., held its annual installation of officers at the regular meeting February 3, 1918, in Eagles' Hall. The following officers were duly installed by Past-President Louis M. Hemrich, member of Chicago Lodge: President, Edward A. Green; vice-president, Elmer Gets; financial secretary, Harry Wood; recording secretary, Harry C. Lee; treasurer, Herbert Franheck; chaplain, Herman Goldberg; marshal, Herman Bintz; sergeant-at-arms, Henry Bouman; trustee, Carrie C. Call; physician, H. W. Martin. Chicago Lodge has two of its members in the Signal Corps, now stationed at Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill., both members having volunteered. We have been very successful in getting new members thru the activity of our Brother Armstrong, who is president of the Moving Picture Local No. 110. At present there are 31 applications for membership on file, awaiting the report of the investigating committee, which is handicapped at present with the amount of snow and cold that holds Chicago in its grasp. The intention of the Chicago Lodge is to try and double its present membership during this year. No. 4 wishes all lodges a prosperous year.—Harry C. Lee, Press Secretary Chicago Lodge No. 4, T. M. A.

Conditions have not changed very much in the last week relative to the illness of our brother M. P. Pickering, of Boston Lodge No. 2, T. M. A., who is laid up with a severe case of sciatica. For several days the pain has been so severe that it was impossible for him to move a limb. There seems to be very little relief in sight, as long as this cold snap continues, for our amiable brother, but we do sincerely wish a speedy recovery and want to see his smiling face on the streets of Boston again.

Brooklyn Lodge No. 30 at its last regular meeting installed its officers for this year. Past Grand President David H. Green, of New York Lodge, was the installing officer, while the present grand marshall of the Grand Lodge, Brother Thomas Foley, of Brooklyn, acted as grand marshall. The ritualistic work was very impressive to both local and visiting members. The following officers were installed for this year: President, Charles McFadden; vice-president, Edward Thomas; recording secretary, Thomas Foley; financial secretary, John W. Fitzgerald; treasurer, Richardson Webster; marshall, Edw. Schwartz; sergeant-at-arms, Perry Stephenson; chaplain, George Thomas, Sr.; outer guard, William Sullivan; trustee, Herbert Brown; physician, Frank C. Vance.

While in Chicago last week the grand president and grand secretary-treasurer had the pleasure of renewing old acquaintances with two of the past grand presidents of the order, Brothers "Hunns" Smith and Louis Hemrich. Both are hale and hearty and working as usual at their respective positions in the theater.

From reliable source we are informed that Brother Quigley has returned to New York City, having finished all his work in the northern part of the State. Jim was all primed up when he arrived at his Gotham abode, and hopes there is nothing more doing on the road for the rest of the winter.—ED HOLLENKAMP, Box 138, Cincinnati, O.

"PAPERS WERE STOLEN," SAYS MOUNTFORD AT INVESTIGATION

"Didn't you send such a wire?"

"I might have."

Mr. Mountford went on and explained that if he had sent such a wire it did not mean what it said as all telegrams sent to headquarters were sent in cypher. In reply to a question he said he did not know where the telegrams received at headquarters were, but promised to produce in court all that he could locate.

Referee Schuldenfrei then directed Mr. Mountford to see that all papers, documents and books at Waterbury be produced at the hearing next week.

Judge Myers protested that it was not within the power of the respondents to produce what had been stolen.

"I shall look to the respondent union to produce all books and documents in their possession," said the referee.

"Then, as I understand it," said Mr. Sapinsky, "you have not today in your possession any record to show the Oklahoma strike expenditures?"

"Yes, sir, we have," replied Mountford.

"What is that record?"

"The auditor's statement."

Mr. Sapinsky asked if these accounts and expenditures were ever looked into, and Mountford said they must have been. He said they satisfied the union and were approved at a meeting in July 20. At that meeting he had invited everyone to inspect the accounts. After that the accounts had been nailed up in trunks from which they had been stolen. He told of later finding things upset and some of the papers stolen. Little had been said about the theft, but it had been mentioned at the time to several persons.

Asked if he had a list of the stolen property, he replied that he had none. He said the matter was kept quiet and the stolen papers had since been popping up every little while so that he was getting a good line on who had them.

He was asked by the referee how much of the strike expenditure referred to had been paid in cash and how much by check and replied that he did not know. At this point Mountford made indirect answers to several questions, which caused the referee to interject:

"Are you trying to be facetious?"

"No," said Mountford, "but this has now got to be a personal attack on me."

"Never mind about that," commented the referee.

"At the next hearing will you produce all the check vouchers of 1917 that you have?" asked Mr. Sapinsky.

"Yes, all that I have."

"You knew that some of these had been stolen but you never set out to find who stole them?"

"I set FitzPatrick to find that out."

Mountford's attention was next called to a copy of The Player, the Rats' official organ, dated December 22. This item stated that the strike fund had been swelled by the contribution of $50,000.

Mountford took the copy and then called attention to the fact that the item was credited to The New York Call.

"Was the information correct?" he was asked.

"No."

"If it was untrue what was your object in printing it?"

"It was to frighten our enemies."

"Did you send that article to The Call?"

"I did not."

"So you printed the article, crediting it to The Call, to avoid responsibility for the misrepresentation?"

There was no answer to this and the hearing was adjourned until next week Friday.

At the opening of the hearing John P. Hill, former acting secretary-treasurer of the Rats, took the stand. It had been intended to continue the examination of W. W. Waters, but he has been ill and was still unable to be present.

In answer to the inquiries of Mr. Sapinsky he told of his connection with the White Rats in official capacities and how he often kept the minutes of the directors' meetings, usually when Mountford was absent. He said he recalled perfectly drawing moneys from various banks at one time and turning them over to Mr. Waters, getting receipts. He then produced these receipts showing the dates, amounts and banks from which the money was drawn. They were as follows:

July 14, 1911—Dime Savings Bank of Brooklyn, $2,001.

July 17, 1911—Excelsior Savings Bank, $3,267.28.

July 18, 1911—Germania Savings Bank, $62.40.

July 19, 1911—Manhattan Savings Institution, $3,062.50.

July 25, 1911—Greenwich Savings Bank, $2,001.

July 28, 1911—Summers Savings Bank, Brooklyn, $2,001.

Mr. Hill said he had understood that the union wished to get all the money it could for something about the clubhouse. That was why, according to his understanding, that the bank accounts had been closed out.

Asked if he had been acquainted at this time with the affairs of the various subsidiaries, he replied that he had not known much about them. He did not remember attending any meeting of the Board of Directors where these funds were discussed. The questioning proceeded:

"Who kept the books in 1910-'11?"

"Mahoney kept them first—and then, I think, a man named Knapp."

"Were you a member of the Board of Directors during that period?"

"I was one of the trustees and as such could sit with the Board of Directors."

In answer to an inquiry from the referee Mr. Hill said there were twenty-four directors and five trustees. Questioned as to the various functions of a director and how they differed from those of a trustee Mr. Hill admitted that the trustees were figureheads more than anything else.

"Take for instance the $2,001 drawn on July 14, pursuant to whose order was it drawn?"

"The secretary-treasurer and three trustees."

"Was there a resolution of the Board of Directors to draw this money from all the banks?"

"Yes, to draw it from all the banks."

"Did it say why?"

"I don't think so."

"Who entered that resolution in the minute book?"

"I don't remember."

The referee inquired why it was that eleven days elapsed between the drawing of the money from the first bank and the last withdrawal.

Mr. Hill said he knew of no reason. He thought there may have been no hurry. He admitted that he had, as trustee, the right to vote on this matter but could not recall whether he voted or not. He said the money could have been withdrawn, he thought, without the consent of the trustees. He knew of no occasion when the trustees had ever held a separate meeting to consider any investments.

Mountford was here called to the stand and questioned regarding article eighteen of the by-laws, which stated the method of electing trustees, their duties, etc. He gave the following information:

Trustees were not supposed to pass on investments. For the withdrawal of money from the bank the signatures of three trustees out of the five were required. If the records were correctly kept a record of all such withdrawals should be found in the minutes of the directors' meeting.

The referee inquired if the trustees were obligated to investigate any withdrawals of money and the reasons for such withdrawals.

Mountford said he thought they were morally obligated. If he had been a trustee, he said, he should have felt it his duty to investigate.

Asked if the trustees had the power of veto Mr. Mountford said he thought so and that that had been his intention when he wrote the by-laws and that that authority had never been disputed. He admitted, however, that he knew of no occasion when that authority had been exercised.

Mountford was next asked regarding the subsidiary investments. He told of the vote at a general meeting of June 25, 1908, to invest $6,000 in the Lancaster Theater Corporation, thru the Associated Actors, a holding company of the Rats.

Asked what the next important investment was he said it was four or five thousand dollars to promote the Elmira Theater Building. This was authorized in April, 1909, he said.

Mr. Mountford then said that on April 27, 1909, $7,000 further was invested in the Elmira bonds. No record of this was shown, however.

He also stated that the White Rats Actors' Union held 55 or 60 per cent of the stock of the Associated Actors' Company, and that the rest was held by the individual members.

J. S. Kritchfield, manager of the Kadell-Kritchfield Show, was informed by the G. S. & F. Ry. representative that the A. C. L. Ry. was turning down private car movements, so he took the matter up with Mr. McAdoo's office. The following is a copy of the reply he received:

Assistant to the Director-General of Railroads, Interstate Commerce Building, Washington.
January 25, 1918.

Mr. J. S. Kritchfield,
Manager Kadell-Kritchfield Show,
Colquitt, Ga.

Dear Sir—Replying to your letter January 17, regarding movement of your show car:

Some of the Southern roads have canceled their tariffs applying to such movements, but they will reinstate them shortly.

The Eastern railroads also canceled their tariffs, but are now reconsidering the subject, and will provide a rule which will permit the movement.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) EDWARD CHAMBERS,
Assistant Director-General of Railroads.

Following is a copy of a letter W. R. Sickels, manager of Willard's Famous Shows, wrote Director General of Railroads William G. McAdoo in regard to the movement of carnival companies, as well as a reply thereto:

Box 144, Concord, N. C.

Director General McAdoo,
Washington, D. C.:

Dear Sir—Will the railroads continue to handle the carnivals with and without their equipment this coming season?

Will any ruling be superior to the I. C. C. Tariff relative to special baggage movements, or will the tariff be repealed?

Most truly yours,
W. R. SICKELS,
Mgr. Willard's Famous Shows.

DIRECTOR GENERAL OF RAILROADS,
INTERSTATE COMMERCE BLDG.,
WASHINGTON,
January 22, 1918.

Mr. W. R. Sickels,
Concord, N. C.:

Dear Sir—Acknowledgement is made of your communication without date with relation to the continuance of handling so-called carnival companies.

In reply I beg to inform you that it does not appear at this time likely that the movement of these companies will be discontinued in the Southern and Western Classification Territory.

There is some possibility that their movement in Official Classification Territory may be deemed inexpedient.

Most truly yours,
EDWARD CHAMBERS.

"Honorable Sir—As the season is fast approaching when outdoor amusement organizations, comprising dramatic, minstrel and chautauqua companies, will be obliged to fill previously-made contracts, it is incumbent upon me, as Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Car-Owning Managers' Association, to file this plea with you, praying that it have immediate consideration and reply.

"Information has reached us, thru the press, that some ruling had been made by you regarding private cars. We have interpreted this ruling, however, that you intended it to apply to private cars that were being moved by their owners merely as a picnic or excursion and as a luxury, and not as a part of an important American industry, as is private equipment (cars) owned by amusement managers and moved by railroad companies in passenger train service.

"Your attention is called to the fact that many millions of dollars is invested by amusement managers in private passenger equipment and personal property; also, thousands of high-salaried artists have educated themselves to their art. Therefore, if the railroads were instructed by you not to transport special passenger equipment, according to the customs and laws of the land, it would be a great calamity to thousands of American citizens, and millions of dollars worth of property would be rendered useless besides, not considering that one of America's greatest educational and instructive enterprises would be wiped off the map.

"I pray that Your Honor consider the here-attached prayer and grant the relief prayed for without delay.

"I have the honor to be,
"Your humble servant,
"(Signed) W. I. SWAIN,
"Chairman Executive Committee Car-Owning Managers' Association."

The following are some extracts from the prayer of Chairman Swain:

"Amusement managers owning or controlling their passenger equipment are recognized as an industry that is an accommodation and a convenience to the public. The Federal Government considers the chautauquas of such importance that Congress has waived all privilege tax on this particular form of amusement."

"The amusement managers herein referred to closed contracts with home-coming week associations, chautauqua committees, and even Red Cross societies in various towns and cities of the United States during 1917 for engagements during 1918, considering they were justified in doing so, and amply protected by law, for the reason of various decisions by Interstate Railroad Commissioners and the Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D. C., and I beg to quote some of the different authorities quoted hereafter, and favorably consider same."

"The importance of the amusement interests of the country and the necessity of furnishing entertainment to the various communities thruout the United States is thoroly understood. The work being accomplished by the fairs of the United States, especially those of the Southern States, where agricultural development is particularly needed, may not be thoroly understood by you, however, these fairs, as developing agents, are of immense value to the South."

"Practically every fair in the South now has contracts with the showmen for furnishing the amusement attractions at their fairs for 1918, and many of them have even now announced, in a substantial way, to prepare for their 1918 date. The showmen cannot fill these contracts on terms agreed upon if the railroads are instructed to handle this business in an indifferent or indefinite manner."

"In conclusion, it is requested that the Honorable William G. McAdoo, Director-General of the Railroads, United States, after considering all herein contained, cause the following to be granted:

"PRIVATE CARS PERTAINING TO THE AMUSEMENT BUSINESS TO BE CARRIED IN PASSENGER TRAIN SERVICE THRUOUT THE UNITED STATES.

"(a) Private cars of bona-fide theatrical companies, minstrel shows, musical comedies, chautauquas, moving at passenger tariff rates, applicable to such business, when tendered for transportation over any line, in the United States, complying with M. C. B. rules, shall be accepted and hauled by the railroad companies in passenger train service. This tariff is not intended to specify that said railroads will handle such business in their limited first-class trains, unless no other train will suffice, or unless agreeable to said railroad.

"(b) However, it is the intention of this paragraph to instruct railroad companies to handle such show business and deliver them the day to towns they wish to exhibit in, in time for them to erect their paraphernalia before opening up for business, as per an itinerary they may submit to the proper railroad passenger officials.

"(c) It is not incumbent upon the railroads to furnish extra baggage cars to parties, in the event the railroads do not have such extra cars available for such purposes, out of their regular equipment."

LETTERS

Free, prompt and far-famed, the Mail Forwarding Service of The Billboard stands alone as a safe and sure medium through which professional people may have their mail addressed. Thousands of performers and showfolk now receive their mail through this highly efficient department.

Mail is sometimes lost and mix-ups result because performers do not write plainly, do not give correct address or forget to give an address at all when writing for advertised mail. Help The Billboard handle your mail by complying with the following:

Write for mail when it is FIRST advertised. The following is the key to the letter list:

Cincinnati ....(No Stars)
New York ....One Star (*)
Chicago ......Two Stars ()
St. Louis.....Three Stars ()
San Francisco ....(S)

If your name appears in the letter list with stars before it write to the office holding the mail, which you will know by the method outlined above. Keep the Mail Forwarding Department supplied with your route and mail will be forwarded without the necessity of advertising it. Postage is required only for packages—letter service is absolutely free.

Mail is held but thirty days, and can not be recovered after it goes to the Dead Letter Office.

Mail advertised in this issue was uncalled for up to last Sunday noon. All requests for mail must be signed by the party to whom mail is addressed.

SERVICE!

That's what did it. Quick action, thorough understanding and intelligent and discriminating handling of mail resulted in practically nine-tenths of the professional entertainers of America making their address in care of The Billboard. Service is rapidly attracting the others.

WE ARE NOW FORWARDING AN AVERAGE OF OVER 1,000 LETTERS A DAY EACH DAY THEY ARE RECEIVED.

Many of our clients are not put to the necessity of writing for their mail more than once or twice a season.

We do not have to advertise 5% of the letters that pass through our offices.

IN WRITING FOR MAIL THAT IS ADVERTISED, USE A POSTAL CARD. A self-addressed and stamped envelope is not necessary. Give your route far enough ahead to permit your mail to reach you. Write names of towns, dates and signature plainly.

MAIL IS HELD BUT ONE MONTH

and thereafter is sent to the Dead Letter office. It is advisable to write for mail when your name FIRST appears in the list. Address your postal to "Mail Forwarding Service," The Billboard.
